Rightists Gain

Meir's Support Cut in Israel

JERUSALEM (AP) — Premier Golda Meir's Labor party and its traditional ally, the National Religious party, today began the manoeuvring necessary to put together a new coalition government for Israel.

Although the soldiers' ballots from the ceasefire lines are still to be tallied, unofficial returns from Monday's general election indicated Mrs. Meir may be able to line up 69 members of the 120-member Knesset, the Israeli parliament, for a majority of 18.

This would include 50 Labor members, 11 members of the National Religious party, five Independent Liberals and three members of ultra-orthodox religious parties affiliated with the Labor alignment.

The leader of the National Religious party, Michael Hazani, said he will insist on formation of a "national unity government," meaning inclusion of Labor's chief opposition, the right-wing Likud bloc, which demands that Israel retain all Arab territory captured in the 1967 war.

However, Labor leaders view this demand by Hazani as a bargaining ploy only. They are confident that he will abandon it in exchange for their agreement to stronger religious legislation.

In the returns from the civilian balloting, Labor got 41.8 per cent of the vote, the socialists' smallest showing in Israel's 25 years as a state. The big gain was made by Likud, led by Menahem Begin, which got 21.7 per cent of the vote and was in line for 39 seats, a gain of seven.

The right-wing gains may force the government to hold set to some of the captured Arab territories it was prepared to relinquish in the Arab-Israeli peace negotiations in Geneva.

Transport Minister Shimon Peres said it will take Mrs. Meir and her associates a "little bit and time and a great deal of bargaining" to get together a new majority in the Knesset.

Hughes, who lives in Lancaster, near Log Angeles, drove to this community of 1,000 persons in the Sierra Nevada foothills to work on the home. He found it missing, along with numerous pipes and beams he had stockpiled nearby.

Wittich said neighbors reported having seen workmen methodically dismantle the house two weeks earlier.

"We haven't found out how it happened yet, but it looks like some kind of mistake — someone contracted out to have a house demolished and they got the wrong one. And now no one wants to admit it."

House Missing

SPRINGVILLE, Calif. (AP) — James Hughes reported the vacation house he was building was missing. Authorities found the remains of it in the town dump.

"We found what's left of it, which isn't much," Sheriff's Deputy Frank Wittich said yesterday. "Just a few old pipes and ends of boards. All the fixtures are gone and what with the fuel, demolishment of the good timber went pretty fast."

This may delay the resumption of the main Geneva negotiations. But Israel's military negotiators returned to Switzerland today to continue talks with Egyptian representatives about disengagement of their forces along the Suez canal.

Harju did add one assist to the effort of the Hammarby team, though, and helped it to a 7-2 win over Trenton, in a game played before about 900 fans at the Community Gardens. For story, see page 19.

Labor Asserts Energy Crisis Engineered to Curb Inflation

LONDON (CP) — Talks on Britain's coal crisis opened today in a new bid to break an industrial deadlock that has cut fuel supplies, disrupted rail services and faced millions with reduced work weeks.

As representatives of miners and train drivers prepared to meet with management, the Opposition Labor party accused the government of engineering an energy crisis for its own political and economic ends.

Tom Bend, Labor spokesman on trade and industry affairs, said the government's decision to impose a three-day week on non-essential industries was a way of cutting the wages of employees involved by 40 per cent. Bend said this will ease inflation without the government having to resort to unpopular taxes.

Bend also said that other governmental fuel-saving measures, including the order to close down all three television channels at 10:30 p.m. every night, were aimed at stirring up public dislike of the miners.

The Labor MP was referring to the government's order limiting non-essential industries to three days use of electricity each week.

The three-day week was introduced following the miners' ban on weekend and overtime working which has resulted in a 30 per-cent drop in coal production.

Despite the ban, Trade and Industry Minister Tom Boardman said coal stocks at power stations are enough to see Britain through until late March. Boardman defended the government's introduction of a three-day week saying that without it any other measures all industry and essential services would have come to a halt in February as a result of the miners' action.

The three-day week has already begun to bite. The department of trade and industry said that on Monday 648,000 persons were out of work in addition to the 490,000 regularly unemployed out of a total work force of 25 million.

Main aim of the talks between the miners and officials of the national Coal Board which runs the country's publicly-owned coal mines, was to fix special payments for "waiting time." This is the period taken up each day by miners going to and returning from the coal face.

Miners want payments of up to £5 ($12) extra a week for waiting time. They currently earn an average of £11 ($26.40) a week which would rise to an average of £47 ($112.80) under the board's offer which conforms with the government's curbs. The miners rejected the offer and demanded increased waiting-time payments.

Meanwhile, leaders of labor unions representing train drivers, porters and light engine and administrative staff were due to meet with officials of British Rail to discuss a wage offer.

The drivers have been working to rule for almost three weeks bringing London's suburban rail services to a virtual standstill. Despite their action the drivers still collect their basic £53 ($79.20) a week. Normally they earn about £20 ($120) with overtime and mileage bonuses. They have rejected a new weekly basic wage of £58.85 ($88.60) and demand a basic of £60 ($90).

Italian Plane Crashes at Turin

TURIN, Italy (CP) — "It was foggy. I was in the front section. Suddenly the plane tipped to the right and we spun. Then, there was smoke all over."

Enrico Irani was one of four Italians who survived the crash New Year's Eve of a twin-engine Italian airliner as it was landing in fog and rain at the Turin airport. Police said 28 persons were killed, and all were believed to have been Italians.

The Fokker F-28 of the domestic Italian airline hit a house under construction, crashed beside a nearby farmhouse and burst into flames. Most of the victims were trapped in the plane, and witnesses said the intense heat of the fire kept rescue workers back.

The airport tower said the pilot had reported no irregularities in the flight from Bologna to Turin. The plane was en route from Sardinia to Switzerland, and many of the passengers were returning to work after spending the holidays with their families.

Pinto Car 'Beaten to Death'

PICO RIVERA, Calif. An Anaheim man, with the help of about 10 other persons, has beaten his hated Cartridge to death on Ford Motor Co.

"I had to do it," said Roger Sweitzer, after he and members of the Quirrred Consumers Action Committee founded Sweitzer's 1972 Pinto property.

"As soon as we started rechecking the cases of the missing wombs they either called home to tell their parents they were safe or returned home."

Carr's said items of deputies spent New Year's Day trudging through the eight-mile loop orange-grove and wooded area where the four murder victims have been found since September.

The last body, found Dec. 28, was that of Sharon Mary Wimer, 14, of Titusville, missing since Nov. 5.

Investigators believe the four were killed by the same person.

automobile into little more than a pile of scrap Tuesday. They used hammers, axes, crowbars and clubs.

The committee is a loosely-organized group in Southern California car owners formed by the owner of a Lincoln Continental who burned his car in protest here two years ago.

Sweitzer said a wide variety of mechanical problems began popping up in the car almost from the first day he brought it home.

"It's been dying by inches ever since I got it," Sweitzer said. "I would rather put it out of its misery and kill it before it kills me or someone else.

About 40 minutes after the dismantling began, sheriff's deputies forced the Pinto pounders to disperse.

Sweitzer, who charged each person $1 a swing, plans to use the money he collected to help pay for his next mode of transportation, a bicycle.

Multi-murders Bring Reunions

TITUSVILLE, Fla. (AP) — The discovery of the bodies of three young women and a 14-year-old girl contributed noticeably to a lot of family reunions for the new year.

After the remains of four murdered females were found in a wooded area near here, investigators began checking to see if a dozen other young women listed as missing also may have been victims of the same killer.

"We now only have two, or possibly three women listed as missing," said Inspector James Garvin of the Brevard County sheriff's department Tuesday.

Toronto May Take Mug Shots Of All Its Dogs and Cats

TORONTO (CP) — A veterinarian with the city's public health department suggests a voluntary census, complete with "mug-shot" photographs, be taken of the city's estimated 300,000 dogs and cats.

Ian Glenroy suggested Tuesday in a report to the department that each pet owner be issued a photo identification card for his animal. A duplicate card would be retained by city hall.

When pets were lost, civic employees such as garbagemen would be issued photographs of the missing animals and told to keep their eyes open for the pets.

The report, being considered by city committees, also suggests a telephone advisory service at city hall to answer pet health questions, and medical check-ups for the pets involved in the census.

Owners would pay $3 a pet for the service.

New Development Corporation Will Assist Eastern Ontario

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — The Trenton-Belleville area will have as good a shot as any other Eastern Ontario district at the $50-million Ontario Development Corporation budget Carl Weese, one of its directors said New Year's Day.

Mr. Weese, an active member of the Trenton business community over the past 25 years, was appointed to the Eastern Ontario Development Corporation (EODC) by Premier William Davis. The appointment was announced several months ago but was only formally approved last week.

Also appointed to the 13-member board was John Brown of Bancroft.

Since last summer there has been re-alignment of the ODC, something Trenton town council has been keeping an eye on and termed by Mr. Weese as "good, sound thinking."

Until early summer the corporation, which makes large amounts of money available to new and growing industry, was largely concerned in the Toronto area and because of this suffered the scorn of opposition parties.

Mr. Weese said the government is seeking to de-centralize the body. Its first step was creation of the Northern Ontario Development Corporation, followed by the EODC, which reaches from roughly Hastings County to the Quebec border.

Industry approaches the ODC for groundwork to determine if a company is acceptable for a loan. The final decision before going to the Ontario Cabinet is made by Mr. Weese and his board. The Cabinet may veto decisions but "this would not be common," said Mr. Weese who attended his first meeting as a member in late fall.

While Mr. Weese was not prepared to comment on the workings of the board and the intention of the re-alignment, creation of the EODC and restructuring of powers is seen to favor the new eastern and northern ODC offshoots.

Acceptable industries in the north can receive up to 90 per cent funding and those in the eastern region up to 75 per cent. Only 50 per cent will be supplied to Toronto and southern area businesses.

The reorganization favors eastern and northern regions again in its drive to push for private tourist ventures that would create jobs and ultimately promote the province, said Mr. Weese.

Reminded of present Trenton plans for a marina for Trent River tourists, Mr. Weese was sceptical of municipalities being considered for funding.

Companies which do apply for funding must first have been turned down by at least two conventional lending institutions.

"We're not going into competition with the banks," said Mr. Weese. "On a small scale, we aren't going to be taking any unnecessary risks — though we're bound to make mistakes."

The forgivable loan section of the ODC which raised political controversy, was removed during government reorganization. But this lost no loan to industry is replaced at least partially by flexible interest rates and repayment schedules.

Mr. Weese said money could be lent on a wide variety of terms at no interest at all or up to the current banking interest rate.

The corporation is set up to give a head start to industry which will provide employment "not to give money free to huge corporations," said Mr. Weese.

He said if there were sufficies by good ideas put forth from the eastern region, all the money could possibly be pumped in.

Mr. Weese said no time limit had been set for his participation with the board. He speculated it was his business reputation that led to his appointment. The board's chairman receives $125 a meeting day for his involvement. Mr. Weese said his honorarium was something less. "It's a chance to serve my province," he said.

Air Supply Crews Leave for Suez

TRENTON — Canadian Armed Forces personnel are on their way to Cairo today — a final operation of Canada's Middle East peacekeeping contribution.

A briefing session at the Canadian Forces Base here this morning said the airmen will be running a fresh-food supply missions from Cyprus and Beirut to United Nations personnel in the Suez Zone.

Lt.-Col. A.-G. Tegart, command officer, CFB Trenton's 424 Air Transport Command squadron and commander of the operation, said there was a "relative shortage of fresh food" in the war zone.

Two Buffalo aircraft—both with seven-man crews — left today. They will be followed during the week by eight flights of big Hercules transport aircraft, which will ferry a total of 64 men and supplies to the zone.

Lt.-Col. Tegart said the crews must be in Suez by Jan. 8 to comply with Canada's agreement with the UN. They will be expected to fly at least one mission daily, ferrying food to an UN peacekeeping base at Cairo and ceasefire lines in the Suez Zones.

Maj. Gen. Hugh McLachlan, commanding officer, Air Transport Command, warned crews they would have to fly in difficult conditions along "strictly defined" air corridors.

"There are trigger-happy fellows on the ground," the general said following the briefing. "You'll have to fly where and when the United Nations tells you to."

The group's length of service in the Middle East is vague. The only mention of a time element was "at least 90 days — and a possible extension up to six months," a briefing officer told the crews.

If further negotiations with combatants are successful the contingent is designed to be expanded to 145 men with an additional Buffalo aircraft and a number of helicopters.

These helicopters are specifically for observing ground movement. At this time flights in forward war-zone areas have not been approved, said the general.

"If they don't fly the pre-arranged air corridors they could be intercepted," he said.

The Buffalos are expected to take five days — or 36 flying hours —to reach Cairo.

Lt. Col. Tegart is making the trip in a faster Hercules and will have organization complete by time the slower Buffalos arrive.

The short-range Buffalo, designed for quick takeoff and landings on small airstrips, have been equipped with extra fuel tanks for the long trans-Atlantic hop on their Middle East flight.

Fire on Chicken Farm Blamed on Gas Theft

HILLIER — Fire, believed by the owner to have been started by gasoline thieves, this morning destroyed a storage building on the chicken farm of J. Leonard Smith, one-third of a mile east of Hillier.

Straw stored in the stone building "went up like a torch" at 1.30 a.m. said Mrs. Smith.

The Smiths were awakened by a neighbor, Gary White, and a friend who had spotted the fire. The young people had called Wellington fire department, which arrived within 10 minutes. The fire department was called out again at 9.15 a.m. when fire erupted in shavings under the building.

Damage to the building, a tractor, a truck and a quantity of straw is estimated at about $6,000.00 partly covered by insurance.

Mrs. Smith said the door to the storage building had been broken down and the cap was off a truck's gas tank. Mr. Smith found a discarded gasoline container that had burned in the building. Tracks, said Mrs. Smith, gas spills lead to marks of a parked car on the road near other farm buildings, she said.

Tax... and Spend

The chapter headings tell the story: grants paid prior to parliamentary approval . . . losses due to inadequate security deposits . . . defence costs charged to environmental improvements . . . inadequate control over supply items . . . cost of littleused engineering orders . . . excessive cost of accommodation for militia unit, Kitchener, Ont., . . . additional cost of roof repairs because of unsatisfactory insulation material . . . cost of unused accommodation . . . contracting for alleraft repair and overhaul without competition.

It is the report of the Auditor General for the fiscal year which ended March 31 last and it cites the usual chronicle of errors and misjudgments by the Government in the handling of projects funded as ever by the long-suffering taxpayer.

There was the checkered career for example of a 1973 calendar ordered as late as September 1972 by the Post Office, one which when it was finally delivered, the subsequent scrapping of 100,000 copies. revisions and deletions from the remainder, not to mention delays that held up final shipment until the last part of January 1973, cost $270,000 plus federal sales tax of $32,000, as against the original estimate of $229,000 exclusive of sales tax.

Then, in the much-lauded Opportunities for Youth program, of 837 projects reviewed, 129 failed to produce adequate accounting records and supporting documentation, 14 projects the salaries paid to participants were in excess of the guidelines and there were six projects employing a total of nine persons who were holding positions elsewhere at the same time. There were also spent on capital items, from canoes to musical instruments, for which no accounting was given.

Under the heading of construction delays, we read of 81 change orders and 250 design revisions on construction of a detention unit at the St. Vincent de Paul penitentiary in Quebec which increased the cost from $2,263,000 to $2,641,000.

Of course we have heard of worse fiscal calamities (remember the carrier Bonaventure and the Arrow fighter program), but these are sufficient to show that control over Government spending projects Bayes a great deal to be desired.

No End To It

If there is any means of halting the kind of government extravagance cited above we have yet to hear of it.

It is one thing to chronicle these horrors, this cavalier disregard for even a minimum semblance of control over the public purse, but quite another to see any effort by Government to do anything about it.

In 1974 there is no reason to anticipate things will be different. Eventually the Auditor General will release another report with more of the same.

The Government is only too aware of the growth of inflation, that it is intensifying with each passing day, but it is unwilling to finger to curb its own spending.

The bureaucracy is proliferating, as witness the recently announced increase in the Information establishment. Ottawa will spend an added $100 million this year on telling the public of the multi-faceted activities of government. As of now there are 747 full-time information officers earning from the trainee's $6,830 to the top level $30,000 plus. More are to be added, Treasury Board approval having already been given for a total of 1,125 information people. Now the extent and quality of the information disseminated to newspapers varies greatly, from the contents of the interesting journal, Canada Courier, put out by Industry, Trade and Commerce, to such inconsequential waffle, as was released by the Revenue Department showing Robert Stanbury playing Santa Claus at the minister's Christmas reception at Scarborough civic centre.

But most startling is the observation of one of the top men in the information field, as contained in a recent interview with The Globe and Mail's Terrence Belford. Unidentified, for obvious reasons, this man is quoted as saying: "I figure maybe eight per cent really earn their salaries. Maybe eight per cent do a full day's work. . ."

To what extent is this true of other departments in the Government service? The question comes readily to mind, and we suspect it is valid enough in a calling which employs the maximum numbers at the highest salaries for the lowest return in terms of work and efficiency.

One Out of 17 Still Out of Work

Ottawa's Impossible Dream: Jobless Level of 4.6 Per Cent

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service
Although unemployment declined a little in 1973, it remains one of the most difficult problems that Canada faces in 1974.

Even to produce the jobless rate in the level of early 1969 (about 4.6 per cent of the labor force) seems to be an impossible dream. It was in 1969 that the Trudeau government launched its temporarily successful all-out war on inflation, and the unemployment rate began its rise to just under seven per cent.

Throughout most of 1973, the unemployed totalled less than six per cent. But when one out of 17 workers can't find a job—even when the fight against inflation has been all but abandoned—it's obviously not a time to congratulate ourselves on the improvement.

From the point of view of the Liberal government, leaning for support on the New Democratic Party, it has become more important to ease the hardships of unemployment through more generous payments than to stimulate the growth of job-creating private industry.

Apart from the point of view of industry, it has become more and more difficult to compete for labor with the unemployment insurance plan.

Many employers say they can't attract and retain workers unless they pay $100 more than the weekly unemployment benefits. Anything less is not enough to cover the worker's added costs—transportation to and from work, lunches and the like—not provide a modest incentive to work.

But, those employers claim, the resulting wage is more than the extra offered to pay its workers with little or no skills or experience. And, they ask, where is the skilled labor of the future com'ng from?

Today's progressive income-tax structure discourages young people from devoting three or four years to learning a skill as an apprentice, only to earn an artisan's wage that is not much higher than that of an unskilled worker.

It is often said that young people choose unemployment because they reject the materialistic values of our economy—but their values are much more human than those of their elders.

But how valid is that argument for unemployment, when social workers, the church work, serving the disabled, and so on—are starved for recruits!

A country as wealthy as Canada should, indeed, make adequate and humane provision for its unemployed, as well as for its aged and those who suffer from other misfortunes.

But if it is to remain wealthy and capable of providing for all, Canada must re-examine its priorities.

Incentives to work, to invest, to develop skills and to develop resources must not be destroyed for no more noble a goal than to preserve a minority of government.

"It's Mao. He says to thank you for the dove with the olive branch—It was delicious!"

Fuel Crisis Hits Environmental Interests

By BRUCE LEVETT

WASHINGTON (CP) — The environmental movement in the United States is losing—and appears likely to keep on losing under the onslaught of measures designed to ease the energy crisis.

Already, the crisis has brought suspension of the National Environmental Policy Act to allow construction of the Alaska pipeline.

The House of Representatives has delayed action on a Senate-passed bill to regulate strip mining.

The interior department is in the midst of all rush, including prospecting offshore and in such remote havens as the Arctic national wildlife refuge.

And there has been an all-out attack on the Clean Air Act of 1970, which requires automobile manufacturers to reduce pollution.

Congressmen backing environmental protection say they're worried and that their main worry is that the crisis will force changes that go far beyond the needs of the fuel shortage and will roll back public policy to the days of outright exploitation of limited natural resources.

Observers see this as a key point in the environment-versus-energy problem.

The strategy now seems to be to work way on some half-way rules while trying to protect the heart of the environmental legislation.

In a recent talk to coal miners, Train said the federal government will not retreat from its environmental standards, even in the face of the energy crisis.

"We cannot live without oxygen anymore than we can live without energy," he said, adding that "environmental laws must be obeyed."

He predicted the U.S. will be forced to rely on coal for at least a generation but said the EPA will see to it that the production of coal "no longer entails such unconscionable human and environmental costs."

In line with this, a group of oil companies is attempting to raise financing for an $83 million prototype plant to test the commercial potential of removing sulphur from coal and converting cost to a liquid fuel that burns cleanly.

All that is for the future, however, and environmentalists agree with Senator Edmund Muskie (Dem. Maine) who says there is definitely a real move away from the environmental laws.

They believe that while it is necessary to give way where "it makes sense," they must if they are to hold the key ground, and time limits on any waivers of environmental rules.

Some environmentalists go so far as to suggest there can be a positive side to the current confusion. For example, attempts are being made to clean up coal at the mine rather than long overdue but one which took the energy crisis to initiate.

Senator Gaylord Nelson (Dem. Wis.) says the U.S. must never again settle for short, quick and costly solutions as solving environmental problems but must establish a body of experts to analyze world resources and the implications of shortages.

"All the energy crisis really tells you is that the day of world-wide shortages is upon us. We're going to be moving into food, fibre and mineral crises."

Nelson is only one of an increasing number of legislators who feel the time has come for more governmental action in the management of natural resources—rather than leaving such development in the hands of "profit-motivated free-enterprise groups.

Hydro Line Route Stirs Argument

Brantford Expositor
The Ontario government must be practical in making the final decision on where and how to install the high voltage hydro lines linking Pickering and the new Nanticoke generating station near Simcoe. The 144 miles of lines, ranging from 150-foot high towers, will by 1977 carry enough electricity to fill the needs of both Hamil on and Toronto.

Public outcry stopped Ontario Hydro from constructing the lines entirely above ground in a northerly route through the King Township and Stouffville area. Dr. Osmond Solandt, former industrialist and former Science Council of Canada chairman, has led public hearings since Oct. 15 and expects to make recommendations (with hundreds of compromises") to Resource Development Minister Lawrence within three months.

Making the Polluter Pay

UNESCO Fosters
Member countries of the OECD — Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development — have recently agreed that the polluter should pay for cleaning up the environment.

Under the 'polluter pays' formula, it may in fact be the manufacturers of goods in the first instance, but ultimately it will be the consumer. The higher costs incurred as a result of fighting pollution will be reflected in the price of goods and services.

This approach has been agreed upon so that environmental factors, clean air and water for example, can be brought into economic calculations along with the more traditional factors of production — labor, land and capital. This is considered to be both the most efficient way of reducing pollution and the one which will distort international economic exchanges.

OECD's Environment Committee is already working on specific cases — water pollution by the pulp and paper industry, air pollution by the automobile industry and water pollution by stationary sources of power.

The environment committee is also making case studies of methods it proposes can be discourage pollution. For example, at a recent meeting in Karlsruhe, Federal Republic of Germany, experts from 12 countries discussed the practices of water basin agencies in France and the Netherlands, who impose taxes on industry and use the proceed to build collective treatment plants.

Some of the most difficult questions concerning the economics of environment protection arise in connection with pollution across frontiers. When a river crosses several countries and much of the pollution comes from upstream, how should the charges be divided?

Airline Price-Gouging

The Globe And Mail
Does your heart beat a little faster with pride when you see a plane bearing the symbol Air Canada or C P Air? We certainly hope so, because that little bit of national chauvinism may cost you money every time you travel by jet to Europe or, in this hemisphere, Vancouver or the Caribbean.

Every Canadian knows of course that he's at the mercy of that price-fixing organization, the International Air Transport Association, and that his own Air Canada Transport Commission slammed the plane door on his fingers by ruling that foreign air carriers cannot charge less than the fare filed by Canadian carriers.

But it hurts to be reminded by Robert Lewis's article in today's travel section that the strapping of flagrantly chauvinist fares on Air Canada or C P Air. That would seem to be an end to monopolistic price-fixing and an easing of restrictions on trade.

It might even mean our two airlines would have to become competitive. Good heavens, it might even lead to free enterprise.

Trenton Cities Progress

The Trentonian
That address given by Trenton clerk O.W. Larry to the local Lions club was a refreshing change what we have tried to say from time to time in these columns. Trenton has a future and so nobody can testify to this better than he can. What is more, although he did not say so, there has been no small factor in the changes for the better that have been come in the past two decades, and especially in the past decade.

Change is now so constant that we virtually take it for granted. New buildings, new factories, new homes, new streets and many other things, come with great regularity. It is easy enough to talk about the need, and we must go on doing that. But we must also recognize that things are going forward and that successive councils have been aware of this, encourage growth.

Nobody has been around longer on the municipal scene than Mr. Larry

Michener Holds Last Levee

OTTAWA (CP) — Gov.-Gen. Roland Michener bade a happy new year and farewell Tuesday to hundreds of diplomats, military and RCMP personnel and the public.

The occasion was his annual New Year's Day levee at Government House, the last before he retires Jan. 14. He is to be succeeded by diplomat Jules Leger.

Despite a fresh snowfall that made driving slightly risky, 631 persons attended the levee to say goodbye to the 75-year-old Queen's representative.

This type of reception, defined as an "assembly held by a sovereign or his representative at which only are received," saw several dozen represent as the bought of tradition bent with the winds of change.

Swim in Vain

TORONTO (CP) — Two Don Jail prisoners swam the Don River in an attempt to escape Tuesday but police were waiting on the bank for them.

Larry Francis Burbank and Terrance Leroy Conrad were assigned to a cleaning detail in a basement corridor when they forced a lock leading to the reservoir yard, police said. They used a wooden bench and a step ladder to climb the jail wall.

However, they were seen by a nearby hospital security guard who called police.

No Substitute

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — Sudbury regional police found that the driver of one car they arrested on New Year's Eve would have passed any sobriety test, but he was under regulation size.

The police said Tuesday the car was driven by a five-year-old boy, accompanied by his father.

The adult had been drinking, police said.

Bohlen Dies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Veteran diplomat Charles E. Bohlen died Tuesday evening of cancer, his doctor said.

Bohlen, 69, spent 40 years as a United States diplomat and state department official before his retirement in 1969. He died in hospital after a long illness, Dr. Dabney Jarman said.

Study Grant

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says the federal cabinet will likely decide next week whether to provide $13 million for a GO train commuter service north of Toronto.

The newspaper says that if approved it will be the first time federal money has been used for GO transit, started in 1967.

Illegal

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon's appointment of his wife to serve on a national advisory council was illegal, the Western White House said Tuesday.

A presidential spokesman said the law prohibits the president from appointing his wife to a government position, and therefore Mrs. Nixon cannot serve on the new 25-member National Voluntary Service Advisory Council.

In announcing the appointment Sunday, the White House said Mrs. Nixon had been designated by her husband as temporary chairwoman of the council. She was to have been eligible for a regular government consultant fee of $134.48 for each day she worked at council duties.

TORONTO (CP) — The provincial government named 96 lawyers Queen's Counsel Monday night when Attorney-General Dalton Bales announced the annual New Year's Honors list for the legal profession.

More than half the lawyers, including both Liberal and Progressive Conservative party officials, were from the Metropolitan Toronto area. Three women were named to the list.

Six Stabbed

TORONTO (CP) — Six persons were stabbed, two critically, as a New Year's party early Tuesday.

Police said that at about 1 a.m., a man began stabbing people at random with a double-bladed, six-inch hunting knife at the party at 4 Severn.

Bad Weather Cuts New Year's Hoopla

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Snow, freezing rain and low temperatures apparently were the wrong mix Monday night for New Year's revellers across Canada intent on welcoming 1974.

With the exception of Toronto and a few other centres, officials reported the hoopla that usually surrounds New Year's Eve was on the peaceful side this year.

Police said celebrants in major cities west of the Ontario-Manitoba border gave them a quieter time as many motorists heeded warnings to stay off the roads.

But in Toronto it was the biggest, noisiest party in city history as an estimated 250,000 persons streamed into the streets at midnight and packed the public transit vehicles that were free for the night, courtesy of a distillery.

Fewer celebrants made the rounds in Montreal. "Most people seem not to have moved around too much last night," police said.

One Montreal policeman, "It was a calm night generally."

The thermometer in Winnipeg hit 43 below early Tuesday, only three degrees short of a record for Jan. 1 and police reported about a dozen cars stolen after they had been left with motors running.

Edmonton police also had 12 cars reported stolen within two hours after midnight under the same circumstances.

Watergate Court Activity to Rise

Special prosecutor Leon Jaworski has indicated that the Watergate grand juries are ready to consider indictments "in a substantial number of major involvements" this month and next.

The conspiracy-perjury trial of former attorney-general John Mitchell and two others in the Vesco campaign contribution case is scheduled to begin this month in New York.

The sentencing of Egil Krogh, head of the White House plumbers, is expected in a number of weeks. Krogh has pleaded guilty to conspiring to violate the rights of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

The two Watergate grand juries in Washington—soon to be joined by a third—have been investigating the break-in of Democratic party headquarters and the subsequent cover-up, as well as illegal campaign contributions, the ITT and milk-fund cases, the Howard Hughes $100,000 contribution and dirty campaign tactics.

Jaworski said in a statement Monday: "Although investigations in various areas within the special prosecutor's jurisdiction are continuing, including the review of White House files, the presentation of evidence to the grand juries has progressed to the point that in January and February these bodies will be prepared to consider the matters of returning indictments in a substantial number of major involvements."

It is known that targets of the grand juries in their various investigations include such former Nixon aides and intimates as Mitchell, H. R. Haldeman, John Ehrlichman, Herbert Kalmbach and Charles Colson.

Ehrlichman, David Young and convicted conspirator G. Gordon Liddy also have pleaded not guilty to state indictments in Los Angeles in connection with the rifling of files of Dr. Lewis Fielding, Ellsberg's psychiatrist. That trial has not been scheduled.

In addition to Krogh, sentencing also is expected in the cases of three former White House or re-election committee aides who pleaded guilty to one count each of obstructing justice in return for giving testimony against others.

They are John Dean, the former presidential counsel who said Nixon knew of the cover-up; Jeb Magruder, deputy director of the re-election committee who admitted knowing of the break-in and committing perjury; and Frederick LaRue, a go-between in payoffs to the Watergate defendants.

Appeals are pending in the cases of all seven men who either were convicted of the Watergate conspiracy trial or who pleaded guilty and then tried to withdraw their pleas.

To date, seven convictions and one officer in each have pleaded guilty to making illegal campaign contributions. One other firm and its chairman have pleaded one guilty and will go to trial.

Energy Crisis in U.S. Influences Gas Sold

TORONTO (CP) — Although service stations in the Niagara Peninsula have started to benefit from a shortage of gasoline in the United States, stations at other border crossing areas say the U.S. energy squeeze has resulted in loss of business.

A survey of gasoline outlets near border crossings Monday showed dealers close to the Peace Bridge linking Buffalo, N.Y., and Fort Erie, Ont., with increased gasoline sales, while in Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., the gasoline shortage in the U.S. has resulted in loss of sales.

Terry Sensabaugh, manager of a Fort Erie service station, said business was booming Monday "with lineups of six or seven cars at a time" and running full-up."

He guaranteed he had-pumped 1,500 gallons by mid-afternoon Monday, 50 per cent of the total going to cars with New York licence plates.

"They all coming over with empty tanks," Mr. Sensabaugh said. "Typically they ask for a full-up and then want a couple of cans in the trunk filled, too."

In Niagara Falls, Ont., dealers near the two bridges to Niagara Falls, N.Y., said about 30 to 40 per cent of their sales are to Americans.

"A couple of years ago, we weren't selling any to speak of," Les Watson said, adding that nearly all the U.S. cars Monday were from New York state.

At Windsor, Ont., several dealers reported an increase in sales to U.S.-licensed cars but a corresponding drop in sales to southbound Canadian tourists.

Donald Brown of Windsor said business at his service station "is little heavier than usual, but not much." However, he said sales of diesel fuel had doubled in recent weeks.

Bob Merrifield of si station near the Ambassador Bridge in Windsor said business from across the border had improved "quite a bit recently."

Douglas Harris of a service station near the Bluewater Bridge in Sarnia, Ont., estimated that three out of 10 cars stopping in Monday were American.

Boy Killed

TORONTO (CP) — Paul Arsenault, 5, of Toronto was killed Tuesday when the tobogan he was riding struck a bench in a city park.

Sunday, Joseph Danielson, 17 months, died hours after he was involved in a similar accident in another park.

One-time Outlaw Given Big Vote

TEL AVIV (AP) — He has been an outlaw and a terrorist. He has been called a Fascist and an extremist.

Now, at 60, Menahem Begin has led his right-wing Gahal bloc to a strong second in the Israeli elections and gained a new standing for his brand of no-compromise politics.

He claimed on Monday that the election results showed many Israelis oppose concessions to the Arabs at the Geneva negotiating table. Begin has opposed concessions all along in his years of Zionist battles.

Elegant and gentlemanly, Begin has blossomed over the 25 years of Israeli's existence from the head of a ruthless Jewish underground striking at the Arabs of Palestine and its British rulers, to a senior member of the establishment.

His personal mellowing, and the anger of voters who find Premier Golda Meir was caught off guard by the October war, for the first time made Begin palatable to a large number of Israelis.

Poland-born, Begin immigrated to Israel in 1942, after imprisonment in a Siberian labor camp. Soon after he arrived in Palestine he organized the Arab riots against the Jews and the tough British fight against immigration, he assumed command of the Irgun underground.

The Irgun clung to block tactics eschewed by the more conservative Haganah fighters under David Ben-Gurion. Irgun bombed the King David Hotel in Jerusalem, headquarters of the British mandate army, killing nearly 100 persons. They raided the Arab village of Deir Yassin near Jerusalem, killing 254 civilian inhabitants.

In 1948, when Israel won statehood, Begin converted the Irgun into the Herut—Liberty—political party. He won 14 seats in the first parliament, increased this to 19 in 1961 and by 1969 held 26 of the 120 Knesset seats.

Herut's stance toward the Arabs at first was a dreamy adoption of the Biblical vision of the Promised Land calling for further Jewish conquest of Arab land.

In time, Herut dropped the call for territorial expansion, but continued to advocate fierce retaliation for Arab guerrilla attacks.

When the 1967 Middle East war threatened Israel, a national unity government of all major parties named Begin minister without portfolio. He was instrumental in formulating the policy of nonwithdrawal from captured Arab land without a peace treaty.

Begin resigned in 1970 after Mrs. Meir's government accepted a truce plan proposed by then U.S. state secretary William Rogers. He strengthened his following by joining with two other fight-wing splinter groups into the Likud—Unity—bloc.

As a right-winger, he believes in capitalism, but that was no issue in the elections. The sole issue was Arab territory. Begin was rigidly against com-

Whitelaw on Queen's Honors List

LONDON (CP) — A man who has worked to bring hopes of peace to Northern Ireland, a popular trade union leader, a British soccer star and the head honcho of the Boy Scouts are in the New Year's honors list published today.

William Whitelaw, who gathered divided Ulster leaders for the first power-sharing executive of Britain's most exclusive awards, the Companion of Honor (CH).

It carries no title but the initials CH after a man's name signify high distinction. Membership in the order is limited to 65.

Canada's Dr. Charles Best was honored with the CH two years ago for his work in the discovery of life-saving insulin.

Whitelaw, often mentioned as future prime minister, was appointed employment minister last month to deal with Britain's economic and industrial woes.

2 tablespoons flour
1 egg yolk
1 can (5-½ oz.) whole mushrooms
¼ cup dried pitted prunes, cooked and chopped
½ cup brown long grain rice

Flake salmon with juice. Beat cream, flour, and egg yolk together until smooth. Pour into a saucepan; cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until it comes to the boil. Add salmon, mushrooms with their juice, chopped prunes, and rice; mix well. Place mixture in buttered 1-quart casserole dish. Bake at 350 degrees F. for 40-45 minutes. Markes 3 servings.

Salmon Souffle

Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry. Fold into salmon mixture. Pour into 2-quart souffle dish. Oven-poach (souffle dish set in pan of very hot water) at 325 degrees F. for 50-60 minutes. Makes 3 servings.

Salmon Noodle Ring

2 cans (7¾ oz. each) B.C. salmon
6 oz. noodles or spaghetti (broken)
2 tablespoons chopped green pepper
2 tablespoons chopped onion
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
4 egg yolks
Salt and pepper to taste
½ cup canned stewed tomatoes chopped
4 egg whites
½ cup grated cheddar cheese
Cooked chopped spinach

Flake salmon with juice. Cook noodles or spaghetti according to package directions. Cook green pepper and onion in butter or margarine until transparent. Beat egg yolks until thick and lemon-colored; stir in flaked salmon, salt and pepper. Fold in cooked noodles, tomatoes, and onion mixture. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry; fold into salmon mixture. Spoon mixture into well-buttered 1¼ quart ring mould. Set mould in pan of hot water; oven-poach at 350 degrees F. for 40-45 minutes, or until knife inserted comes out clean. Unmould onto serving platter; sprinkle top with cheddar cheese; fill centre of mould with cooked spinach. Makes 6-8 servings.

Sift flour with salt. Add milk and melted butter gradually. Stir in beaten eggs and beat thoroughly. Pour by scoonfuls into hot greased pan, spreading evenly and thinly. Brown on both sides. Place a spoonful of salmon mixture on each pancake. Roll up.

As pancakes are filled and rolled, place in lightly greased casserole and place in warm oven.

Allow two French Pancakes per serving. Makes approximately 4 servings. Garnish with a lemon wedge and parsley.

Creamed Salmon:

1 can (7-¾ oz.) B.C. Salmon
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup liquid (salmon liquid plus milk to make volume)
¼ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon lemon juice

Drain and flake salmon, reserving liquid. Melt butter over low heat, blend in flour and gradually add liquid, stirring constantly until thickened. Add salt, lemon juice and salmon and stir until heated.

2 cups mayonnaise
8 cups diced cooked potatoes, chilled
¾ cup finely diced celery
1 teaspoon lemon juice
½ teaspoon pepper
⅓ cup green onions
¾ cup chopped green pepper

With an electric mixer blend the salmon, lemon juice thoroughly; add mayonnaise and continue to beat until mayonnaise is flavored with the salmon. Add pepper, then fold in potatoes, green onions, celery and green pepper. Adjust seasonings. (Add salt at this point if desired.) Pile lightly into serving bowl and garnish with sieved hard-cooked egg yolks and finely sliced dill pickles. Refrigerate. (Note: salad should be kept well-chilled.)

1 can (3¾ oz.) B.C. Salmon
1 teaspoon tomato catsup
1 teaspoon mayonnaise
1 teaspoon Parmesan cheese
Pinch of oregano
Dash of lemon juice
Dash of white pepper

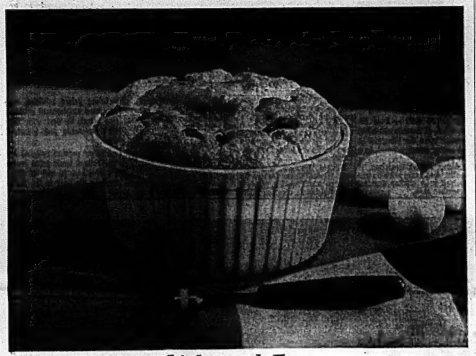
1 can (15½ oz.) B.C. Salmon
1 loaf day-old sandwich bread, unsliced
1 teaspoon dry mustard
1 teaspoon white vinegar
¼ teaspoon lemon juice
1 tablespoons relish
1 tablespoon mayonnaise



With a very sharp knife cut loaf lengthwise into 10 slices. Discard outer crusts (save for making into bread crumbs). Butter bread lightly.

Mix remaining ingredients together. Spread lightly on four slices of bread and top with remaining four slices. Trim off crusts. Wrap in foil until ready to serve.

Broil to golden brown on each side. Remove from heat and slice into inch squares or fingers.

Pensioners Campaign for Better Deal

TORONTO (CP) — For some Canadians, retirement years have become years of campaigning for a better deal for pensioners. People spearheading this campaign say they are beginning to pay off, though at least one governmental official says there is a long way to go.

D. L. Lavelle of Toronto, president of the National Pensioners and Senior Citizens Federation, says it represents 180,000 members through its affiliated groups and is growing.

E. G. D. Anderson of Toronto, president of the newer Pensioners Concerned (Canada) says they have about 600 members and 20,000 names on pledge cards enlarging their aims.

"Membership is coming as fast as we can handle it."

The two groups work differently but essentially their goals are the same, to improve the lot of the 1,744,000 Canadians who are over 65.

Both groups have asked for tax exemptions of $5,000 for married couples over 65 and $3,000 for single pensioners.

Both want pensions increased and responsive to rises in the cost of living.

Both have asked governments to relieve pensioners of education taxes and to provide free prescription drugs, dentures and glasses, prescribed appliances and health services such as inexpensive therapy and nursing home care.

Lawrence Crawford, director of Ontario's homes for the aged, claims there is a lot such groups are not yet noticeable enough.

"A number of programs of government are still unbeknownst without consultation with the aged. Voluntary groups initiate programs for them without consultation with them.

"We all need to do more about the aged. We all try to overcome their problems to the backwater because of our fears. No one wants to grow old.

"But increasingly this is going to be thrust upon our attention by changes in the population profile. About nine per cent of the population in Canada is over 65 now."

In the meantime, the knocking is getting louder. Mr. Lavelle says United Senior Citizens, the Ontario organization its National Pensioners added 110 new groups this year.

The organization began in the Toronto area with support from the United Auto Workers. Its local groups offer social activities, and the provincial and national affiliations provide a collective voice for representations to government.

Their requests to governments are based on resolutions voted on at provincial and national conventions. Mr. Lavelle says groups meet in every province now and are becoming increasingly effective.

"We've seen pensions grow, hospitalization, medical care. New Brunswick established a desk for senior citizens at the request of that group.

"We've been able to get exemptions for years to do something about the rotten conditions in homes for the aged, and they keep talking up they couldn't, but they have."

Pensioners Concerned asks its members to write to governments about many problems such as insufficient income, high medical bills and difficulty with housing payments. Pensioners Concerned tries to back the representations with relevant facts.

The group began with five members four years ago. They have had some help from the Anglican and United Churches and now have a New Horizons grant. Mr. Anderson says they hope to use that to reach more people.

"The main thing we need is more members."

He says he believes they are making headway and are listened to with respect, but he says some members would like to see the group more militant.

"Some people are wondering if our approach is the right one, being factual and reasonable. When you see the Ontario government increasing payments to MPPs by $4,500, which is more than many old people get all year, and realize some of that is coming out of their small pockets, well, some people get upset."

Mr. Anderson says he would like to see a council of senior citizens' groups established to speak for all.

Both groups would like to see an information service organized to make it easy for pensioners to find out what help is available to them.

People and Events

Grace Anderson was in charge of the program at the Christmas joint meeting of Bridge Street Church United Church Women.

"No Room at the Inn" was the theme of the devotional and was interspersed with carol singing.

Mayor Robin Jeffery was the guest speaker and spoke on her recent trip to Great Britain. She compared the municipal system of several English cities, notably Cambridge, Hastings, London and Edinburgh with ours and noted the differences.

Successful Living

Wills Tell Who Gets What

Jet age transportation has increased the chances of simultaneous death of a husband and wife. Where there are no survivors of an accident, no law can prove who really breathed last. And this can have bearing on the distribution of estates.

Here is where the doctrine of "commorientes" comes into play and the younger is assumed to have survived the older. If one is "younger" and has not made a will of her own, the husband would probably get the estate under the laws of intestacy.

(Just another good reason why husband and wife should make wills.) Furthermore, "A survivorship clause should be inserted, stating that no estate is to go to a wife unless she survives her husband by a given period of time, for example, 30 days."

The wife would include a similar clause in her will. One benefit is obvious: there would be only one set of death duties payable.

— from "You And The Law"

(p. 69)

Reader's Digest Condensed Publication 1972.

Dear Doris: I am 18 pounds overweight but as soon as I lose five pounds it comes right back.

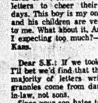
I started another diet yesterday after a visit to my doctor and I hope to stay on it. Unless my husband suggests some evening we get something to eat.

He won't like no for an answer. Should I just make up my mind to refuse him whether he gets mad or not?

Dear Ashamed: One of the toughest challenges is to stay on a diet while your life partner thinks any dietly sweet is meant for eating. He forgets his frame is larger than yours, that he gets exercise all day during the day and can lead in the calories without visible evidence of expansion.

His intentions are short-sighted. If he only knew it, he is safeguarding you when he helps you to get down to normal weight. It's healthier. But a practical reaction is to have some low-calorie items handy for yourself while you stuff him with sugar and spice and all things nice.

While he is gorging you could have clear head broth, tea or coffee clear, unbuttered whole wheat bread or hot lemonade sweetened with an artificial sweetener. Have snacks for sociability's sake. I know one couple who have a have a half grapefruit just before going to bed. You could learn to take yours without sugar. Remind him that he wanted a beautiful wife, doesn't he?



(We now have some understanding of why people act as they do. Write in Doris in care of this newspaper about your particular human problem, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.)

Finding Fake Fabrics

OTTAWA (CP) — The difference between a genuine velvet or suede and a flocked fabric can easily be determined by checking the backing which is the only true test, consumer fabrics on the synthetic material, advises the Consumers' Association of Canada. Such garments should be guaranteed dry-cleanable without any loss of substance or appearance.

Ann Landers

Neglectful Son Should Phone

Dear Ann Landers: Whenever you print a letter that puts a mother-in-law, in a bad light, my daughter-in-law sends it to me. No comment—just the column. Otherwise, I never receive a line from her. She believes it's up to a son to writ to his mother and his wife shouldn't "take him off the hook," so to puta it. My son hates to write so I rarely hear from them. I love other grandmas who get pictures of the little ones and nice letters in which they tell their days. This boy is my only child and his children are very dear to me. What about it, Ann? Am I expecting too much?—Sallisaw Kans.

Dear S.K.: If we took a poll I'll bet we'd find that the great majority of letters written to grannies come from daughters-in-law, not sons.

Since your son hates to write, every other Sunday perhaps and place a station-to-station call just to say hello. It would be the finest gift he could give you and it would cost very little.

Dear Ann Landers: I live next door to a teen-age girl who deserves to be complimented. I don't even know her name, but if you print my letter I am sure she will recognize herself.

All summer long and into fall and winter, this girl has had boy-friends come by to visit her. One particular fellow is especially attractive. She always entertains him on the stegp. Sometimes they walk down the street a few hundred feet and sit on the wall near the bus stop. Why? Because her mother works and I presume she has been asked not to entertain boy-friends in the house unless a parent is present.

This girl always appears to be having such a good time, and so do her boy-friends. They laugh a lot and have animated conversations. She evidently loves and respects her parents and I'll bet the boys like her more because she has such good character.

I predict one day this young lady will marry well and be very happy. There will be no regrets to bug her, and no guilt.—Teen Watcher In Richmond

Dear Teen Watcher: What a refreshing letter! I've always believed that teen-agers need models more than they need critics. So there's a model for you, girls.

Dear Ann Landers: I finally know why people write to Ann Landers. For the first time in my life I have a problem I can't handle.

My husband, who makes $30,000 a year, was arrested for shoplifting $5 worth of junk. The shame I feel for him is driving me crazy. He says he doesn't know why he did it. He has never done anything dishonest in his entire life. I am completely bewildered. I am not a religious fanatic, but I now see him as a sinner—weak and foolish.

The children don't know what to make of it and I don't know what to tell them. The judge was lenient because this was his first offence and his reputation is excellent. But my confidence in him is shot. Help me put my life back together.—Denver

Dear Denver: Sounds as if the man had a chemical imbalance of mental illness, perhaps a small stroke. Please talk to a therapist or a counsellor. It may be that he needs therapy—and you could use some help—to rid yourself of the hostility and anger.

News Briefs

INAPPROPRIATE WIN

TORONTO (CP) — Two Toronto women who went to a Grey Cup fur fashion show to protest the killing of animals for their pelts, won the door prize—an Asiatic fox fur cape valued at $200.

DON'T DO IT YOURSELF

OTTAWA (CP) — Television repairs are best left to the professional repair man, reminds the Consumers' Association of Canada. Color television sets emit dangerous x-rays and certain circuits are shielded to protect the viewer. Improper tube replacements or failure to replace certain shields in the high voltage section can result in dangerous radiation to persons viewing the set after repairs.

KEEP BILLS DOWN

OTTAWA (CP) — Dry-cleaning bills can be reduced by proper care of clothing, says the Consumers' Association of Canada. After removing a garment, let it air before replacing it in a closet and dry-clean clothes before putting them away for the season. Mothballs should be added only to storage bags that have ventilation.

Good Health In '74!

MARY HENRY

Remember that old saying:

"YOU ARE WHAT YOU EAT"? In a world where processed and convenience foods make up a large part of our diets, it is most important to consider the nutritional quality of the foods our families enjoy.

Our bodies can only operate at their best if we provide them with the right "fuels" (or nutrients) in the proper proportions. Since no one food provides each of the nutrients our bodies require, it is necessary to choose a variety of foods.

To help us choose wisely, foods have been arranged into four basic groups. Each of the foods within the group will provide similar nutrients. If we eat a variety of foods from each of the groups each day, we are assured of a well-balanced diet.

Snacks are a necessary part of a growing child's diet. Encourage him to choose a snack with good value, such as fruit or cheese and crackers, rather than "empty foods"—pop, potato chips, etc., which provide only calories.

When planning meals keep this handy guide in front of you and check that each day's food choices balance against the guide.

RESOLVE to make 1974 a happy and healthy year for your family.

THE DAYS OF DUCHESS ANNE — Rosalind Marshall.

Anne, Duchess of Hamilton, was a great Scottish lady of the 17th century. Hamilton Place, her home, was the most splendid of Scottish houses. This book is interesting from the point of view of everyday living in the home of an aristocrat during the 17th century. There is a record of what she did, read and wore, how much she paid the servants, and where she educated her children.

PIONEER GARDENS AT BLACK CREEK PIONEER VILLAGE — Estella Langdon.

This is a fascinating and informative look at how Canadian pioneers used plants for food, decoration, dyes and medication. There are lovely color photographs of the gardens at Black Creek, and reproductions of early paintings, engravings and drawings of plants and pioneer settlements never before published. Mrs. Langdon provides a storehouse of information on pioneer gardens and includes recipes for foods, herbal remedies, and food substitutes.

WHATSOEVER THINGS ARE LOVELY — Helen Sutton Booth.

Helen Sutton Booth believes that "to seek whatsoever things are lovely and to accept ourselves as we are is the way to inner peace and harmony in the world today." To illustrate this philosophy, she has produced a truly moving and beautifully written inspirational book. She relates the beauty of the season to the passing years, that brings to God specific problems we face in our search for justice and purity.

CHRISTMAS IN CANADA— Mary Barber and Flora McPherson.

Christmas in Canada has been celebrated in an endless variety of ways, often in defiance of hardship and loneliness. The book relates how Jacques Cartier got scurvy, and a Halifax urchin got an orange from Portugal. Even now, new arrivals in our country cling to the traditions of their native land and always they try to make Canada as festive and as cheerful as possible.

MY COVENT GARDEN — Alan Dent.

Covent Garden as we have know it for generations is on the eve of destruction. This personal, affectionate, informed account of an era of London outstandingly rich in social and cultural associations will appeal to all those who love London. The author, who is an eminent music and theatre critic, lived in the Garden from 1930 to 1955.

A PIECE OF TRUTH—Lady Amalia Fleming.

Lady Amalia Fleming, the widow of the discoverer of penicillin and herself a doctor, was imprisoned by the colonels' regime in Greece. She was interrogated, tried and later forcibly deported. Her book is a profoundly compassionate and moving account of this time. She brings the facts alive and emerges as a remarkable human being.

Lady Fleming used amazing self-control to avoid incriminating her friends and acquaintances, despite being subjected to intense psychological pressures.

THE WILD DOG OF CENTRAL PARK — Paul Wilkes.

This is a true story of a dog which took up residence in New York's perilous Central Park. All one winter the author and his wife watched the brown and white stray from their apartment window, directly across from the park. They saw him find warmth under newly parked cars, forage for food in garbage cans, and chase buses and taxis for entertainment. The Wilkes discovered that others in their apartment house were watching the dog too, but only one, an old gentleman, persevered in trying to win his trust. He named his new friend "Fitzgo" and the story of the dog's transformation from wild animal to house pet is a captivating and heartwarming tale for all animal lovers.

Macdonald Wants to Share Oil Bonus Across Country

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government will try for an agreement with the provinces by which the increased value of western Canadian oil on the international market may be shared across the country, Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said Tuesday.

The agreement, to be sought at the meeting of first ministers in Ottawa Jan. 22-23, likely will be "a form of taxation"—to be implemented when the freeze on Canadian oil prices is allowed to lift at the end of the present heating season.

A possible federal proposal might be an excess profits tax similar to that being considered in the United States by President Nixon. Mr. Nixon announced Dec. 19 that he would propose a windfall profit tax to Congress when it reconvenes early this month.

The proposed U.S. tax would range between 10 and 35 per cent, to be imposed on oil sold at more than 35 cents a barrel above the price of oil last May 15—about $4 a barrel.

Mr. Macdonald decided he has indicated the levy would be an income tax charged against oil companies, rather than a form of sales tax to be imposed on anyone—producer or provincial government—benefitting from rising oil prices.

The preferred path was "some form of taxation commonality," he said, rather than a direct income tax.

Mr. Macdonald said the conference would discuss ways of distributing the extra revenues to be gained from raising prices of western crude.

"We have to work out how much should go to the producer, how much to the federal and how much to provincial governments."

He said the government has in effect already imposed an excess profit tax over the last four months with its export tax on crude oil.

New Gas Allocations Help U.S. Motorists

NEW YORK (CP) — The new year meant fresh gasoline supplies today for many United States motorists, but government officials say stiff price increases may be imminent.

"The situation should improve considerably today and Thursday," said Anthony Ippolito, an Automobile Club of New York official.

Gas allocations are delivered at the beginning of each month in most cases, and he said many stations have at least part of their January allotments.

New York City police were keeping an eye on stations in case motorists commuting to work for the first time after the four-day holiday caused traffic jams.

Charles Binsted, of the Washington-based National Congress of Petroleum Retailers, said he expects most stations to reopen today because they "have gotten their January allocations or will shortly."

Oil companies were given the go-ahead Monday to increase gasoline prices 1.5 cents a gallon. Federal Energy Office officials said Tuesday that prices may be about 10 cents a gallon higher by March.

Memories of Watergate Linger from Last Year

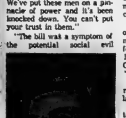
By AL ZARAS
Staff Reporter

With the old year now done and gone, headaches slightly less painful, and events no longer current, people remember the year with fondness, or with concern, or prefer to forget it entirely.

In a sampling of opinion at the Quinte Mall Monday, most remains to be seen how it all comes out, but it's going to affect people, I think it's all politics.

"What's going to happen is that it'll put a lot of people out of work. And then, what's going to happen with the product I'm making."

In total, the Watergate trouble seemed the overriding concern among people polled. However, the energy crisis, the high cost of food, concern with spiralling inflation, and the Middle East wars were not far from people's thoughts.



MRS. HAROLD SLOAN

people expressed concern that trends and events reported by the media in 1973 would carry over into the new year.

Responding to the question, "Which event in the news affected you personally, or changed your thoughts or impressions dramatically last year?", people said:

Malcolm Niblett, with the Canadian Forces in Trenton, said the revelations stemming from Watergate scandal had

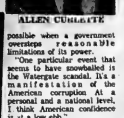
"One particular event that seems to [illegible] snowballed is the Watergate scandal. It's a manifestation of the American corruption. At a personal and a national level, I think American confidence is at a low ebb."

Pessimistically, Mr. Robinson said, "I suppose we have our equivalent."

Susan Murcott, now a grade 10 student at Belleville Collegiate Institute, was looking forward to the teachers walking out in December, but also said the



MICHAEL ROBINSON

the greatest hoaxster him in 1973.

"It showed me that the president of the United States was not all that he was cracked up to be. As the leader of the Western World, I always associated him with the qualities of honesty and integrity. The Watergate revelations show that his integrity has been tarnished.

"In Canadian politics, I was

At Winston Churchill Collegiate Institute, in Scarborough, a school she formerly attended, she said classes were becoming larger and the number of teachers were dwindling.

"There were 35 to 40 students in each class. We didn't get extra help when we needed it. We had to fend for ourselves."

Allen Curlette, a worker at Corby Distilleries Ltd., was concerned that the present energy crisis would force people out of work.

"What worries me the most is the energy crisis. It will watching Prime Minister Trudeau to see how long he'll last. He'll probably last longer, but that's something I'll be looking for in 1974.

Mrs. Harold Sloan expressed concern with the rapid change the world was experiencing, saying it is now very different from the way it was 10 years ago.

"I just can't see the end of it. There's not the stability in people there was. You hear we're not going to have gas, oil.

"It's just like the man going across the desert. He has all the money in the world, but no water.

Michael Robinson, head of the guidance department at Loyalist Collegiate Institute in Kingston, was personally affected by proposed provincial legislation, Bill 274, which would have prohibited teachers from striking.

"Watergate has upset me. We've put these men on a pinnacle of power and it's been knocked down. You can't put your trust in them."

"The bill was a symptom of the potential social evil

Sidney-Moira Lights Proposed

The intersection of West Moira and Sidney Street will have traffic lights this year if a recommendation of the city traffic and light committee gets approval by city council.

Monday, at the last meeting of the committee for 1973, members voted to ask council for installation of the signal lights at what Alderman George Zegouras terms a "dangerous" intersection.

The alderman said motorists go over the new four-lane bridge at 50 miles an hour. Although traffic lights are to be installed at Bridge and Sidney Street and also at College and Sidney, earlier traffic surveys indicated that lights were not warranted at Moira and Sidney Streets.

But this has been "overlooked as the result of higher traffic counts at the intersection since completion of the roadway construction.

At the same time, more accidents have occurred at the intersection since that reporting six mishaps in 1973 that might have been prevented by signal lights.

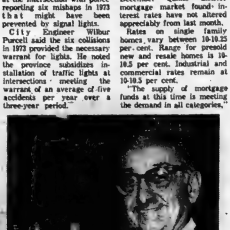
City Engineer Wilbur Purcell said the six collisions in 1973 provided the necessary warrant for lights. He noted the province subsidizes installation of traffic lights at intersections meeting the warrant of an average of five accidents per year over a three-year period.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey said the cost of the lights would be placed in the 1974 city budget if council approved the traffic committee recommendation.

Mayor Jeffrey called for strong police surveillance on Sidney Street which she said, according to complainants, was being turned into a speedway.

She said speeding on the street was becoming "atrocious".

Police Inspector Ralph Blatchford didn't agree that speeding on Sidney Street was all that prevalent but assured additional radar checks on the street would be made.



Mortgage Rates Remain Steady

Mortgage interest rates are holding steady in the Belleville area and the demand for funds is being met.

Realtor A.E. LePage Ltd., in its survey of the mid-December Quinte district mortgage market found interest rates have not altered appreciably from last month.

Rates on single family homes vary between 10-10.25 per cent. Range for presold home and resale homes is 10.5 per cent. Industrial and commercial rates remain at 10-10.5 per cent.

"The supply of mortgage funds at this time is meeting the demand in all categories,"

Louis Maraskas Now a QC

New Year's List Honors Maraskas

A Belleville barrister was the only Quinte district lawyer appointed Queen's Counsel on the provincial government's New Year's honors list for the legal profession.

Louis Maraskas has been practising law in the city for nearly 34 years.

Mr. Maraskas was among 96 lawyers, more than half of whom were from the Toronto area, named on the List.

As standing agent in Belleville-area for the federal deputy attorney general he is prosecutor of all narcotics cases in the district.

A native of Belleville, he has a distinguished war record, has been active in community service and prominent in local Liberal party organization.

He was at one time chairman of the community Red Feather campaign, later a founding director of the Belleville United Appeal. He is a director of the YMCA advisory board.

During World War II he enlisted in Belleville, later going overseas with the 12th Armoured Regiment. He was serving with the same unit when severely wounded at Orsogna in Italy on Christmas Eve, 1943, an event he has yet to be announced.

After graduating from Osgoode College he returned to Belleville and opened practice in 1949.

Mr. Maraskas also has been active as a Liberal party organizer in Hastings County. He has served as an election campaign manager and also has been executive vice-president of the party association in the federal Hastings riding.

Film Series on Drugs To Begin Next Week

No Easy Answers. This is the theme dealing with the drug problem that will be examined hrough a film and discussion program starting Tuesday, January 8 at Corby Public Library.

With the final report of the Le Dain Commission into the Non-Medical Use of Drugs just out, the questions of drug use although less prevalent than before, continues to plague modern society.

The two-week film program at the library will look closely at the drug problem, dealing not just with hard addictive drugs but with alcohol, cigarettes and barbiturates as well.

After the film presentations, that will start a 8 p.m., there will be discussion by persons qualified in their fields to speak authoritively on the subject.

The emphasis may have shifted in recent times among younger people away from the more dangerous hallucinogenic and addictive drugs such as LSD and heroin to alcohol and marijuana but the problem persists nonetheless.

The first film in the four-part series to take place over two weeks is entitled I'm Dependent. You're Addicted. This film asks the question What is a Drug? with the answer varying according to conviction and social status.

Following the film, William Becks of the Addiction Research Foundation will speak. This film and those to follow will start at 8 p.m. at the second floor of the Delaney Wing of the Library.

On Thursday, January 10, there will be two films shown: Man Isn't Dying of Thirst and Us. Benjamin Williams of Belleville General Hospital will speak.

Man Isn't Dying of Thirst deals with sanity and insanity and asks "Is the chemical escape worth it?"

The film, Us, examines the strange paradox of good and bad in the world. Young mothers who may be locked themselves falls apart their children taking drugs. Business over a cocktail or cocktails, confirms their wives for taking barbiturates.

On Tuesday, January 15, Reverend Laurie Sutherland of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church will speak. That night's film has yet to be announced.

On Thursday, January 17, Inspector Ralph Blatchford of the city's police department will speak. The film for this night has yet to be announced.

Previews of these films can be arranged from Monday Jan. 7 to Friday, Jan. 18 from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. weekdays.

Ladies First

Barbados Hotel Workers Strike

Belleville travel agents early today reported no indications as yet of any cancellations for their clients booked for winter holidays in Barbados.

Hundreds of tourists on the Caribbean island — a favorite sun spot with Canadians — were reported cutting short holidays and hotels cancelling reservations because of a strike by 4,000 hotel workers.

Bellevillians — their numbers unknown — are among Canadians currently vacationing on the island for the Christmas-New Year holiday, a peak season.

City travel agents this morning were checking with airlines and tour organizers in the wake of the strike.

Irene Rolof, manager of Rolof's travel service said there had been no reaction from airlines earlier this morning on any inquiries about the situation.

John Rawson, Rawson's Travel Agency, said airlines were operating normally, had received no cancellations add "don't expect any."

Anthony Warren, of Davison and Davison, said his agency was adopting a "wait-and-see" approach.

Major cities hotels offering more luxury services were seen as the hardest hi.

For the rest the hotel strike on the vacation island likely means "just more inconvenience" for tourists who may have to find their own meals or make their beds, said one agent.

Barbados features many apartment hotels.

Mr. Rawson said more information on the situation may be available from airlines and tour organizers later today.

Meantime, in Bridgetown, the Barbados capital, airlines reported all available seats to North America, European and other Caribbean destinations were booked for the next few days as guests, found almost no service at most of the island's 70 hotels.

Stephen Edwards, president of the Hotel Assoc ation, said many hotels would close as soon as their present guests depart.

The strike was called Sunday by the Barbados Workers Union which represents the hotel service employees.

The strike follows a breakdown in negotiations between the union and the hotel association over a new three-year agreement.

The union is seeking an $11 a week increase for workers earning more than $29 a week at present and an $8.50 a week increase for those making less than $29 a week in luxury and A Class hotels. It is also seeking an over-all $7.50 a week increase for all workers in B class hotels.

The hotel association claims the increases, taking into account the percentage of the service charge that goes to workers, would amount to 60-75 per cent.

The tourist industry is by far the biggest in this country, a former British colony now in its seventh year of independence. In 1972, 210,000 came here and spent an estimated $90 million.

Exchange Students Soon to Return

Australian exchange students Deborah Charters and Rosemary Downs were given an official farewell by Belleville Rotarians Monday at a meeting, attended by club members and their families.

The girls, who start their journey home to Bundaberg, Queensland, January 8, gave a final slide show and described life in their homeland.

W. R. MacKay, organizer of the program, said that since its inception by the Belleville club two years ago it has spread to other centres and there will be exchanges in the new year involving Trenton, Port Credit, Bowmanville, Scarborough and Guelph.

During their stay the girls addressed the Rotary clubs of Trenton, Peterborough, Lindsay and Scarborough as well as many groups in Belleville and surrounding area.

Club president Glynn Reynolds said the young Australians had been excellent ambassadors for their home city, their country, and for Rotary. Bundaberg could be proud of them and Rotary here owed them a debt of gratitude too.

Holiday Quiet

Only two persons were arrested over the holiday for impaired driving.

Backed Up Traffic Becomes Problem

Traffic obstructions at intersections as the result of stopped traffic is causing growing concern in many Ontario urban centres.

Cars Collide

Robert F. Belzey, 17, of 34 Lewis Street, was rushed to hospital with head injuries after the car he was driving collided with a car driven by Robert E. Lyons, 41, of 290 North Front Street.

Police report, that Belzey was northbound on North Front Street when the Lyons vehicle entered the roadway from a driveway at right angles to the street.

Damage to the two vehicles involved in the accident is estimated at $1,750.

The accident occurred at 8.05 p.m.

are asking that something be done about the problem.

One of these centres is the city of London, which is asking the Ontario Traffic Conference to expedite its study and research into the problem with the view of making a recommendation to the Minister of Transportation and Communications.

The problem arises when cars stopped into an intersection with the green light and are blocked by stopped traffic before they can clear the intersection.

In other business, the traffic committee tabled a request from W. Wesley Gray, 133 Dundas Street East, who is asking for a second driveway to serve his property when the street is reconstructed.

It's a Girl!

First baby of 1974 in Belleville General Hospital was this infant girl, born to a city couple, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Byrd. Actually due Dec. 29, she arrived 10:34 a.m. New Year's Day — and becomes recipient of prizes from city businesses.

First Baby a Winner

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Byrd, New Year's Day, became the parents of their first child — a girl.

Now to be delivered to the Dunbar S. couple it's a small flood of gifts from city businesses.

Their baby, actually due Dec. 29, says Mrs. Brenda Byrd, was delivered 10:34 a.m., as the first baby born in the city in 1974, and weighed 3 lbs. 10 oz.

As such they are entitled to gifts ranging from a hair stylist to a Chinese dinner.

Mr. Byrd is employed by a painting and decorating firm.

Second New Year's baby arrived 11.18 a.m. Mr. and Mrs. Richard Chartr of Ottawa were holidaying with the father's family in Belleville when the event occurred.

Esposito Scores Again

Smith Stars as Canucks Tie Bruins

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

When Vancouver Canucks entered the 1973-74 National Hockey League season, team members felt the club had improved in at least one area—in goal.

By and large, that feeling has been proven correct, as Gary Smith, obtained in a trade with Chicago Black Hawks, has provided the Canucks with some excellent shot-stopping in most of the games he's played.

The six-foot-four Vancouver goalie was at his best again Tuesday night as he withstood a barrage from Boston Bruins to allow the Canucks to escape before a hometown crowd of 15,376 with a 3-3 tie. It was the only NHL game scheduled Tuesday.

Unfortunately for the Canucks, the defensive output and defensive work in front of Smith hasn't been adequate, with the result that the Canucks are even worse off this season than in past years, when they managed to avoid the NHL cellar.

The tie gave the Canucks just 32 points so far this season, enough them two points behind New York Islanders in the Eastern Division basement.

Smith was beaten by Phil Esposito with only 46 seconds gone in the game as the Bruins swarmed around the Vancouver net for much of the first period. Despite firing 16 more shots, they couldn't beat the Vancouver goalie.

Smith had a little less work in the remaining two periods, winding up with 34 saves, many from point-blank range.

Smith also got a little help from the goalposts in the wide-open game, as four Boston shots rang off the posts.

The tie gave the Bruins a six-point lead on Montreal Canadiens atop the East Division.

The Canadiens get a chance to narrow the margin tonight when they travel to St. Louis in one of five NHL games.

In other games, Detroit Red Wings visit Toronto, New York Islanders are at Chicago, Minnesota North Stars host Pittsburgh Penguins and Los Angeles Kings travel up the coast to meet California Golden Seals.

The Red Wings, hoping to catch a playoff spot in the east, invade Toronto after a costly loss Monday night to Buffalo Sabres.

The Leafs, just three points ahead of fifth-place Buffalo, will likely start Doug Favell in goal. Coach Red Kelly says Favell's back problem has cleared up and named the veteran as the likely starter.

Leading Toronto scorer Paul Henderson has a rash on his hands that's causing considerable discomfort, but hasn't lost his scoring touch. He had three goals and an assist in Toronto's last six games.

Stenlunds' Late Goal Gives London Tie

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Vern Stenlund's goal with 71 seconds remaining in the game gave London Knights a 4-4 tie with St. Catharines Black Hawks in Ontario Hockey Association junior A play Tuesday.

The Black Hawks opened the scoring in St. Catharines with a first-period, power-play goal by Dave Syrett. Terry Martin answered for the Rangers in the second period.

In other games in the circuit, Oshawa Generals defeated Hamilton 5-3 and Sudbury Wolves edged Kitchener Rangers 5-4.

Generals 5 Red Wings 3

Two second-period goals by Bill Lochead paced Oshawa to its win over the visiting Red Wings.

Oshawa lead 2-1 at the end of the first period on goals by Bud Stefanski and Brian Kinsella. Peter Vandenbark added the final Oshawa goal in the third.

The Wolves came from behind in the third period for their win against Kitchener Rangers in Sudbury.

Bobby Russell's power-play goal tied the game 3-3 and Mike Marson and Richie Hamm added the others before Ranger Doug Risebrough scored his second goal of the game with eight seconds remaining.

Hawley Closes With 515

Hawley broke Willie Shoemaker's 28-year-old record of 485 wins in one year at Laurel Park, 6 miles northeast riding daily, except for interruptions due bad weather.

Third Law returned $4.60, $3.20 and $2.40 and was the same second aboard Attache Case in the third race, returning $3.40 and was third on Millfleet in the fourth for a show payoff of $2.80

Hawley Opens With Three

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Jockey Sandy Hawley, who set a world record by riding 15 winners during 1973, didn't hesitate to race as the New Year opened Tuesday at Laurel race course.

Hawley brought his mount well off the pace to win. Jane Lacy returned $18.80, $5.60 and $3.20.

Rose Quartz, the heavy favorite,was 1¼ lengths behind and paid $2.20 and $2.80. Better Judgetunnel was third at $3.60.

Soviets Run Into Marlies, Graham

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Soviet Union hockey team ran into trouble against Toronto Marlboros and referee Blair Graham in the OHA-CCM international hockey tournament Tuesday night.

The Russians, called the Wings of the Soviet, lost 5-4 to the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A club and dropped to fourth place in the six-team round-robin tournament.

Graham gave three Russians game-misconduct penalties at 16:30 of the third period ,when they argued with him for not calling a penalty against a Toronto player.

Cambridge Hornets of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series and the Marlboros share first place with four points each, Czechoslovakia is third with three points, one ahead of Brantford Foresters—also members of the Senior A league—and the Soviet Union. Sweden has one point.

Tensula 5 Soviet Unies 4

"They were passing the puck around so freely during the first period we knew we had to come out and check them," said Bruce Boudreau who scored three goals. "We didn't know what to expect at first, so we were caught standing around."

The Soviet Union held a 3-2 lead after the first period on outshot Toronto 16-11. Two unanswered goals in the second period by Boudreau put the Marlboros on top before the Russians tied the score on a goal by Victor Shalimov, his second of the game, at 6:47 of the third period.

Tim Sebag of Ottawa 67s, one of six players Toronto used to strengthen its lineup, scored the winning goal less than two minutes later before 5,600 fans in Toronto.

Peter Lee, also from Ottawa, got the other Toronto goal, while Sergei Kapustin and Sergei Kolov completed the Soviet Union's scoring.

Shalimov got the first game-misconduct penalty when he skated after Graham, protesting that the referee should have called a penalty against Toronto's Mike Kitchen.

Kitchen, incidentally, had checked Shalimov behind the Toronto net a few minutes earlier.

After Shalimov was tossed out of the game, Valentin Markov resumed the debate and he was ordered a game-misconduct penalty. Vladimir Repnojov got the same penalty for the same argument.

Sweden 2 Czechoslovakia 2

Goalie Lennart Andersson of Sweden blocked 31 shots, 13 more than George Ons Jiri of Czechoslovakia, to star for the Farjestad team, which lost its first two starts 4-3 to Tesla and 8-3 to the Soviet Union.

Per-Backman's goal in the third period gave the Swedes the tie. Bjorn Wirland scored the other Swedish goal, while Vladimir Martinec and Bohuslav Stastny replied for the Czechs.

The tournament continues tonight with the Hornets playing host to the Swedes and the Soviet Union taking on Czechoslovakia in Ottawa.

No Extension For Contract Deadline

TORONTO (CP) — The New Year's Day deadline on a contract offer came and went without Joe Theismann contacting Toronto Argonauts, and "there will not be an extension," says general manager John Barrow.

Does that mean the quarterback, former winner of the Heisman Trophy as the top U.S. college player, won't be back for a fourth season with the Canadian Football League team.

"It does not mean that at all," Barrow said. "It merely means we have lived up to our contractual obligations. We have presented Joe with a contract for 1974.

"Having not heard from Joe, we will proceed to recruit quarterbacks. We have two U.S. college quarterbacks on our negotiations list."

Theismann had said his lawyer would ask the Argos for an extension, but "I have not been contacted by anyone and I have been unable to reach anyone," said Tuesday.

Theismann had said he could not meet the Jan. 1 deadline because the team that owns his National Football League playing rights, Miami Dolphins, were too involved in preparations for the American Conference title, and now for the Super Bowl, to conduct serious negotiations.

'Best Rookie in Toronto'

Dillon Fires 3rd Consecutive Game Winner For Toros

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rankling the established hockey powers may be a reward in itself for the World Hockey Association, but the league gained far more than satisfaction last June when it nabbed a handful of under-age juniors.

Toronto Toros' owner John Bassett says he gained "the best rookie in Toronto" in drafting and signing Wayne Dillon while the WHA was temporarily unencumbered by an agreement with the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

Bassett is grateful for the brief rules lapse that allowed him to steal the key goal-scorer for Toronto Marlboros, who last season "may have been the best junior club of all time in this country," before Dillon was eligible for the National Hockey League draft.

"Take a look and see how many Marlboros were drafted by NHL clubs," Bassett said. "This boy certainly would have been drafted in the first round had he been eligible."

The Marlboros, and the NHL, also lost Mark and Marty Howe to the WHA, and that move spawned an even bigger benefit for the Toros because it allowed Houston Aeros to lure NHL veteran Gordie Howe out of retirement to play with his sons.

The Howes' play deserves much of the credit for Houston's first-place standing in the six-club east-west Western Division, where the race grew even tighter Tuesday night as Winnipeg Jets moved into a second-place tie with Edmonton by edging the Oilers 4-3 in overtime.

In Tuesday's other game, Calgary Cowboys moved to within a point of Quebec Nordiques and the final playoff spot in the East by edging Vancouver Blazers 5-4 with two late goals.

The league is idle tonight in preparation for the all-star game Thursday at St. Paul Minn.

The Toros are making the East race tight too. Tuesday's victory was Toronto's sixth in seven games and it moved them to within two points of first-place New England Whalers.

The Toros are getting much of their heat from centre Wayne Carleton, who scored two goals to back up Dillon's opener. They were his 25th and 26th of the year and stretched his league-leading points total to 61. Only one other NHL player, Carleton has scored at least one goal.

"Things have been working out pretty well for Wayne Carleton this year," Carleton said.

Toronto goalie Les Binkley kicked out 27 shots and credited: "It took me a long time to get my first shutout on my own." He had shared one earlier with Gilles Gratton.

"Playing despite a dose of flu, the Owen Sound, Ont., native collected the shutout with two brilliant saves in the third period, first on a rising slapshot by Larry Hillman and then on a point-blank Bill Young slapshot that he caught with his pad. But his fervor may have been costly.

"I felt the knee go when I kicked out a shot late in the third period he said, but he wouldn't know until later today if the injury will sideline him.

Jets 4 Oilers 3

A sell-out Edmonton crowd of 5,200 saw Bobby Hull feed Fran Huck for Winnipeg's overtime goal.It was Hull who had sent the game into overtime by scoring his 32nd goal of the year on a power play early in the third period.

The Oilers, playing without their top scorer, Jim Harrison, got outstanding goaltending from Jack Norris in the losing cause. He faced 36 shots, including six 3rd breakaways.

Winnipeg goaltender Joe Daly also turned in a good game, handling 28 shots and two clean breaks, but needed a goalpost to stop a shot by Ken Baird in the 18th minute of the third period to salvage the tie and ensure overtime.

Swedes Victors Over Trenton

TRENTON (Special) — The Trenton Midgets found the going a little tough last night in their own arena, as they took a 7-2 pasting at the hands of the touring Swedish Hammarby Midget team.

The Swedes took control of the game from the opening face-off, and never let up, scoring their last goal of the game with only four minutes left in the game.

They put on a show of hockey ability that made the game most worthwhile to see by any hockey fan.

Skating seemed to be the strongest asset the Hammarby team possessed. They seemed to be able to skate at will wherever they pleased, as well as controlling the puck most of the time.

Passing was extremely accurate, with each player possessing the talent to give and take a perfect pass. As well, most could take a pass in their skates without losing an inch as a stride of their gait.

Conny Holmgren made it 3-0 with another marker before the period had ended.

They ran the score to 5-0 with goals by Anders Nylander and Holmgren before Trenton got on the scoreboard with a marker by Bruce Leedham.

Sweden added two more in the third frame, by Karl-Erik Lilja, and Mats Jormon, while Trenton came back with one more by Bob Thompson.

Junior Girls Loose 9 - 1

Karen O'Toole led the Limestone City crew with three goals, while Julie Fereomore added a pair. Other goals went to Debbie Bolton, Marg Gerladi, Fern Tracey, and Sue Ferguson.

Six penalties were assessed in the game, including fighting majors to Belleville's Dorothy Semark and Kingston's Sue Ferguson.

Boosters Bus To Markham

The Belleville Bobcats' Booster Club will be running a bus to the Bobcats — Markham Royals' game in Markham on Sunday.

The cost of the bus, including admission to the game will be $3.25.

The bus will leave the Arena at 4:30. Tickets are available at McKnight's Variety, 211A Front Street.

Czech Tickets Moving Well

Belleville Eagles' Publicity Director Dave Lucas reported that last tickets for the upcoming exhibition game between the Eagles and the touring Czechoslovakian team are going extremely well.

The game to be played, this Sunday night, should provide Belleville hockey fans with a good game of hockey to watch.

Season's Ticket subscribers will have their chance to pick up their tickets for the game also at McKnight's. Their seats have been reserved for this game as well.

The Czechs have won one game in the International Tournament so far, but have lost two games, one to the Cambridge Hornets, and one to the Russians.

Game time for the encounter Sunday night is 8 p.m.

Although it was only an exhibition game, the interest was serious last night at the match between the Trenton Midgets and the touring Swedish Hammarby team. In these two pictures, Hammarby's Conny Holmgren roughs it up with members of the Trenton team. In the top photo, he puts Trenton's Robbie Oliver into the boards heavily behind the net, while in the bottom photo, he fights off a Trenton checker to advance the puck into the attacking zone. As well, the speedy winger fired two goals and an assist to help his team to a 7-2 victory over the home team.

He Couldn't Hang On

Although he made a spectacular effort to make the save on this high shot from Hammarby's Conny Holmgren (11), Trenton Midget goaltender Joel Roberts couldn't hang on to the puck, letting it fall back into the net for Holmgren's second goal of the night in last night's exhibition encounter between the touring midget team and the locals. Holmgren added an assist to his two goals to lead the Swedes to a 7-2 victory over the Trenton team.

Ernie D. Plays Best Game Ever

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"It's the best game Ernie has ever played," said Buffalo Coach Jack Ramsey. "He has the ability to count the house and make the play."

Braves' rookie Ernie DiGregorio made enough plays Tuesday night to record 25 assists, the third highest single-game total in National Basketball Association history, as Buffalo edged Portland Trail Blazers 120-119.

The little guard with the quick hands whipped the ball inside often enough for the Buffalo front line to combine for 75 points. Garfield Heard poured in 31 points. Bob McAdoo had 25 and Jim McMillan added 21. DiGregorio chipped in 20 points himself in a sensational all-around effort.

"He's the best passer I've ever seen, with the possible exception of Bob Cousy," said Ramsey.

There were no games played in the American Basketball Association Monday or Tuesday. In the only NBA game Monday, Boston Celtics whipped Philadelphia 76ers 106-97.

Despite DiGregorio's heroics, said the Braves needed a free throw by Jim McMillan with seven seconds left to insure the win. McMillan's shot put Buffalo on top 120-117 before Sidney Wicks scored at the buzzer for the Blazers.

Portland coach Jack McCloskey said he "tried to put as much control on DiGregorio as possible, but he made some passes right by our ears." Geoff Petrie pumped in 30 points and Wicks added 26 for Portland.

Knicks 93, Hawks 89

Phil Jackson scored 23 points and Bill Bradley had 19 as New York ran its winning streak to four games. The Knicks took a three-point lead in the first period and were never headed despite losing the services of forward Dave DeBusschere early in the game due to a flu attack.

Pete Maravich paced the Hawks [illegible] points.

Bulls 91, Warriors . . 8

Chicago [illegible] outscored the entire Golden State team 25-22 in the first half. The Warriors hit only 21 per cent of their shot sfrom the floor over the first two periods. Love finished with 30 points. The staggering Warriors have lost nine of their last 10 games.

It turned out the woman really was Edward Davis, 29, who escaped from a Liverpool prison last September. He'd come to see a pal due to appear before the court.

Preliminary police statistics now available indicate more than 8,000 cars were reported stolen in Metro in 1973 and 96 per cent were recovered.

SWING SHIFT DINING

As meal planner for an "on-the-go" family, do you find it difficult to get everybody together at the same time for a meal? Or is your number one headache the planning of interesting and nutritious meals for one or two?

One helpful trick is to prepare a favourite main course and freeze the food in individual portions. Buy special containers for the purpose, or use plastic ones in which you bought such things as sour cream, and sherbet or ice cream.

Individual foil pie pans are another help in preparing casseroles or meat pies for family members who eat at odd hours, as is a new gadget for home freezing of boil-in-bag type main courses.

Keep in mind too, the individual-sized servings available in everything from soups to puddings. And remember that your Miracle Food Mart butcher is glad to package individual portions, or serving-for-two, of such things as chops, chicken legs and other main course makings.

Leave an attractively set tray for the diner-alone, to be taken to a favourite spot for eating. And add a note with any specific instructions to make assembling the meal easier.

Friedkin Gets His Way

LOS ANGELES (AP) — When $4.5-million budget and spends dio to be outraged. Not when a director starts a film with a $10 million, you expect the stu- the director is William Friedkin and the picture is The Exorcist.

"I still don't know how much The Exorcist cost," says Friedkin, who won the Academy Award two years ago for The French Connection and is favored in this year's race.

"I read in the trade papers that it cost $10 million, and that may be true. Nobody has told me, and it really isn't my concern. I spent what I had to spend to make the picture the best way I knew how. Warner Brothers must not have objected, because they never said no when I asked for more money."

The reason why Warner Brothers did not explode may well have been the success of The French Connection. Made for $1.8 million, it has brought $60 Century-Fox a profit of $12 million in the United States and Canada and $15 million abroad, plus a $2-million television sale.

On the basis of only one week's returns at 25 cities, Warners' sales manager Leo Greenfield predicted that The Exorcist will be the biggest earner in the company's history. He has predicted a minimum of $35 million in the United States.

Friedkin's film-making formula is simple: "I try to make the best picture ever made. I go for the most I can get: All the reviews, the box office, all the awards. I don't always succeed, but I try."

Friedkin said he aims for his films to make the audience participate—to laugh or cry or be scared. The Exorcist has already established its ability to scare.

At the first showing of the film for Motion Picture Academy members, a half-dozen women and a couple of men found the going too rough and spent part of the time in the lobby. The Exorcist is explicit in the scenes in which the devil takes over the body of a 12-year-old girl.

What made The Exorcist double its budget?

"There have been all kinds of stories of unexplained and unexplainable occurrences on the film. Mostly, the costs rose because of the director's insistence on getting the kind of supernatural effects he wanted.

The Exorcist comes from the best-selling novel by William Peter Blatty, who also wrote and produced the film. Blatty's story arose from a well-documented 1949 case of a 14-year-old Mount Rainier, Md., boy who returned to a normal life after exercism apparently ended a series of strange happenings to him.

Friedkin makes no claim as to the validity of possession by the devil. "The film," he said, "merely raises the possibility that things can happen that go beyond our mundane lives."

THE UNEXPLAINED

by Allen Spraggett

Do Plants Have Emotions?

Cleve Backster believes that plants can perceive love and pain and become emotionally involved with people.

You may have heard of Backster. He's the man who first hooked up a plant to a lie detector.

Yes, that's what I said - - a lie detector. And he claims the plant reacted with "humanlike responses" indicating "primary perception."

In other words, the plant showed emotion.

Oh, I know it's crazy. But so is a man walking on the moon. So let's listen to what Backster has to say before making up our minds.

Backster, a New Yorker, is a genial, middle-aged disciple of the late Reich. He was the first to apply the lie detector (or lie detector). In fact, he's tops in his field, having served as polygraph consultant to the Central Intelligence Agency and numerous law enforcement organizations, including the FBI.

Not long ago I heard him talk about his off-the-beaten track research.

Backster explained that in normal use the polygraph works by detecting the subject's emotional reactions to questions as indicated by changes in his bodily functions. The device measures breathing rate and blood pressure. Another (the one Backster uses on plants) measures the "galvanic skin response," which refers to "changes in the person's electrical potential which cause the polygraph recording to go up and down in relation to his emotional state."

Put simply, the subject strapped to a polygraph causes a pen to trace wiggly lines on a graph and as long as he's emotionally unruffled these lines are fairly even. But if he shows strong emotion, as when asked about a crime he's involved in the pen makes a sudden leap.

Polygraphists call such a leap the threat-to-well being response.

Well, Backster said that when he attached the electrodes of a polygraph to the leaf of a plant in his office, a common philodendron, and then threatened to burn the leaf - - the pen took a leap. He interpreted this as a sign that the plant was reacting to his threat with fear.

Wait a minute, you say; what was Backster doing booking up a plant to a polygraph in the first place? What gave him the idea?

Good question. Knowing that the whole business would sound pretty strange to some people, Backster at first invested a "cover story." He was trying to measure the rate of moisture absorption by the plant, he said. Now he admits the truth: "I don't have the faintest idea why I did it."

Further research yielded the following results.

Backster says he found that the plant reacted emotionally to the death of other living things in its environment. So he set up an experiment using brine shrimp as the sacrificial victims.

"One reason for picking them was that there's a Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Brine Shrimp," Backster said with a wry smile.

"Thus far I've received only one why-are-you killing-those - poor - brine shrimp letter."

The shrimp were put to death by being dumped into boiling water. Time and time again, it was found, at the moment the shrimp hit the water the nearby philodendron "showed a violent polygraph reaction."

Backster says he also discovered evidence of telepathy between him and his philodendron.

"We have found," he said, "that whenever I am away on a speaking engagement, even if it's a thousand miles from New York, the moment I flash on the screen a slide of the philodendron that started it all, there is a very dramatic reaction by the plant back in the lab.

"We've done this many times. I've co-ordinated it very carefully with my associate who attaches the electrodes to the philodendron. I keep a stopwatch record of the time the picture of the plant is flashed on the screen.

The plant, in other words, knows it's being thought of. Or so Backster interprets the phenomenon.

What do other researchers say about such claims?

One who says he's substantially duplicated Backster's results is Dr. Aristide Esser, a psychiatrist at the research centre at Rockland State Hospital, Orangeburg, N.Y.

"When I first heard of Backster's experiments I scoffed it off," he said, "but I've had to eat my words."

Other researchers, however, say they have gotten very different results. Dr. George Owen of Toronto, a former Cambridge University physicist, says he found nothing whatever happened when he hooked a series of plants to a polygraph.

"The pen just traced a flat line," he said.

Some researchers reported that they did get tracings on the graph but these proved to correspond to changes in humidity in the lab. Is it possible that this is - all Backster was measuring?

The man who started the controversy suggests that he has cleared up the mystery of the "green thumb."

If you love your plant, says Cleve Backster, it loves you back and grows better to prove it.

Arts Centre Orchestra Commissions New Work

OTTAWA (CP) — Galt MacDermot, the Canadian composer of The Age of Aquarius and other music from the international hit Hair, has been commissioned to write a concerto for the National Arts Centre orchestra, an arts centre official says.

The Montreal-born musician, who wrote a rock setting of the love for Hair, Let's opening of Hamilton Place in Hamilton, Ont., has been given a wide-open commission to write anything he wishes for the 46-piece orchestra conducted by Mario Bernardi.

It is to have its premiere performance in the 1974-75 season. A similar commission has been given for Gilles Carant of Montreal, who recently has been studying in Rome under an Italian Canadian cultural exchange agreement.

The arts centre normally commissions two new Canadian compositions each season, with the help of special funds from the Canada Council. It also commissions one new work each second year by a non-Canadian composer of international standing.

This season, the orchestra commissioned a piece by R. Murray Shafer of Toronto, called East. It was given its world premiere in May in Baltimore, where the arts centre orchestra opened the Bath Festival. Later it was repeated at Royal Festival Hall, London, and opened the 1973-74 season here.

Another work, by Gilles Tremblay of Montreal, is to have its first performance here next April.

As a general rule, the orchestra includes a Canadian work on most of its programs. This far exceeds the Canada Council rule that orchestras receiving grants should play one Canadian work in every 10.

MacDermot, who now lives in New York but has a summer home in the Laurentians, north of Montreal, has not before composed in the strictly orchestral, symphonic medium. He has had several stage successes apart, from Hair, including Two Gentlemen of Verona.

For the rock mass which opened the new $11-million arts centre in Hamilton MacDermot used the Ontario Youth Choir, three rock soloists including Salome Bey, and the Hamilton Philharmonic in front of a rock rhythm group in, which he played piano.

Shafer's East was an unusual composition, conducted primarily with the help of a stop watch. Forty-eight gongs were sounded at 10 second intervals while the musicians hummed, chanted and made other quasi-musical sounds to well as playing their instruments in an evocation of Indian mystic music.

CBC Will Review Cancelling Play

TORONTO (CP) — The CBC eral manager for its English television network said Friday it will review its decision to cancel the televising of a controversial drama by Montreal author Mordecai Richler.

The one-hour play, entitled The Bells of Hell, was earlier considered by the network "unsuitable for television." Although it concerns the middle-aged Jewish lawyer who is terrified by the sex-obsessed society around him.

The drama was to have been televised Jan. 31 as part of the network's The Play's the Thing series which begins Jan. 17.

Cecil Smith, public relations officer for the CBC, said Mr. Richler met separately Friday with Thom Benson, director of entertainment programs for the English network and E. S. Hallman, vice-president and gen- Mr. Benson told Mr. Richler he would look at the decision again, but that any further decision would not be made until early in January." Mr. Smith said. "Mr. Richler would be kept advised."

Mr. Richler said he believes the main objection to the play is that it might be offensive to some Jewish groups. He said there had been protests to the CBC's earlier decision from producers and critics.

Mr. Smith would not say how much was spent on the production. Public reports have have mentioned between $40,000 and $100,000.

Cluster Tumors Not Dangerous

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have benches nearly all over my body, some big, some small, and some in clusters. A recent-logist told me they are caused by neurofibromatosis. They are not under the skin. I would like more information on what this is.—Mrs. M.W.

That's a peculiar disorder featured by small tumors on nerve trunks—hence the name, nerve = neuro, and the rest of the term indicating small fibroid tumors.

There is no specific treatment that will help or is necessary except that if a particular tumor affects any bodily function, it is removed surgically.

It is not a particularly uncommon disorder. The cause is not known but it is a hereditary type of thing. One of the signs is the appearance of coffee-colored spots on the skin that may be seen at an early age.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I'm going to have to go to hide meat-cutting as my work but am concerned about one thing. I have to work in a 35-degree temperature. Would this give me arthritis or other trouble as I become older? I am also a diabetic.—F.M.

No, you would be clothed appropriately and become accustomed to the temperature.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: A young lover that for you.

friend has skin that is sand paper-rough. Her mother has it and also her grandmother. What is the name for this affliction? Would it be infectious for someone who has highly sensitive skin?—J.J.

Probably ichthyosis or "fish skin disease." It is not contagious.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I was given an article about freezing hemorrhoids instead of operating on them, but have since lost the article. I would very much like to know if this is a common procedure for removing hemorrhoids and if so is there a doctor in the locality who performs this operation?—Mrs. P.B.

Cryosurgery—the "freezing" process—is one method of removing hemorrhoids. I would say that it is commonly done.

But enthusiasm for it varies. Some surgeons prefer it; some don't. But you are in error in thinking it is done "instead of operating on them." It is a surgical procedure, the essential difference being that, instead of removing tissue with a sharp blade, the tissue is destroyed by quick freezing, after which the destroyed tissues are gradually sloughed or absorbed.

I'm sorry but I cannot keep track in localities of doctors using particular techniques, but your personal physician can answer that for you.

Opening lead—2♣

By Oswald and James Jacoby

The standard lead from three small in auction and in the first 25 years of contract was the top card. The theory was that when you led low your partner would know that you held either a long suit or an honor.

Today, almost every expert and many other players lead low from three although a corporal's guard will lead the middle card from this holding.

There are two advantages to this lead. The first is that when you lead high your partner will know that you have a doubleton or singleton. The second is that the lead may make it hard for declarer to know how to play the hand.

Back in the 30s West would open the deuce of spades. East would rise with the ace and lead the suit back. South would beg right up with the king of spades and go after clubs. He would know that West either held four spades or had led from the queen.

South would make four tootrump unless West tried to unblock the suit by dropping his queen under South's king in which case South would make five odd.

What does South do against a man who leads low from three? He may still rise with the king of spades and reason he will finesse his jack at trick two. In that case, West will take his queen and return the suit, and South will wind up with just eight tricks.

Western Europe to Try To Meet Energy Crisis

BRUSSELS (CP) — The year 1974 will see Western Europe trying to achieve new forms of concerted action in grappling with the growing energy crisis.

Shortages of oil already have banished cars from the roads of many European countries on Sunday and helped produce much official anguish in countries like British and Holland.

The shortages have also given new urgency to the issue of how far and how fast the European Common Market should evolve towards the ideal—revered by some, feared by others—of a single government for all nine members' states of the economic community.

The feasibility of such moves will be sternly tested in the months ahead, with the community's central policy-planning commission due to make a January report on the market-wide impact of the oil crisis here and to recommend how the energy crisis as a whole can be tackled by the nine in co-ordinated fashion.

There is also the newly adopted goal of introducing "on a concerted and equitable basis measures to limit energy consumption."

The main Common Market dirigiss of 1974, then, may be the extent to which these latest facets of the hoped-for move towards European unity can be fulfilled, despite sharp conflicts between the existing aims of various community member states.

Even before the end of December deep Anglo - German divisions over the community's program for helping backward regions cast a new pall over the possibilities of effectively implementing the energy projects and other Common Market plans for 1974.

One enthusiastic assessment of the energy aims which were set by the December summit of Common Market leaders came from commission president Francois-Xavier Ortoli.

They "clear the way for genuine community action," Ortoli said. And he promised maximum commission diligence in the role it will play, which also includes "ensuring the orderly functioning of the common energy market."

But French President Georges Pompidou seems less enthusiastic, possibly a further indication of how the energy treatment will encounter formidable obstacles in 1974.

For instance, British officials are reported to remain skeptical of any market moves other than a concentration on efforts by Europe to woo the Arabs into easing their oil cut and ending their total ban on petroleum exports to Holland.

Also likely to cause complications in the coming year for the genuine energy policy will be the pressure from West Germany and other market members for a greater sharing of energy resources. This desire conflicts with the expectation of many Britons that the vast potential of their North Sea oil reserves will be used primarily to quench the petroleum thirst of the economically-beleaguered United Kingdom.

The aims for 1974 established by the Copenhagen summit were vague as far as ultimate European union—political, economic and otherwise—is concerned.

The question-mark over the exact course and speed of future community development in this respect prompted James Langley, Canadian ambassador to the Common Market, to speak of the "uncertainties" arising from the summit.

But about the outlook for Canada-Common Market relations in 1974, Langley expressed himself as "fairly cautiously optimistic."

"In the normal course of events, the outlook is for continuing, closer ties between Canada and Europe in the matter of consultations and trade," he said in an interview.

Ready for specific implementation in future months is the agreed-on idea of regular consultations between Ottawa and the Brussels-based commission, plus 1974 visit to Canada by President Ortoli.

And at Copenhagen, foreign ministers of the Nine approved a long statement on "European identity," which, in addition to citing the need for community relations with America based on equality, also expressed determination to achieve "close co-operation and a constructive dialogue" with Canada and Japan.

"Their role is essential for maintenance of an open and balanced world economic order," the ministers said.

Canadian officials continue to insist there will be extra opportunities as well as more problems for Canada's businessmen as the gradual absorption of Britain, along with Ireland and Denmark, into the community's tariff system goes on in 1974.

Likely to merit attention will be concentrated on the 1974 negotiation of the exact tariff compensations for Canada and other affected countries following the loss of trading privileges in the new countries of the market. The community recently made its package offer, which includes compensation for 400 farm products as newsprint.

Internally, the community begins 1974 with what's billed as the second phase of progress towards economic and monetary-union by 1980.

Yet there was general towards greater unity through the decision favoring swift inter-governmental consultations in times of emergency.

Question: We are planning on a trip to Hatteras, N.C., this year. Can you provide any information on that area?

Answer: Stretching along the 120 miles of North Carolina's coast, the Outer Banks consist of a string of island and peninsulas varying in width from a few hundred yards to a few miles and forming a barrier between the ocean and the sounds. Through centuries of storms and shipwrecks the islands have developed a distinct culture of their own. Some sections are popular resorts while others retain a relatively primitive, quiet charm.

For the past few centuries legend and history have grown in the Banks regions and some of the older Bankers themselves, closely identified with maritime activity, have kept speech and customs handed down from the 17th century. Mariners have long feared its storms and reefs; pirates favored its sheltered coves.

Lands of the Outer Banks are constantly undergoing changes caused by wind and wave action. Some believe the landmass is moving a minute distance toward the main land each year and will continue to do so as long as the ocean remains at its present level or until the mainland is reached. Inlets connecting the ocean and sounds sometimes have had a lifetime of less than 100 years. They appear or disappear as the result of storms.

Ocracoke Cedar Island Ferry. During the summer and early fall, ferry reservations are advised and may be obtained for the next scheduled crossing only by calling in person at the terminal not more than 24 hours before your designated departure. Reservations by mail, telephone or telegraph are not accepted.

Ocracoke This is an old fishing village on Ocracoke Island, built mainly around Teach's Hole. The houses are laid out in Old World irregularity along streets of sand overhung with moss-covered oaks and yaupon. The village is said to have been used by the pirate Blackbeard (Teach) when his headquarters was at Bath. At Teach's Hole, near the inlet, the notorious pirate and his crew were killed in 1718.

Nags Head: A popular ocean-front resort just east of Roanoke Island, the area has been developed as a hotel and cottage colony. Recreational facilities are excellent, particularly for swimming, fishing and hunting.

Behind Nags Head are constantly shifting sand dunes, including Jockey Ridge, highest on the Atlantic coast, and Engagement Hill. Both are over 100 feet high. According to legend, the village acquired its name from the islander's practice of tying lanterns to the necks of ponies and marching them along the dunes. The swinging lights simulated lights of boats, thus deceiving captains into running aground where their cargo was seized.

Cape Hatteras National Seashore: Containing approximately 65 square miles on North Carolina's Outer Banks. Cape Hatteras National Seashore constitutes the most extensive stretch of undeveloped seashore remaining on the Atlantic coast. It extends from Whalebone Junction to Ocracoke Inlet, excluding territory around eight villages, plus more than 70 miles of ocean frontage. Three sections known as Bodie, Hatteras and Ocracoke Island form the land of the seashore area. Oregon and Hatteras Inlets, respectively spanned by the Herbert C. Bonner Bridge and a ferry, separate the islands.

Vast expanses of sand and water are the attraction here. Visitors should park in designated areas and walk across the barrier dune to appreciate the scope of the sections' beauty. The sand is treacherous, so cars should never leave the road except where indicated. Bottle-nosed dolphin (often called porpoise) may sometimes be seen near the beach.

Hatteras, one of the villages in the region of the Cape Hatteras National Seashore, lies on North Carolina's Outer Banks. Modern living only recently has been introduced to this small community. Oldtimers still may be found who speak with the broad accent, supposedly brought over from Devon, that typifies the area.

Haligonian Has Debut In Boheme

HALIFAX (CP) — At six feet, two inches tall and a muscular 220 pounds, Gregory Sergant has the robustness that is almost necessary for success as a bass-baritone operatic singer.

The young Haligonian made his professional debut this summer with the Philadelphia Grand Opera Company as Colline in La Boheme.

Mr. Servant said he particularly liked the role because of a show-business legend involving the great tenor Enrico Caruso.

The story goes that when the opera's bass baritone was about to begin the aria Vecchia Zimarra — The Old Coat, he lost his voice and told Caruso he could not continue. The great tenor lowered his voice and sang the low-range aria while the voiceless bass-baritone mouthed the words of the sad story of Colline losing one of his few possessions, the old coat, to save the life of a Bohemian lady.

There was no silent mouthing of he part while Mr. Servant performed it, and Philadelphia Inquirer said in its review that he acted the part with feeling and an appreciation of Colline's pathetic sacrifice.

Mr. Servant aims for an international, stellar career, and for every operatic performer there are three major achievements: to appear at La Scala in Milan, Covent Garden in London and the Metropolitan in New York.

His musical career began with piano lessons at the age of eight, but he did not study voice until he entered Mount Allison University to take a degree in music.

Ukrainians Celebrate Christmas January 7

WINNIPEG (CP) — As the first star appears in the evening sky Jan. 6, Canadians of Ukrainian descent will again begin their Christmas Eve celebrations with a holy supper of 12 meatless dishes.

The supper is important in itself as the highlight of their holiday season, but it is also a reminder of ancient beliefs that long predated the Christian era.

And in a world where traditions are falling victim to modern living, it symbolizes the ability of many of Canada's 380,000 Ukrainians to resist the intense pressure to break with the past.

Ukrainians still reckon time by the Julian calendar, which places the birth of Christ, 13 days later than the Gregorian calendar used in most parts of the world, although only seven of the Ukrainian Catholic or Orthodox churches in Winnipeg still retain the Jan. 7 date for Christmas masses.

But there have been other reasons for change as well, notably the assimilation of Ukrainians into the rest of Canadian life and the shift away from farming as their prime occupation.

"Most Ukrainian traditions are agricultural in nature, and many Ukrainians now live in large cities," explains Sophia Kachor, curator of the museum at the Ukrainian Cultural and Educational Centre in Winnipeg.

"In a way it's a problem, because we're losing a lot of things that are very valuable."

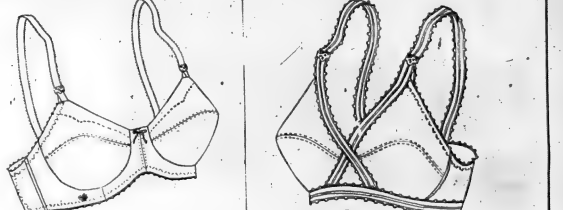
Miss Kachor says while many Ukrainians still stay home from work or school Jan. 7 to participate in traditional activities, a number of changes in the celebrations have become apparent. For example, the custom of exchanging gifts on St. Nicholas Day Dec. 19 has generally shifted to either Dec. 25 or Jan. 7.

One custom that seems to be surviving with little change is Christmas caroling. Churches still organize parties which go out to parishioners singing holiday.

The carols themselves demonstrate the resilience of the Ukrainian tradition, says Miss Kachor. Once songs to the land, the sun or the coming of spring, they have been assimilated into the Christian tradition with Biblical figures assuming formerly pagan roles.

Ukrainians in rural areas are probably more likely to retain more of their traditions, but even here the break with the past is apparent.

Nick Sweets of Dauphin, Man., president of Canada's National Ukrainian Festival, says it's the older generation that best remembers the past.



"The older people still observe it to a letter T," he says, "but the younger people are drifting away."

Even his own family celebrates two Christmases and Mr. Sweets himself has stopped closing up his grocery and meat business on Jan. 7.

No Ontario Change To Daylight Saving

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario cabinet rejected proposals today to switch to daylight time and, as a result, the province will stay on standard time when the United States switches to daylight time this Sunday.

Treasurer John White announced the decision after a cabinet meeting today during which many cabinet ministers indicated opposition to fast time from constituents in their ridings.

The Americans are moving to daylight saving time as an energy-saving device but Ontario's energy minister, Darcy McKeough, said any energy saving in the province would be minimal.

Opposition Leader Robert Nixon already had said he was against the change—mainly because it would pose a serious danger to children going to school in early morning darkness.

Mr. White said last week the odds were 2 to 1 in favor of daylight time. He said Wednesday the odds were 2 to 1 against.

Strongest opposition to the move has come from parents of rural schoolchildren, he said in an interview. The parents are worrying about their children having to catch school buses in morning darkness.

Stephen Lewis, Ontario New Democratic Party leader, also said Wednesday he suspects the cabinet will reject a move to year-round daylight time in order not to appear to be in "lock-step with the American economy."

In other developments related to energy problems:

In Washington, the Canadian embassy, fearing misunderstanding of Canada's energy policy, has published a four-page report outlining federal petroleum export policy for senators, congressmen and government officials and "anyone who felt would be interested."

In another move to reassure Americans, Prime Minister Trudeau advised Senator Edmund Muskie and congressmen from the state of Maine that Maine's two largest paper companies can count on supplies of Canadian oil.

Replying to fears expressed by Senator Muskie last month, the prime minister said Canada wants to supply "all U.S. customers which have become dependent on us over the years."

Toronto Police Seize Her Dentures, Woman Hopes They Choke on Steaks

TORONTO (CP) — "I hope they all choke on their steaks," said Jeannette Elliott whose dentures were confiscated Wednesday when police raided two dentists' offices.

Mrs. Elliott, 33, said she will have to eat soup until she gets back her dentures that were being repaired at the Don Valley Denture Clinic when it was raided by police enforcing new provincial regulations.

Insp. Ronald Waddell of the Ontario Provincial Police said the raids were carried out by OPP and Metropolitan Toronto police against denturists who refuse to write provincial examinations to become denture therapists under the new Denture Therapists Act.

Mrs. Elliott said she went to the clinic to keep an appointment for fitting of her rebuilt denture plates, but was met by six detectives who took her dentures despite her objections.

"You can call me gummy from now on," said the unemployed waitress who complained she has been getting indigestion by eating bread without chewing it while her dentures were being repaired.

"I've got to do without teeth and eat soup. I'd like to give a big thanks for all those that are trying to close down denturist clinics."

She went to the denturist's clinic after checking dentists who asked $210 and $320 for an upper plate, compared with $50 charged by the denturist, she said.

Det. Sgt. Charles Harding of the Metro police, who is heading the Toronto investigations, said the raids were requested by the attorney-general's office.

Police were acting with search warrants authorizing seizure of bank statements, letters, appointment books, denture and equipment, he said, and charges probably will be laid as a result of the seizures.

Ben Sweet, president of the Ontario Denturists Society, said the two clinics raided Wednesday were "small operators," and that 100 others, including his own, intend to defy the government legislation.

"We are going to fight this right to the Supreme Court of Canada if we have to," Mr. Sweet said.

The legislation introduced earlier last year creating dental technicians has been widely opposed by the province's dentalists and Dr. Potter has said he declined to sign the tests set up by the province.

Daylight Time Said Essential For Brokers

TORONTO (CP) — With stock exchanges in New York changing to daylight saving time, it is essential for the Toronto Stock Exchange (TSE) to open at the same time, a TSE official said Wednesday.

Huntly McKay, TSE vice-president for market development and research, said uniform opening hours are necessary because a large number of stocks are inter-listed — they can be traded in either city.

Hopes Rise for Mideast Peace

GENEVA (Reuter) — Significant progress seems to have been made towards a Middle East peace agreement with the announcement Wednesday that the Egyptian-Israeli military talks have reached an important stage.

Hopes that the disengagement of the armies on the Suez front can be settled quickly also were raised with disclosure that Israeli and Egyptian leaders are soon to visit the capitals of their respective super-power allies.

Further progress in the military negotiations was reported in a 30-word communique following a meeting lasting almost three hours Wednesday night between military representatives of both sides.

A United Nations spokesman who read the brief statement said the delegates have reached an important stage" but would not elaborate.

However, the belief that discussion on a Suez settlement are at an advanced stage was heightened by the news that Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy and Israeli Defence Minister Moshe Dayan will fly to Moscow and Washington respectively within the next few days for urgent consultations.

The Soviet Union and the United States are the co-sponsors of the Middle East peace conference, which set up the joint military working group 12 days ago as the first step towards a durable Middle East peace.

The negotiators said their next meeting will be held Friday afternoon.

If a solution is found to the troop-withdrawal question, an accord may be signed at the full peace conference, tentatively set for an. 21.

This would open the way for negotiations on other stumbling blocks such as those of Israeli-held Jerusalem, the east bank of the Jordan River, and the Golan Heights front where Israel and Syria clashed in October.

Irish Republic Seizes Extremists

DUBLIN (Reuter) — The government of the Irish republic has begun round up suspected extremists in border countries in what appears to be the start of a new security policy to support the coalition government in Belfast.

News of the security sweep has not yet been officially announced in Dublin but residents in towns along the border reported intense police activity during the night.

The roundup began late Wednesday night and by early today at least 20 suspected members of the illegal Irish Republican Army were in police custody, Dail sources reported.

Government sources in Dublin said Wednesday the new legal and security measures directed against the violent Provisional wing of the IRA and other extremist groups have been drawn up and were expected to be implemented immediately.

These were aimed at backing up Premier Liam Cosgrave's New Year declaration that any one seeking to wreck or undermine the new Catholic and Protestant power-sharing government in Northern Ireland would not find refuge in the Irish republic.

The unprecedented security sweep along the 309-mile border was understood to be timed to help the leader of the Northern Ireland executive, Brian Faulkner, in his efforts to win support from his Protestant Unionist party for the power-sharing government.

The Irish government announced Wednesday it will allow courts in the republic to try men wanted for murders and other violent criminal acts in Northern Ireland.

Meanwhile, two bombs exploded in Birmingham, England, Wednesday, one at a warehouse near and police station and the other in a shopping centre. No injuries were reported. The IRA was blamed.

Gun-running Girl Member Of U.S. Student Extremists

LONDON (AP) — An 18-year-old United States girl and two men arrested here for arms smuggling belonged to an extremist student group with headquarters at Santa Barbara, Calif., security sources said today.

The girl, arrested at a London airport Saturday when customs officials found guns and ammunition in her luggage, was identified by the U.S. embassy as Allison Thomson of Santa Barbara.

The others were identified by sources as Ailer Naseen, 21, of Pakistan, and Ayaliah Hakaoui, 25, of Morocco, both previously involved in student politics in Santa Barbara.

The sources said Hakaoui was leader of the group which apparently planned to attack Moroccan diplomats or property in London. There was no apparent link with known Arab guerrilla groups, the sources said.

Scotland Yard has imposed a security blackout on the case, declining even to identify the three pending a decision on whether they will stand trial or be deported.

But the sources said the FBI is seeking two other students in the United States, who cancelled a trip to London after the arrests here.

The group was discovered amid a national security alert for Arab terrorists who were believed planning a concerted attack against targets in Britain.

U.S. Service Stations Selling Gas Illegally

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gasoline stations are violating price regulations at a higher rate than any other industry under United States government price guidelines, an Internal Revenue Service survey shows.

About 20 per cent of service stations checked were selling gasoline above the legal ceiling price, the agency said.

The rate of the price violations is far greater than in other industries under price control and is leading the IRS to increase its enforcement efforts, a spokesman said.

A spokesman said the IRS plans to have 300 agents assigned solely to checking price violations by gasoline stations.

Most of the violations probably do not involve flagrant price gouging in which motorists are charged $1 or more for a gallon of gas, the spokesman said. But the number of such serious violations is increasing. A U.S. gallon is five-sixths of a Canadian gallon.

Trucks Save Gas

WINNIPEG (CP) — Jack Veitch, general manager of the Manitoba Trucking Association, said Wednesday many firms didn't realize there was a saving involved in reducing truck speeds. A truck doing 55 miles an hour can go about one-tenth farther on a tank of gas than a truck doing 60 miles an hour.

Girl Freezes to Death

NELSON HOUSE, Man. (CP) — A 15-year-old girl was found dead Wednesday lying face down in snow in this small northern community. Six Killed By Police Fire

NEW DELHI (Reuter) Prime Minister Indira Gandhi was polled with shots at a public meeting Wednesday. It was one of several incidents during a general strike in the western Indian state of Maharashtra. At least six persons died.

In Bombay Wednesday night, at least three persons were wounded when police fired at stone-throwing rioters.

Sharing Grows With the Need

Belleville is not yet become so large that its people lose contact with one another.

Phyllis Hayman, co-ordinator of the Christmas Sharing program, said that almost everyone in the city donated, through their children, organizations or as individuals, to the 400 hampers packed for needy families.

The number of families aided increased by about 100 this year. One of the reasons is the larger number of senior citizens and the other is the increase in the city's size.

"At the city grows larger, so do its problems," says Mrs. Hayman. "It's heartwarming that the citizens of Belleville care about each other.

The Christmas Sharing program is a clearinghouse, putting donors in contact with recipients. Students in city schools took over one-third of the families in need and packed and delivered the hampers themselves.

Warrant For Toronto Man After No Court Appearance

TRENTON — A province-wide search began today for a Toronto man charged with uttering and the possession of counterfeit money.

Wayne Pacquette was arrested following a combined Trenton-Belleville police effort in mid-September investigating reports of phony $50 bills in circulation.

The bills, reported of good quality, turned up in shops in both Trenton and Belleville.

Mr. Pacquette and a female were taken into custody after-stopping at a Trenton restaurant.

The woman, also from Toronto, pleaded guilty in an earlier court proceeding and was placed on probation.

Mr. Pacquette's preliminary trial was to begin in provincial court here Wednesday.

He failed to appear and a bench warrant for his arrest was immediately issued.

At the time of the arrests police say an amount of counterfeit money was recovered but declined to specify how much.

To the War Zone - - with Clubs

Today golf clubs, Lieut. Geoff Graham, commander of a Buffalo light transport plane (in background) of CFB Trenton Wednesday with more than 60 other servicemen for the Middle East war zone. They'll be flying United Nations supply missions. Reports say there's a golf course near the UN Cairo camp. If he has spare time, flying fresh food to UN ceasefire lines from Cyprus and Brindisi, Lieut. Graham also hopes to have some spare time for golfing.

Science Fair For Picton

PICTON — The second annual Hinsman Science Fair will open at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute, March 8. All students from grades 7 to 13 attending schools in Prince Edward County, are eligible to compete for the trophy awards. Individual and group projects, involving a maximum of four students, are invited by fair officials.

Organizers of last year's county fair noted that a number of entrants later participated in the 1973 Bay of Quinte Science Fair in Belleville. It was suggested that Prince Edward's science competitions may have boosted the confidence of some of the students who were eligible for competition in the larger Quinte display.

Rules and entry forms for the Hinsman Science Fair will be available in Prince Edward County school this month.

Woman Hit In Mishap

PICTON — A Wellington woman on her way to work in Picton was struck by a car as she stood behind her disabled vehicle in a predawn accident today.

Sarah Alice Watt, 50, received broken legs and internal injuries when she was pinned to the rear of her car by an oncoming vehicle driven by Gary Roderick Cooper, 20, of Bloomfield, said police.

A passenger in her car, Burley Thompson, RR 1 Picton also was standing behind the vehicle but managed to jump to safety.

A police spokesman said that the battery of Mrs. Watt's car had gone dead and she was stalled on Highway 33 west of the railway tracks near Picton. There were no lights on the car because of a battery failure.

Mrs. Watt and her passenger work at Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital.

Snow Good for Sports But Keep Off the Ice

The warning came today from the Ministry of Natural Resources here in its weekly report on outdoors conditions.

Elsewhere throughout the Quinte northern townships recent snow has helped snowmobiling and skiing. Ground conditions for both sports are good, says the ministry.

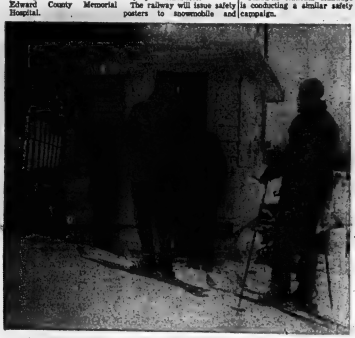
There is about 15 inches of snow in the bush in the Tweed and Madoc-Eldon Echo areas.

To facilitate sportsmen, the parking lot at Bon Echo provincial park has been cleared.

The snowcrust will carry snowshoers or pedestrians.

Railroad Is Warning Snowmobilers Off Tracks

MONTREAL (CP) — CP Rail has started a campaign to warn snowmobilers of the danger of operating their vehicles on or near railway tracks.



The railway said today in a statement CP personnel are conducting weekend patrols of tracks "to stop further trespassing on railway rights of way by snowmobilers."

The railway will issue safety posters to snowmobile and sports clubs. The posters will also be displayed in many CP stations.

Six snowmobilers died last winter while travelling on or beside railway tracks.

CP said ice formed when snowmobile pack down snow on railway tracks can cause train derailments.

Trenton Firm Gets $141,000 Contract

Prince Edward Heights Renovations

PICTON — A Trenton construction firm has been awarded a $141,533 contract for renovations to Craig Barracks at Prince Edward Heights, the provincial government's complex for the mentally retarded.

James Taylor, MPP Prince Edward-Lennox, Wednesday announced that Miron-Wiggers Construction Ltd. will convert part of the former Barracks area as activities building for residents of the Craig area units.

Work is now underway, and it is expected that renovations will be completed at the close of next April.

Facilities for woodworking and ceramics will be installed as well as a cafeteria for staff use. Two concrete ramps will be built to accommodate wheelchair residents in the Craig area. New fencing also is part of the renovation program.

Toboggan Deaths Alarm Officials in Metro

TORONTO (CP) — Park officials throughout Metropolitan Toronto, alarmed by the recent deaths of two children on toboggans and the injury to another Wednesday, have started a program to remove all obstacles dangerously close to snow-covered hills.

Tommy Thompson, Metropolitan Toronto parks commissioner, said today a general alert has been sent out to check parks for benches and playground equipment located near the base of hills. Trees also are being sandbagged.

Mr. Thompson said, however, that part of the problem involves the objects children slide on such as aluminium discs on which "are capable of enormous speeds with very little control."

Paul Arsenault, 7, and Joseph Danielson, 17 months, were killed in separate tobogganing accidents this week when they struck their heads on park benches cemented into the ground. Both benches are being removed.

A third youngster narrowly escaped severe injury Wednesday when his toboggan collided with another on an icy, steep roadway behind his apartment building in the borough of East York.

Kim-Ji Chang, 8, was treated in hospital for a deep gash to his forehead.

Held On Murder Charge

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — Laurence Tracey, 62, of Wawa, charged with the attempted murder of a Michipicoten policeman, was detained in custody following a bail hearing here today.

The Crown requested the man be held in custody and undergo psychiatric assessment. No bail application was made on behalf of Tracey.

In addition to attempted murder, he is charged with dangerous use of a firearm.

He was arrested Dec. 28 in Wawa, 139 miles north of here, after two policemen were shot at while investigating a disturbance. One shot narrowly missed a policeman.

Finnish Visit

A little gamesmanship by the host country has been reported from the hockey confrontations between Trenton Mirs's Hanby Stand Juveniles and their opponents in Finland.

The Trenton boys, after an initial win, got clobbered by an older junior squad but subsequently edged past snobbier juvenile side after coach Gary Birt objected to the Finnish ruse.

But gamesmanship aside, what a superb experience for the Quinte-area youngsters as well as their opponents, this matching of youthful teams from both countries.

There is a busy schedule covering but a week and with apparently not much time left for seeing much of the country itself. But it is not every day boys of this age get to seeing other countries at all, let alone compete in hockey or any other sporting activity.

The visit of a Swedish midget team to Trenton for Monday's exhibition game in Trenton arena was another memorable occasion. International understanding gains from such events and we hope there will be more of them.

Toward Understanding

In our shrinking world much that is happening makes for lamentable reading but there are many happy events too on an international basis which reach right into our own midst.

There are the hockey exchanges, mentioned here, and there have been those also which have been organized by Belleville Rotary, as well as area participation in the Canada World Youth — Jeunesse Canada Monde — swap with young people abroad.

Recently a party of 30 Canadians journeyed to Fiji, together with young people from that country who had been staying here for some months.

On a different level of organization, and involving no funds from the taxpayer, are the Rotary student exchanges. Another one of Belleville Rotary's is about to end with the departure for home January 9 of Australians Deborah Charters and Rosemary Downs.

This is a program which, since its inception in Belleville two years ago, has spread to other centres. Tentative arrangements are currently being made for further exchanges this time with clubs in Belgium, Denmark and Finland, and host clubs here include Belleville (which likely will have Finnish students), Trenton, Bowmanville, Port Credit, Quinte, and Scarborough.

The Australian girls were given an official farewell by Rotary this week when even the prospect of a return to mid-summer weather (some of which they depicted in a final slide show) could not hide some tears. How could they leave a sunny, snowcad landscape, one Rotarian asked, and Miss Charters replied, "it is going to be hard."

For all the unpleasantness that surrounds the international scene today, it cannot snuff out for far greater and more meaningful ties being forged in the manner discussed here. As Centennial principal W. R. MacKay, who organizes the Rotary program says: "It may sound corny but each of further international understanding, but we feel this is one way of doing it."

Why Not the U.S.?

One further thought on the concept of student exchanges involving Canada and other countries. Thus far these have brought young people from South Africa to Australia and Belleville students have gone to those sunny climes in return.

This year students from Belgium, Denmark and Finland are expected to be spread around half-a-dozen Rotary clubs in Eastern Ontario, including Belleville and Trenton.

In making future selections, let us not forget our neighbor, the United States. We complain that Americans know little about Canada, although the new year once again has brought further evidence that that is not always the case, further evidence too of U.S. hospitality. We refer to the Pasadena Rose bowl parade in which Winnipeg — like Pasadena it is celebrating its centenary — was represented by Mayor Stephen Juba and massed pipe bands, while Calgary and Nova Scotia also were represented.

How interesting it would be to have students in some far-flung part of the States, say Brownsville or El Paso, Texas, or Tucson, Arizona, or Albuquerque, New Mexico. Canada, details to be heard of in those places. Life, and young Americans from there come to live among us for a while.

Patterns of Living

A Tale of Two Cities — and What the Young Are Thinking

By DANIEL BERRMAN
In UNESCO Reshaper

Listen to children talk about where they live:

"All round is ugly—it's a slum. The houses aren't looked after; people haven't got much money places don't have drains."

"There are lots of houses unfit for living. The houses aren't looked after; you can look through the open doors and see mess and beer bottles everywhere."

"I don't think it will change. There's nobody really to change in this area to make it different. There'll be different nationalities around, more road accidents... more crowding because there are so many people with the population growing and not hardly any place for them to live."

"Anything can happen to you anywhere! Hoods — people out to get you. You can't be safe anywhere really! People jump out at you in the dark!"

And now, listen to some others talking about where they live:

"It is a nice area, many children who like to play. The people are good. Many people go to the plaza at night. There are many birds in the hills."

"It is a wonderful area: good, united neighbors. For Christmas, we took part on the Living Creche; I played the part of the dancing shepherd. The plaza is good fun. The local Neighbors' Organization is building a swimming pool ..."

It sounds like a classic case of the under and the overprivileged. Except that the children in the second group are from the Argentine town of Salta where they live in a suburb built on a garbage dump next to a prison. As for the first group, they come from a suburb of Melbourne, Australia, where average family income is probably six times higher than in Salta.

Their comments are quoted from two studies that Unesco has initiated to learn how children, in their various worlds. It is hoped through such research to arrive at a clearer notion of what constitutes the "quality of life", a term much heard these days in the mouths of decision makers, architects and city planners.

Preliminary results of the studies were given at a meeting in Paris last March of experts on perception of environmental quality. The panel was convened under Unesco's Man and the Biosphere program. Professor Kevin Lynch of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, the consultant on the project, described how the studies began in September 1972 after a conference in Helsinki on the consequences of cultural change.

One group of 9 children 13 and 14 years old was selected at Salta in Argentina and another group in Melbourne. To learn their attitudes toward their cities, researchers used a number of techniques: interviews, motion pictures, photographs, map drawings from memory.

Lynch said the studies tried to find out how children see their cities, how they adapt and survive, what they like and what they fear. The ultimate purpose is to compare the child's-eye view of city environment with that of parents and, most important, of the officials responsible for it.

The Australian study was conducted by a team based at the School of Architecture and Building at the University of Melbourne. It was presented at the meeting in Paris by Peter Downton, a young Australian architect.

Braybrook and Maidstone, the two areas chosen, are, as Downton put it, "a piece of Australian suburban sprawl" in Melbourne's low status western suburbs. The children live in public housing, one-story concrete homes put up about 20 years ago near an industrial area within what is called the "City of Sunshine".

The investigators found that children were not using public space the way the planners had intended. The kids' overall activity was walking, mostly in the streets. Or, in the words of Colin Benjamin, the local welfare director, their main use of space is as "walking, riding and not using it." He described the local environmental quality in what the study repor calls "one unpalatable word".

What has gone wrong? The answer is not money. Families are living comfortably, on the whole, in their own cars. They enjoy the sort of incomes that go with a high level of national economic development, even though their area is a stepchild.

The problem that Downton encountered in the quality of the open space available to the children. "It's like a tablet: flat and brown. Nothing ever happens.

A map of the area shows it to be dotted with "reserves" — reserved for organized sports and therefore used only at times a week by a small proportion of the children.

The authorities keep it that way. According to the study reports, most children would seem to desire to be able to use these areas for activities specifically banned by councils — horse, push bike and motor bike riding, flying model planes and kites, digging, building, climbing. By banning these potential users of the open space, the reserves are left empty and useless.

"We made a point of asking the children specifically about activities for the day, or during their holiday time. Inevitably the replies were along the following general lines:

At Villa-Las Rosas, which lies on the western flank of Salta, there is no problem of "outdoor public space" simply because there is none — at least not in the form of parks and sports fields. A few recreation centres is being built on the hill that forms one boundary of Villa Las Rosas but, if one has to judge from their responses, the children have plenty of recreation as it is.

They move fearlessly about the city, a handsome colonial town founded in 1582, on foot or cycle. They picnic in the hills, they meet their friends on the plaza where their school is located.

Their homes are small, built in 1954 to house lower middle class families with incomes of about $75 a month. Many of the rents have improved them, adding hedges or walls and fresh paint to enhance the look of the houses and the streets.

The children in the Melbourne suburb, houses here have no garages and the car is not part of the children's lives. Only the main road used by buses is paved in Villa Las Rosas, the others are dirt.

When asked to name beautiful places in the area, they cited: "The plaza because I meet my friends there."

"The river of my house because there are always flowers there."

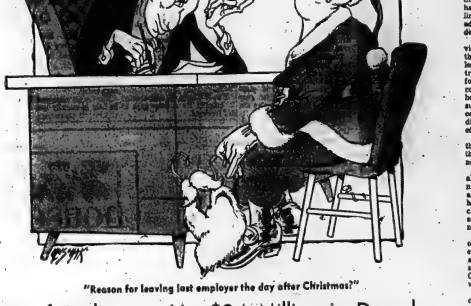
They also know what they didn't like. Definitions of ugly places were:

"Where there are no children."

"Streets without flowers, because they are sad."



"The places where ugly spots in our area, in the city there are cabarets with bad women."

Villa Las Rosas is what its inhabitants make it. Yet there is a danger that its freshness will wilt. Families are not well-off, they are almost ashamed of what they enjoy. Children seem to have picked up the idea from their parents that anything natural or wild is "dirty". They like their gardens, but bright clean neon signs are preferable to trees in the city centre. Even they like the new colonial houses that have been allowed to the zone.

One boy remarked, speaking about his future: "I've been 600 miles to the south) is very nice, that it has buildings, pools and entertainments, that there is enough work and a university as well.

The research initiated in Australia and Argentina is continuing. Professor Tadeusz Tomaszewski of the Institute of Psychology at the University of Warsaw reported that Poland wished to compare how children perceive old and new cities, densely populated areas with little play space versus new quarters with high buildings and lots of room. Lynch said it is also planned to carry out a similar study in a developing country.

All this is part of a new science and it is too soon to draw any definite conclusions. But more than that happens, these studies will enable authorities to plan for the happiness that seems to elude so many urban agglomerates all Villa Las Rosas on the garbage dump next to the prison.

Cost of Parliament Up $34 Million in Decade

By RICHARD JACKSON
OTTAWA — There's quite a few Honorable Members who are getting just a little edgy over what they suspect could be unfriendly public reaction to the fact some other Honorable Members have been bellying up to the public tax bar, pushed and prodded by the big government, free-spending Trudeauites.

An Honorable Member, of course, will prod — by how much remains unclear — those who have reservations about the timing of it, relative to peril of layoffs, reductions, and indeed, for some, the question of the ethics involved.

Those who are on the make are working hard to get a windfall of new parliamentary goodies going for them.

The one that is making them the most uncomfortable — and those directly involved a little nervous — is the matter of wives, and would you believe it, daughters on their secretarial payroll.

It must be something about Women's Lib, definitely a not so subtle form of sex discrimination, but so far there has not been so much as a whisper about snagging sons onto the secretarial staff.

But this hiring of wives — at $6,500 the copy — and daughters at presumably the same secretarial price-tag is one they are not likely to be getting away with.

For while the House Leaders of the four parties in the Commons were prepared to look the other way, Mr. Speaker Lucien Lamoureux is believed to be drawing up a parliamentary personal rule book making it a no-no.

For all the flack that is flying, the Honorable Members hide from Toronto Liberal MP James Fleming, a former broadcaster, is unperturbed.

When campaigning last year, the freshman MP made the issue of the most unusual election promises to his voters: he would not be employing wife, sons, or his secretary in Ottawa.

And hire her did at $6,500.

Eyebrows and questions were raised all over Parliament Hill.

The eyebrows have gone even higher when some of the answers came in that not only were wives on the payroll, but daughters, too.

For while Parliament Hill still has to vote the necessary money from your taxes — more than $2 million — the parties' House Leaders have agreed that Honorable Members will be given up to an additional $8,000 annually to run constituency offices back home.

Of that, $6,000 for secretarial staff and $200 a mon h for rent, atop the $18,000 salaries and $1,000 tax-free expense allowances Honorable Members already enjoy.

And if, some of them argue, Mr. Speaker does not rule it out as dirty pool, an MP can hire his own brother-in-law, that's wise, that is to stop him putting other members of the family on the payroll bank in the constituency office?

Others are making it sweet deal even sweeter, how about paying that $200 monthly constituency office "rent" for space in an MP's own home?

Nobody, possibly not even the good, grey Stanley Knowles, known as the "conscience of the Commons," objects to MPs needing offices and secretaries back in the riding, as he did to their last self-ordained salary raise and retirement pension deal.

But relatives on the payroll here in the Capital and just possibly in that riding "office" in the MP's home?

Sooner or later, and probably sooner, Mr. Speaker will put it all out of parliamentary bounds.

But there is nothing he can do about the Election Expenses Bill whereby the taxpayer is going to be dinged for some of the cost of the Honorable Members making it to the House of Commons.

It is a bare-faced Treasury Board raid on election expenses. Still whereby the taxpayer is going to be dinged for some of the cost of the Honorable Members making it to the House of Commons.

It is a bare-faced Treasury Board raid on election expenses. opposition from some MPs, among them the tough and independent Eugene Whelan Conservative MP Doug Allenbrack, who calls it "a Bill Authorizing Political Candidates To Dip Into The Public Purse."

Among others, MPs questioning the legislation is Toronto New Democrat John Harney who calculates that the taxpayer could be paying up more than $3 million for the election candidates to advertise their wares of no benefit whatever to anyone as MPs like to call themselves.

Even though in the many parliamentary working day, the Honorable Members are worrying about inflation.

None of them seems to have flipped back through the Finance Department estimates to discover that only 10 years ago, back in 1963, Parliament cost the taxpayers just under $9 million. Now the price tag reads just about $43 million, all run up in the "what's money," Pearson-Trudeau years.

And lows that for inflation?

Teachers' Demonstration Biggest

By DON O'HEARN

There was one group of industrial workers who had a camp-out on the front lawn for more than a week.

There was one man who alleged he was not getting from the courts who picketed the main door for more than two years.

In recent years it seems that practically every day there has been at least one group demonstrating.

But the classic, in size at least, must certainly was the show put on by the school teachers recently.

Probably it was the largest crowd ever to be gathered before the buildings since the provincial capital in 1867. The crowd was estimated at 40,000.

The impression left by the demonstration are hard to assess or balance.

But still there had to be qualms in watching this particular display.

For these were "teachers."

Supposedly they are leaders. Certainly they are a tremendous influence on our future leaders.

For they were strident and bellicose in their approach. Much the same as one would expect from a demonstration by Teamsters or one of the other more aggressive elements in the trade union movement.

And there was a sense of loss in watching this.

Could not these people, who are supposedly among the top level of intelligence in our society, achieve some more mature method of working out their problems

Investment Bill May Run Counter to Our Needs

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

With its well-known sense of timing, the federal government has pushed through a bill to limit foreign investment in Canada, just when the economy desperately needs more capital.

The Foreign Investment Review Act was steered through the Commons by Alastair Gillespie, minister of industry, trade and commerce. When it is formally proclaimed it will become law, it will establish a board to decide whether any substantial foreign investment or foreign takeover of a Canadian firm is of significant benefit" to this country.

The new bill is a victory for the fiercely nationalist group in the Canadian Liberal party. Who needs foreign capital, anyway?

The answer, which the nationalists overlook, is that the Canadian economy needs capital — and lots of it. It is to stay healthy. Canadian sources of capital, are notoriously unwilling to risk their economy investing in Canadian enterprises.

Consider just how our economy is slowing down—when economists talk about the risk of a recession or even a depression in 1974—the timing of Mr. Gillespie's bill couldn't hardly be worse.

In the July-September quarter of this year, Canada's real gross national product, the total value of all goods and services produced—grew by an almost imperceptible annual rate of 1 percentage point.

Such a laughable economic performance could be overcome with a hefty injection of capital invested in promising projects.

And a recent survey by Mr. Gillespie's own department showed that 200 large corporations were planning to increase their capital spending by 31 per cent in 1974. Their plant revision outlays of $9,200 million, a new plant and equipment next year, compared with $6,985 million in 1973.

Leading the big spenders are the manufacturing companies which reported that their 1974 capital investment intentions were 46.8 per cent greater than this year's outlays.

Where will the capital come from, especially if foreign investors are to be deterred from investing their money to work in Canada?

At the good, grey chartered banks and insurance companies of this country likely to rush in to take up the slack?

Are vast numbers of individual Canadians likely to become investors overnight, now that the foreign devils have been put in their place?

Or will there be a shortage of capital, forcing businesses to postpone or cancel expansion plans, and causing unemployment to rise still further?

The foreign investment is not statistically reduced the less heavily industrialized regions of Canada will not be the only losers.

All consumers will lose—in the form of higher prices and more limited choice of products and services—as the result of the shut-down of many established business interests from the inhospitable entry of foreign new competition.

The Foreign Investment Review Board will be responsible for ensuring that Canadian industry is not obliterated by foreign interests.

Somehow, it must also find a way to ensure that our economy is not killed by Mr. Gillespie's good intentions.

High Food Costs Seen Remaining

GUELPH, Ont. (CP) — Little relief from high food costs is in sight for the Canadian consumer in 1974, an official of the federal prices review board said Wednesday.

R. M. A. Loyns, a research co-ordinator with board, told an agricultural outlook conference at the University of Guelph the increase in food prices accounted for more than half the total increase in all Canadian consumer prices in 1973.

"Food prices in Canada rose faster in 1973 than in any other year in the post-Second World War period with the exception of 1948," he said.

Eggs led the way, jumping 40 per cent while poultry went up 28.3 per cent, he said. Pork rose 26 per cent, fruit and vegetables 19.9 per cent, beef and other meats 19.4 per cent and fish 18.6 per cent.

Dairy, cereal and bakery products were up 7.1 per cent, fats and oils—exclusive of butter—three per cent and beverages 2.4 per cent.

But if food prices climbed, so did per capita income levels, he added.

"Per-capita income levels have been increasing faster than food prices since 1976 with the exception of 1973 when they did not keep up with foods."

Prof. T. K. Warley, a University of Guelph agricultural economist, told the conference that despite a bumper global grain crop last year, the world remains on the edge of disaster.

"If the world has a bad crop year in 1974, it will be at a point never before seen in history," he said.

After two decades of surpluses and excess agricultural capacity, the professor said, the world is moving into an era in which it will be increasingly difficult to supply the basic food requirements of a burgeoning world population.

Prof. Warley said world reserves of grain have largely been committed to consumption.

"If all major countries have good crops this year, then some replenishment of stocks and softening of prices can be anticipated," he said.

Charles Gracey, manager of the Canadian Cattlemens Association, said the current uncertainty in the economic picture caused by the energy crisis, suggests that the recovery of buoyant beef demand evident in 1972 may be a slow process.

An economic slowdown could not have come at a more time because we are on the threshold of a marked increase in the beef supply. We may well have reached the point where expanding production will not be matched by further increases in demand."

The three-day conference ends Friday.

Energy Bill Debate Resumes

OTTAWA (CP) — The business of a New Year begins today for the miserly Parliament with energy bills left over from 1973 topping the government's legislative list.The first session of the 29th Parliament will continue until they are passed.

Much of the battling over the non-priority emergency energy bill was settled in the last-minute agreement among the parties for a Christmas-New Year's break.

No more than another six days of committee and Commons time will be spent on the bill with a maximum of three days on another bill to tax crude oil exports.

Drives With Feet

GODERICH, Ont. (CP) — Elaine Townshend, a 23-year-old community college student, has overcome the problems of driving a car. Elaine was born without arms but today she drives around in a compact specially modified for her handicap. The steering wheel and other controls are mounted on the floor within easy reach of her feet. The car was adapted by a mechanic from Clinton, Ont., in cooperation with the Canadian Paraplegic Association and the War Amputations Association. Both groups believe Elaine is the only person in Canada who drives with her feet.

Astronauts Find Views Changing

HOUSTON (AP) —The Skylab 3 astronauts said Wednesday they feel changes of "almost a spiritual nature" in their views of themselves, of other humans and of the possibility of life elsewhere in the universe.

The changes come from orbiting the earth for 48 days and watching the panorama of the world, the sun and the stars beyond, astronauts Gerald Carr, William Pogue and Edward Gibson said in a news conference from space.

Pogue said the long space flight has given him a more "humanistic view toward other people" and toward himself.

"I now have a new orientation . . . of almost a spiritual nature," he said. "My attitude toward life is going to change — toward my family it's going to change. When I see people I try to see them as operating human beings and try to fit myself into a human situation instead of trying to operate like a machine."

Carr said people in very technical work tend t o" xarcogbot nical work tend to "move along with your blinders on."

"I think this mission is going to . . . increase my awareness . . . of what else is going on besides what I'm doing," he said.

Gibson said orbiting the earth for days "makes you speculate a little more" about life existing elsewhere in the universe.

"Being up here and being able to see the stars and look back at the earth and see your own sun as a star makes you much more conscious of that," he said.

Rail Track Inspection Improvement Ordered

OTTAWA (CP) — In an effort to curb increasing train derailments caused by track conditions, the Canadian transport commission has given railways 90 days to improve track inspection procedures.

If the railways do not comply, the commission said Wednesday it will order reduced speeds and reduced load limits.

Derailments cause by track conditions have risen to 123 in 1972 from 69 in 1969 and 40 in 1960.

The commission said that unless track conditions are improved, derailments "will continue to increase with a continuing increase in the number of injuries and deaths as a result."

Under the new rules, railways have 90 days to draw up new track inspection procedures that guarantee inspection of all main lines and important branch lines daily, including Sunday.

Most railways now inspect about three times a week.

The requirements follow lengthy rail safety hearings completed two years ago and also include rules to cope with defects in snow-slide warning fences in mountain region, bridge fires and signal problems.

Another inquiry into highway-railway crossing accidents now is under way.

If railways do not improve track conditions, the commission will limit boxcar loads to 70 or 80 tons. Many cars now carry 100-ton loads.

The railways also will be required to reduce speeds wherever existing speeds are contributing to excessive stress on tracks.

Food Prices: They're Still Going Up

You don't read about it as often lately, but the person in your family who pays the food bills doesn't need a reminder: food prices are still going up.

In fact, an Intelligencer check Wednesday of 10 items compared with prices in April, July, August and September revealed that yesterday's grocery bill would have been the highest yet.

The food items were priced at the same store each time.

Surveyed were Grade A medium eggs, one quart of homogenized milk, one pound of butter, one pound of ground chuck, roasting chicken, pork loin centre chops, 10 pounds of potatoes, tomatoes, white bread, and coffee.

In April of 1973, when food prices had already begun their upward spiral, you would have paid $7.71 for those 10 staple items.

In July, you would have paid $8.46. August price was $8.83. September saw some relief for food shoppers as the price for the items dipped to $8.02, mostly due to drops in the prices of seasonal items.

But Wednesday you would have paid $8.90 for the 10 items, an increase of just under 15 ½ per cent in eight months. Overall national figures show that food prices went up about 17 percent in 1972.

Omelet lovers already know that eggs have been one of the most rapidly increasing staples this year. From an April price of 45 cents, they're now at a high of 86 cents, an increase of about 33 per cent.

Milk is only one cent per quart higher than last April after hitting 39 cents per quart in the middle of the year. It's now 37.

Butter, believe it or not, is actually down two cents from last April. It was down three cents in the fall but has moved up one cent.

You can roast a chicken for the same price as last April after whole cooking chickens went from 69 ¢ 77 to 72 then 89 cents per pound. They're 89 cents again.

Last July you might have paid a phenomenal $1.39 for 10 lbs. of potatoes. After a seasonal dip to 59 cents, you're paying 99 now.

Tomatoes were 59 cents per pound last spring and they're 69 right now. In between they dipped to 29 cents per pound.

A loaf of white bread currently costs about 15 cents more than it did last spring, an increase of 89 per cent. Prices went from 25 cents to 37, made a brief farewell appearance at 38 cents then rose steadily to the current price of 40 cents.

Pork centre cut chops were $1.18 last spring. Today you can buy them for $1.33, after a high of $1.82 per pound in August.

Coffee at $1.38 per pound is up only nine cents from last April. However it's one of those food stuffs that will continue to go up in price as 1974 wears on.

* * *

If this is the sad tale of last year, what can you do to help control your food budget in 1974?

First off, start planning a garden now. Even if you haven't got a freezer, you can save money on vegetables during the growing season from early June green onions to late September's last carrot. Without a lot of freezer space, plan to grow lots of "keepers" like squash, turnips, potatoes, carrots, beets, cabbage, pumpkins, etc.

Write for your seed catalogue early. Two major suppliers of mail order seeds are Stokes, Ltd. Catharines, Ontario and Dominion Seed House, Georgetown, Ont.

* * *

The government's food prices review board may not be doing much to stem the tide of rising prices but another government agency will try to help you manage your food budget. "Your Food Dollar", an Agriculture Canada publication is available by writing Information Division, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa K1A 0C7.

* * *

Information Canada will sell you a 75 cent gadget called a Unit Price Pocket Calculator. Despite pressure from government and consumers, some chain stores still aren't unit-pricing goods. Write Information Canada at Ottawa K1A 0S9.

* * *

The Department of Consumer and Corporporate Affairs has some advice for you, too, when it comes to meat shopping. They advise:

Consider the amount of wastage such as bone and fat when buying meat. You need to buy more when there's a lot of bone.

Try using cheaper cuts of meat. They're just as nutritious as more expensive cuts but should be prepared carefully by long, slow, moist cooking.

Meat can be extended by adding skim milk powder, bread crumbs or cereals to meat loaves, patties or casseroles.

Groceries are costing you more than ever as prices are apparently still rising.

From last spring to right now, prices have increased more than 15 per cent in Belleville. Nationally, food prices increased 17 percent in 1973.

Canned meats may be money-savers but compare the cost carefully with fresh meat on a cost per ounce or pound basis.

Buy pork, lambs' or beef liver - they are cheaper than calves liver and all are high in iron.

Fancy and processed cheeses are usually more expensive than cheddar; compare cost per ounce.

* * *

When buying meat, think beans. Or eggs or cheese. One pork chop, four ounces including bone, is worth about 28 cents in Belleville right now. It supplies 21 grams of protein. Three ounces of cheddar cheese supplies the same amount of protein at about 36 cents. Three eggs supply 18 grams of protein at about 21 cents. A third of a cup of peanut butter supplies about 21 grams of protein at just over 10 cents.

A cup and a half of kidney beans supplies 21 grams of protein at about eight cents. Vegetable proteins likes beans or peanut butter should not be relied on in total for nutritional requirements.

More shopping tips:

1. Make a shopping list before you start out. And try to stay with it, no matter what "special" food offers you encounter on your way through the store.

2. Buy by weight. Read labels on cans, frozen foods, bread and rolls to see how much you are paying per ounce or pound. Some food stores indicate unit costs on their display shelves so you don't have to compute them yourself.

3. In comparing cost per pound, think about waste. That meat bone that goes into the soup pot and pea pods that hit the garbage may be costing you more than you think.

4. Figure the cost in relation to food value. Margarine and butter have identical calorie and vitamin value.

5. Buy in season. When local produce is on the market, it's nearly always a better buy.

6. Buy in quantity, considering needs and storage facilities. Grandma knew what she was doing when she bought flour by the barrel. But if your apartment will only hold a 10 lb. sack, it will still be a better buy than a 2 lb. sack.

7. Processing makes a difference in price. You can save money if you will spend time and do the work the processor does. Some prepared mixes for cakes, puddings and biscuits cost more than those you make at home.

8. Advertising and packaging are cost elements in food stores. The "World Famous De Luxe" brand that's widely advertised often costs more than the advertised brands. And it may not be any better.

9 Place of purchase has an effect on how far your money will go. A chain store is usually more reasonable than a small independent store. But you lost the advantage if you have to take a taxi to get there.

10. Watch scales and adding machines. Be sure to get what you pay for.

Husband on Phone 'Hours'

Dear Ann Landers: You have printed several letters from husbands complaining about wives who talk incessantly on the telephone, but so far nothing has appeared from women whose husbands have "black cord fever." Well, here's one—and I can't believe it's your first.

My husband sits down at the telephone the minute he comes home from work. He calls his folks, his two sisters and his aunt, just to see how they are. Sometimes he calls his brother-in-law in Rome—that's Italy, not Georgia. Then he calls friends and people he barely knows, to ask, "What's up?" This goes on every night of his life. I have to drag him off the phone to get him to eat supper. One night last week he talked on the phone for four hours. I clocked him.

There's got to be something wrong with a guy who does that much telephoning. Why is he so chatty? Maybe if I understood it, it wouldn't bug me so much.—The Wizard.

Dear Wiz: He's more than "chatty," dear, he's compulsive.

Does he ever talk to you? That might be a good place to tackle the problem.

Dear Ann Landers: Our son married a lovely girl last week. The bride and groom invited about 50 single friends and 10 young married couples to the wedding. (Many did not RSVP). We invited 90 friends and relatives. The bride's family invited 75.

The day was a disaster. Dozens of young people we didn't even know showed up. Several single fellows brought dates—and even couples! The bride's mother was a wreck. Some of the "drop-ins" looked unbelievably lucky and behaved as if they had never been around free food before. The buffet was devoured in less than an hour. I saw several "guests" eat four pieces of wedding cake. Of course, there wasn't enough to go around. The bar bill was beyond belief.

Our son seemed unconcerned. The bride thought it was "like cool." In retrospect, what could have been done to avoid such unpleasantness? We have a daughter who will be married next year. Any suggestions?—Appalled

Dear A.: A card should be inserted in the invitation envelope saying: "Please present at the door. Invited guests only will be admitted." It's awful to have to do this, but people must protect themselves as best they can.

Guests who fail to respond to the RSVP should be phoned and asked: "Yes or no?" If they are embarrassed because of their slobb ishness, so what? They deserve it.

Dear Ann Landers: Tonight my 17-year-old sister was fired. She was a waitress in a cafe and had the job for more than a year. I work in the same place and witnessed the reason she was fired. We'd like your opinion as to whether or not it was justified.

It was 10 minutes before closing and Sally was hurrying with a plate of food. A young man (pretty drunk) popped up from the bar stool and patted Sally on the breast in a teasing way. She squished the plate of food right in his face. The boss came running over and fired her on the spot. What do you think?—Sister

Dear Sister: I think your sister was startled and lost her balance. After all, a girl does not expect such behavior. Accidents do happen, and the boss should rehire your sister at once.

Must Change Formula

LEEDS, England (CP) — The policeman patted 18-months-old Adrian on the head as the tot enjoyed his bottle, snug on his mother's lap as she sat outside a pub. "Orange Juice?" the officer enquired. "Beer," replied Carol Crowe, 26. "He's been drinking it since he was little—it's good for him." She and her husband were fined $ ($12.50) each.

Constance Cox puts her feet up and takes a break From the bed-making business. She and her husband Jack own the Constance Cox Brass Bed Co. They say their company, which they started in July, is one of two brass bed manufacturers in the world. The Company produces as many as 20 beds a week.

Lumberjills Join Lumberjacks

UPSALA, Ont. (CP) — Lumberjacks will be joined by lumberjills when Great Lakes Paper Co. opens a new bunk camp near this northwestern Ontario town.

The women are to be employed as wood cutters and pulpwood operators at Camp 903, about 110 miles northwest of Thunder Bay.

John Taylor, Great Lakes woodlands personnel manager, said one of the bunkhouses has been designed to accommodate as many as 12 women employees.

Great Lakes always has hired women for its camp counselors but this will be the first time the firm has employed women in woods operations.

"In the growing number of women entering the work force, it is safe to expect that many of them will consider the woodlands industry here," Mr. Taylor said.

He said, however, the company has no immediate plans for a recruiting campaign aimed specifically at women.

The entire camp, expected to cost about $500,000 and to be in operation some time in 1974, will have accommodation for 90 to 100 employees.

The camp will be situated in the Graham district, 70 miles northwest of Upsala and set in rugged lake adld bush terrain north of the trans-Canada highway.

Successful Living

Meeting Other's Needs

By DORIS CLARK

A happy couple devote themselves to the practice of meeting each other's needs.

What need? Perhaps just for someone to blow off steam to. Could be just a simple act of putting a cup of tea into a tire hand. It might be relieving the routine with an evening out for dinner.

One couple ran a store together - - with its full share of financial hazards. One morning something went wrong. Whatever, it was, friend's husband grabbed his coat and walked out. His wife carried on all day, uncomfortably. In late afternoon she decided to phone home.

He was there! "Are you all right dear?" He was all right. When she got home she asked no questions. After the children were off to bed he told her about the big bill which had thrown him. The air was cleared, yet nothing bitter had been said.

Dear Doris: I have been married for three years and for the last two of them my husband and I haven't been getting along. We have absolutely nothing in common, and he is several years older than me. I met a man a few months ago and I know I am in love with him, but I'm not sure if he loves me or if he is just getting a big kick out of the situation.

My husband is not aware of what is happening and I have thought of leaving him several times. We have no children and no sex life for I can't stand the thought of my husband touching me. I would like to leave my husband but he would take it very badly.

I was married young and I missed out on all the excitement of being a teen-ager. How will I know if this man I love is in love with me?

Dear Desperate: There is too much left unsaid. You still sound very young, perhaps too immature to know the Real thing. And if your husband would "take it very badly" - why? Does he care for you? It he does, your touch-me-not attitude must be breaking his heart anyway.

As for knowing if the new man in your life is just flirting with you - - I'm sending you my leaflet, "What Is Love?" See if he meets any of the specifications.

Yours is a case for personal counselling.

Dear Doris: The woman that wrote in about passing the bride's ginger around at the wedding dance: This has been going on for a long time here in British Columbia.

Thank you, B.C.!

AYLESBURY, England (CP) — Widow Kay Vogel, 68, thought it must be thunder, rolled over and went back to sleep. Next day "no one believed I slept through it all," she said. CP News Roundup

Freight Handlers Too Cold

TORONTO (CP) — A number of freight handlers walked off the job at CP Rail's freight terminal in the west end Wednesday, protesting cold working conditions.

Rail company officials said all but 25 of the 150-member work force stayed on the job. The men who voted to leave after a mid-morning coffee break said that 40 men walked off.

It was the second time in less than a year that the warehouse has been hit by a walkout over heating.

The heaters were to be installed and working by Dec. 31, but a shortage of parts caused the contractor to make Jan. 14 the new completion date.

Railway officials said that as the men—had booked off sick "for good reason," each case would have to be studied before any disciplinary action s taken.

Man Guarded

SEPT ILES, Que. (CP) — Fernand Boivin, a federal civil servant held hostage during the weekend by Indians protesting what they called welfare favoritism was placed under police protection in a local hotel Wednesday after demonstrators threatened his safety.

Earlier, about 15 Indians from the Sept-Iles and Mallotenam reserves fled quietly from the offices of the department of Indian affairs here after an interlocutory injunction issued by the Quebec Superior Court ended their five-day occupation of the premises.

Prices Rise

TORONTO (CP) — IBM Canada Ltd. has increased prices for most data processing products and plans to raise prices for program products and monthly maintenance services April 1, the company said Wednesday.

Dollar Rises

LONDON (AP) — The United States dollar climbed to a record high against the British pound today and rose sharply against other European currencies for the second straight day.

Gold rose $3.30 to $131 an ounce, its highest price in five months. But this was below its record high of $130 an ounce last June 8.

Dealers attributed the continuing increase in the price of gold to a widespread belief that the Arab oil countries may demand payment for their oil exports in gold rather than foreign currencies.

Youth Dies

MIAMI (AP) — A 16-year-old Canadian tourist died after apparently inhaling a spray can of deodorant, police said Wednesday.

William Barnet Kliger of Toronto was reported missing a week ago by his parents. On Saturday, police said, the boy's body was found on the roof of the apartment house where the family had been vacationing. Under the body police found a spray can of deodorant.

Cord Dies

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Errett Lobban Cord, maker of the classic Cord automobile and aviation pioneer, died Wednesday of an apparent heart attack, a family spokesman said. He was 79.

Thugs Warned

Young, 56, got a standing ovation after telling several thousand persons gathered at Ford Auditorium that it is time for "dope pushers and rip-off artists" to leave crime-plagued Detroit.

"I don't care if they're black or white, if they wear Superfly suits or blue uniform with silver badges—hit the road," said Young.

Garbage Hill

TORONTO (CP) — Metropolitan Toronto has proposed a $750,000-ski hill in the borough of Scarborough to solve its garbage-disposal problems for 1974.

Metro Works Commissioner Ross Clark said Wednesday the ski hill is needed because plans for hauling garbage by rail to out-of-town sites are still awaiting provincial approval and cannot start until 1975.

CMA Gives Details Of Abortion Technique

OTTAWA (CP) — The Journal of the Canadian Medical Association (CMA) has published a technical article by Dr. Henry Morgentaler of Montreal describing what he says he has used to produce abortions.

The Journal says in a news release that its publication of the article was "on the basis of its clinical content and the editor's judgment regarding the value of making this information available to the medical profession of Canada."

Dr. Morgenaler, recently acquitted in Montreal on charges of having performed an illegal abortion, was quoted in news reports from Montreal Thursday as saying the Journal's publication of his article indicates the magazine "in a sense approves of my methods."

The Journal says publication "does not in any way reflect the association's policy or position re therapeutic abortion, the legality of conducting abortions in a private clinic, the recent court ruling in favor of Dr. Morgentaler or the Crown's request to appeal that decision to a higher court."

Firm Curtails Works

TORONTO (CP) — Canada Metal Co. Ltd. announced Wednesday immediate curtailment of its operations to permit installation of pollution control fumes and new covers on storage bins blood of some employees.

President Carleton Smith said the company will go ahead immediately with construction of a new baghouse to filter out lead

Hazardous Products Act Rules Change

OTTAWA (CP) — Consumers glass in the home, safety caps on household cleaners and matchbook covers.

The government is also considering a variety of other potential regulations under the act, including testing standards for children's furniture and for flammability.

The new regulations add muscle to the four-year-old act, responsibility of the federal consumer affairs department. Enacted in June, 1969, the act covers more than 40 groups of consumer goods.

Advertising, selling or importing products outlawed or restricted under the act is punishable by a fine of $1,000.

VILLE ONTARIO

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, JANUARY 3, 1974

14-year-old A Winner

The grade nine student was the first monthly winner of the Quinte Help Fund 50-50 draw, receiving $266 from fund president Albert Lentini Dec. 31.

What's he going to do with the sudden windfall? "I'm going to put it in the bank and hold it there for five years," says the youngster. "That way I'll get a lot of interest and have more money at the end of it."

He figures when the five years are up, he'll be able to make a down payment on a car.

When buying the Quinte Help Fund lottery ticket last month, however, Edward didn't put all his eggs in one basket. At the same time, he bought a Belleville Yardmen ticket from Alvin Smith, the proprietor of Smitty's Barber Shop on College St. where he works. Mr. Smith received $100 as the seller of the winning QHF ticket.

The fund was recently re-activated to provide money to cover the operating costs of the Citizens Bureau, a Belleville Consumer education and assistance program.

Tree Pickup Next Monday

Belleville's public works department is expecting to collect an estimated 2,000 to 3,000 Christmas trees.

Next Monday, department employees will travel through the city collecting the discarded trees from the curb side.

While there is no set schedule for next week, the department advises city residents to have the trees they want to be picked up placed on the boulevard before 8 a.m. on January 7.

The discarded trees will be hauled to the Sidney Crossing dump, where they will be burned.

A Shine for '74

Community organization is now skating toward the goal of another Belleville winter carnival. A highlight event of the big program opening at the month's end is selection of a Carnival Queen who receives this trophy, now being shined for presentation by Chamber of Commerce's Carol Crawford.

Slow Days Nag Newsman

By PETER GOODSPEED

It's January again. You probably noticed, even if you didn't have the courage to look at a calendar after that party Monday night.

Your head may have been swimming in a misty cloud of forgetfulness and your body might desperately have been trying to tell you there was something wrong. But one quick glance at your daily newspaper would be sufficient to tell you that new Year's has been here and gone.

On every page of the paper there are enlightening articles telling you that residents of Prince Rupert British Columbia had 236 frost-free days in their part of the world last year, or that, if you want to get mugged in Toronto, your best bet would be to wander along Yonge Street with a bottle of wine on a Saturday night in the summer.

Newspaper men are forced to turn out a certain amount of copy every day and if the news is slow, which invariably means things are rosy and there is nothing happening, then the reporter has to turn his hand to feature writing.

A good feature requires a certain amount of research, however, and the reporter usually has to have somebody to speak to if he is going to produce even the lightest of feature articles.

It's strange, but in a small city such as Belleville, it's difficult to find someone with something interesting to say — let alone the energy to say it — the day after New Year's. Everyone seems to be caught up trying to start back to work after an unexpectedly long and tiring holiday.

They must have the same problems as the larger metropolitan centres in Canada. A glance at the Toronto dailies yesterday revealed a wide variety of strange news stories from across Canada.

Why, there was the hot news story on page two of one of the papers that told you they were giving alligators away in Louisiana. Apparently, the slimy reptiles are no longer the chief cash crop of certain species in that state and conservation authorities are trying to get rid of some of them by transporting them to other areas that have none or their own.

On page five of the same paper, there was also a nice, long article, based on statistics recently released by the Metro Toronto police, that told readers just how easy it was to get mugged on a Saturday night in Toronto.

It was just filled with little tidbits of information such as the fact that most sexual assaults occur between the hours of 9 and 10 p.m. during the months of May through August.

Newspaper columnists must be hurters, just like everybody else they spent the day after New Year's talking and writing about their New Year's resolutions and the most memorable things that happened to them in 1973.

In Belleville we don't have to worry about writing articles of that sort on slow days.

Yesterday, I passed up a special feature on the booming business of re-fuzzing tennis balls — it turned out to be nothing more than a nasty rumour — and decided to fill my copy quota by writing about the type of articles reporters write.

Most Loyalist Grads Working

Seventy-one per cent of Loyalist College's 1973 graduates are known to have found jobs, a college employment report disclosed.

Of the 264 students graduated last spring, about 50 per cent found jobs that are relevant to the subjects they studied at the college.

However, some students have not reported on their employment status and others are not seeking work at this time. Thirty-four have continued with further studies.

Of the 264 graduates of post-secondary day programs at the college, 188 have jobs and 172 of the total have jobs related to their college programs.

Lowest salary reported was that of the two-year early childhood education graduates. Twenty-four were graduated, 16 have jobs in their field and they earn an average of $4,500 a year.

Second from the bottom on the salary scale are graduates of the one-year secretarial program. Of the 28 graduates last year, nine are employed and earn an average annual salary of $4,800. Those who graduated from the two-year course average $5,000.

Top starting salaries went to graduates of the three-year electrical engineering technology course. The five graduates, all employed in their field, averaged $7,900 a year.

Next were the two graduates of the three-year accountancy program, who averaged $7,600.

Third on the salary scale were graduates of the three-year electronic engineering technology course. Both groups earned $7,500 to start.

Generally speaking, those graduating from two and three year technical courses earned $7,000 or more annually to start. Graduates of the one-year registered nursing assistant course are paid an average of $5,100.

Ah! The Outdoors at Last

Colder weather has finally firmed ice on Belleville harbor. Still holidaying Wednesday, young people from neighborhood took advantage of the freezeup to get out and get in some skating in the outdoors.

Bigger Winter Carnival Planned for Month End

The annual conglomerate of colorful happenings — Designed to create a community warmth-of-feeling — is now being assembled.

A meeting of carnival organizers — this year headed by the city's Jaycees — Wednesday night rounded out a broad outline of the program's events — many prompted by the fickle weather in the Bay of Quinte shoreline area which caused some of last year's program to result in woes.

For 1974 the organizers have strengthened emphasis on indoor activities.

These include darts, cards and bowling tournaments, bingo and dances.

Skydiving has been introduced as a highlight feature for outdoor events.

With community participation the key element, the organizers already are preparing to boost public interest in coming weeks as a building to the carnival.

Among these events, announced by carnival chairman George White, are:

Also starting is the search for entrants in the Carnival Queen contest, which will choose a reigning beacon of charm for the four-day program.

City service clubs, community organizations and businesses are joining with the Jaycees to produce the variety of happenings making up the carnival.

It's tailored for all ages. There'll be a hockey tournament for high school students. There'll be a dance, potluck supper and sleigh ride for senior citizens.

Events for sporting adults include cross-country skiing, a torchlight snowmobile safari.

For everyone there'll be a parade, such things as barbecued roast pig and various outdoor family events.

Jan. 31 — Torchlight parade down Front St. to Victoria Park; torchlight snowmobile safari on the bay ice; and events in the park.

Feb. 1 - A Friday-night Carnival Kings for teenagers at the city armory; Lions Club dance at Ben Bleecker Theatre for teenagers.

Feb. 3 - Various sports at Zwick's Park as finale highlights include skydiving, outdoor camping display, sleigh-pulling races.

Programs will officially go on sale Jan. 16. They contain a free ticket for a snowmobile draw, said Mr. White.

Cheese Exports Unlikely to Rise

The 18-fold increase in the amount of Canadian cheese products imported into the United States announced Wednesday by President Nixon is not likely to mean a great deal to Ontario producers.

This is the feeling of Arnold Johnston of the cheese division of the Ontario Milk Marketing Board, who said that any increased exports of Canadian cheese to the U.S.A. would have to be completed before the end of March.

"And this is in our low production period," he said.

Under President Nixon's order, an additional 45 million pounds of cheese will be imported from New Zealand, 12 million from Australia and 20 million from other countries.

At present Canada has an export quota of 1.2 million pounds of aged cheese (over nine months) to the U.S.A., plus another 600,000 under what is termed historical licence, for a total of 1.8 million pounds.

Reasons for the increased imports announced by President Nixon was to prevent further price increases and to augment dwindling supplies.

Any additional supplies of cheese shipped from Ontario to the U.S.A. would likely be aged cheese, Mr. Johnston asserted.

But price could be a determining factor in any increased shipments.

Mr. Johnston said the Wisconsin board price for cheese was about 84 cents a pound, or only about six cents more than received on the Ontario board. Markets in Boston and New York command a higher figure but Mr. Johnston was not certain how much extra.

Canadian cheese entering to U.S.A. is subject to a 15 per cent import duty.

Mississauga Man Injured

A Mississauga man is in satisfactory condition in Belleville General Hospital today following a single-car crash late last night on Highway 401, four miles east of Belleville.

Belleville detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police reported that Douglas Robert Armstrong, 25, of Mississauga, was injured when the car he was driving, a 1971 Dodge Dart, went out of control in the westbound lane and crashed.

No damage estimates are available for the accident which occured at 8:13 p.m. Wednesday.

Another Carnival This Year

The popularity of winter carnivals continues to increase throughout Hastings County.

This year the Highlands of Hastings Tourist Council is contributing $5,000 to help promote the outdoor winter programs in the county.

The new event is at Coe Hill Feb. 16-17, organized by the Coe Hill Sports Club and scheduled to include racing recognized by the Ontario Snowmobile Racing Federation.

The tourist council has donated a cup for the winner while other prizes and trophies are valued at $1,500.

Marriage Still More Popular

January is the time for yearend statistics and one of the more fascinating figures to come to light in the past few days was the ratio of new marriages to divorces in the Belleville area last year.

The Registrar's office at the Hastings County Court House on Pinnacle Street has revealed that they issued 775 petitions for divorce last year, while the city clerk's office at City Hall said that they had issued 492 marriage licences during the same period.

In 1972 432 marriage licences and 201 petitions for divorce were issued.

Early Payment Saves Taxpayers

Should a Sidney taxpayer prepay his 1974 taxes before the end of January, he will receive a seven per cent cut in his total tax bill for the year. If the payment is made between February 1 and June 30, the taxpayer received a 3½ per cent discount.

The prepayment scheme benefits both the individual taxpayer and the municipality, says the township treasurer, Both save money.

"In the winter months when the township needs the money," said Mr. Vandervoort, "We offer what could be called a 'tax break rather than borrowing money from the bank.'

In this way, says the treasurer, the municipality saves on interest charges for money it needs during the normal course of township business.

Citing an example, he said if a taxpayer's total bill for 1974 is $250 dollars and he pays $200 this month, he gets a credit of $14. Therefore, in July, when the tax bills are sent to township residents, the individual will receive a bill for the balance.

Students Conduct Service

Theological Sunday was celebrated at Christ Church Dec. 30 when four theological students from the parish conducted the services.

David Wright, a student in theology at Trinity College in Toronto sang the service. Robert Bailey, Elim College in New York read the first scripture passage and Reginald Gilbert from Dean's read the second scripture passage.

Robert Wright from Huron College in London, Ont. gave the sermon, preaching on the text: "And Joseph was a just man."

Rev. John Utley, acting organist and choir master was in charge of the music and the benediction was given by the rector, Canon R. B. DeBlois Wright.

Driver Misses Curve in Road

A Lanark man was treated for back injuries and released from Belleville General Hospital early this morning following a single car crash on the Wallbridge-Loyalist Road, near the railroad tracks.

Paul M. Campbell, 19, sustained minor back injuries when the car he was driving failed to negotiate a curve in the road and sliced through a fence.

A Slightly Plaintive Tune?

If there's a somewhat plaintive tinge to the tunes one-time dancehand musician Robert Clare strums to himself these evenings, there's good cause. The pensioner lost $140 during Christmas shopping and still hasn't heard anything of its whereabouts.

Pensioner's Pay Packet Someone Else's Present

For Bob Chase it already had lost some of its sheen — and part of its mutual goodwill image — by Christmas Eve.

That's the day the 65 year-old pensioner, who still trucks deliveries around town, discovered most of his two weeks' pay packet had disappeared.

He admits to some chagrin over the disappearance.

"It was Christmas week. You'd think whoever picked that up might have asked himself how the owner could get over Christmas without that much," he says.

He chases up the loss alone in his home at 197 Victoria Ave. He took his wife to hospital Christmas Eve with a heart condition. At the moment, as she recovers, she doesn't read the papers. So he advertised.

"I was figuring I'd wait until she came home, to tell her I had lost that much," he said.

The advertisement hasn't prompted any change of mind on the part of the finder. So far, he has received one call — from a man who found a $20 bill. To all intents the $140 should be written off.

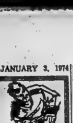
The loss didn't desitute the elderly Belleviliian.

But it means long delays in being able to pay household bills.

Mr. Clare was well known to an earlier Quinte-area generation. He once was bank player in a 10-band that livened the nightly dance scene in the city and district. He still strums to himself of an evening.

He reached retirement age this year and began drawing his $185-a-month old age pension. Since full Canada Pension payments don't mature for another two years, he figured he had to keep working — as a driver of an automotive-supply company where he earns the minimum wage, he says.

"I like the job and I'd sooner keep working. And there's a bit left over to have one isn't paid for yet."



Christmas week he had transferred his pay packet to an envelope and gone shopping and half-a-dozen of the weekend before Christmas.

"I don't think it was stolen from me. I figure I dropped it unnoticed when I was putting it in my pocket somewhere.

Over the years, he recollects, he himself has always handed in lost money he discovered to police. It's not a question of goodwill. Just plain fair play in life, Mr. Clare indicates.

"I always figure the fellow who lost it needs it as much as I did."

A Pair of Nines For West Stars

ST. PAUL, Minn. (CP) — With the World Hockey Association in the midst of negotiations over a number of key decisions affecting the league, it took hockey's two great goal scorers, Gordie Howe and Bobby Hull—to crack the serious mood before the second annual all-star game.

Hull, playing-coach of the West Division team, and Howe, now playing with Houston Aeros, had been the centre of a light-hearted controversy over who should wear sweater No. 9.

The matter was resolved Wednesday night when the two participants in the game decided that each player should wear No. 9, the number they helped make famous during long and brilliant National Hockey League careers.

Hull, playing-coach of Winnipeg Jets, and Howe exchanged No. 9 jerseys at the blue line after the game and Howe, hockey's greatest all-time goal scorer, should wear the sweater. But Howe said Hull "is the guy who made the league go and he deserves it."

"I think I should wear double zero," Howe said.

And so, for perhaps the first time in professional hockey, two players on the same team will each wear the same sweater number tonight when the West Division tries to avenge a 6-5 loss suffered in last year's all-star game against the East Division.

Hull and Howe will have a heavier load to carry tonight than expected. Centre Jim Harrison of Edmonton Oilers has been scratched because of a reported shoulder injury. While team officials stated behind the injury report, rumors say Harrison, the second leading scorer in the this year, was upset by his contract renegotiated.

The loss of Harrison takes the West's leading scorer out of the lineup, but Hull said he will insert Fran Huck of Minnesota Fighting Saints between himself and Howe.

Meanwhile, league trustees said that New Jersey Knights will remain in Cherry Hills, N.J. for the remainder of the season. Edmonton will be the site of next year's all-star game; and CBS will telecast a number of games later this year.

WHA president Dennis Murphy said the jersey situation "has been resolved and we're happy."

"I will not discuss where they will go next year or who the owners are."

The Knights began the season in New York as the Golden Blades, but when the owners failed to meet the first pay day, the league took over control and the club was moved to Jersey in late November.

Murphy would not say who will replace CBS for the rest of this season.

However, Knights' centre Andre Lacroix said the players had been informed that the franchise will be moved to Baltimore.

The president said Edmonton will play host to the 1974-75 all-star game with the annual meeting of directors to be held the following year and Vancouver in 1976-77.

Murphy said CBS will carry four regular-season games as well as a number of playoff contests.

Indianapolis and Phoenix two new teams in the league next season—will draft 10 players this morning but details of the draft may not be made public.

Ben Hatskin, chairman of the board of trustees, knocked down rumors that the new clubs would have to pay the salary of each player for the remainder of this season.

Hatskin, president of Winnipeg Jets, said the Jets definitely would return to Winnipeg next year despite stories to the contrary and added that there would be no merger with the NHL.

He said the WHA hopes that litigation proceedings will be cleared up this year. The NHL has filed a suit against a number of individual players who jumped to the WHA and against the new league itself, while the WHA has countered with a $90 million suit of its own.

Speaking of ownership changes in the league, Murphy said the changes have been for the good of the WHA.

"We have good strong ownership now. The original starters knew that for the first three years they would be in a loss-factor position. However, they have been pleasantly surprised they have not lost as much as expected . . . they did a heck of a lot better than expected."

He said attendance this year has increased about 22 per cent, totalling 1,257,438 after 231 games.

WINS THREE RACES

PHILADELPHIA (CP) — Judy Turcotte of Grand Falls, N.B., won three races, including the feature aboard Patella, in the toughbred racing at Liberty Bell race track Wednesday. Patella, a four-year-old filly, returned $3.40, $2.60 and $2.20.

Montreal Gets the Blues When It Rains — in St. Louis

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

What's wrong with the Canadiens?

That is a cry detractors likely will set up in the wake of recent woeful beatings absorbed by Montreal, Stanley Cup defending champions.

The Canadiens, who a few short days ago were lambasted 8-2 by Toronto Maple Leafs, took an 8-4 thumping Wednesday night from St. Louis Blues, a team that blanked them 5-0 earlier in the season.

But despite the setback, the Canadiens still occupy second place in the league's East Division, six points behind the pacesetting Boston Bruins.

Toronto Maple Leafs defeated Detroit Red Wings 4-3 and moved into a two-way tie with idle New York Rangers for third place, three points behind Montreal.

In other games, Chicago Black Hawks trounced New York Islanders 9-1, Minnesota North Stars beat Pittsburgh Penguins 8-4 and California Golden Seals turned back Los Angeles Kings 5-2.

In tonight's action, the Rangers are at Philadelphia, Vancouver Canucks visit New Islanders, Pittsburgh plays in Buffalo against the Sabres and the Black Hawks travel to Atlanta to meet the Flames.

Welland Juveniles Winning

STOCKHOLM (CP) — Welland Juveniles won their third straight game of a six-game exhibition tour when they defeated Sodertalje of Sweden 3-2 Wednesday.

Earlier, they defeated Swedish clubs 8-2 and 4-2.

For Welland, the win stretched its undefeated streak for the season to 22 games, including 19 Niagara District Ontario Minor Hockey Association games. It was Sodertalje's first loss in two years.

who relieved Larocque after the first period. The Canadiens trailed 4-1 after the first period and 8-2 after two periods. Jacques Lemaire, who scored one Montreal goals was injured in the second period and did not see any action for the remainder of the game.

The victory jumped the Blues into third place in the West, one point ahead of the Flames, who had the night off.

Chicago 5 NY Islanders 1

It wasn't been scoring too much so far this season, but I expect I'll do better from now on—that's how it's been for the last few years," the NHL veteran said after the victory.

"If he can just keep popping the goals for the rest of the season we'll be in fine shape," said Chicago coach Billy Reay.

Swords and Americans Improve Positions

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Cincinnati Swords cooled off Baltimore Clippers 5-2 Tuesday night to move into a tie with second place in the South Division of the American Hockey League.

The Swords have 43 points, four less than Hershey Bears and four ahead of the third-place Clippers who had their second straight loss in their last 14 starts.

In the other game, Rochester Americans and the Bears battled to a 3-3 tie.

Russia Wins Over Czechs

OTTAWA (CP) — A Soviet hockey team defeated Tetra Pardubice of Czechoslovakia 4-3 Wednesday in an international tournament game.

About 9,000 fans watched the Soviet team, the Wings of the Soviet, take an early lead on a goal by Valeri Kuzmin in the first minute. George Novak replied for Czechoslovakia to even the score at 1-1.

The Soviet team took a 2-1 lead on a goal by Victor Shalimov. It was Shalimov's first goal in the series.

The draw enabled the Americans to move within one point of third-place Nova Scotia Voyageurs in the North Division. Rochester Nighthawks lead with 46 points, one more than Providence Reds.

The Swords led 3-1 after the first period and outscored the Clippers 2-1 in the second, while outshooting the visitors 30-22 over-all.

Bob Smulders, who played last year for Peterborough Petes of the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A series following a year-and-a-half car accident, scored his first professional goal at 10:21 of the first period to give Cincinnati a 3-2 lead.

Gary Bredin's goal with less than three minutes remaining gave Rochester the tie before 8,000 fans in Hershey.

The Bears were frustrated by goalie Bob Sneddon, who stopped 41 shots including 17 in the first period. Hershey netminder Bob Johnson made 31 saves.

Murray Kuntz and Ron Dussiaume scored the other Rochester goals, while Bob McManama, Steve Andrascik and Blaine Stoughton connected for Hershey.

Junior B League Has Traffic Jam

The Belleville Bobcats have been close to top spot in the Metro Junior B Hockey league all season. They have been about as close as they can be without being first for a week now.

The Cats find themselves in second place, one point behind Pickering in the standings going into the weekend's games, one with Oshawa at home Friday evening, and an away game in Markham Sunday night.

The Cats have 43 points in 29 games this season, while Pickering has 44 in the same number of games, although Belleville does have one more win.

In the goal scoring department, Belleville has scored 19 more in the same number of games, 189 to 171, although the Cats have also allowed more, 141 to 86.

Close behind the Cats in the battle for top spot is Markham, the team Cats play Sunday night. The Cats shut out the Royals last Sunday night in Belleville, 4-0.

Game time Friday night is 9 p.m.

Bobcat Boosters Are Busy

The Belleville Bobcats' Booster Club held their regular meeting last night at the Memorial Arena, with three topics being discussed.

The first was the Metro Junior All-Star game, to be played January 23 at St. Michael's Arena in Toronto. Tickets will be made available to Belleville fans on January 8, four of the tickets will be $1.50 each.

The Club will also run a bus to the game, the cost of the bus together with the ticket to be $5.

Discussion then turned to the sale of souvenir pucks and buttons by the Club. Although no final decision was reached on the idea, Ray Finkle was appointed to obtain a price on such a project.

A "Meet the Players Night" was also tentatively scheduled to be held about the end of January, with plans to be arranged before the end of next week.

The next regular meeting of the Boosters' Club will be next Wednesday, January 8, 8 p.m. at the Arena.

The Boosters are running a bus to Markham this Sunday night for the Metro Junior B League game with the Royals. The bus leaves the Arena at 9 p.m.

Canadian Forces 707 Will Carry Our Team

OTTAWA (CP) — After some confusion, a decision has been made to send Canada's Commonwealth Games team to New Zealand on an armed forces Boeing 707—at a cost to the taxpayer of about $34,000.

It took intervention from Health Minister Marc Lalonde to clear the flight for the Canadians going to the Games in Christchurch Jan. 11. The team consists of 140 persons, including coaches, managers, chaperones and medical staff.

If the team was to fly commercially it would cost an estimated $75,000 for the one-way trip compared with the $34,000 armed forces bill. The team might save up to $80,000 by travelling in New Zealand and back by armed forces flights.

Arrangements for the flight were made at a time when Canadian air carriers were contemplating a reduction in charter business as a result of the recent bilateral agreement between Canada and the United States.

A spokesman for the Air Transport Association of Canada said Wednesday that if the government wants to help defray the transportation costs of athletes it should do it through paying for air charter, not by using armed forces planes. He said there are aircraft available for charter and airlines would like the business.

The confusion over policy came some time ago when the health department, responsible for national Canadian sport, asked the defence department to fly the athletes to New Zealand.

The defence department agreed, but deadline submitted the request to the air transport commission. The commission rejected it because such a flight would go against established government policy which says commercial transport should be used when available.

Then the health minister told the commission that the cabinet some years ago had made a policy under which the armed forces could be asked to provide transport for national teams, such as Olympic and Commonwealth Games teams.

An official in his office said Wednesday the cabinet decision was bolstered by another about a year ago which said the armed forces should assist in the development of Canadian sport where possible.

A transportation commission spokesman said that on hearing of the cabinet decision, the commission reversed its rejection and allowed the flight.

The defence department said the health department will pay the $34,000 cost of the 20-hour flight. The aircraft will leave Trenton, Ont., July 11 and pick up western team members in Vancouver.

MAY PLAY IN JAPAN

DETROIT (AP) — Frank Howard, who led the American League in home runs in 1968 with 44, says he may be playing baseball in Japan next year. Howard, who holds four major league records, played for Detroit Tigers for the last part of the 1972 season and all of last year. He was released by the Tigers and turned down a bid as a minor league manager with the Detroit organization last year.

Late Goal Gives U.S. A 4-4 Tie

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — Ross Schneider of Minnesota tipped in a goal with 11 seconds left Wednesday night to give the United States a 4-4 tie with Canada in the final game of an invitational hockey tournament.

Canada, represented by Flin Flon, Man., Bombers of the Western Canada Hockey League, and the U.S. tied for first place in the round-robin tournament. The Soviet Union won the title and Czechoslovakia was second.

Schneider's goal came off a faceoff with the U.S. net empty for an extra player. He deflected the shot past goalie Harvey Stewart, who made 61 saves, 26 in the third period.

The teams traded power-play goals in the second period, one by American Steve Sertsch and the other by Canada's Blair Davison. The Canadians went ahead 4-3 late in the second period on a goal by Marty Mathews.

The Bombers, who had 15 shots on goal before 3,000 fans, got their other goals from Duane Bray and Rich Gosselin.

The teams were tied 1-1 after the first period and Canada led 4-3 at the end of the second.

Argos Sign Big Z

TORONTO (CP) — Zenon Andrusyshyn, the leading punter in the Canadian Football League signed a new four-year contract Wednesday with Toronto Argonauts, the club announced.

Andrusyshyn, 26, led the CFL with a 43.6-yard punting average last season while playing on the option clause of his previous contract.

The German-born kicker who grew up in Oakville, Ont., also was third-leading scorer in the Eastern Conference with 19 field goals, 25 converts and 19 singles in his third year with the Argos.

Tondos Down Niagara 6-4

GLENCOE, Ont. (CP) — Buffalo Tondas defeated Niagara Falls Flyers 6-4 in the only Southern Ontario Junior Hockey League game Wednesday.

Pete Aleo scored twice and John Flynn and Buffy Dugas once each for Flyers who are in third place with 45 points, 13 back of league-leading Welland Sabres.

The victory was only the fifth in 25 starts for the Tondas who also have three ties for 13 points.

Michigan Americans play the Spitfires in Windsor tonight with Detroit Red Wings playing host to Guelph Biltmores.

Ontario Athlete of the Year

Hawley a Runaway Winner

TORONTO (CP) — Sandy Hawley, 24-year-old king of the jockeys, was named Ontario's Athlete of the Year for 1973 Wednesday in the most lopsided runaway of the annual award.

Only three dissenting first-place votes by sports writers and broadcasters throughout the province prevent Hawley from an unprecedented sweep of the poll conducted annually by the Ontario Sportswriters and Sportscasters Association.

The award will be presented at the annual Sports Celebrities Dinner in aid of the Ontario Society for Crippled Children at Toronto's Royal York Hotel Feb. 7.

In second place in the voting was Phil Esposito of Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League, the 1972 winner. Figure skater Toller Cranston and defenceman Bobby Orr of the Bruins were deadlocked in third spot. Then came Ottawa football player Gerry Organ. Toronto boxer Clyde Gray, Ottawa quarterback Rick Cassata and Glenda Reber, Ottawa's teen-age track sensation.

Hawley received 428 points to garner the voting. Esposito was almost everyone's second choice as he tallied 144 points. Cranston and Orr received 22 points apiece.

On Dec. 4, he eclipsed Bill Shoemaker's 30-year-old record of 485 victories. On Dec. 15, he passed 500 winners, his personal target for '73.

The Mississauga, Ont. resident is a relative newcomer to the jockey ranks, having completed his fifth full season of racing. He has been Canada's leading rider in each of these years. In 1970, '72 and '73, he also won the North American jockey crowns.

Flyers Supply Sting In Hornets' 2-0 Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It doesn't hurt to have a little help when competing in the Ontario international hockey tournament.

Cambridge Hornets used three players from Barrie Flyers and two of them helped defeat Farjestad of Sweden 2-0, putting the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A team in first place in the six-team round-robin competition.

The Flyers also play in the Senior A league and will meet the Tesla Pardubice club from Czechoslovakia in an exhibition game Friday night in Barrie.

In another tournament game Wednesday, the Soviet Union won its second in three starts—a 4-2 decision over the Czechs before 8,000 spectators in Ottawa.

Cambridge has six points on three wins and a defeat. The Russian club, called the Wings of the Soviet, shares second place with Toronto Marlboros of the OHA Major Junior A series, both with four points. The Czechs have three points, one more than Brantford Foresters of the senior league, and two ahead of Sweden.

Cambridge 2 Sweden 0

Corby Adams, also from Barrie, scored the first goal at 6:33 of the second period and Bill Hewy added an insurance marker at 8:26 of the final period.

Attendance was 1,127 in Cambridge.

Sixties Were Years For College Grads

OTTAWA (CP) — The 1960s were the days of woe and roses for Canadian university graduates.

Employers were crying for qualified people to fill a surplus of jobs. People were obsessed by the imminent consequences of the Great Canadian Brain Drain—the flow of highly-qualified professionals to more lucrative jobs in the United States.

As a response the federal manpower department in 1960 took over Operation Retrieval, a program designed to repatriate Canadians studying at universities abroad by luring them home. The program had been launched in a small way two years earlier by the Association of Universities and Colleges of Canada.

It was scrapped and replaced in the fall of 1972 by what is described as merely a job-information service—Services to Canadians Graduating Abroad.

The government's attempt to plug the brain drain was zealous. Teams of Canadian interviewers were sent every spring to U.S. campuses.

But in the late 1960s and early 1970s university graduates found good jobs harder to come by. Operation Retrieval was bitterly criticized by graduates who returned home to find no jobs waiting.

Bill Poole, head of the manpower department's student services branch says: "People regarded Operation Retrieval as the clarion call from the government to return to the motherland.

"They came back, found the competition was tough and accused the government of deceiving them."

Manpower officials put their heads together, decided Operation Retrieval had outlived its mandate and created Services to Canadians Graduating Abroad in its place.

The new program has been in operation for more than a year now. Results from the 1972 graduating classes are just starting to trickle in, says Mr. Poole, and should be known soon.

The purpose of Services to Students, he says, is no longer to convince Canadians abroad to come home but to let them know there are doors open should they decide to return.

"We merely want to provide these people with the same kind of Canada Manpower services we give to students in Canadian institutions.

". . . Being away from home gives a student a handicap as far as job-hunting is concerned. We're trying to compensate for that."

Mr. Poole estimates there are about 12,000 Canadians studying at post-secondary institutions in the U.S. and 2,000 in Europe. About 2,000 employers participate in the program.

The department advertises at most universities. Interested students can pick up a response card and a list of potential Canadian employers in their student-placement office or the nearest Canadian immigration office. Students can either send the card to the department with a personal resume or mail a resume to one or more of the employers on the list. The smart ones, says Mr. Poole, do both.

In the days of Operation Retrieval all response cards were sorted in Ottawa and sent out to appropriate employers. The service now has been decentralized and manpower counsellors across the country keep foreign-based students' resumes and reply cards in their files for quick reference to a prospective employer.

During 1972 about 5,000 more Canadians emigrated to the U.S. than Americans to Canada. But emigration to the U.S. dropped 22 per cent from 1971 figures, according to the U.S. immigration service—16,320 in 1972 compared to 21,039 the previous year. Nurses, engineers and physicians were the largest occupational groups to emigrate.

During the first six months of 1973, the government says, 37,138 immigrants to Canada were bound for the labor force. Of these about one-quarter were in the fields of medicine, engineering, teaching, administration and the social sciences.

Audit of Nixon's Taxes to Continue

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service says it will conduct a new audit of President Nixon's recent income tax returns to determine whether he owes more taxes.

IRS sources, said the audit will include the president's tax returns for 1970, when he paid $792 in taxes, and 1971 when he paid $878, but may extend to other years as well.

The audit of the president's 1970 and 1971 returns will be the second by the IRS, a spokesman said, but he declined to comment on whether any new information has become available to cause the new investigation. He said nothing was found amiss in that audit.

He said there is nothing to prevent the IRS from checking presidential deductions it previously cleared.

There has been considerable controversy over deductions from the president's tax returns for 1970, 1971 and 1972 for the value of his vice-presidential papers which he donated to the National Archives in 1969. The papers were valued by the president at about $576,000.

The key question concerns whether the donations were lawfully made in advance of a mid-1969 cut-off, used by Congress to disallow tax advantages for donations for such items.

Dental Lab Owners Can Be Therapists Too

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government has revoked a regulation that had an effect on the livelihood of dental technicians who own or have a part interest in laboratory facilities.

The section of the regulation governing the Denture Therapists Act denied to technicians who had a proprietary interest in a commercial dental laboratory the right to practice as dental therapists.

By revoking the regulation—a decision announced Wednesday in the Ontario Gazette—the government frees the technicians to operate also as therapists, if they can qualify, without surrending their interests in a laboratory facility.

The two classifications of technician and therapist were created in controversial legislation last year that placed dentists—those who make false teeth—under the supervision of dentists. Denturists wanted to deal directly with the public and many have continued to fight the bill by refusing to sit for government examinations qualifying them as dental technologists.

Technicians work in laboratories making false teeth prescribed by dentists. Therapists operate from a dental clinic, or dentist's office, working directly on a patient's mouth, measuring and fitting dentures.

Previously, if a technician wanted to practice as a therapist, he had to give up his financial interest in the laboratory facility.

About 85 per cent of the 87 therapists who have qualified so far under the new legislation are also registered dental technicians with an interest in laboratories. Many of the laboratories in the province are small, employing one or two technicians.

About 313 denturists operated in the province before the new legislation. Health ministry officials anticipate about 190 denturists will sit for the next set of qualifying examinations later this month.

"A ministry spokesman said technicians and therapists alike had feared a loss of income because they had no access to the field of dental therapy.

"As they had no access to this area, they lost contact and hence business," the spokesman said.

He said there has been a growing interest among technicians "to stay in the overall picture" of the denturist field.

The spokesman said there was some suggestion when the regulation was imposed that a conflict of interest was involved where a technician performed work in facilities he owned.

"We have come to believe that there is nothing in this."

Teachers Will Fight New Bill

TORONTO (CP) — Schools reopen in Ontario today following the Christmas break with memories of the December crisis over emergency Bill 274 still vivid among the province's 105,000 teachers.

Now their leaders are girding for battle with the Conservative government over Bill 275 which would prevent them from imposing sanctions during contracts.

It was held up by the government at the same time as Bill 274 which was intended to give vent resignations from taking effect today by teachers in 27 school districts where contracts were in dispute.

The emergency bill provoked bitter debate in the Legislature, a one-day classroom boycott Dec. 18 by most teachers and a mass demonstration by about 20,000 in front of the legislature building the same day.

In return, the teachers' leaders agreed to recommend that members in the 18 disputed districts extend the effective date of their resignations to Jan. 31. Meanwhile, efforts would be made, either by negotiation or mediation, to reach agreements.

The Jan. 31 date was accepted in 15 districts but high school teachers in Essex, near Windsor, refused. They since have worked out a tentative contract.

Mr. Hutton said tentative agreement also had been reached in Ontario County and and mediation was scheduled between high school teachers and boards in Perth, Prescott-Russell and York districts.

Separate school teachers were involved in all the other contract disputes.

Diptheria Breaks Out In Peel

MISSISSAUGA, Ont. (CP) — Two cases of diphtheria, the first in many years, were reported in Peel County last month, the county medical officer of health says.

Dr. R. D. Appleford said Wednesday both victims were children—a two-year-old girl and a five-year-old boy who had not been immunized against the disease.

Medical officials have been seeking all persons who came in contact with the unidentified children and two other possible cases were found. They also were isolated.

Diphtheria is a highly infectious disease which affects the throat and may damage the heart and nervous system.

Dr. Appleford said there are no previous cases of diphtheria in health unit records, which go back at least 10 years.

Dr. Appleford said the two children, both recent Portuguese immigrants, are recovering in hospital.

Children are offered immunization, if they lack it, at school entry, but may be missed if they enter school at a higher grade.

Regular immunization clinics were discontinued in Peel County because they were so poorly attended, he said.

Gift to Chinese Doctors Opposed

OTTAWA (CP) — A proposal to present visiting Chinese doctors with three $1,800 Canadian-developed blood-vessel staplers apparently has been rejected by the health department.

The four Chinese doctors, who started a 15-day visit Wednesday, are regarded as world leaders in limb reimplantation, a procedure in which the staplers eventually are used.

Dr. Walter G. Waddell of Ottawa, an organizer for the visit, said in an interview Wednesday the health department appears to have rejected the idea, partly because the gifts would establish a precedent for giving lavish mementos to foreign visitors.

The device threads the blood vessels through a bushing and then clamps them together with staples smaller than the head of a pin instead of the standard needle-and-thread procedure.

In a two-day visit to Ottawa on Monday and Wednesday, the Chinese doctors are to see the suturing instrument demonstrated on pig's feet and slides of the instrument in use during operations.

Dr. I. J. Vogelzanger, surgical research chief at Civic Hospital who developed the stapler during 14 years of research with National Research Council engineers, said in was sorry the visitors would see only a limited use of the instrument.

He said the instrument could join blood vessels as small as one millimeter across, and had reduced the time of some kidney, heart and bowel operations by more than half.

Solzhenitsyn Target Of Bitter Criticism

MOSCOW (Reuter) — Writer Alexander Solzhenitsyn was under the threat of possible prosecution today following a bitter attack on him by the Soviet writers' agency Tass over the publication in the West of his latest book.

Tass accused him of sending the book—a history of Soviet prison camps—for publication abroad as "a New Year present to the enemies of his motherland" and said that the Nobel prize-winning author hates the Soviet Union and the Soviet people.

The Tass commentator said that in the book the writer went further than ever before in slandering the Soviet system by praising the pre-revolutionary rule of the Russian czars

No Sign at Start of Year Energy Crisis in Offing

It started the year as a slumbering giant, almost unnoticed in the clamor over inflation, unemployment and the fate of the minority Liberal government. As the year ended it seemed likely to remain a dominant problem through 1974 and beyond.

Parliament opened Jan. 4 with a throne speech that made only a bare reference to the subject, a notation that Western Canada wanted industrial development to reinforce its "great resource and energy base."

Oil, the catalyst of the debate to come, caused no real worry, though the first ominous rumblings of "the energy crisis" were building in the United States.

Energy Minister Donald Macdonald, pressed now and then for reassurance, conceded that supplies might be tighter than normal in some parts of Eastern Canada, but no problems were anticipated.

Gradually, however, concern began to mount. World demand was outstripping supply at a rate that alarmed other industrialised countries.

MUST IMPORT

No matter how large Canadian supplies might be, it was a fact of life that a huge section of the country depended on imported oil.

Under a national policy adopted by the Diefenbaker government in 1961, the country was split into two petroleum markets.

All regions west of the Ottawa Valley were set aside as an exclusive market for Western Canadian oil.

Imported oil was restricted to markets in and east of the valley—southeastern Ontario, Quebec and the Atlantic provinces.

There was no quick practical way to move large volumes of western crude oil into Eastern Canada.

The Interprovincial Pipeline, which fed industrial Ontario, and pumped huge volumes of Canadian crude into U.S. markets, stopped at Toronto. Its main eastern terminus lay even farther west at Sarnia, Ont.

Extending it to Montreal would take at least two years and cost $200 million or more.

Exports to the U.S. became a political sore point as the danger to Eastern Canada became clear.

American customers, suddenly thirsty for all oil available, were forking out million barrels a day by the end of 1972, more than 1.2 million by the beginning of February.

The outflow, more than half of all Canadian production, alarmed critics who wanted reserves held in store for future generations.

In mid-February, the government stepped in, ordering the National Energy Board to limit exports to supplies considered "surplus to Canadian needs."

Iran sold oil for as little as $1.79 a barrel in 1970. Its price was $2.75 in April this year and $5.09 by mid-October.

Venezuela, grouped with Mideast producers in the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, raised prices from $3.94 a barrel in April to more than $7.50 in November.

The increases affected every refinery east of the Ottawa Valley and led invariably to higher gasoline and heating oil prices.

Domestic crude followed the fast-rising world price trend and the combined situation added new burdens to a country already beset by soaring food, clothing and housing costs.

On Sept. 4, with Commons debate at a shrill pitch, Prime Minister Trudeau made three major announcements.

The Interprovincial Pipeline would be extended to Montreal as quickly as possible, petroleum prices would be frozen voluntarily for five months and a "control mechanism" would be devised to keep domestic oil from jumping upward with each new surge in world and U.S. prices.

The mechanism, announced shortly afterward, was an export tax on crude oil. Set initially at 40 cents a barrel, it went into effect Oct. 5 over a storm of protest from the Alberta government, industry spokesmen and American customers.

In effect, the tax froze oil industry profits while forcing the difference between the two prices was skimmed off and collected by the federal government.

Controversy over the tax still was stirring when the most significant development of all occurred in the Middle East.

To saving world opinion to the Arab side and pressure Israel to withdraw from occupied Arab lands, the Mideast oil-producing states banded together and announced production cuts in the face of already-short world supplies. They hit the U.S. with a complete boycott.

Making matters worse, Arab producers raised prices at an unprecedented rate. The cost of Mideast oil jumped 70 per cent in one mid-October boost alone.

Venezuela, Canada's biggest oil supplier, followed quickly with a 35-per-cent increase in the base price it uses to calculate oil taxes.

The developments doomed the price freeze in Eastern Canada and made winter shortages an almost-certain prospect for some Canadians.

Scrambling to cope, the government let Eastern refiners raise prices—two cents a gallon Nov. 1 and four to five cents Dec. 1—and began devising winter contingency plans.

It also raised the export tax to $2.50 a barrel to match the widening spread between world prices and domestic oil.

Talks were resumed two weeks later but the relationship remained cool at year's end.

Meanwhile, Mr. Macdonald estimated that Arab production cuts had cost Canada up to 200,000 barrels a day short of normal imports of 900,000 barrels.

To reduce energy demands he asked provincial governments, commercial users and private citizens to turn down thermostats, dim lights and reduce highway driving speeds.

He also worked with oil companies to transport all oil possible from Western Canada to eastern markets.

Tankers were pumped to Vancouver through the Trans-Mountain Pipeline and shipped east through the Panama Canal. More was moved on the St. Lawrence Seaway to Montreal from the Sarnia terminus of the Interprovincial Pipeline.

The government also empowered a federal agency, Canadian Commercial Corp., to buy any available on tight world markets.

Consequently, it came to parliament with emergency legislation to set up a special allocation board and start rationing supplies at the wholesale level in January.

If necessary, the government proposed, the board should have power to impose individual rationing controlled by coupons, but Ottawa hoped this would only be taken as a last resort and would not apply to areas of the country unaffected by shortages, the government said.

The New Democratic Party demanded a series of changes to weaken the power of multinational oil companies and increase public control over energy resources.

The immediate concern of NDP Leader David Lewis was the government's plan to remove the price freeze Jan. 31 and let prices west of the Ottawa Valley rise to levels near those in Eastern Canada.

Abolition of the freeze fitted in with government plans to establish a uniform pricing system based on the cost of imported crude oil at Montreal.

Mr. Lewis said the move would mean unnecessary price increases for Western Canadians and the unjustified windfall profits to oil companies.

He threatened to bring the government down if the freeze was lifted and nothing was done about a series of NDP demands.

The government, with a Conservative, non-confidence motion scheduled Dec. 10 in the Commons, hastily revised its policies to meet NDP objections.

The freeze was extended to the end of the heating season; the export tax, also scheduled to expire in January, was renewed indefinitely; plans were made to establish a government-run national oil corporation, and curbs were promised to prevent windfall profits.

Your Horoscope

Friday, Jan. 4

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Aries (March 21-April 19) Today you will be realizing regarding your material affairs. This will be a good day where business matters are concerned.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Run your own show. You will instinctively know what course of action best suits your purpose and aims. Play it solo.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) Be patient today. You'll gain more by letting things come to you rather than impulsively advancing toward something you're not sure of.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) It's the practical steps you take that will insure the future of something you're hoping for. Lay your foundations.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) You're still in a good achievement cycle. Give priorities to your most important goals, then proceed as if they're in your pocket.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) A situation will arise today. It may cause you some small concern. If you've learned from past experience, you'll master it handily.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Conditions are stabilizing in an area of interest and importance to you as well as someone else. Both parties will profit later.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Today you will get co-operation from one who isn't always willing to work with you. Take advantage of it while it lasts.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) A good day to get around to tasks you haven't had time for lately. Fewer interruptions will give you the peace you need to be productive.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Others will sense your presence carries with it a certain authority today. They'll respond accordingly. You can have your way without being heavy.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Basically you'll feel more secure and less apt to be rattled by outside influences. Stand your ground on important issues.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) You will communicate with others extremely well today. Let them know of your ideas and plans if you require their co-op

Domestic Oil Price to Rise . .

News Briefs

Barbados Strike Ends

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados (CP) — Prime Minister Errol Barrow announced Thursday night on national television that a strike by about 4,000 hotel workers has been settled. No details of the settlement were available immediately.

Administrator Guarded

BELFAST (AP) — Security men tightened their guard today around Francis Pym, Britain's administrator in Northern Ireland, after the Irish Republican Army threatened to kill him. The IRA's Londonderry brigade said it sentenced Pym to death because he ordered the internment without trial of an IRA man in Londonderry Christmas Day.

Oil Shipment Coming

COME-BY-CHANCE, Nfld. (CP) — Production at the Come-By-Chance oil refinery has reached 84,000 barrels a day, Homer White, president of the Newfoundland Refinery Co., said Thursday. He said the first shipment of refined products to Quebec City will be dispatched soon. An oil tanker has been standing by to take on the first shipment.

Solzhenitsyn Attacked

MOSCOW (Reuter) — The Soviet authorities today appeared to be stepping up a campaign against writer Alexander Solzhenitsyn over the publication in the West of his latest work but there was no sign of any formal move against him. Twice within 24 hours — Wednesday and again Thursday night — the official Tass news agency hailed bitterly-worded commentaries describing the Nobel prize-winning author as "a renegade."

Second Girl Questioned

LONDON (AP) — Security police seized a second young United States girl today for questioning about drug smuggling and international terrorism. Scotland Yard said she is a "known associate" of Allison Thompson, an 18-year-old waitress from Santa Barbara, Calif., who has been held six days with two male friends.

Higher prices are needed to ensure development of new oil sources and to pay for the high-cost secondary recovery methods needed to pump more oil from conventional wells, he said. But he gave no indication of specific steps planned to change the domestic pricing system.

Domestic oil is frozen by agreement with oil-producing companies at about $4 a barrel, less than one-third the going rate on international markets, and the government is committed to maintaining the freeze until the end of the winter heating season.

The freeze took effect in September.

At the same time, the government imposed a crude oil export tax to ensure that Canadian oil was sold on the export market at going international rates.

The tax, effective since Oct. 1, was pegged initially at 40 cents a barrel, raised Dec. 1 to $1.90, to $2.20 Jan. 1 and is scheduled to hit $6.40 a barrel Feb. 1.

Mr. Turner spoke as the House began debate on a bill to formally approve the levy, a source of controversy since its introduction.

The bill contains a tax ceiling of $4 a barrel—set before prices recently were doubled by most world producers—and Mr. Turner said Thursday he will introduce an amendment to raise the ceiling to $10.

This will not mean a tax rate of $10 a barrel but the ceiling will serve as an outside limit giving the government flexibility to adjust the tax in line with changing international prices, he said.

The bill would give the government power to adjust the tax monthly on advice from the national energy board.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said he is ready to approve the export tax as it will apply until Feb. 1. But he objected to government plans beyond this point.

It appears certain the money generated by the tax will be an integral part of the government's long-range domestic oil pricing plans, Mr. Stanfield. It should therefore announce its plans in detail before seeking Commons approval of a permanent tax.

Based on current export levels of just under one million barrels a day, the tax will generate about $6 million daily when the $6.40 rate goes into effect.

Mr. Turner intimated that part of this money will be used to subsidize consumers in and east of the Ottawa River valley who rely almost exclusively on high-cost imported oil. All areas west of the valley are supplied by domestic crude, largely from Alberta.

By Feb. 1, fast-rising international prices are expected to push gasoline and heating oil prices for eastern residents about 20 cents a litre or higher than prices in the rest of the country.

Mr. Turner, who called the differential intolerable, said the government must act to narrow the gap.

Energy Minister Donald Macdonald has said a subsidy program probably will be implemented to cover about 12 cents of the price spread. But it will not start until the levy on oil has been aired at a federal-provincial premiers' conference scheduled Jan. 23-25.

Mr. Turner warned producing provinces and oil companies Thursday that the government windfall benefits from rising oil prices.

Both Mr. Stanfield and T. C. Douglas (NDP—Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands) accused the minister of lack of planning long-range pricing plans.

Mr. Stanfield asked the government to split the export tax bill in two, moving ahead now with the section covering the period up to Jan. 31 and leaving the rest until after the federal-provincial conference.

"We want to see what we are being asked to buy before we adopt something of an ongoing, permanent nature. The export charge . . . is related to domestic pricing policy—policy that the government has not disclosed."

After the Flames . . .

Scaffolding has recently been erected at the site of a row of buildings on Front Street which were gutted in a spectacular fire last November 28. Workmen are tearing down what little remains of the building and a construction firm will start rebuilding on the site after the burned-out rubble has been cleared away. A row of apartment buildings, a pizzeria and a Brink's office were destroyed in the fire.

In Canada, Profit 8.7 Pct.

NEW YORK (CP) - In 1972, United States corporations found the Middle East the best place on earth to make money, mainly in oil.

Business International, a New York - based research firm, says the return on direct U.S. investment in the Middle East in 1972 was 119.4 per cent.

But Business International warns that the picture in the Middle East probably has changed drastically because of the Arab oil production cuts and soaring prices as the world's richest.

In Canada, the 1972 return on U.S. investment was almost nine per cent. Canada ranks second only to the European Common Market in total U.S. direct investment.

The rate of return is determined by dividing net earnings into the book value of companies.

Business International says U.S. direct foreign investments totalled $93 031 billion in 1972, an increase of almost $6 billion compared with 1971.

The rate of return climbed to 13.2 per cent overall in 1972 compared with 11.3 per cent the previous year.

U.S. investments in Canada, up $679 million in a total of $23.784 billion, produced returns of 8.7 per cent compared with 8.1 per cent in 1971.

By regions, by far the best profit was made in the Middle East, where investments of $2.053 billion returned 119.4 per cent, an increase of more than six per cent over 1971.

For Asia as a whole, there was a 43.5-per-cent return on investments of $7.677 billion, compared with 1971 figures of 39 per cent and $6.516 billion.

Commenting on the "phenomenal" Middle East profitability, Business International warns that returns in 1973 "will probably show a drastic turnabout."

The Persian Gulf states have raised the price of a barrel of oil by 470 per cent since the end of 1972.

The posted price has described as "legal fiction"—a way used by oil-producing countries to calculate tax and royalty payments due from Western-owned oil companies that actually produce and market the oil. The actual price usually is about 40 to 60 per cent lower.

The Persian Gulf states, which together provide 42 per cent of the Western world's oil, are reported working on formulas that would limit company profits to a 10-to 15-per-cent range.

Business International also notes that in 1972 the European Economic Community for the first time became an important area as Canada as an investment target. U.S. investments in the Common Market showed a gain of 11.6 per cent.

Crisis Worse In U.K.

LONDON (CP)—Things are going from bad to worse in Britain's economic and industrial crisis.

The government says 729,000 persons are unemployed as a direct result of a three-day work week imposed to save energy.

Shortages of bread and cigarettes are also feared due to the crisis while women may have to pass up visits to the hairdresser.

Hope for an end to the crisis diminished Thursday when the government pay board turned down a demand by miners to be paid for time they spend taking a bath after working in the pits.

This demand was seen by many as the last hope of ending a crippling work slowdown by miners. The slowdown has resulted in a shortage of electricity and along with the oil shortage has Britain in the grips of what politicians say is the worst crisis since the Second World War.

British miners announced today they will cut bread production by five per cent to help save electricity. It will mean a reduction of nearly 2,000 tons of bread a week and bakers fear it may lead to shortages almost immediately.

The shortages of cigarettes is due to workers in that industry being on a shortened work week.

Hairdressers say they face ruin because power cuts mean they cannot run their businesses. Businesses are restricted to three days of electricity a week.

Ontario Lignite Reported Usable

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government has been told by independent consultants that development of Northern Ontario's vast lignite deposits is not only economically feasible but that it might make a "significant contribution" to the province's power supplies.

It was learned today that the findings are contained in a confidential report presented to the government last summer. Sources said the report now may spur government action on a project because of the energy shortages being experienced by western countries.

Th report is the result of a year-long survey by a group of consultants to determine the economic feasibility of developing the coal-like lignite reserves at Onakawana, 60 miles south of James Bay.

Three Denturist Offices Raided

TORONTO (CP) — Metropolitan Toronto police raided three denture clinics Thursday, confiscating records, wax models, moulds, business records and some actual plates.

When police left, Mr. Stokes, 27, who has operated the clinic for nearly two years, had to call a woman patient and explain that her set of false teeth which were in for repairs had been seized.

Denturist Society leaders said Thursday they expect police to visit 10 or 12 clinics in the crackdown on members of the society who have refused to comply with the province's Denture Therapists Act.

Councillors Ready to List Land Holdings

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — A poll of councillors in three new regional governments that took office Tuesday has indicated a majority of council members are willing to disclose their land holdings, financial interests and income sources.

Preel regional council had the highest percentage as 21 of the 22 council members agreed to some financial disclosure. Nineteen said they would agree to disclosure without qualification.

The percentages were slightly lower in Durham and Halton Regional councils. In Durham, 13 of the 30 council members agreed in disclosing their interests and holdings while in Halton 19 of 25 councillors agreed to the proposal.

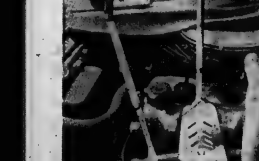
If Gasoline Rationing Comes in U.S. Tourists Will Have to Buy Coupons

WASHINGTON (CP) — In the event of gasoline rationing in the United States—and officials continue to stress that such a move would be "a last resort"—Canadian tourists would be forced into the free market for ration coupons.

And that, officials say, could be expensive.

Anyone without a valid United States' driver's licence would have to purchase his gas tickets on the white market," a spokesman for the Federal Energy Office said Thursday. And he would have to pay whatever the asking price was, which would be whatever the traffic would bear."

Under the stand-by system being set up in case rationing becomes necessary, everyone over the age of 18 who holds a valid U.S. driver's licence would get a monthly allotment of tickets.



How many tickets there will be in each book and how many gallons each will be good for has not, so far, been determined. It may vary across the country but, the FEO says, "the average distribution will amount to 32.35 gallons per month per person."

"A tourist coming into the U.S. would be wise to check with the border people for the nearest free market where coupons are sold," the spokesman said. "These could be banks, post offices, possibly corner grocery stores. Any Tom, Dick or Harry can set up to sell coupons. I could give you my extra tickets if I had any, or I could sell them to you for 25 cents a piece or for $10 apiece—whatever I could get."

Consumers buying less gasoline than their rationed amount will receive income from the sale of unused coupons, while consumers buying more than their rationed amount will pay an extra amount, the pump price plus the cost of the additional coupons bought on the pical market.

OUT WITH THE OLD IN WITH THE NEW !

This frequently heard expression can be applied to more than the ringing out of 1973 and the welcoming in of 1974. It can in fact be a brief description of many medicines in stock in our pharmacy. For, most of the new drugs your physician is prescribing today were not around a few years ago. And many drugs so popular — just a short while ago are not even being made anymore.

But — we do feel compelled to add that not all the "old" are on the way out. We still get calls to compound many medicines and drugs that have become old standbys.

It's a Long Time Between Holidays

By JIM SMELLIE
Staff Reporter

Well, the Christmas and New Year's holidays are officially over for another year. That dry Christmas tree has been thrown out, that gift of a sweater two sizes too big has been returned and, yes, even your hangover is pretty well gone now.

But unless the government decides to call it another holiday in mid-February as it would like to do, to honor the flag, John A. Macdonald or even the grounding, it's a long, long stretch to our next holiday: Good Friday on April 12.

The period between now and then will not only be long but will be the coldest of the year. Especially with the government telling us to turn down our thermostats to save fuel in this time of energy shortages.

So, with that in mind here are a few suggestions to chase way those post-holiday blues at least until the first robin warms up a bit.

For one thing, the next few weeks are supposed to be the best time for viewing what has been called everything from spectacular to disquieting, Kohoutek's Comet.

Scientists tell us the best time for seeing the comet is about an hour after sunset. It should get brighter and more visible as it moves away from the sun and nearer to the earth.

But even if you don't see it that doesn't mean it's changed it's mind in mid-course. The visible speck is merely obscured the sight of it.

For those interested in more down to earth pursuits, there is this year's Winter Carnival, put on by Quinte's Jaycees.

The carnival kicks off January 26 with opening ceremonies at Centennial Secondary School. The crowning of the carnival queen will take place then.

Between that time and February 3 when the carnival winds up, to take place will be such activities as snowmobile rides, a torchlight parade, a dance contest and all kinds of dances and sports, even skydiving.

Before that time, on next Tuesday, to be exact, at 8 and 8 at 8 p.m. at Corby Public Library, a four-part series on drugs and addiction will start.

The series will consist of films followed by a discussion led by persons qualified in a certain area to deal intelligently and authoritatively with the problem.

William Glasser's of the Addiction Research Foundation will be the first lecturer. The first film to be shown that night will be I'm Dependent, You're Addicted.

The series takes place the nights of Jan. 8, 15, 15 and 22 all at the library and all starting at 8 p.m.

And Friday night dancers started last week at the Blue Suede Shoe at Bobe's Country Gardens in Rossmore will continue.

There is no admission fee and the quality of entertainment is reasonably good. Tonight, Chester, of You've Made My Life a Little Brighter, will appear.

So, there are just a few suggestions to pass away those long cold winter days that we are in the middle of right now. We're still going to have to put up with cars that get stuck in the snow, getting up on cold mornings and ugly streets. But just think, Easter Sunday is just 99 days away and counting.

And in between that time, there's still Valentine's Day, Ground Hog Day, St. Patrick's Day and April Fool's Day.

Man Struck By Pellet

PICTON— A Picton man escaped serious injury yesterday afternoon when hit by the discharge from a pellet gun as he entered a Main Street store.

James Hicks, was wounded on the side of the head as he entered the Pro Hardward Centre at about 4 p.m. Picton Police Chief George Pitt said the shot apparently was fired from a point west of the store. He reported that the pellet gun has been seized and the incident remains under investigation.

Amway's Jim Galbraith at Work

Getting Started Is Toughest Part

For any married couple who have wanted to build up their own business but didn't know how to go about it, Amway, a recent arrival in Belleville, may be the answer.

But to clear things right away, Amway, although it involves recruiting volunteers as distributors, in no way, shape or form is associated with pyramid selling.

"Our business is based on free enterprise and is not a get rich quick scheme. It is based on honesty and integrity and we work under a code of ethics," said Jim Galbraith, who together with his wife, Hilda, is the Amway representative in this area.

But although the business is doing fine throughout the U.S. and most of Canada, there are difficulties making inroads in the area between Toronto and Ottawa, said Mr. Galbraith.

"Except for Belleville, nobody getting started in this area is like pulling teeth. But we use no pressure tactics or hustling as they do in pyramid selling," said Mr. Galbraith.

Amway products are now available in stores and range from such household items as concentrated laundry detergent to cologne to pantyhose.

The company has been in Belleville for about six months but because of the stigma of pyramid selling is finding it difficult getting established here.

For this reason, Jim and Hilda Galbraith and their daughter, moved from their home in New Jersey to Belleville six months ago.

The method of selling involves investing $33 for which the prospective distributor gets a sample kit of five Amway products as well as a kit containing literature on selling tactics and how to sponsor others who may wish to join Amway.

The money is refundable if the distributorship changes his mind and money will be refunded for any products a person may have on hand.

The idea of Amway is to help a husband and wife to supplement their income and work together to start up their own business.

A distributor strives to sell about $200 worth of Amway products a month and if he works himself up to move about $7,500 worth of products a month can become a direct distributor with long range security features.

Mr. Galbraith is enthusiastic when talking about Amway. It is evident he believes firmly in his product, considering the fact he left a successful job as an electronics television commercials five years ago to join Amway.

"We're in the nitty-gritteness of the job are the security features that make for a successful venture as selling Mr. Galbraith hopes eventually to get into dealer full-time Christian work.

"Put on, its business alley to make money. We're trying to help the average person by offering him a chance to supplement his income and perhaps build up his own business at the same time.

"This is important considering the situation of the economy, what with the cost of living increasint all the time," Mr. Galbraith added.

Persons in dead-end jobs or low-paying jobs may find working for Amway a useful supplement to that job.

All selling is done at the retail level rather than the wholesale level, said Mr. Galbraith. He decries the poor publicity brought about by pyramid selling which people wrongly associate with his company.

"There is a lot of hard work, effort and skill involved. The basis of the business is sell, sponsor people and train people. We don't want to distillusion people but there is a lot of time and sacrifice involved," he said.

On December 15 a free enterprise party was held at the Four Seasons which was attended by Mayor Robin Jeffrey, Chamber of Commerce manager, Don Sutton and Hastings MP, Jack Ellis.

In the Belleville and Trenton area there are now 30 distributors retailing Amway products to their friends and neighbors. There is no door-to-door selling of the products involved.

Since Amway was founded in 1959 with the first sale in Ada, Michigan, the business has realized earnings of about a quarter of a billion dollars.

In Canada, the head office is in London, Ont.

"We're not a get rich quick scheme and we're not involved with pyramid selling," Mr. Galbraith emphasizes. "All we're trying to do is offer people a chance to supplement their income.

We don't ask them to quit their old job unless they are making more with Amway than with that old job. We are offering people a chance to build something and make money at the same time," said Mr. Galbraith.

Seminars Teach Self Betterment

A person's goal can be reached if he sets it high enough. This is the message, XOCES Inc. attempts to convey to those who attend its personal development seminars.

The seminars start up again on January 28 at the Four Seasons Hotel in Toronto and XOCES, Bob Proctor, conducts the weekly 3½ hour sessions every Monday night for an eight-week period.

The seminars point out that a person should not be limited in his attempt to reach his goal, be it financial, personal or self-development.

John Kanary, vice-president of marketing for Eastern Canada of the Earl Nightingale Communications of Canada, says because a person possesses free will he is therefore capable of achieving his goals.

"We are victims of habit. A person's mind is divided into the conscious and sub-conscious and if he thinks positively he can do something, then he can do it," said Mr. Kanary.

"Too many people are content to sit back and say they can't do something because of thinking positively that they can do it," he said.

The name XOCES stems from three virgins. It represents the unknown quantity, O is for infinity and CES is Greek for the phrase, I think, therefore I am, said Mr. Kanary.

The basic teaching of XOCES can be summed up this way. We are what we become," said Mr. Kanary. The XOCES office in Belleville represents Eastern Canada for the company.

Credit Union Mergers Could Solve Problems

TRENTON — Canada's credit unions are growing up, providing an alternative to the 24 per cent interest rates of finance companies and 12 per cent rates of chartered banks.

The credit unions, accustomed to handling their assets from members' contributions, lending money at 12 per cent with the bonus of rebated interest charges following good years, are leaving their infancy with scattered small unions merging, combining strengths. Some speculate the nation's 4,500 credit unions which originated in Germany may become Canada's ninth national bank.

Eight unions have divided local borrowers and Trenton's "Mr. Credit Union," Cy Smith says amalgamation is the next step in growth and service.

Five thousand people, or slightly greater than one third of the people who live or work in Trenton belong to the unions, contributing to and borrowing from their organizations.

Mr. Smith, manager of the federal credit union serving Department of National Defence personnel, won the nickname by providing information to new unions and by having the reputation as a keen observer of the union money market.

In the DND union alone there are in excess of 1,000 members with assets topping $3 million.

"To provide ultimate service to the customer the union must have assets of "loanable" cash on hand the best way for the Trenton unions to do this is by uniting," says Mr. Smith.

At the moment loose and tight "bond" unions have split the market with none of the unions capable, in terms of assets, to loan more than about $2,00 to a single borrower. (Tight bond refers to a union specifically linked to one company or controlled group where maximum assurance of payments can be maintained. Loose bond refers to an open union such as a community union.)

By provincial statute, loose bonded unions cannot contribute greater percentages of annual assets to a guarantee fund, insuring members against bankruptcy.

Despite the higher contribution to the fund, Mr. Smith said it would be to the mutual advantage of the unions to merge. "It is feasible ... it would make sense," he said. This would provide greater assets or capital, allowing larger dividend loans.

There has already been much behind-closed-doors talk of mergers - the result of one approach was the federal union deciding to remain alone, believing it has sufficient strength.

Unions in the beginning wore tight bonded, drawing members of one church parish or one company into the membership. Everyone knew everyone else, loans weren't large as a rule and the system worked well.

"Our society is changing and a $2,000 loan isn't considered large anymore especially for the prospective new car buyer," said Mr. Smith.

The union will be needing larger assets to accommodate borrowers and the best route is by amalgamations, he said.

Partly because the unions are not quite as restrictive in their lending practices and primarily because small unions have small assets, many of the local unions had tight money this past year.

He says the New Year will bring two explanations, a trend already established among the more than 1,400 unions in the province. Some 50 unions disappeared this past year, emerging as components of stronger units.

He also says the vision of the union becoming a national bank may become a reality la '74.

Credit Unions Grow

Bruce Glendinning, president of the Trenton Community Credit Union has forecast amalgamation of eight similar unions in the Trenton area this year. Eight organizations have divided Trenton's lending business in the past, but can grow no more without merging. Their combined strength will give the financial institutions greater lending power.

Borrowing Heavy in '73

TRENTON — Unusually heavy borrowing made last year a bad year for credit unions across Ontario. Local unions are hoping with the close of the Christmas season, the drain of assets will taper off.

Bruce Glendinning, president of the Trenton Community Credit Union said his body just "skinned" through Christmas.

Once the money is gone the loan business is finished until assets are rejuvenated by loan payments and share purchases.

Mr. Glendinning said '73 was a peculiar year in that active borrowing began prior to summer holidays and didn't taper off in late August when assets traditionally grow.

"People kept borrowing all the way through," he said.

Owned by members of all unions, it is something of a slowing house for funds and when local unions are "tapped out," loans can be made from the league.

The league last year found itself overdrawn by $60 million at a chartered bank during the setting up of Landmark — a subsidiary of credit unions set up to make larger loans for house mortgaging. There is speculation that a landmark office may locate in Trenton.

"It ended up as a tight money year and everyone had to tighten his belt," said Mr. Glendinning. Since that time the league has recouped the overdraft.

The drain on assets which hurt Trenton is expected to be rectified through the next three months when lending is due to slow down.

Pooled Resources Basis of Unions

TRENTON — For five dollars you're a paid up member and can start borrowing from a credit union.

The five dollars buys you a share which can bring you yearend dividends and allows you union services.

There are eight such organizations in Trenton that are filling a large space in the money lending business.

More than 5,000 people are on the union lists, borrowing millions of dollars. The largest of these unions is the federal union serving Department of National Defence employees and having more than $3 million in assets.

The principle of the union is to build up assets by member contributions through purchases of shares and then lend the money out at about 12 per cent.

For the best operation you should be lending only slightly less than your total assets, says Bruce Glendinning, president of the Trenton Community Credit Union.

The interest rate makes the union immediately attractive, but a closer look shows the loan is life insured and if the union has had a good financial year, the borrower will receive a rebate on interest charges, negating a profit situation. Rebates can reach 10% of the annual interest charge.

If the borrower dies the loan is insured and written off and his savings and shares are doubled in value by the union and presented to his or her beneficiary.

More than six million Canadians belong to credit unions, the majority located in Ontario. The highest concentration of unions is found in Toronto and Hamilton with the strongest body in Ottawa, connected with General Motor.

Credit union in the Trenton area have had flawless records over the past 12 years, according to Mr. Glendinning. "No one has lost a nickel."

Cheese Factory Auction Set

PICTON — Equipment at Elmbrook Cheese Factory and the factory building will be auctioned this month on location in Hallowell township.

The sale of the real estate is subject to "a reasonable bid" and will be sold by Picton auctioneer Lloyd Switzer.

Elmbrook factory was among four cheese factories still operating in Prince Edward County and its decision to close was released late last year. One of the factors prominent in the factory's closing was the difficulty in obtaining a large enough milk supply.

A Stable Canada

The year just past has been a traumatic one — especially on the international scene.

Americans in particular would like it to slide swiftly into obscurity — a fate dependent in the final analysis on the outcome of the Watergate investigations. As of now Americans are savoring the realities of the energy crisis too much to care much about Watergate for the time being; still we may be sure it will be a long before much of these problems is erased from the public consciousness.

Britain meanwhile is staggering along on a three-day work week, brought on by the coal miners' refusal to work overtime.

In Canada we are having it comparatively easy — as usual. No shortage of gas, as yet. Plenty of food, although at an increasing price. Stability as ever, despite (or even because of) minority government.

But regarding food, which as much as any material resource seems to occupy our thoughts these days, we have before us the quarterly report, dated December 20 last, of the controversial Food Prices Review Board.

The review affords little by way of explanation to justify either the board's continued existence or the rise in price of just about everything. This for instance: "The problem of rising food prices in Canada has not disappeared although its seriousness has diminished in the three months under review (really?). Retail food prices increased much less rapidly over the September-November period than they did in the preceding three months. Part of the improvement was seasonal in nature, reflecting the arrival on the market of local-grown fruits and vegetables. However, in addition, the fundamental conditions of supply have improved. . ."

The review notes an easing in the rates of price increase (ironically it claims no influence in halting such increases) for beef, pork, poultry, eggs, fruits and vegetables, but an upward spurt in the price of cereal, pasta and bakery products. And the "significant" overall rate of developments this past summer in regard to wheat and flour products. . ."

An example from our own experience is that 15-ounce packet of imported biscuits mentioned recently. Remember it had shot up via regular increases from a mere 49 cents to 72 cents, then dropped to 67 cents, and now is back (and who knows it may be permanent?) to 72 cents again.

But does the Prices Review Board have any influence over this sort of thing. Of course not.

Local Prospects

Belleville, like other communities, is caught up in the general inflationary spiral, but we are fortunate in the progress that has been made in this community in that past year and in the stability and growing cosmopolitanism of our population.

As the new year gets under way the prospects ahead are for steady, if unspectacular, progress — a new bridge across the Moira is perhaps the most noteworthy.

At the community level we await the official plan, remembering however, as former city manager J. R. Reynolds mentioned in an address last June, "that in planning as in any other municipal project, everyone will not be satisfied."

We have come a long way though from the days of Captain John Meyers and his grist mill. Let us hope the planning now under way for continued orderly growth, within whatever administrative plan transpires. Mr. Reynolds last June envisaged "substantial changes . . . in the form of local government. . ." And this indeed is inevitable, as the Quinte area and the principal centres at Belleville and Trenton grow.

Whatever transpires, it is satisfying to know that in Canada today we are in a better position than most to move forward in our respective communities. And this, in contrast to the various economic and political woes affecting other parts of the world, including our big neighbor.

Pearson's Vietnam Speech Enraged LBJ

By JOHN D. HARRISON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

A most unusual revelation by former Canadian diplomat Charles Ritchie that the late President Johnson and former Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson almost came to blows in 1965 over Vietnam suggests Canadian-American relations began their downward slide earlier than with the Nixon administration.

The report is unusual because senior Canadian diplomats retired or not, usually take such secrets to the grave or put them in Ottawa's secret files where presumably they stay forever.

Charles Ritchie, who was Canadian ambassador to the United States when the late Lester Pearson gave his 1965 Philadelphia lecture suggesting the U.S. stop bombing North Vietnam, witnessed the close call between Johnson and Pearson.

According to Mr. Ritchie, (not to be confused with Ed Ritchie the present under-secretary of state for external affairs who was also Canadian ambassador in Washington), Mr. Johnson had already seized Mr. Pearson's collar when he suddenly cooled off.

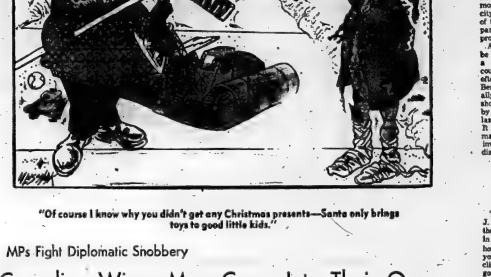
The two men met under more peaceful conditions later the same day but the enmity between them apparently never really disappeared.

The Pearson speech let's face it was most untimely. Right or wrong President Johnson had escalated the Vietnam war only months before. He had done this with a naval blockade of North Vietnamese ports, the first of the B-52 bombings of both the north and Viet Cong positions in the south and the arrival of more troops.

Presumably Mr. Pearson imagined he could influence a president with a long record as a liberal, suddenly turned "hawk" where the Vietnam war was concerned.

Since then, the ability of Canadian prime ministers to influence American presidents will always have to be questioned. There isn't much sign Prime Minister Trudeau has tried to do it. In fact Nixon-Trudeau, face-to-face contacts have been few and far between.

One wonders nevertheless just how much the Americans really care about Canada at the highest official levels, recalling President Nixon's famous blooper of 1971 when he called Japan the largest trading partner of the United States.



We are still in a state of much confusion about the latest flurry in not-very-good Canada-U.S. relations over just what Canadian forces at NORAD were involved in President Nixon's Oct. 25 alert.

This was the alert not accepted by his NATO allies and by many of his domestic political foes as being an alert at all, but rather a ploy to show how competent he has remained since Watergate, where the Russians are concerned.

Here in Canada the prime minister and defence minister who did not know about the NORAD alert until six hours or so after it was ordered, insist Canadian forces at Colorado Springs were involved in the alert.

But Canadian Brig.-Gen. Ockenden, NORAD's deputy military commander said Canadian troops were involved although Area 22 of NORAD (all of Canada) was exempted from an alert which could also have placed the Russians on a similar one—close to a war situation in fact.

There are conclusions and sea-saws in our relations with the United States going on continue. Add to them the recent U.S. efforts to end their huge trade deficit, some of it at Canada's expense, and the energy crisis in which Canada has added $2.18 export taxes to every barrel of oil we sell to the U.S. and then will deny these years of our "special status" in Washington are gone. Were they ever there?

MPs Fight Diplomatic Snobbery

Canadian Wines May Come Into Their Own

By RICHARD JACKSON
OTTAWA — They say there is no snob like a wine snob.

And if this is so, snobbery is a way of federal government life.

Canadian wines — and they are produced in Ontario's Niagara fruit belt in New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, and in British Columbia's Okanagan Valley — are not just not good enough to serve in "civilized" government circles, as the federal establishment likes itself to be known.

They are so ungood, as one official in External Affairs has been quoted as saying, "that if we did serve them, and we don't, we would lose all our friends."

Which of course is nonsense, as External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp has been quick to admit.

"It was hardly the diplomatic thing for one of our people to say," he observed. That the fellow whoever he was, did have something of a point when he said we don't serve Canadian wines. We don't except very infrequently, I suppose, special circumstances."

That the grape-growing and wine industry it is an issue involving both prestige and economics.

For prestige has to be entirely lacking when your product is judged to be so unworthy your government won't serve it when entertaining.

In External Affairs last year, a report to the Commons has disclosed, the bill ran $1,101,032, with $294,528 spent here in the Canada dining room for visiting foreign diplomatic corps, and another $706,504 for hospitality in our embassies and consulates around the world.

"Then there are all the other departments, boards, commissions and assorted federal agencies, all of them doing their shs of official entertaining — but not with Canadian wines.

Why not?

"Well," says Mitchell Sharp, "we serve food and wine of international standard," which usually means French.

Like the other evening when Progressive Conservative MP for Lincoln, attended a reception for parliamentarians given by the Canadian International Development Agency (Foreign Aid) division of External Affairs to letter acquaint them with its work.

"They were serving Spanish sherry," reports Mr. Higson, "and I asked the CIDA president Paul Gerin-Lajoie, why they were offering no Canadian wines.

"And you know what? He just gave me a polite and sort of condescending smile. But no answer."

Like other MPs from the wine regions of Ontario, the Maritimes and British Columbia, he is carrying on a pro-Canadian campaign, working on the government itself, especially External Affairs, and even All Canada, with letters, personal representations, and private talks.

"I'm a member of the Commons External Affairs Committee," he grins, "and I'm going to keep the heat on them there, and that is for damn sure."

Another Ontario fruit belt MP conservative Trevor Morgan of St. Catherines, recalls it was only three or four years ago that the Parliamentary Restaurant listed a very few Canadian wines along side a wide choice of French and German.

And even now, after all these years, Canadian brands are not available for the popular carafe service, and if you want a big glass, you have to ask explicitly for it, or else you will come a French or German wine.

George Whitaker, another Conservative MP, from the BC fruit and vegetable growing area, is trying not just for Canadian wines on the federal entertainment list, but, if you can believe it, Canadian fruit aboard Air Canada.

"It is California grapes and Florida oranges all the time, and even you ask for Canadian fruit they become evasive. Pacific Western always serves Canadian, and if we can get it aboard Air Canada, too, Canadian Pacific will have to fall in line if only for public relations purposes."

Final word comes from Reginald Meyer, chairman of the Ontario Grape Growers Marketing Board and himself a fruit belt MP.

It was Mr. Meyer who got the undertaking from the head of External Affairs type, when he was told that Canadian wines were served when the department played host at home and abroad, and was told "if we did, we'd lose all our friends."

Mitchell Sharp is looking into the whole question, so perhaps the parliamentarians and the grape and fruit growers are getting through with the Canadian message.

Lahr Student Exchange

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

Much has been written of late concerning the Lahr-Belleville student exchange program in which I am personally involved, having a daughter from Quinte Secondary School attending the Max-Planck-Gymnasium in Lahr. I compliment The Intelligencer on the editorial support you are providing on the entire program and aside from minimal coverage on the arrival of the Lahr students on September 1 and the initial negative report presented by your paper following an interview after the first month had passed here in the city, you have taken away most of that animosity I — and other parents — had for your approach.

A program such as this must be closely monitored and it is a pioneer endeavor for both countries — a point stressed often by Committee Chairman Ben Corke and others. Initially, only the City Council exchange and can be commended particular in our selections from a language capability factor. Finally, my roommate, Mrs. Williamson, on a five bi-centennial tour of Canada to date.

Pecking Order in Canada

The Globe and Mail

The Globe and Mail's Richard J. Needham occasionally plays the little game of comparatives in his column, usually to show how it goes — "I look young, you are well-preserved, she is clinging to youth," or "I am a good conversationalist, you are talkative, and he never shuts up!"

For added excitement, though, there is nothing to touch the annual appointments in the Order of Canada, which introduces us to the game on a national scale, with real live personalities in the role of the special sing: I am a Companion, you are an Officer, he is a Member. For Officers, there is the consolation comment that being an Officer, you are a Member, he wasn't even on the list." There may even be a Companion Members, ending up with what's even considered for inclusion.

It is true that the moment you decide to honor some Canadians you are into the business of making distinctions. But when we go on from there to nip-code our distinguished citizens for placings in our scheme, the system runs into trouble. Jockey Ron Turcotte becomes a member of the Order, General Oil Ltd. chairman, W. O. Twaits, becomes a companion, writer and poet Margaret Atwood becomes an officer.

What considerations separate one from the others No — we don't think there is a strict standard case for the rankings; we simply think that there should be, at least; of the type that suggests excellence in one field if more to be commended than excellence in another.

It would certainly this strange official craving for classification, there is something wrong with a system in which awards (all of equal merit) are handed out between the fields of business, sport, the arts, and public service.

But let's not play around any longer with this minor version of a class system.

Kicking the Tobacco Habit

Dept. of Health and Welfare
OTTAWA — The Department of Health and Welfare Minister Marc Lalonde has released data that 40 per cent and sicotine levels of Canadian cigarets. He emphasized that smokers started with low levels of tar and nicotine in just one way in which lotaks of smoke chemicals.

The Minister stated that the Canadial Department of Health to low-tar and low nicotine cigarets now on the market. If more cigarets are smoked, or if the depth of inhalation is increased. He expected that the public which should observe their smoking patterns and habits to ensure it doesn't happen, but added that the ultimate goal of every cigaret smoker should be to give up smoking. Few people find it impossible to quit if they really have to; for example, after a heart attack or an operation for lung cancer. But the best way to prevent the heart attack or lung cancer before it starts is to make to avoid them.

Increasing Land Values May Cost Canadians $3.5 Billion by 1984

Reader's Digest

Unless measures are taken to control the price of land, say experts, skyrocketing land values could cost Canadians $3.5 billion over the next ten years and put home ownership out of reach of the average Canadian family.

Harris Mitchell, editor of Canadian Homes, reports that in the past ten years, while the consumer price index has risen 38 per cent and house construction costs have increased 62 per cent, the cost of a building lot has gone up 75 per cent.

Increases in the value of undeveloped land come mainly from municipal expenditures. New services — roads, water mains, trunk sewers, power lines — and private expenditures for the construction of homes, shops and businesses on the land around it. The longer the landowner can hold out — and keep his land under a low tax classification — the more its value will be increased by the investment of others.

As a result of the increasing scarcity of suitable residential land within reasonable distance from our cities, a growing number of federal housing experts are calling for control on land speculation. The 1969 report of the Hellyer task force on housing and urban development said, "The issue is who should reap the benefits (of increased land value). We believe the present system is heavily over-weighted in favor of the speculator."

The solution most often recommended today is government land-banking — public ownership of undeveloped land that will be needed to meet future housing needs. This land would be serviced and subdivided as required to fit a master development plan for the area. The public property would help encourage them to continue their ownership. Ontario Border Cities Worry Over Time Issue

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Reaction from Ontario cities bordering United States ranged from serious concern to passive acquiescence Thursday to the provincial government's decision not to implement daylight time.

"It places us on the horns of a pretty serious dilemma," said acting mayor Albert H. Weeks of Windsor. "We don't want to be out of step with the province and we don't want to be out of step with Michigan."

The cabinet, while deciding not to impose province-wide daylight time, left it up to border communities to decide for themselves whether they want to follow the U.S. and put their clocks an hour ahead.

Mr. Weeks, noting that the automotive industry is closely integrated between Windsor and Detroit, said up to 8,000 persons commute across the border from Windsor each day. A somewhat lesser flow goes the opposite way.

"It's quite understandable that they would like to see such a change in time," he said.

City council will discuss it at a meeting next Monday whether Windsor will follow Ontario or Michigan time, Mr. Weeks said, suggesting that the city will likely remain on standard.

Because of the circumstances, he added, "the meeting will be an exercise in futility."

Similar reaction came from Sarnia.

Many people and business would be better served with the province on the same time as the U.S.

Mr. Blundy said he didn't want to give the impression of "being subservient to the U.S. in any way. And I don't want any of our people to be disadvantaged either."

Would Sarnia adopt daylight time?

"We would rather be in step with Ontario and the rest of Canada than with the States," he replied.

Mayor George Speal of King has opposed the cabinet's decision "unfortunate."

"The situation is awkward and potentially a considerable problem," Mr. Speal said.

"We don't want to follow the U.S. automatically, but some times it's better to do so."

However, the question was still undecided in all but one Ontario province.

British Columbia, despite opposition from Premier W. A. C. Bennett, rejected by daylight time next Sunday—following the U.S. move on the same day.

Other provinces either have made no official announcements or have indicated they will not change.

Noting the disparity of opinion about what to do, Prime Minister Trudeau told the House of Commons Thursday that it would be desirable for the provinces to reach a uniform formula. Any provincial changes in time fall outside federal jurisdiction.

The Saskatchewan government said it sees no reason for any change of time in that province. Premier said in his announcement will be forthcoming and other provinces have made no decisions yet on the time issue.

Development Freeze Ordered At Cobourg

COBOURG, Ont. (CP) — Town council has frozen all new developments for at least six months because of what it called an alarming increase in the rate of development of unserviced land within the town and in neighboring Hamilton Township.

Mayor J. A. Heenan said that within the last few months, since the province's decision to withdraw from the joint municipality of Durham directly west of Cobourg, more than 1,000 acres of farmland have been purchased by developers in the Cobourg area.

Real estate agents here say that most of the land was bought by Toronto development companies and European land syndicates.

Schickedanz Developments Ltd. of Toronto has assembled nearly 1,500 acres on Highway 2 between Port Hope and Cobourg as well as the 80-acre Cobourg Golf and Curling Club.

Council officials have not announced any plans for the land they own in the area but they have applied to the Cobourg Planning Board for permission to build a variety of single-family and multiple-family houses on the golf course property.

The town has refused to approve the company's plan because of the impact it would have on town water and sewer services.

Stock Exchanges Open Hour Early

TORONTO (CP) — Spokesman for the Toronto and Montreal stock exchanges said Thursday they will open an hour earlier on Monday—at 9 a.m. instead of 10 a.m.—to offset the Sunday switch to daylight time by the United States.

The decision was made to enable the Toronto and Montreal exchanges to open at the same time as the New York exchange, they said.

The two exchanges will continue to close at 3:30 p.m. and some floor traders and Thursday they were unhappy with the prospect of working the extra hour.

One trader, who asked not to be identified, said there is considerable interest among the 650 traders and suggested there is a possibility of a walkout over the issue.

Huntly McKay, vice-president for market development with the Toronto exchange, said Wednesday the uniform opening hours were necessary because a large number of stocks are inter-listed.

CP News Roundup

Hydro Gets Approval To Export

OTTAWA (CP) — The national energy board has approved an Ontario Hydro application to increase its hydroelectric power exports to New York and Michigan during the next two years to 8.5 billion kilowatt hours annually from 3.5 billion.

The board said in a statement Thursday it is satisfied the quantity of hydroelectricity to be exported does not exceed the surplus remaining after domestic needs have been met.

No Tax Plans

OTTAWA (CP) — There are no plans to impose a tax on excessive profits of food companies, Finance Minister John Turner said Thursday.

In a Commons reply to Ed Broadbent (NDP—Oshawa-Whitby) the cabinet published reports that such a tax was possible, Mr. Turner said that even if the government does plan such action "this wouldn't be the place to announce it."

OMA Annoyed

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Doctors' civil rights are being ignored by exhaustive inspections of their office records and accounts, Dr. D. Laurence Wilson, president of the Ontario Medical Association (OMA), said Thursday.

Dr. Wilson was criticizing the methods used by the Medical Review Committee (MRC), a team of five doctors and one layman which assesses unusual bills submitted to the Ontario Health Insurance Plan (OHIP) by doctors.

No Effect

TORONTO (CP) — Cuts in big crop production in the United States will not have any major effect on the Canadian cattle and poultry industry in Canada, Donald Wood, president of the Automotive Trade Manufacturers Association (Canada) said Thursday.

Board Altered

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario cabinet reduced Thursday the number of Imperial Optical-associated members on the board of ophthalmic dispensers to one from five.

Imperial dominance of the five-member board had been criticized by Albert Roy, Liberal member of the legislature for Ottawa East, and by independent opticians, as limiting the supply of skilled, licensed opticians available to Imperial's competitors.

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau confirmed to a reporter Thursday that the National Gallery of Canada, presently located in Ottawa, may be moved to a new $5-million building in Hull, Que.

Study Aid

TORONTO (CP) — Mr. Justice John Osler of the Supreme Court of Ontario has been chosen to head a special committee on legal aid in the province, Attorney-General Dalton Bales announced Thursday.

The attorney-general has asked the seven-member committee to review the operation of the service and "determine the parameters of its future direction and development in order to ensure it has the capacity to meet its objective in the years ahead."

Railroads, Farmers Slow Grain Delivery

By JIM REAVES
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A Saskatchewan wheat pool spokesman says Canada's two major railways may not be paying as much attention to the delivery of grain as the agricultural industry would like, but farmers also are to blame for a slowdown in deliveries.

He made the comment Thursday after Dr. Glen Purnell, Alberta deputy agriculture minister, said grain movement now is 36 per cent behind the same period last year and that the railways "seem more concerned with getting more money than in moving grain."

Dr. Purnell said the railways are allocating rolling stock to other more profitable freight shipments. The expense is farmers and the Canadian wheat board.

"Rail officials have gone on record as saying there is not enough profit in grain movement," Dr. Purnell said.

The wheat pool spokesman said there is concern about the railway situation, "but we'd like to see more deliveries from the farms too."

"We'd like to fill our terminals at Thunder Bay, Ont., but farmers, at this time of poor weather, aren't getting their money in their jeans from last year's crop," said Jim Spring, an official in hauling to the elevators."

He also said a problem developed late last year when farmers delivered grain but because they did not want to have to show any more income on their 1973 tax returns.

A spokesman for the wheat board in Winnipeg said shipments are about 75 million bushels behind. One of the problems was the delay caused by shipments originally scheduled last fall being held until next spring.

This will mean more direct rail shipments from Thunder Bay to Eastern Canada this winter and, in spring, we may have to move more grain than we did in the boom days of 1973."

Dr. Purnell said he estimates 25 to 30 per cent of the boxcars initially allocated to move grain to Thunder Bay transferred to move other freight.

Settlement With Legge Called Too Generous

TORONTO (CP) — The settlement of more than $40,000 by the provincial government is making with Bruce Legge who resigned Sept. 5, 1972, as chairman of the Workmen's Compensation Board, was called "more than generous" by Opposition Leader Robert Nixon.

"If the government felt his services were not coming up to the standards required," the payment of an additional year's salary was more than what was called for, Mr. Nixon said Thursday in an interview.

Mr. Legge resigned following an investigation of the board by a government agency.

Kangaroo Is Sighted

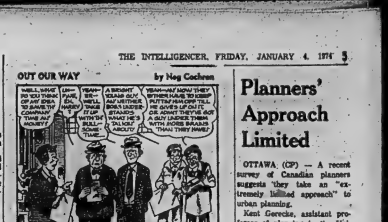
WATSONS CORNERS, Ont. (CP) — Herb Butt says he saw a kangaroo bounding through the bush near this Lanark County community 45 miles southwest of Ottawa, and not everybody is laughing at him.

Mr. Butt, a farmer, says he saw the animal several times in the fall and again recently when he was cutting Christmas trees.

He says the animal was about four feet tall with a small head and long pointed ears.

"It had two long ears, a small nose, white strips in back of the ears and it moved on its back feet only," said Mr. Butt.

"It didn't look like anything I've ever seen before. It's ears were as long as the distance from my hand to my elbow.



Wildlife officers examined tracks in the area that were five inches long, more than two inches wide and about seven inches apart.

Bruce Fraser, an Ontario predator control officer, said the tracks were too old for a full analysis but they may have belonged to a large jack rabbit or three-legged coyote.

Meanwhile, rumors abound about a Freelance Zoo man who imported several kangaroos a few years ago and kept them on his farm. They all escaped.

"I wouldn't be surprised if a kangaroo was out there," said a spokesman for the Australian High Commission in Ottawa.

Election Costs Curbs Approved

OTTAWA (CP) — Unchecked election spending regardless of the size in which major parties try to outdo each other in spreading their gospel to the voters appear to be over in this country.

The nation's first legislation limiting federal campaign spending received final Commons approval Thursday.

There is doubt, however, whether the bill will be in force for the next federal election. It is to be proclaimed six months after royal assent or earlier if Chief Electoral Officer Jean-Marc Hurtubise feels the procedural machinery is ready.

"But I suspect we'll need the six months or close to it," Mr. Hamel said in an interview Thursday night.

The legislation will be limited to spending $1 for each of the first 15,000 voters in their riding, 50 cents for each of the next 10,000 and 25 cents for each over 25,000.

—Parties will be limited to spending 30 cents for each registered voter in ridings in which they have a candidate;

—Each candidate will be required to file an audited statement of his election to which government reimbursement will be based;

—Candidates will receive postal, travel or auditing expenses if they receive 15 per cent of the vote;

—Reimbursement of postage will be for the cost of one first-class mailing to each voter plus extra credits for each of the first 25,000 voters and six cents each for the remainder;

—Reimbursement of travel expenses will be the amount of the actual expenses, $3,000 or one cent multiplied by the number of square miles in a riding, whichever amount is the smallest;

—Reimbursement of the auditor's fee will be $250 or the actual amount on the bill, also whichever is the smaller;

—Registered agents, to receive and record campaign contributions, will be appointed at the constituency level instead of just nationally;

—All donations of more than $100 must be disclosed publicly;

—The maximum donation will be $500 but contributions will be tax deductible on a sliding scale that gives smaller contributors a better tax break;

—Radio and television stations will be required to provide a total 6½ hours of prime time during the campaign, to be paid for at the prevailing low rate and to be divided among an all-party agreement;

—Violators convicted of an offence under the act would be liable to a maximum fine of $5,000.

Mountie Makes Checks in Chile

OTTAWA (CP) — An RCMP officer is in Chile to deal with routine security checks of prospective immigrants and to help speed handling of these applicants, government officials said Thursday.

Both RCMP and Immigration officials said there is nothing unusual in this and the security checks are no more intensive than in ordinary immigration cases.

Planners' Approach Limited

OTTAWA (CP) — A recent survey of Canadian planners suggests they take an "extremely illiberal approach" to urban planning.

Kent Gerecke, assistant professor of planning in the University of Waterloo, says most planners appear to skirt social and economic problems, such as poverty, which have an impact on city planning.

And planning agencies generally seemed to avoid plunging into political issues. But, leading United States thinkers were urging a greater role by planners in political controversy.

Prof. Gerecke's conclusions were outlined in a paper issued by the University of Waterloo environmental studies faculty in December. He based his paper on a survey of 94 urban planning agencies in all regions of the country.

He said he picked 74 planning agencies for the survey after consulting provincial planning directors in the western provinces, Ontario, Quebec and the Maritimes.

Prof. Gerecke said leading U.S. and Canadian experts say planning should be extended to include social and economic factors. It should not be restricted to preparing plans for combining provincial planning developments, parks, sewer and water projects and zoning.

He said 48 per cent of the agencies replying to his questionnaire are concerned mainly with the technical work of planning with another 41 per cent were principally interested in the citizens' confidence in the planning department.

Only eight per cent stressed introducing new ideas into political discussions of city problems while two per cent were devoted to promoting understanding of planning among ordinary citizens.

On political issues, 13 per cent of planning directors said they waded into controversy readily while another 39 per cent indicated they stood back until they felt the problem was incorporated to them.

The rest only entered controversy when asked.

Issues such as poverty, public finance and the quality of the environment are almost ignored by planners listing the most important recent presidential decisions of their agencies.

Prof. Gerecke said planning agencies do not spend enough time on local research to provide a sound base for their planning.

IN PRAISE OF WINTER

(The Child recites)

"In winter I get up at night
And dress by the electric light.
I must say it is frightful fun
To think I'm up before the sun!"

* * *

PRAISE BE TO WINTER — for it is here! And to be useful and help it on its way, we hear and say:

"Winter seems so everlasting."

"Did we send him a card?"

"Are you going south for the winter?"

"It's just two-thirty; the sun will be down in a couple of hours."

But, perhaps, the last stated is not a great hardship. As Roberston Davies reminds us, "there is great beauty in the dusk."

Winter's domain is darkness.

Note how night is its kingdom throughout Belleville as doors close and curtains are drawn. Soft lights coalesce, sociability are in order throughout the entire countryside.

For pleasure and relaxation in urban centres, concerts, ballet, opera, theatre, TV abound; a tribute to Man, who has electrically tamed darkness, his earliest enemy. Such test of civilization makes claim; "It is the darkness that makes winter bearable."

As Winter retires the old year, with fond memories, members of the Belleville Women's University Club, which held their annual Christmas dinner at The Four Seasons Hotel will recall with pleasure, the delightful ballet performance given by pupils of the Quinte Ballet Centre, presented by the Director, Mr. Brian Scott, LISTD, GTCL.

Upon introduction, Mr. Scott to the members, Mrs. C. N. Carolyn Wilson revealed interesting facts concerning his dancing career which began 25 years ago with the International Ballet School in London, England.

"Ceylon-born, Mr. Scott has trained in London, Paris and Monte Carlo, and danced with the ballet companies. The list is long — Sadlers Wells, the original Ballet Russe, the International Ballet, the Folies Bergere, London's Festival Ballet, and most recently, ten years with the National Ballet of Canada.

"Films claim his talent, and Mr. Scott has danced in a number of them with such dancers as Gene Kelly and Vera Ellen. Also, he has appeared on stage, in many musicals, both in London and the United States and has appeared often on the BBC in London, England and on the CBC in Canada.

"A Licentiate of the Imperial Society of Teachers of Dancing, (LISTD), a graduate from the Royal Academy, he has studied Teaching Methods at Ballet on a Canada Council grant, and is well qualified to teach the Cechetti Method.

Speaking with Mr. Scott later, he said, "The Guild, in opening branches in various centres, besides Toronto, hopes to reach talent otherwise denied opportunity to study and train."

He spoke of an eighteen year old girl who wished to be a ballet dancer, "She had real talent, too. But set up in front of her life, she had had no opportunity to attend classes. Now it was too late. One must begin when young - - the younger the better."

For those interested, phone (613) 962-8626.

WINTER, to conclude its praise, is the chosen season to receive that miracle - - the new year, although

Mathematically it is racing, there is something not clear

About the seconds, minutes, days and months of the year.

For add them together, they all disappear.

Father Time builds these fragments into another new year.

A) Very Happy New Year Everyone!

Artist's Nudes Stir Conflict

EDMONTON (CP) — Leslie Poole is convinced he can make a living as an artist "come hell or high water."

"But it's been all hell so far," said the 31-year-old native of Prince Edward Island. There's even been a bit of high water. One of his paintings was accidentally sprayed by firemen putting out a fire in an art gallery.

Poole has had a conflict with Alberta government officials and some of his paintings with frontal nudity have aroused controversy.

Like many artists, Poole has to struggle to make enough money. He was unable to land a teaching job last fall and his last job—driving a truck for an Edmonton technical school—paid $2.85 an hour.

But he continues working on his realistic paintings, many featuring detailed male nudes in backgrounds of stripes and cubes.

The paintings are usually large, some five feet high and 20 feet long. One problem is finding a gallery with enough space to make a proper presentation.

"I don't want to work big especially, but nothing else works for me," said Poole. "I have made some smaller ones, but find I can't relate to them."

With the assistance of a $4,000 grant from the Canada Council in 1973, he put together an exhibition that was shown across the country.

"The family liked the painting, but somehow in the government didn't. There is an open door in the background and that upset them."

"They (the culture department) told me it was not acceptable as a formal portrait. They weren't interested in a work of art. They wanted a blown-up photograph.

"I gave them a good painting, but they didn't want it. I could have done a chintzy job and they would have taken it."

Les Graff, an official with the culture department, said that although the painting was not acceptable as a formal portrait, the government may find another place to hang it.

"It's a good painting, but we felt it was not suitable for the official portrait. The size, treatment and 101 other things made it unacceptable."

Poole will be paid "for the work he put into it," and if another place is found to display the painting, he will receive the full $1,200 the government agreed to pay for the formal portrait.

The bearded artist said some people have been offended by paintings with male frontal nudity.

A 12-foot-long work that included a nude male was removed from an exhibition at University of Alberta after a university official complained.

Poole has a difficult time putting a label on his paintings. "Most of them have realistic figures in a sort of room situation."

He did a couple of paintings as a teen-ager, although he had never seen an art exhibition.

A relative encouraged him to pursue his art career at University of Alberta, and he graduated in 1967. He did post-graduate work at Yale University and has taught in high schools and university.

Artist Leslie Poole continues working on this realistic paintings, although he has been in conflict with Alberta government officials over the suitability of a portrait of former Lieutenant - Governor J. C. Bowen. Some of his other paintings featuring detailed male nudes on backgrounds of stripes and cubes have aroused controversy. (CP Photo)

Ann Landers

Gum-Chewing Is Not Attractive

Dear Ann Landers: I laughed when I read the letter from the fellow who couldn't stand the "dumbbell look" on his ex-girl's face when she chewed gum. He said it was the thing that broke up their romance.

That letter reminded me of a little ditty our Grade 9 teacher made us memorize when we were caught chewing gum in her class. I hope you will print it.

The gum-chewing student
And cud-chewing cow
Look quite alike
But they're different, somehow.

And what is the difference - I see it all now—
It's the intelligent look
On the face of the cow.—A
Warren, Ohio, Ann Fan

Dear Fan: If that's not enough to keep gum out of a girl's mouth, I don't know what is! Mr. Wrigley is going to hate you!

Dear Ann Landers: An old flame (and I do mean old) sent word that he is going blind and wants to see me one more time before complete blindness comes.

I was deeply involved with him 37 years ago. He now is 75. I am 57. He never married and has said I ruined his life and destroyed his faith in all women when I ran out on him and married a much younger man.

This situation has weighed heavily on my mind. Now that I am older I realize how thoughtless and unkind I was. Although I have been happy in my marriage I still feel that I owe this man from my past the decency to grant him this favor.

Should I tell my husband? Should I keep quiet and stay home? Please, Ann, I need your advice before darkness falls.—
The Eye Of The Beholder

Dear Eye: Tell your husband—and go. If you don't, you'll regret it forever.

Dear Ann Landers: I am the secretary for a well-known professor at a well-known university. We receive a great many long distance calls and most of them are station-to-station. Frequently the caller asks that we call back when the boss is in—no mention that we should call collect. Some of these people we know well, others are strangers.

My questions: Do I have the right to be annoyed by such requests? Why should we pay to return calls originated on the other end? Usually, when I call back person-to-person, collect, the callers are irritated because it costs them more.

My boss finally said: "Let's not call collect any more. It creates too much ill will. We'll just consider the calls office expense." I don't think this is fair to him. The phone bills since his instructions have been very high. I resent it although the money doesn't come out of my pocket.

We'd appreciate your views, Ann. — Irritated But Openminded

Dear I But O-M: Since your boss has asked you to return the long-distance calls at his expense, do so. You are correct, though, in believing that the caller, if he can't leave an operator number, should leave word to return his call collect.

Successful Living

'Not Pregnant' Relieved

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I received your very welcome reply and now thank goodness I am not pregnant. I was so relieved I cried.

I don't want to take a chance with a little human being's life. I am not planning to deliberately have intimate relations with anybody, but would you please tell me if you think the pill is the best form of contraceptive.

Do doctors absolutely refuse to perform a sterilization on an unmarried or married girl who has never had any children.

You Are A Fantastic Person.

Dear You: You've asked the wrong person (fantastic or not). There is plenty of controversy and yet doctors heartily agree that no type of contraceptive is 100 per cent reliable.

About sterilization, a doctor would have to have a mighty good reason, such as if the person's health were greatly endangered by some sort of growth.

A healthy young girl shouldn't even think of such a procedure. Sterilization may sound ducky to you now, but life is long. You will grow up; you may marry happily and discover that to have a family by the man you are married to is the greatest desire of your heart.

Dear Doris: I wonder if you could help me. I have a lot of gas after I eat. If you could tell me what to eat and what not to eat and what not to eat I would be obliged to you.

Dear Gassy: Did you know that most of us suffer at least a little air as we eat and talk. Many smoke a great deal: hen it comes back — to their embarrassment.

But your trouble may be something else again, and your doctor is the one to consult. If you have some doubts about your diet being right, get a copy of Canada's Food Guide from your public health department.

What's troubling you? Putting it on paper is the best care of this newspaper is the first step toward solving your problem.)

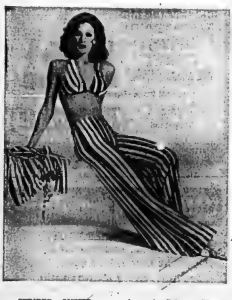
Third Season

By MARGARET NESS

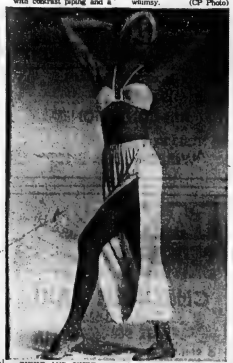
Resort clothes are considered a third season by some fashion houses and clothing manufacturers.

Collections of pool and patio styles are en route to stores across Canada now. But even if you're not planning a mid-winter trip to a warm-weather resort, you may be interested. Many stores by the bulk of their beach and patio loungewear now and reorder cautiously.



If you see something you like you may wish to buy it now and store it away for summer. Otherwise you may be disappointed with what is left next spring. This season resort clothes are daringly bare. Brigance, discussing his water-clothes collection, says "I sharpen some silhouettes by using black or brown, and others I make naive or witty looking by using opaque or transparent white."

The bareness applies particularly to swimwear. Many suits have low-cut backs. And cropped jersey caftans or short white cotton are naughtingly demure.



Modesty isn't forgotten, however; there are still the one-piece swimsuits and the perennial long skirts or knee-length printed sweater-like pullovers for cover-ups.

The bare look also shows up in patio wear and designs for evenings. Mollie Parnis offers short fibranne dresses for late-day wear. One has a yellow halter and bareback style with matching jacket. And Pat Sandler has a group of wallpaper-design, see-through voile shirts with matching bra, worn with white pants. For daytime, shirts and skirts have returned. And for the total look you may add a jacket or cardigan in matching or contrasting colors or even in contrasting fabrics.

But this isn't the year for clashing effects. All contrasts are underplayed. Prints are mostly small, many of them florals. And all are in keeping with the present ladylike mood.

Years Make ELP Grow in Strength

TORONTO (CP) — Supergroups come and go. The fusion of highly talented musicians usually offers the rock music world with, at best, a few years of chart-topping music before the partnership are dissolved by the lure of solo careers and the freedom to pursue own musical ideals.

Emerson, Lake and Palmer (ELP) are an exception. Formed in 1969 from the cream of Atomic Rooster, King Crimson and the Nice—three major British rock bands—over the years they have gone from strength to strength, sharing their many talents and counteracting each other's virtuoso abilities as instrumentalists.

Almost since their formation, ELP led the field of three-man rock bands. By 1972, they had successfully bridged the gap between classical and rock music through their third album, Pictures at an Exhibition, based on an adaptation of a composition of that name by Mussorgsky. Their latest album, Brain Salad Surgery, includes another classical piece, Toccata, an adaptation of Gimstera's First Piano Concerto, 4th movement.

Moreover, ELP are largely responsible for introducing into rock music the Moog synthesizer, an electronic keyboard instrument that looks like a giant telephone switchboard.

"I think the reason why we have merged together well and overcome the musical problems we faced early on is because having only three members in the band with so much sound to produce each of us has a vital role to fulfil," keyboard player Keith Emerson said.

"Carl (Palmer) has the responsibility of providing percussion to, at times, very complex music. Greg (Lake) plays bass and guitars and is in charge of the production of the records, making sure they sound right. I provide most of the music."

Emerson admits that early in ELP's career, he found himself "over writing."

"I was being very experimental, especially with the Moog. On Tarkus, our second album, I used many different time meters in every bar and Greg and Carl began to under if they could play along with this type of music. It took time, but we overcame these problems. I think my music now is more mature and less erratic."

Shortly before Christmas, Maple Leaf Gardens was sold out within a few days when ELP made a stop-over here on their North American tour. During the day, 36 tons of equipment was assembled inside the stadium by the band's 24-man road crew.

"We have so many roadies," Palmer laughed. "We even have a roadie to wake the roadies up in the morning."

Visually, the array of this tonnage was spectacular. Four massive speaker stacks, one for each corner of the arena, provided the 18,000 fans inside with a rare opportunity to hear music in quadraphonic sound. Above the stage hovered a rainbow of colored lights. Centrepiece on stage, two gigantic gongs flanked Palmer's drum kit, and no one, the Moog blinked and beeped, awaiting its orders.

ELP chose a program which included selections from all five of the albums they have released to date. The tempo ranged from Lake's enchanting solo singing and acoustic guitar playing to the supercharged combination of bass, drums and keyboards.

In places, they played tricks with the audience. Throwing the sound from one side of the stadium to the other, then from front to back using the quadraphonic system. At one stage, Emerson programmed the Moog to send a signal that sounded like a speed boat zooming faster and faster around the arena.

Following the completion of their 30-stop North American tour, ELP plans to return to England to premiere a documentary film made while on tour in Europe early in 1973.

Made for television, the film shows the ups and downs of a band on the road. Lake stressed that the film brings to the public eye the enormous pressures a top band like ELP have to face before, during and after a concert.

Each Performance Sets Record

LONDON (Reuter) — In one situation, people who saw it as small part of London's West End, there have been more than 8,000 murders in the 21-odd years, witnessed by 3¼ million people.

But few witnesses would disclose the murderer's identity. To do so would be to divulge the plot of The Mousetrap, the longest-running production in the history of British theatre.

The Agatha Christie play celebrated its 21st birthday in November. It has had 24 leading ladies and 21 of them attended the anniversary luncheon at which 83-year-old Dame Agatha was the guest of honor.

The Mousetrap began life as a radio play, written for the 80th birthday of the late Queen Mary, widow of King George V. Converted into a stage play, it opened at the small Ambassador's Theatre on Nov. 25, 1952.

The play was received moderately well by most critics but no one predicted a long run.

However, it has run twice as long as any other play in Britain, taken about £1 million at the box office and set a world record for the longest continuous run of any show at one theatre.

Ironically, the author has never made any money from the play. She gave the rights to her grandson, then a baby, when the run began.

The play has become an institution; people who saw it as children in the 1950s now take offspring. One London critic has declared that The Mousetrap, like the Crown jewels, will go on for ever.

Only Anthony Tuesley Gordon, the company manager, has been with the play since it first went into rehearsal. He has watched what is virtually a who's who of British theatre pass through the Ambassador's. But he will not single out any particular production as the best.

"It is always interesting for me to see a new cast," he said. "No two actors play a part the same way and I am always fascinated by each interpretation."

He attributes the play's long entry to a basically sound plot, the enthusiasm of each new cast and the legend that has grown up around it.

When the play eventually finishes, future generations will be able to see it on film. Post-run film rights were sold in 1956, although producer Peter Saunders, who brought the play to the Ambassador's, had unsuccessfully to buy back.

Until then, the play will continue in front of packed houses.

Each night they are baptized by an actor not to deter would-be spectators from coming to the play by divulging the identity of the murderer.

Jack Benny's Tax Claim is Refused

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service has rejected comedian Jack Benny's attempt to deduct $154,000 from his income taxes for a donation of memorabilia to the University of California at Los Angeles.

Benny's lawyer said Thursday he will appeal the decision, similar to one President Nixon claimed for donating his vice-presidential papers to the United States National Archives. The IRS accepted Nixon's claim.

The Benny case came to light when his lawyer, Lawrence Kartzganer, filed an appeal of the IRS decision in U.S. Tax Court.

Benny and his wife are fighting government attempts to collect $109,081 in back taxes for 1967 and 1968.

As a deduction for charitable contributions, the Bennys in 1967 claimed $146,700 for giving the UCLA library "a complete and unique collection of his works, including radio and television scripts, recordings of radio shows, television shows and tapes and miscellaneous memorabilia," Kartzganer told the court.

The Bennys deducted $14,000 for a 1968 gift of "a collection of photographs, plaques and awards" to UCLA, the court papers said.

The IRS wrote Benny that the deductions were rejected "because it has not been established that you owned the material."

Kartzganer said apparently the IRS views the donations as gifts of production rights to scripts, but he said that was not the case at all.

Ellis Demands Action On Railway Safeguards

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

OTTAWA — If necessary federal funds could be made available to help ensure the safety of Canada's railroads, Jack Ellis, MP Hastings, said Thursday.

Mr. Ellis, Conservative critic for transportation, was commenting on a warning report by the Canadian Transport Commission predicting an increase in railroad accidents unless immediate action is taken.

In the past year Mr. Ellis has repeatedly criticized the government in the Commons over rail hazards.

Thursday he again raised the issue when he asked Transport Minister Jean Marchand what steps the government contemplated following the CTC report. Mr. Ellis wanted to know if any steps were being taken to supplement existing technology which would increase safety.

Mr. Marchand said he had just received the report and could not reply until he had read the document.

In a thinly-worded report the CTC warned this week the number of derailments and deaths on Canadian railways will continue to increase dramatically unless the federal government gets involved in safety practices.

Included the CTC: "The number of derailments caused by track conditions on Canadian National and Canadian Pacific in 1973 is three times that in 1959 and nearly double that in 1969."

It cited lack of proper inspections by the railways as a chief factor in the increased derailments. The CTC said that railways under its jurisdiction all lines carrying interprovincial traffic — now will have to inspect all main line track at least twice daily.

It notes that one accident on the Ste. Therese-Joliette line — which passes through the Quate area—occurred on a line not inspected for nine days.

Mr. Ellis said the situation for a long time was obvious to any "reasonable observer."

The problem has been complicated in recent years with a need for bigger, more powerful trains while roadbed facilities remained relatively unchanged.

Railroads have the technology to improve the facilities, strengthening roadbeds, rails and ties. Government aid may be necessary to help finance the overhaul, Mr. Ellis maintained.

"We have to strike some kind of balance where the railroads are in a paying position and we still have safety," said Mr. Ellis.

Transportation is a key factor of Canadian nationhood. It" the swiftest means of levelling regional economic disparities and the vital link needed in Canadian society, he said.

"I think we can spend a bit of money here and get far more return from it than in some other areas," said Mr. Ellis.

Somewhere South of Iceland

Cockpit crew of an Air Transport Command Boeing 707 play their trade on a trans-Atlantic run from Lahr to Trenton. At the left in front is pilot Maj. J. W. Stants, with co-pilot Capt. J. M. Forestell beside him. At the rear is flight engineer MWO J. E. Koch. Three flights a week from Trenton take servicemen and material to England and West Germany to service the NATO bases where Canadian troops are stationed.

Forces Flight Crews Lead Interesting Lives

Join the armed forces and see the world, to paraphrase an old slogan, still holds true. But unless you are lucky, all the world's an airport to Canadian Armed Forces flight crews.

"That's the way it is for Cpl. Dickie Lowes, a flight attendant (stewardess) on air transport, commanded Boeing 707s flying out of Trenton.

"I see a tremendous number of airports," says Cpl. Lowes, a former teletype operator from Camp Borden who has been a flight attendant for a year. Stationed in Trenton, she regularly flies from here to Lahr and back as part of the cabin crew of Boeing 707s.

Cpl. Lowes is one of 30 women now serving as flight attendants. All servicewomen are now allowed to volunteer for a two-year term in the air, with the option of a one-year renewal if desired. They are given a six-week training course in Trenton before they take to the air on a regular basis, performing all the duties of a stewardess on commercial airlines.

"I've seen a lot of the Black Forest too," confessed Cpl. Lowes. Early in November she was returning from a week on stand-by in Lahr, where she had been sent to await the arrival of Canadian peacekeeping forces and to accompany them to Cairo.

All service flights involving personnel now carry female flight attendants, even if transportation of women and children dependents is not involved. The servicewomen help two flight stewards and a loadmaster (cabin crew commander) to make passengers comfortable and serve as stewards of these meals a flight.

They hover over babies and ailing passengers, dole out beverages on demand (but no duty-free items) and are trained by to render first aid.

Cpl. Lowes' crew earns a base pay of $744 a month and the flight attendants get an extra $75 a month flight pay. During her two or three years' service in cabin crew, each flight attendant gets one around-the-world flight, when transport command services Canadian diplomatic posts.

Cpl. Karen Neigel drew a bonus assignment when she was one of two flight attendants picked to accompany the Prime Minister and Margaret Trudeau to Peking in the fall.

One of the few Canadians to enter China since the Communist revolution, she found the Forbidden City in Peking more beautiful than its advance billing claimed.

She spent five days in Peking with Prime Minister's party and with the rest of the 707 crew attended all the official banquets.

Language was no problem she said. Separate tables were employed and each Canadian was escorted by a Chinese who spoke English and could draw the Canadians into conversation with the Chinese at his or her table.

As for looking after the Prime Minister and his wife: "They were very nice," exclaimed Cpl. Neigel. "I didn't know what to expect, but they were very nice."

Load master Cpl. John Contonge is in charge of a cabin crew of two flight stewards (male) and two flight attendants. He spends most of his time over the Atlantic battling paper — immigration forms, customs forms, health clearances. He carries a complete set of forms of all kinds for every country in the world where air transport command sets down and is in charge of radioing ahead for whatever passenger clearance is necessary. He is, committed to flying about 85 hours a month for a five-year term. Because he is bilingual, he gives the French announcements when he is in the air, but, he says, many flights take off with no French speaking people aboard.

All volunteer cabin crew members have one problem — how to stay rooted to their typewriters again after serving all the airports of the world.

"I think I'll ask for an extension," says Cpl. Lowes.

Cabin Crew

Flight attendant Cpl. Karen Neigel and flight steward Master Cpl. Ray Martin go over reports before landing at Trenton from a Lahr flight. Air Transport Command Boeing 707s carry the same cabin crew complement as commercial airlines that fly the same aircraft. Cpl. Neigel was one of two flight attendants who accompanied Prime Minister Trudeau and Mrs. Trudeau to China last fall.

World's Safest Airline Based at CFB Trenton

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

The Canadian Armed Forces runs the safest airline in the world - - it hasn't a fatal accident since 1948.

Air Transport Command's sole purpose is to service armed forces and Canadian govern ment installations around the world. In the process, 437 Squadron, with headquarters in Trenton, moves a prodigious number of people and tons of material a year.

Next to Trenton, largest Canadian base is Lahr, West Germany, the centre from which flights fan out to supply Canadian forces in Europe and the Middle East. In a typical month August, 1973) the base there handled 2,200 people coming in and a million pounds of goods.

Activity has stepped up since November, when 437 Squadron began flying Canadian peacekeeping forces to Cairo. At the behest of the airlift, the 48 member air movements unit staff was on 36-hour alert to speed the forces to Cyprus and Egypt.

The world's safest airline offers all the amenities of commercial travel. Cabin crew in the 166-seat Boeing 707s includes a loadmaster (purser) two flight stewards and two female flight attendants.

The flight attendants accompany all flights involving personnel movements, including the Cairo airlifts all-inclusive military units.

The reason for 437 Squadron's safety record is simple, says Lahr's air movements officer, Capt. James Van-Dusen. The aircraft are not committed to fixed schedules and don't leave the ground until inspected and found in top condition. Servicing and repair have high priority. The 707s have three times the range across the Atlantic every week with a two-hour turnaround in Lahr. In the summer, when armed forces postings are most numerous, five flights a week carry servicemen and their families to the base.

Large Canadian Forces bases have their own post offices and customs detachments to speed the movement of people and goods. Lahr has four customs officers to prevent passengers and enable them to go on their way faster when they reach Canada.

"If the mail is held up, our people phone here," said Capt. VanDusen, indicating a lighted switchboard in the air movements office.

A VIP lounge is also part of the air movements unit. Those with the rank of brigadier-general and up, or the civilian equivalent, are processed through the VIP lounge. The purpose is not merely to isolate the brass from the ranks.

"It avoids embarrassment all round," says Capt. Van Dusen. "A corporal with wife and kids and baggage can't drop everything to shuttle. Having the VIP lounge makes things more comfortable for him."

Servicemen and their dependents aren't the only people carried by transport command. It carries Sports Canada team members around the world to competitions. Civilians on government business also rate flights and since bi-linguism became commonplace, diplomats and politicians are being sent abroad on service flights. When the Prime Minister travels, seats are removed from a 707 and a private suite is fitted into the forward section of the cabin.

Highly skilled flight deck crew (two pilots, a navigator and a flight engineer) goodnatured and attentive cabin crew, good and frequent meals (but no alcoholic beverages) a perfect safety record and fool-proof beerage handling make air transport command's flights a traveller's dream.

The jealousy of private carriers has been aroused, especially over the question of the government's transporting Sports Canada teams and despite airlines lucrative charters. The argument is that regular transport command flights have to go anyhow and if seats are available, why not take those who are going about Canada's business? The subject is currently under review in Ottawa, with the future of the Belleville-Lahr flights echoed over one of the factors hanging in the balance.

Alarm Box

Belleville firefighters responded to the following calls for assistance during the 24-hour period ending at 8 a.m. Friday:

Thursday, Jan. 3, 4:13 p.m., faulty chimney, no damage, 224 East Bridge.

Jan. 3, 8:50 p.m. odor investigation at the offices of Community Trust on Bridge Street East, no damage.

Hit Parked Car, Driver Convicted

Gerald James Weymark, 22, was arrested by police last Dec. 8, after he was involved in a car accident on Bridge Street East that resulted in an estimated $2,400 worth of damage.

Court was told yesterday, that Weymark who lived in asked to drive a friend's car home for her had driven into the rear of a parked car on the north side of Bridge Street. The seven passengers in the Weymark car sustained a broken arm in the accident.

When given a breathalyzer test at the police station following the accident, Weymark had readings of 200 and 198 milligrams of alcohol per 100 millilitres of blood. The criminal code calls for conviction against drivers with readings greater than 80 mill.grams.

fight with Travers, he said.

While fighting with the other boy's father, Travers struck the man with a one-by-six board, and gouged at the other man's eyes with his thumbs, Mr. Deline said.

In passing sentence on Travers, Judge J. L. Clendenning said that the charges against Travers could have had serious consequences and, therefore, required the sentence be for the principle of deterrence in sentencing.

Travers was sentenced for 30 days in jail for the assault of the nine-year-old and to 15 days in jail for the assault against the boy's father. The sentences will be served concurrently.

Quinte Artists In Library Show

The work of seven Quinte area artists will be among the paintings exhibited during the East Central Ontario Art Association show opening at the Corby Public Library main gallery tomorrow.

The show, consisting of 44 paintings, is the 15th such exhibition to come to Belleville. It continues through to Jan. 26.

"It's really a popular exhibition each year it comes," said chief librarian Olive Delaney. "The public likes it and I think they look forward to it now."

Represented in the exhibition are Muriel Andrews, Bea Williamson, Dorothy Brown, and Dorothy Walters, all of Belleville, Ted Thrane of Tweed, Jerry Shipley from Stirling and Donnah Cameron from Carrying Place.

Each of the local artists was permitted to submit three pieces to the association for the paintings exhibited. Two as the most could be accepted.

Jerry Stapley's ink drawings, Railway, and Lalla Mill were both purchased by a Peterborough company during the first exhibition in that city's Sir Sanford Fleming College in mid-October. Paul Thrane's oil, Cows on Pasture, was also bought.

After the juried show in the Kawartha city, the show was returned to Trenton and then to Belleville. It continues through to Jan. 26.

Violent Refusal Brings Conviction

A Frankford man, who refused to take a breathalyzer test because he said he felt that the breathalyzer will convict you "if you walk by a bottle," was fined a total of $225 and had his driver's licence suspended for six months when he appeared in provincial court here yesterday.

Wilbert Nelson Hart, 61, was arrested by Belleville police Nov. 17 after he was seen driving erratically along Front Street.

When the arresting officer stopped Hart he noticed a smell of alcohol on Hart's breath and asked him to come to the station to be tested on the breathalyzer.

At the station, Hart attacked the breathalyzer technician. He hit a police officer in the eye and refused to take the test.

Hart told the court yesterday that he refused to take the test because he had heard that "if you walk by a bottle, that breathalyzer will convict you." He didn't even have to take a drink," he said.

Hart admitted to having had two drinks in the prior to his arrest. He was convicted of impaired driving and failing or refusing to take a request for a breath sample.

Toronto Man Jailed For Assault on Boy

A 35-year-old Toronto man was yesterday sent to jail for 45 days after he was convicted in provincial court of assaulting a nine-year-old Belleville boy and his father.

Robert Travers, 35, of Toronto, was arrested by police Oct. 12, after he interfered in a fight between his own son and a young Belleville boy.

Court was told yesterday that Travers became embroiled in the incident in front of 37 George Street home when his son got into the fight with the Belleville boy.

The young Travers boy had been riding his bicycle along George Street. When the two boys started fighting, the elder Travers came out to watch the fight and encouraged his son to kick the other boy, the court was told. Later on in the fight, Travers removed his belt and gave it to his son to hit the other boy with.

When the nine-year-old tried to run away from the Travers boy, Travers chased and picked him up in the air and began to beat him.

Crown Attorney Glenn Deline also explained to the court yesterday that after Travers had assaulted the boy, a neighbor intervened in the fight and told him of the incident. The father went to the scene of the first fight and became involved in a fist-

Cable Channels Shift Sunday

If you have cable television, then when you tune your set to channel 2, WBEN TV Buffalo, on Sunday you won't find it, that channel 21, WXXI—Educational TV from Rochester won't be on its regular cable channel 2 either. The Ontario educational television channel is now found on Cable 2, won't be in its regular slot either.

Roy Taylor, manager of Cablevue Quinte Ltd., announced yesterday that his company will be juggling its television channels in an attempt to accommodate Canada's new television network, Global Television. Global Television will make its Canadian debut Sunday, Jan. 6, at 6 p.m., when it will start to broadcast a five-hour series of special programs.

The appearance of the new Canadian network, however, has created some difficulties for cablevision companies and it may well create a great deal of confusion among television viewers.

If you are a cable subscriber in Belleville, you will find the channel slots in the number 2 slot on your set at 6 p.m. this Sunday. It will keep that slot from now on and will, in future, come on the air at 3:30 p.m. Monday through Friday and at 4 p.m. on Saturdays and Sundays.

As a result of Global's appearance in Belleville, several other channels will be moved from their customary slots on your television dial.

WXXI — Educational TV Channel 21 — Cable 3 will become Cable 2 on Sunday.

Ontario Educational television channel currently Cable 2, will become Cable 3 on the same day and Cable 4, currently occupied by WBEN-TV channel 4, Buffalo, will be left vacant awaiting the appearance of Belleville's community television station.

While WBEN — TV's programming will be cut from channel 4 in the Quinte area, it will not be dropped off together.

Mr. Taylor say that his company will carry the programming of the afternoon segment of WBEN's program schedule, Global Television.

Channel 4 will be carried on Cable 3 every day from sign-on to the moment the Global television comes on the air in the afternoon.

Now, if you don't have cable television and you are confused by the juggling act being performed by the cable companies at the behest of the CRTC don't panic.

The Global network should be accessible to non-cable users who have an antenna. Global will be found on Channel 2 on their sets. All other channels will remain unchanged for the non-cable user.

Transmission Delayed

Trouble with its Bancroft transmitter has forced Global Television to delay broadcasting in this area of Ontario, it was learned at press time. However, cable channel changes as described at left will be made Sunday.

County School Staff Change

A few staff changes were evident in Hastings County schools when students returned Jan. 7.

Three secondary teachers have resigned. Miss M. E. Potts has left Moira Secondary School to return to her home in Toronto. Linda Irwin from Quinte has accepted another position with the Board of education. W. C. Hunt, history head at Centennial, has taken a managerial position with Dixie Lee Fried Chicken.

F. J. Garrett, superintendent of schools and former principal of Trenton High School retires Dec. 31. The board is now advertising for a replacement.

F. S. Beckley, principal of North Hastings High School in Bancroft, has announced his retirement, effective in June.

Hawks Lose Ground In Hunt for Top Spot

By LLOYD JOHNSTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

It seems everything changes for Black Hawks preen for a dramatic move to the West Division of the National Hockey League, some upstart comes along to knock them off balance.

Atlanta Flames were the culprits Thursday night when they tipped Chicago 3-2, just when the Hawks were fluttering over the prospect of capturing first place.

It wouldn't have mattered anyway, as results from other precincts revealed.

New York Rangers joined in the conspiracy to keep Chicago in second place by submitting 4-2 to the division-leading Philadelphia Flyers.

A Chicago victory and a Philadelphia defeat would have permitted the Hawks to perch on the top rung of the ladder, instead they remained runners-up, three points behind the Flyers.

Action tonight is confined to a single game that sends Boston Bruins to New York to oppose the Rangers. It will be the first NHL game televised nationally in the United States this season.

Victory by the Flames lifted them into third place, one point ahead of St. Louis Blues.

Their rookie centre Tom Lysiak scored one goal and assisted on two others. The rugged centreman, middlest Western Canada's premier junior league last season with 58 goals and 96 assists, was the Flames No. 1 amateur draft choice last year.

"The first time I played against the Black Hawks I was a little scared," Lysiak admitted. "But now I try to be equal to them."

Goaltender Phil Myre was another bulwark for Atlanta as he closed ranks with his defencemen to protect the Flames' one-goal lead.

"Myre played an outstanding game for us," said Atlanta coach Bernie Geoffrion. "He may have played the game for us in the first two minutes when they took a lot of shots."

Myre agreed, saying: "After surviving those two minutes, I figured I could get through about anything. Chicago outshot Atlanta 36-34.

Philadelphia 3 NY Rangers 2

Dave Schultz scored three goals to spark the Flyers past Rangers. The victory ended a 12-game winless streak for the Flyers against New York. They had not beaten Rangers since March, 1971.

Schultz has a reputation for being a better fighter than a goal scorer. He led the NHL in penalties last season and is leading in the department again.

The Rangers used to laugh at Schultz and cheer when he got a shot on goal." said Philadelphia coach Fred Shero. "Didn't see anybody laughing tonight.

Buffalo 4 Pittsburgh 1

Left-winger Rick Martin continued to celebrate the return of his regular centre Gilbert Perreault by scoring three goals to pace the Sabres against the Pen guins. He has scored eight goals in five games since Perreault returned to the lineup in the season, returned to the lineup.

"It sure takes the pressure off back," Martin said. "The way he carries the puck creates all opportunities."

The loss stretched Pittsburgh's winless streak to eight games and moved Buffalo to within three points of fourth place in the East.

NY Islanders 5 Vancouver 2

Rookie defenceman Dennis Potvin scored a goal and assisted on two others in the Islanders victory. It was his first goal since he was hospitalized in the third period when Dave Hudson was penalized for cutting an illegal stick. The Islanders rode out the storm and hung on to win on Ralph Stewart's goal, but Islanders coach Al Arbour was angry about Hudson's dereliction.

"There's no excuse for it," said Arbour. "That could have cost us the game." He said he will put back on a club fine in addition to the automatic $200 fine imposed by the league.

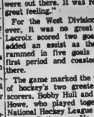
Hull, Howe and Company No Match for East Stars

ST. PAUL, Minn. (CP) — Andre Lacroix, Jersey Knights' compact centreman, was ig nored by last year's all-star selectors although he won the World Hockey Association scoring championship.

This year the 26-year-old has continued his scoring feats with 15 goals in the first 36 games, and Thursday night finally got his chance to play in an all-star game.

Lacroix teamed with Cleveland's Gerry Pinder and Gary Jarrett to spark the East Division to an 8-4 triumph over the West in the second WHA all-star game.

"I wanted to prove that I deserved to be in the all-star game," Lacroix said. "This game meant a lot to me because of the great players who were out there. It was really a great feeling."



For the East Division boosters, it was no great thrill. Lacroix scored two goals and added an assist as the East rammed in five goals in the first period and coasted from there.

The game marked the reunion of hockey's two greatest goal scorers, Bobby Hull and Gordie Howe, who played together in National Hockey League all-star games. Both were No. 5, and both came up with disappointing performances.

Hull, the West playing coach, said the East "simply outplayed us."

"They got four quick goals and we were out of it."

Howe, 45, who played in 22 NHL all-star games, said: "I wasn't at my best. I never got my second wind."

Festivals Nipped

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A goal by Peter Marsh at 15:16 of the third period gave Sherbrooke Beavers a 7-6 win over Hull Festivals in one of three Quebec Major Junior A Hockey League contests Thursday.

Marsh's goal came only 37 seconds after Luc Prud'Homme's goal had pulled Hull into a 6-6 tie.

Sid Veysey with two, Regis Simoneau, Richard Mulhern and Alain Chaput were the other Sherbrooke marksmen.

Referee Rene Dalede called 126 minutes in penalties, most of them coming in the third period when three separate fights were staged.

Won Pulitzer Prize, Daley Dead at 69

He collapsed on a street while walking to the Times' office and died in hospital. His last column appeared Thursday in The Times.

As sports writer, columnist and author, Daley recorded the drama of the 1920s and 1930s and carried memories of those times into the 1970s to comment when big time sports became more commercial.

An indefatigable worker, Daley was a familiar figure around major league baseball parks, in the big football stadiums, the prize fight rings and basketball arenas with his yellow legal pad and busy pencil.

Daley won the Pulitzer Prize in 1956 for excellence in reporting over a long period.

He was author of several books, including The Olympic Games, Times at Bat, Sports of the Times, Knute Rockne, All the Homers Kings and Pro Football Hall of Fame.

Daley was scheduled to retire next August.

Three Bobcats Among The Scoring Leaders

A look at the Metro Junior B scoring leaders shows why Belleville is in second place in the league standings. The team has three players in the list of top point-getters.

Jim Richardson is in second place in the standings, four points behind Paul Gardner of St. Mike's. Richardson has 67 points, on 28 goals and a league leading 39 assists, while Gardner leads the league with 43 goals in 28 games.

Mark Côsten holds down third spot, with 57 points, including 26 goals and 31 assists, while Norm Jones is tied for the fourth position at 50 points with Gary Murphy of Pickering, although Murphy has scored three more goals than Jones, 30-17.

The three Cats will be out to increase their totals in this weekend's games, both important for the Bobcats as the season reaches its three-quarter mark.

Tonight Cats play host to Oshawa Legionaires in a 9 p.m. game at the Arena, while travelling to Markham Sunday night to meet the Royals.

The Bobcats' Booster Club still has some seats available for the bus they are running to Markham Sunday, with the price, including a ticket to the game, $5.25. Tickets are available at McKnight's Variety Store, Front Street. The bus will leave the Arena at 4 p.m. Sunday.

Coming to the Rescue

Protecting your goaltender is one of the many jobs of a defenseman. Here Peter Barrett (light sweater) of The Y's Men bantam major team pushes away Allied Chemical's Dave Ilafoe from goalie Bill Whyte. Barrett and his teammates were not always successful in pushing away the members of the Chemical team, allowing them to come up with a 3-3 tie in the Belleville Minor Hockey Association game played at the Dick Ellis Rink last night.

Strong Juvenile Teams Compete for 2 Trophies

Now in its third year, the Belleville Juvenile Hockey Tournament has what torney chairman Don Deeks describes as "the strongest list of entries yet" for its Sunday run at Memorial Arena and Dick Ellis Rink.

Back to give it all they've got in an attempt to hang on to the titles they won last year, are Oshawa (A Group champs) and, of course, Belleville Western Tiremen who took B honors in 1972.

The Tiremen have added incentive, since it's their sponsor's trophy they will be out to defend. Belleville Juveniles knocked off Trenton Bird's Handy Stand in the B final one year ago.

Since the Trenton team is on tour in Finland and is not expected back in Canada until Sunday, the club had to bypass the Belleville event this year. So the Tiremen will have to pick on someone else.

Of the eight teams entered, only two are below Triple A classification. They are Markham and Lindsay.

"We're not worried about Markham and Lindsay, reports indicate they've been beating Triple A teams regularly this season so they should hold their own here," advises Gavey.

Rounding out the list of entries are five rural clubs representing Brampton Kingston, Kitchener and Peterborough.

The action gets under way Sunday at 9 a.m., on two fronts.

The other four teams get their first taste of tournament play at 10:15 when Kitchener takes on Peterborough at Memorial with Oshawa matching shots and checks with Markham at Dick Ellis.

Winners in first round play advance to the A series while the losers move to the B side.

Both A and B championships will be decided at Memorial Arena. The B final goes at 3:30 p.m. and the A, 5 p.m.

DOWN THE DRAIN

BARRIE, Ont. (CP) — Murdoch Macdonald might as well have thrown his money away when he sent two expensive bottles of 12-year-old whisky to his father, also named Murdoch, who celebrated his 100th birthday recently in Scotland. Unknown to the sender, sending liquor through the post is illegal. The scotch was intercepted by customs officials and sent to the undeliverable mail department in Ottawa where officials, in front of witnesses, poured it down the drain.

After Two Ties, Nothing Changes For QHL Teams

Although two games were played in the Quinte Hockey League last night, the four teams stayed the same distance apart in the standings, with each team picking up a single point. Both games ended in ties.

Stinson Construction stayed on top, picking up their 19th points of the season in a 3-3 tie with Reid's Dairy. It was the seventh point of the campaign for the Dairymen.

In the other contest, Belvedere Hotel came from behind to record a 4-4 deadlock with Cornerstone Engineering.

Reid Mallory jumped into the league scoring lead over Kevin Allen of Stinson's, with a pair of assists to give him 21 points, one better than Allen, who was held to one assist.

Phil Meeks opened the scoring for Cornerstone with only 43 seconds gone in the first period, with Brian MacKenzie and Bruce Cameron adding the other scores in the period.

Larry Marshall scored twice, at the 13 minute mark of the second frame, and at 4:37 of the third period to set the stage for Cain's last minute game kroner.

Doug Jobbin had scored the other Cornerstone goal, at the 7:17 mark of the third period.

Simpson, Anderson Tops — What's New?

NEW YORK (AP) — If you paid even passing attention to the National Football League season, then it should come as no surprise that Buffalo's O.J. Simpson was voted the NFL's offensive player of the year in the Associated Press poll Thursday.

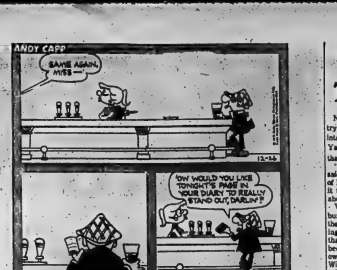
And, for any team that tried passing against Miami Dolphins, the selection of safety Dick Anderson as defensive player of the year isn't exactly a stunner, either.

Both players, chosen in an AP poll of sports writers and broadcasters who cover the NFL's 26 teams, dominated their positions this season.

O.J. set a mark shattered Jim Brown's all-time single-season NFL rushing record with 2,003 yards. He gained more than 200 yards for Buffalo Bills three times during the year.

That performance earned him almost unanimous selection in The AP poll as the top offensive player with 70 votes. Only two other players received any mention at all: They were Los Angeles Rams' passing battery of quarterback John Hadl and wide receiver Harold Jackson.

Anderson led the NFL with eight interceptions which he returned for 163 yards. He returned two of the interceptors for touchdowns, one for 27 yards and the other for 32.



Those interceptions increased Anderson's career total to 32 for his NFL seasons and gave him the edge in the close AP vote over several other defensive standouts.

Anderson had 18 votes to 12 for Los Angeles linebacker Isaiah Robertson. Right behind those two were two of the top defensive linemen in the NFL, Pittsburgh Steelers' Joe Greene who had nine votes, and Minnesota Vikings tackle Alan Page, who had eight.

Simpson's rushing champion ship was the second straight for the powerfully-built runner from Southern California. He paced the NFL with 1,251 yards last year.

This season's total included 12 touchdowns and 4.6 six-yard average for each of his 332 carries. He started the season with a 250-yard day against New England Patriots and finished it with a 200-yard effort against New York Jets that surpassed Brown's record of 1,863 yards set in 1963.

Anderson's selection as the defensive player of the year gave recognition to Miami's so-called No-Name defence, a unit that helped propel th Dolphins into a third consecutive Super Bowl appearance. Miami's other safety, Jake Scott, was selected as most valuable player in last year's Super Bowl.

Pacers Led by Freeman

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Donnie Freeman got Indiana out of the gate quickly Thursday night and the Pacers hustled to their fourth consecutive American Basketball Association victory—a 106-97 decision over Denver Rockets.

Freeman, a veteran guard, hit on eight of 10 shots from the floor and piled up 17 points in the first quarter as Indiana pulled away to an 11-point lead. Elsewhere in the ABA, Kentucky Colonels edged Virginia Squires 110-109, Carolina Cougars rolled past Memphis Tams 122-104 and Utah Stars downed San Antonio Spurs 101-93.

Colonels 110 Squires 109

Cougars 122 Tams 104

Carolina took an 11-point lead at the half and cruised home. The Cougars placed eight players in double figures, including Ted McClain who had 28 points. Tom Owens added 19 points.

Stars 101 Spurs 93

Utah rookie Bruce Seals pumped in 21 points in the fourth quarter to keep his team on top down the stretch. All-Star forward Willie Wise led the Stars with 19 points and rookie centre Swen Nater paced San Antonio with 19.

Bucks 120 Kings 105

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar poured in 38 points and Jon McGlocklin added 29 for Milwaukee. The injury-riddled Bucks blew a 16-point lead but were able to rally in the fourth quarter for the win. Nate Williams had 30 points for the Kings, whose coach, Phil Johnson, was thrown out of the game after picking up his second technical foul in the final period.

Abdul - Jabbar Leads Voting

NEW YORK (AP) — Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, Milwaukee Bucks' towering centre, led all Western Conference players in voting for the National Basketball Association All-Star Game, it was announced today by Commissioner Walter Kennedy.

Abdul-Jabbar led the voting for the West team, with 16,580 points out of a maximum of 17 points in voting by sports writers and broadcasters in each of the league's 17 franchise cities.

Chosen to start with Jabbar were forwards Rick Barry of Golden State and Chet Walker of Chicago, and guards Geoff Petrie of Portland and Gail Goodrich of Los Angeles.

Also selected to the team were centre Bob Lanier of Detroit, forward Sidney Wicks of Portland and guard Jerry West of Los Angeles.

West, picked for a record 11th time, has not played since Dec. 11 because of a pulled abdominal muscle and requested that another player be named in his place. Charlie Scott of Phoenix, the next highest vote-getter at guard, was chosen to replace West.

Four additional West players will be selected by the nine coaches in the conference.

Jabbar's selection marked the fifth time in his five seasons in the league that he has been chosen to play in the All-Star game, which will be held Jan. 15 at Seattle.

Barry, named for the fourth time, was the No. 1 vote-getter among the forwards, polling 14,292 points. Walker, who will be making his seventh All-Star appearance, received 13,542 points, followed by Wicks with 10,132.

Petrie, picked for his second All-Star game and first start, amassed 10,186 points to edging Goodrich for top honors among the guards. Goodrich, participating in his fourth All-Star game, received 9,613 points.

Virdon Signed To Manage Yanks

NEW YORK (AP) — Don't try to tell Bill Virdon he is an interim manager for New York Yankees. He just doesn't see it that way.

"As far as I'm concerned," said Virdon, "I'm the manager of New York Yankees and I like it that way. I'm not concerned about Dick Williams."

Virdon, manager of Pittsburgh Pirates, was named to the Yankee job Thursday, ending the three-month tug of war that the New York club had been waging with Oakland owner Charles O. Finley over Williams.

Last month, Virdon signed a contract to manage Houston's Denver farm club in the Pacific Coast League. Does that mean the Yankees have inherited another Williams-type contract hassle?

"No, no," he said. "I had a stipulation in the Denver contract that if I were offered a major league job, I would be free to go."

That after came earlier this week from the Yankees, who had run into a dead end in their negotiations with Finley aimed at trying to get the Athletics to release Williams from the last two years of his managing contract.

The Yankees had tried to force the issue a few weeks ago when they signed Williams to a three-year contract. But outgoing American League President Joe Cronin vetoed that deal, sending the Yankees back to Finley to try to satisfy the Oakland boss, who kept insisting on a couple of top prospects in return for Williams.

"Charlie wanted too much," said George M. Steinbrenner, general partner of the Yankees. That was when the club turned to Virdon.

"He's a winner and that's the kind of man we wanted," said Steinbrenner.

The Yankees, who also announced the appointment of Whitey Ford as pitching coach and the rehiring of coaches Dick Howser and Elston Howard, signed Virdon for one year. President Gabe Paul insisted there was no significance to the length of contract.

"Bill's been on one-year contracts all along," said Paul. "He's the new Walter Alston."

Alston annually signs one-year contracts to manage the Los Angeles Dodgers. He is starting his 21st such agreement.

Oshawa Skaters Take Novice Title

OTTAWA (CP) — Barbara Underhill and Jim Sorochan of Oshawa, Ont., won the Eastern Canada novice pairs division figure skating title Thursday to advance to the Canadian finals in Moncton, N.B., later this month.

Michele and Chris Collins of Pointe Claire, Que., were second ahead of Laura and Vincent Johnston of Oshawa. The Collins and Johnstons also advance to the Moncton finals when the Canadian Figure Skating Association opens.

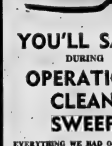
The skaters still have to compete in the compulsory skating, the optional program of compulsory moves and the free skate.



The figures account for 40 per cent of the final mark, the compulsory skating 20 per cent and the free skate 40 per cent.

In the ladies' pairs, Toronto took a slim lead over Kenneth Polk of Weston, Ont. in the senior novice event compiling 10 ordinals compared with Polk's 11.

Spitfires Continue Hot Streak

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Windsor Spitfires continued their torrid scoring pace Thursday, recording their tenth consecutive victory and in the process shattering a club scoring record they set only four days earlier.

The hapless Michigan Americans were the victims of a 13-1 drubbing which left the Spitfires unbeaten in their last nine starts and only four points back of first-place Welland Sabres in Southern Ontario Junior Hockey League standings. Windsor also enjoys four games in hand over the league leaders.

The previous club mark was set last Sunday when the Spitfires humbled Buffalo Tondas 14-1.

Darryl DiPace scored all three goals for the visitors who were outshot 57-16 and remain in last place in the eight-team league with eight points in three wins and two ties.

Stoneman Reports Arm Fine

MONTREAL (CP) — Righthander Bill Stoneman, one of a group of only 22 major league pitchers with at least two career no-hitters to their credit, is looking to 1974 as a personal comeback year with Montreal Expos.

The National League baseball club announced Thursday that Stoneman and outfielder Boots Day have signed contracts for the 1974 season. The latest signings give the Expos 10 players from their 25-man roster under contract for the coming season.

Stoneman, plagued by arm trouble last season after reporting late to spring training camp because of a contract dispute, slipped to a 4-8 won-lost record.

Your Horoscope

Saturday, Jan. 5
By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Aries — (March 21-April 19) You'll be able to gather information at this time and tie it all together for future use. A good period to develop new ideas.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) A number of things will be happening the next few days that can brighten your financial prospects. Keep your mind on work or career.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) There's still a shade of confusion surrounding an important relationship. Other than that matter things are beginning to move in your direction.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) Most of your responsibilities you will handle with dispatch today, yet there is a task you're hesitant to tackle for some strange reason.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) You'll have to be careful today that a friend of yours doesn't involve you in some form of intrigue. Associate only with reliable pals.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Even though you have some self-doubts regarding something you want to achieve, attainment is nearer than you think. Keep your courage.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If you're going to be doing anything today that requires luck as an ally, wait until evening. At that time your chances are better.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You'll have smooth sailing in most areas. However, in situations where you'd have to put cash on the line, back off till another time.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Although you will be a bit dubious about certain suggestions your make or partner has that involve you, they'll work out to be long run.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Someone is going to make an error in your favor. You'll be tempted to let it pass. Though you'd profit from it, you'll gain more by bringing it to their attention.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) An acquaintance of the opposite sex will flatter you. You'll read more into it than you should. Be wary of flirtatious friends.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) Over the next few days concentrate on what you can do for others rather than your own goals. This will benefit you more than if you were self-centered.

Opening lead—2♥

By Oswald and James Jacoby

Another modern play development is the lead through declarer of a card just higher than one in dummy. No one has named this play as yet so we are going to call it the "bracket" play as you place the dummy's card in brackets.

East wins the first trick with his king of hearts. He looks over dummy and sees that his side will need two club tricks to beat four spades. A club lead is clearly indicated. Twenty-five years ago East would lead the deuce. South would play his six spot. West would win with the king but that would be the only club trick the defence could take.

Most players would make that same deuce lead today, but the good players would lead the 10 spot and bracket dummy's nine.

After this play there is no way for declarer to avoid the loss of two club tricks. His best play is to cover with the jack but West wins with the king and leads the suit back.

Now, East's queen-eight surround dummy's nine and since the diamond finesse is going to lose South's contract is doomed.

TOMORROW'S QUESTION

Instead of bidding four hearts you have jumped to four spades over your two spades. What do you do now?

Dayan Wants Arms

Israel, U.S., at Odds Over Disengagement

WASHINGTON (CP) — Israeli Defence Minister Moshe Dayan is discussing with U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger what would be expected from Egypt in return for a sizable Israeli withdrawal from the Suez canal.

Also on the agenda of today's resumed discussions was the distance to be maintained between the opposing armies when they do separate and the kinds of weapons to be permitted in the area. But Dayan denied that he had flown to Washington with a specific plan in mind.

"I really do think it is too early to discuss a plan which I hope one day will be agreed to by Israel and the Egyptians," the defence minister told reporters after an apparently inconclusive three-hour session with Kissinger Friday.

Kissinger indicated that the United States and Israel are in some disagreement about disengagement. He said he and Dayan had discussed "the principles" that the Israeli brought with him and that "we presented some of our own ideas."

Dayan also talked for an hour with Defence Secretary James Schlesinger. He is seeking new jets, antitank missiles and other sophisticated weapons.

An Israeli pullback from the canal is an anticipated first step in a Middle East peace settlement. The question is whether a buffer between the opposing armies would be set up. Egyptian forces on the east bank "thinned out" and the canal re-opened to Israeli shipping.

Some sources indicated that Dayan might meet with Soviet ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin, the main conduit of U.S.-Soviet communications, and Ashraf Ghorbal, head of the Egyptian diplomatic mission here.

Dayan is expected to return to Israel in time to report to the regular Sunday cabinet session.

In Geneva meanwhile, Israel and Egypt discussed possible ways of separating their armies, a United Nations spokesman said.

In the two-hour session Friday "the parties examined technical matters of disengagement," the spokesman said, declining to elaborate. The talks resume today.

In Mexico City, United Nations Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim said he was confident that both Egypt and Israel would pull troops back from the canal "in a few weeks."

In Tel Aviv, the Israeli command said two of its soldier's were wounded Friday in an exchange of Israeli and Egyptian artillery, tank, mortar and small-arms fire along the Suez canal.

A UN spokesman said the gunfire delayed for four days the unloading of supplies from the wrecked Egyptian Third Army, trapped by Israeli forces on the east side of the canal. Unloading began going through again Friday.

A leading Egyptian newspaper says Egypt will not accept Israeli proposals for the disengagement of forces unless it includes a pledge for Israel to withdraw from the Sinai peninsula within a set timetable.

Political circles were forced to declare that Egypt has rejected Israel's proposals of Mr. Dayan," the newspaper says. "Egypt would not accept preliminary Israeli withdrawal unless it was coupled with an Israeli pledge to withdraw from all Sinai according to a fixed timetable."

The paper also says that Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy was flying to Moscow next Saturday for four days of talks with his Soviet counterpart, Andrei Gromyko, on the Geneva conference.

Tanks Circle London Airport As Terrorist Alarm Spreads

LONDON (AP) — The British army ringed London's Heathrow airport with armored cars, light tanks and hundreds of troops today in an anti-terrorist alert unprecedented in this country in peacetime.

The alert followed an intensified investigation into a "California connection" linking three suspected terrorists who flew here from the United States.

The three, who all arrived at Heathrow, included a part-time model and waitress from Santa Barbara, Calif., and two men. All were charged with conspiring to have guns and ammunition.

The three were remanded in custody for a week when they appeared in court today.

The army action in ringing the airport was the first official indication that serious trouble from terrorists was expected there.

A Scotland Yard statement said: "A joint police-military exercise has been mounted in the vicinity of London Airport and it is anticipated it will last several days.

The alert was required because Britain does not normally maintain armed guards at airports and British police usually carry no guns.

If there were to be a major terrorist attack at Heathrow, as there was recently at, Rome when Arab guerrillas shot up one jet plane and hijacked another, the normal security arrangements could not handle it.

The link between the army action and the police investigation of the three arrested in the gun case was strengthened by the fact that army troops were also used to surround the court where the three appeared today.

Fear Five Die

Service Station Wrecked by Blast

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — One body was found today as police and firemen combed the ruins of service station that exploded Friday touching off a stubborn blaze.

Firemen said there may be another four bodies in the rubble.

At least three people are in hospital with injuries.

The late Friday night explosion threw a blue flame hundreds of feet into the sky. Reports of shattered windows, broken plaster and damaged buildings were widespread.

The bridge, closed shortly after the explosion, is not expected to be reopened until inspection by highway engineers. A second bridge across the river was clogged with traffic at the height of the fire about midnight.

Most of the reports of property damage came from the west side of the river in heavy residential districts near the main harbor docks.

Hundreds of windows were shattered. Temperatures were near zero.

Windows and window sills were blown inside an apartment building near the service station.

Police warned downtown merchants to check their storefronts and guard against glass where glass had been shattered.

Quart of Corn Liquor Daily Her Recipe for Long Life

ALEXANDRIA, La., (AP) — Polly Mason, a former slave born when Franklin Pierce was president of the United States, died at her nearby Woodworth home Friday. She was 118. Recently asked to what she attributed her long life, she replied: "Red beans and rice, chewing tobacco, and a quart of corn liquor every day for the last 80 years".

Energy Shortage May Bring Vote

LONDON (CP) — Thousands of Britons faced their first Saturday workday in years today amid speculation that the growing energy crisis will bring on an election.

The government announced Friday night that Parliament will be recalled Wednesday and Thursday in the midst of its holiday recess to hold an emergency debate on the energy crisis.

Lord Carrington, chairman of the Conservative party, said the Conservative government might be forced into an early general election, almost a year before it is due, to seek a mandate on its labor policies.

Many thousands of workers were forced to go to work today because for half of the businesses restricted to a three-day work week the allocated days are Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Parliamentarians Warned Not to OK New Penalties

BUENOS AIRES (CP) — Argentine parliamentarians have been warned by Marxist guerrillas not to support tough new penalties proposed for kidnappers, news reports say.

The leftist newspaper El Mundo says the legislators have been told by the outlawed People's Revolutionary Army (ERP) that it will mark them down as "criminals against popular justice" if they vote for reforms to the penal code focusing in the new sentences.

The reforms, which raise the penalties for kidnapping, murder, bomb attacks and incitement to violence, are due to be discussed in Congress Jan. 10.

Unionists Rebuff Faulkner

BELFAST (Reuter) — Northern Ireland's Protestant majority Five faces an uncertain future after Protestants rejected the new political settlement Friday night and inflicted a shattering personal defeat on their moderate leader, Brian Faulkner.

A mass meeting of the Ulster Unionist Council, the chief platform for the British province's dominant political party, voted against accepting the settlement worked out by Faulkner and Catholic members of the new executive with Britain and the Irish republic last month.

The unionists' main objection was to the proposal to set up a council for Ireland which would establish the first formal ties between the two parts of the divided country.

The party meeting, called by dissidents and extremist Protestant leaders, passed a substantial 80-vote majority against the new constitutional settlement on which Faulkner as leader of the executive had staked his political future.

Faulkner rejected a demand that he should resign as party leader but officials speculated that he may try to set up a new Unionist party to isolate the dissidents.

Saxbe Sworn In

WASHINGTON (AP) — Casting himself as a "law and order man," William Saxbe has taken over the U.S. justice department as the country's 78th attorney general and President Nixon's fifth. As he took the oath of office Friday he pledged to "operate this office as to bring credit on the law and the legal process in this country, on courts, on individual lawyers".

Deaths to Be Probed

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Ross Bennett, Ontario's deputy supervising coroner, says that 23 deaths over a five month period last year at Sudbury General Hospital will be investigated at an inquest to start Jan. 14. Dr. Bennett said those who died all were given what was thought to be oxygen. "Oxygen and nitrous oxide lines coming out of the same outlets accounted for the problems faced in these incidents."

Atlantis Revisited

There have been recent news stories reporting the discovery of myth-shrouded Atlantis in the Mediterranean and in the Atlantic off the coast of Spain.

Dr. Manson Valentine thinks he's found part of the lost continent in the Bahamas.

Valentine, a distinguished-looking man with steel-grey hair and mustache, is a reputable scientist. He has a Ph. D. in zoology from Yale, has taught at several universities, was curator of the Alabama Museum of Natural History, and is now honorary curator of the Science Museum of Miami.

The underwater ruins he discovered in 1968, with noted oceanographer Dmitri Rebikoff, lie somewhere between the Islands of Bimini and Andros. They could be, says Valentine, the first tangible remnants of fabled Atlantis.

He believes that the lost continent was historical not mythical and completely merged 10 to 15,000 years ago, several large land masses in what is now the Atlantic Ocean. They were sub-merged 10 to 15,00 years ago, he suggests, in a chain-reaction of submarine natural convulsions."

In 1969, when Valentine first told me about the underwater site, it consisted of only six buildings in a small area. Now it has been found to be "a vast metropolis complex covering thousands of acres."

The central building of the original group, tentatively identified as a temple, has stone walls about 12 feet thick and a style of architecture known as cyclopean. Its dimensions are 100 ft., long and 60 ft. wide, roughly those of a suburban house lot.

Valentine has photographs of stone monoliths as big as automobiles and evidently man-made, which extend in parallel rows for miles under the ocean. Aerial photos he showed me indicate that some circular shapes, thought to be structures, clearly visible in deeper water.

More recently, fluted columns and what appears to be the tip of a giant step pyramid protruding from the ocean silt have been discovered at a depth of 20 ft.

How did are the ruins?

"We consulted Prof. Nesteruff of the Sorbonne, one of the world's leading marine archeologists," said Valentine, "and by carbon-dating he estimated fossil mangrove material associated with the ruins at the 12 ft. level to be 6,000 years old.

"Those at 20 ft. are much older, indicating that the structures at that depth may go back 12,000 years.

"That would make it the oldest archeological site in the world."

The discoverers of underwater ruins are not reluctant to reveal the exact location of their find to be sure that Bimini control investigation. However, outsiders inspected some of the sites described by Valentine and Rebikoff.

These outside investigators suggested that some of the "ruins", are merely natural formations, while others are turtle or sponge pens built recently by the local Bahamians or, at the earliest, by the Lucayan Indians who inhabited the area when Columbus arrived.

Certain so-called ancient stone columns from the sea bottom proved on closer investigation to be merely cylindrical cement ballast.

However, Valentine insists that the site has authentic ruins. He points out that the Lucayan Indians could hardly have built the underwater structures since, so far as is known, they did not work with stone.

"Moreover," he said, "while some of the structures may indeed have been used as turtle crawls by the local people, the structures themselves undoubtedly are symmetric in design. Some, for instance, are hexagonal and one is shaped like an immense swastika."

Atlantis, in Manson Valentine's view, was a glamorous civilization advanced technologically beyond the primitive cultures. It sank from history after a series of unimaginably violent cataclysms, including volcanic eruptions, submarine earthquakes and titanic tidal waves.

During the death throes, refugees streamed to various parts of the world - Egypt, sections of Europe, and Central and South America. In these latter areas they seeded the advanced culture of the Incas and Mayas.

These Atlanteans, Valentine speculates, were predominantly light-skinned and red-haired Americoid intermarried with the dark-skinned Indians who probably came later.

There are intriguing bits of evidence to support this. He said, "Pizarro found blond and red-haired people and the lighter their color the higher up the social scale they were. The gods of ancient Mexico, too, were bearded and white."

There are those who are suggesting a common Atlantean origin for widely separated cultures, Valentine claims.

"Artifacts have been found on an island in the mouth of the Amazon bearing inscriptions in a language which is Cretan or Etruscan in nature. Between Brazil there is a tribe today whose language is reminiscent of Etruscan, the tongue of pre-Roman Italy."

And so beneath the clear azure waters near Florida lies an unresolved mystery.

Freakish natural formations or the submerged buildings? Remnants of an early American culture similar to that of the Mayas and Incas?

Or, just possibly, tangible evidence that a myth has become reality?

Hanging the World by a String

Who said the wonders of the world couldn't be tied down and put on display? Friday, Barbara Skrill and Frank Wilson hung one of 24 pagets mounted with examples of the creative imaginations of children from the far corners of the earth. The exhibition, in the upper and lower galleries at the Corby Public Library until Jan. 18, is entitled "Celebrate the Sun". It depicts various ceremonies still observed by people on the five continents.

LIP Grant Boost

Museum Goes to Road

The Hastings County historical society will commence work on its Local Initiatives project on Monday, museum curator, Marion Lewis announced Friday.

The project, designed to create a series of exhibit centres for the museum throughout the county, was approved by the federal government last December and was granted approximately $7,000 in LIP funds.

Initially the historical society had asked the federal government for $25,000 to start the program which would have seen the creation of permanent display cases in all the major communities in the county.

However, with the reduction in the amount of funds they requested, the historical society has now decided to alter its plans slightly. Instead of building 10 display cases, the museum will try to build five and it will spend a greater amount of time identifying and marking all the artifacts within the museum's collection.

A decision has not as yet been' made on just what communities will receive a display case and Mr. Lewis has asked those who would be interested in obtaining one to write to the project's administrator, Jack Frame, at the museum.

To qualify for a display case, a community must be able to convince the museum's staff that they would be able to protect their exhibits from theft or damage and that the public would have ready access to the display. A shopping centre, a lobby in a town hall or a trophy case in a school would serve the museum's purposes, Mr. Lewis said.

In outlining the project, Mr. Lewis explained that the basic aim was to disperse the museum's collections throughout the entire county.

"Hastings County is almost 100 miles long and 36 miles wide," he said. "The County Museum is located three-quarters of a mile from the southern edge of the county and, therefore, it is difficult for citizens other than those who live in Belleville, to participate in or benefit from the activities of the museum. By lending the museum's collections to other areas of the county, we hope to encourage people to come to the museum" and to create their own displays."

The project which employs three people, will be completed by the end of May.

City Schoolchildren To Celebrate the Sun

It may be the dead of winter but that need not prevent Belleville elementary school youngsters from celebrating the sun.

For the next two weeks, they will get the opportunity to partake of festivals and celebrations as depicted in the art work of the children of the world.

Through the extension department of the Art Gallery of Ontario in Toronto, the Corby Public Library will be displaying an exhibit entitled Celebrate the Sun.

In crayon and oil pastels, the children speak of ceremonies that have not yet fallen victim to today's technological advancements.

Accidents Costly

MADOC (Special) — Two accidents on the Madoc strip Friday resulted in property damage but no serious personal injuries.

At 10.45 p.m. a car driven by Barry Blackbourn of RR 1, Eldorado went out of control on the Deloro Rd. about 1½ miles west of Highway 62, rolled over and took out a portion of fence belonging to Harry Gauley. Damage to the car was estimated at $800. A passenger, Sandra Jean Blackbourn, suffered cuts and bruises.

Mourning Doves Still Here

One of 1,000 such groups across North America, the 16 people who braved temperature in the low 20s counted 1,390 birds, the majority composed of starlings (376) and starlings (340).

Irwin Knight, naturalist club spokesman said a half dozen doves would be a normal count during this time of year. Club members counted 73 in the survey area within a 7½ mile radius of Belleville's city hall.

In explaining the unusual number of sightings, Mr. Knight speculated that, possibly, food was more readily available for the doves this year than in others. He added that it's possible the species experienced a better than normal hatching season this spring.

"They're the only birds that showed up in unusual numbers," he said, speaking of the corn feeding doves. "There's no corn in the fields that I know of. Because of the good weather this fall, the plowing got done and the corn, presumably, is covered up."

Survey results will be forwarded to the National Audubon Society headquarters in Washington, D.C., where samplings from across the continent will be tabulated.

In compiling continent wide statistics, Mr. Knight said said Audubon officials will take note of possible trends as they could affect agriculture, game management an daviation.

Also considered unusual by the spotters were sightings of 24 individual birds in four separate duck species. With open water comprising far less than one per cent of the survey area, and that frozen, Mr. Knight said the sightings at this time of year did not normally occur.

Though sightings vary from year to year, not possible by their absence were regular. In a good year, said the naturalist, some 300 of these birds are normally seen. This year none were seen. Snowy owls, pine siskins and song sparrows were also absent.

This year, though cold, the weather didn't deter bird pollsters. No strong winds kept the birds off. Visibility was good. Club members have averaged sightings of 22 species annually, with 1968 being their record year, when 40 species were observed.

By comparision, in metropolitan Toronto, the 28 groups participating in the survey spotted 25,000 birds in 95 species. Both the total and the species were down from last year's count. A mild December slowed the disappearance of migratory species, a program official is reported to have said.

Among the birds unusual to Toronto was the palm warbler and the great blue heron, of which 22 were spotted. The previous record sighting was six herons, with two or three being the usual yearly count.

Trenton Firm Wins Contract

A Trenton construction company, Miron - Wiggers Construction Ltd., has been awarded the $1,200,000 contract for renovating the Ontario ministry of health activities building at Prince Edward Heights in Picton.

The awarding of the contract was announced yesterday in Toronto by Hon. W. Snow, the minister of government services.

Miron-Wiggers submitted the lowest of five bids, the highest being for $300,000.

The new activities building is part of the $3,000,000 plan at Prince Edward Height, a facility for the mentally retarded established by the province on the former Canadian Armed Forces Camp, Picton.

The renovations to be made to the former recreation club, will provide space for recreational activities and hobby crafts for residents of the Craig area units.

The building is expected to be ready for use by the end of April, 1974.

Once Upon a Boom

This old photograph of limestone quarrying operations recalls the boom days of limestone quarries at Crookston in Huntingdon township. The quarry provided employment for many men following the turn of the century.

Littlest Township Is Big on History

QUINTE COUNTRY

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

In terms of square miles and acres, Huntingdon township may be the smallest of all 34 rural municipalities in Hastings county.

But aside from its varied agricultural production, the county's smallest township has a distinction far out of proportion to its limited area.

For instance, underground workings just north of Moira Lake represent one of the few places in all Canada that talc is mined.

Canada Talc Industries with headquarters just outside Madoc is the amalgamation of several talc mines which were already in production before the turn of the century.

And the same general area during the early years of the present century saw production of more than 100,000 tons of fluorspar for use in Canada's growing steel industry.

In the same period the Crookston Limestone Quarries produced building stone used in the construction of bridges and other structures far outside the county's boundaries.

Also, thousands of tons of sand and gravel was shipped by rail from the Fuller Consolidated Sand and Gravel Company. The Fuller gravel works were closed in 1952.

And Moira Lake, originally known as Hog Lake, the name coming from a peculiar rock formation in the south, was known as far away as New York City.

The story goes that turtles from the then Hog Lake were once shipped to a New York restaurant.

And, although settlement in Huntingdon was slower than in the County's front townships of Sidney, Thurlow and Tyendinaga, the township nevertheless saw one of the first cheese factories in the County.

About 1870 a factory was built at Moira to provide a commercial outlet for area farmers' milk.

Another factory built about the same time at Ivanhoe is still in operation. In 1889 the name of the plant was changed to Beulah and today, following expansion and modernization, processes milk from a wide area. Over the-counter sales of cheese and curd find an ever-increasing market.

As late as 1890 when the "front" townships had already seen considerable development as a result of United Empire Loyalists settling in the area, Huntingdon was still a virgin forest. Even by 1917 there were still only four families.

These were the Ketchesons and the Ostroms who had moved back from the "front" area.

By 1928, however, other families had moved in. By 1931 the population had grown to 180. The Ashley, Vandeveder, Hagerman, Morton and Clare families were among the early settlers.

In 1927 the road north through the township was improved and a bridge was built across Moira Lake making it no longer necessary for farmers to drive oxen carts around the lake.

During the early days what is now the hamlet of Moira appeared destined to become the main township centre and it was here that the first township hall, the first post office and first church were erected.

The first township meeting of the developing municipality was in 1836, with tavern keeper Philip Lake being named the first clerk.

From than on settlement was rapid. By 1850, when the township was officially organized, the population had reached 2,000.

Moira remained as the government seat until 1916 when the present township office was built at Ivanhoe.

Peak population of the township was around 3,000 with settlement possibly being aided as result of the railway building fever which around 1870 saw a line constructed between Madoc Junction in Sidney township and Madoc village.

The railway provided a shipping outlet for mining and quarrying operations which were to get underway around the turn of the century.

After the turn of the century the number of township residents gradually declined until by 1940 the count had dwindled to about 1,500.

Although it could possibly be termed an inland township, Huntingdon nevertheless is sharing in the recreation industry.

Moira Lake is a drawing card for both local and outside holidayers.

Around the lake there are several resort enterprises, while more than 250 summer cottages line its shores.

Town Seeks Constable

PICTON — The Picton Police Commission has advertised for a constable following the resignation of Guy Brown from the town police force.

Constable Brown resigned this month after several years of service with the local department.

Late last month an arbitrator's decision boosted the salary of a first class constable in Picton to $12,000 from the previous figure of $9,600.

Local Historians: In Their Defence

By MARGARET HAYLOCK

Have the residents of Prince Edward been occasionally misinformed in recently-written historical accounts of the county?

This is the contention of one Quinte area man. W. Allan Dempsey who claims that the book The County co-authored by Janet and Richard Lunn is full of errors and written in haste,without benefit of true research of the facts."

In a letter to a local paper Mr. Dempsey also suggests that Stories of Prince Edward County, a newly-released book written by Picton reporter Alan Capon appears "with-out benefit of research."

This comment is based on the opinion of "an historical friend" of Mr. Dempsey's.

An historical brief of Big Island has appeared in a recent segment of The Intelligencer's Quinte Country series also was criticized by Mr. Dempsey as being devoid of research.

The information used in compiling the article was provided by a pamphlet written by the late Clayton Sprague, a Big Island native who attempted to set down a brief history of each of the island's homesteaders.

Since preparation of many historical articles involves a certain amount of reliance on "oldtimers" whose recollections may not always be accurate, there is a margin for error.

Often there may be only a handful of residents in the area capable of supplying information about specific instances in Prince Edward.

In such cases it would seem logical that the researcher record their recollections as individual reminiscences instead of compiling all of their statements as absolute and indisputable facts.

One of the points disturbing Mr. Dempsey was the statement in The intelligencer that Wellington Boothin was not the youngest son of George Boothe but the eighth or ninth, "according to which list you look at."

He criticizes Stories of Prince Edward County because it declares the Copper family United Empire Loyalists.

Mr. Dempsey states that a descendant obtained his UEL designation through the Dempsey branch.

In considering whether to condemn The County or Stories of Prince Edward County for possible errors of the nature detailed by Mr. Dempsey, the reader must weigh the evils of minor chiselerisms against the perfection of no books at all.

The Count contains four pages of chapter notes mentioning dozens of reference sources.

Stories of Prince Edward County states that "many persons provided information for the articles" included.

Both books, it would seem, have been researched to a reasonably high degree of accuracy and any errors or omissions are likelgs to be quite unintentional.

Mr. Dempsey laments that both books ignore "a wealth of history" on Ameliasburgh township.

If this is true then perhaps it is time he and other critics prepare what is regarded by them as an all-encompassing and accurate account of early days in Ameliasburgh and other Prince Edward municipalities.

Should the preparation and publication of a book seem a larger project than Mr. Dempsey and other vocal critics who attempt to chronicle the early days and miss the mark on relatively minor points, such as whether a man was the first or ninth son of a settler should not be criticized too harshly.

If Mr. Capon inadvertently admitted a Prince Edward family to the ranks of the UELs, surely it is not a serious enough offence to deem the remainder of his book similarly tainted.

Mr. Dempsey has stated that he is unaware of the number of historical errors in the book "but of a certainty I would no more trust it than I do the various stories in The County."

The book recently written by Alan Capon has become a runaway best seller of its kind and copies planned for sale at county museums this summer already have been snapped up by a public eager to read of early days in the county.

The County also has become a popular book in many Prince Edward homes and tells the story of the men and women who formed this part of the Quinte area.

The positive effects of these publications would apparently far outweigh any "errors".

Older county residents who may inadvertently have offered incorrect information regarding community events have at least demonstrated an eagerness to put the past in print.

Critics who offer "the true story" only in attacks on these efforts might give thought to putting their facts into more worthwhile chronicles.

Sense of Community

Travel broadens the mind . . . yes. But it can produce a sense of restlessness, giving rise in turn to further wanderlust.

The best time to travel is when one is young, for it provides a person with experiences and memories, the better to fit him for the often humdrum life of everyday events, bringing up a family and so on.

It remains true also that far-off fields look green, for whatever the environment the same psychological pressures obtain to a greater or lesser degree.

In other words a person can be happy or unhappy whatever the locale — summer or winter, rain or shine.

Some are destined to move around more than others. Some can adapt to such moves better, as in the service or executive life. But basically, where a person ultimately puts down roots and becomes emotionally tied to that place is where he tends to be happiest, to function best as an individual.

There is no place like home, wherever it may be.

An offbeat experiment of the past year lends credence to these thoughts. We refer to the 5,000-mile expedition by raft, with an internatio al crew of six women and five men, from the Canary Islands to Mexico.

The crew, representing ten nations spent 101 days aboard the tossing raft — as expedition organizer Dr. Santiago Genovese put it, eating, sleeping, fighting, loving, co-operating and overcoming danger.

The 49-year-old anthropologist reported that the long intense days with no escape or entertainment took their toll.

'I was disappointed to see the same bitterness and misery surface on the raft that we have on land . . . only on the raft it was more intense.'

Clearly, not only do we like our creature comforts, but they are best enjoyed in an atmosphere of community and of stability — in Belleville or wherever. At home too there are friends in whom to confide when things go wrong. Friends also who may keep a discreet distance, something not possible in the confines of that raft.

A Humane Approach

Prison reform is something we hear much about, too often perhaps in its emphasis on failure — as in its application to parole, a realm, which let it be known, nevertheless, also has had its successes.

Certainly there is room for humanitarian approaches, provided they do not go too far — and there is evidence enough that they have done so — and jeopardize the security of law-abiding citizens.

The rehabilitation of offenders is always of paramount concern and Solicitor-General Goyer recently came up with a novel suggestion. In developing new sources of recruitment, he says those being considered should include the ex-criminal.

Indeed more than 150 are being employed thus, have been in fact for the past five years and, according to Mr. Appe, they are well-motivated and good workers. From Britain there is news of experimentation too. Ex-criminals are being given a choice between going to prison or doing community service work.

In a program said to be meeting with considerable success offenders are being given from 40 to 240 hours of community service work, usually on weekends, in lieu of prison sentences. Some of the men are fighting the work rewarding, others put in longer hours. And this according to an article in The National Enquirer which has been drawn to our attention.

It must be said of the way the authorities in Scandinavia deal with drinking drivers, except that there the work involved is possibly more rigorous — like a stint in the northern forests of the country from which a Swedish television performer returned, with this wry comment: "My career was ruined, but I was as strong as an ox."

Could this be something to do with that legend doing the rounds about Swedish men of 60 being fitter than Canadians in their late twenties? We are not saying the Scandinavians are all heavy drinkers, but with saunas, outdoor exercises and all, they could well be in better shape than the male of the species here. But then that is another story.

Crown Colony Likes the Idea Too

Caribbean Island Link Envisaged By Parliamentarians

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — How about all that snow, ice, freezing rain, sleet, cold, dull grey skies, the whole bone-chilling depressing mess of Winter wherever you go in Canada?

For wherever you go, even to Windsor, it's Canada's Banana Belt, which lies south of both Detroit, Michigan, and Cleveland, Ohio on the Oregon-California border, there is nothing available in the warm seas, soft sand, whispering palms, bougainvilleas, steel bands, yellow bird rum punches and other seductive attractions fun-in-the-sun department.

So how would you like to get it all together in the Turks and Caicos countries of Nova Scotia?

Which is precisely what a couple of parliamentarians, New Democrat Max Saltsman of Ontario's Waterloo and Conservative Heath Macquarrie of Prince Edward Island's Hillsborough, are trying to do with their bill to the House of Commons entitled "An Act respecting a proposed political association between Canada and the Caribbean Turks and Caicos Islands."

Their Act, which Max Saltsman is moving and Heath Macquarrie seconding, has been scrutinized by the Law Clerk of the Commons, J.P.J. Maingot, and found legally in order, proposes the confederation of the islands as, to quote the bill, "a Canadian tropical province or territory," incorporated into Nova Scotia as a couple of offshore counties.

Offshore by quite some, but not so far that they are not one miner nearer than Vancouver, lead to Ottawa which would be their National Capital. Soon, if these two Members of Parliament turn out to be latter-day Fathers of Confederation, later even than Joey Smallwood who brought in Newfoundland 25 years ago.

Heath Macquarrie and Max Saltsman have been around Parliament Hill more than long enough to know what they are doing and what chance they have of doing it.

The P.E. Islander is a veteran of 17 years in the Commons and his Ontario partner in this hopeful-for Confederation has put in nine more parliamentary years, or maybe their Act has more than the outside chance of the usual prayer the routine Private Member's bill gets of passing.

It has got this going for it too: A Canadian delegation of the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association went down last July to the Turks and Caicos Islands to feel for themselves how the Trade Winds might be blowing for some sort of political association with Canada.

The delegation, including Heath Macquarrie and Max Saltsman, of course, went by invitation and found the Trade blowing warm and fair, not just for a closer relationship with Canada but for confederation.

The population of the Turks and Caicos, a crown colony, finds itself unwanted by Britain, wishes to leave its old association with the now-independent Bahamas, and for years has had economic ties with Atlantic Canada, especially Nova Scotia.

There are only 8,000 people, mostly blacks in the islands, a number so small that their integration with 22 million Canadians is not standing to upset the racial and color balance of mainland Canada.

So what and where are the Caribbean Turks and Caicos Islands?

Coral keys, with a total area of perhaps 200 square miles, at the southern end of the Bahamas, just beyond Great Inagua, last of these lonely islands.

Like them, long beaches of fine white talcum-powder sand, enclosure Max Saltsman, with shoreline of that unusually wonderful blue-green water, clean-cut and cleaned the world over, of the coral Grand Bahamas Bank.

So what is in it for the people of the Turks and Caicos and for Canadians?

The Saltsman-Macquarrie bill tell it all in seven pages.

But capsulized, for the Turks and Caicos it would mean the Canadian dollar, education, job opportunities, investment, marketing, commercial and industrial development, and an end of an economically perilous dependence on fishing and ephemeral tourism.

And for Canada, to read the Bill, "which has no warm southern territories and suffers some of the worst winters of the world, a vacation and retirement paradise; a tropical base for defence forces; a Caribbean showcase for foreign commerce; a 'domestic' tourist market; an offshore "home landing" for airlines; and a wealth of Atlantic province or, if Parliament and the islands prefer, counties for Nova Scotia."

The Saltsman-Macquarrie bill sets up a Canada-Britain-Turks and Caicos Islands Association Study Committee to see how it all best could be done.

Think of it. "Canada Caribbean" every time you think of Winter.

'Class' Divisions and Space Usage Under Fire

Airlines Have A Chance to Streamline Their Services

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The world's airlines have run into a patch of bumpy weather. After having enjoyed years of high-flying gains in revenues.

A record 480 million passengers flew more than 380 billion passenger miles in 1973—a 10-per-cent increase over 1972 traffic.

Will they use the current fuel shortage as a good excuse to curtail passenger services? There's some reason to fear they will.

One of Canada's top transportation executives recently spoke out against what he saw as a trend toward treating airline passengers as direct descendants of galley slaves if they are flying economy class, or as an elitist minority if they are in first class.

Ian Sinclair, chairman of Canadian Pacific and CP Air, told the annual meeting of the International Air Transport Association (IATA) that the world's airlines must step out of the straitjacket of two-class air travel, which he described in these terms:

"The economy passenger is regarded as being happier when seated in a very confined space with his fellows. "His appetite is for a ration of plastic food, served once every four hours. He should be discouraged from consuming alcohol by the imposition of substantial charges.

—The first-class passenger requires large amounts of space at his assigned seat, plus other space in the aircraft where he can go to reflect upon his good fortune. "This class of human is born with a huge appetite and must be provided with large amounts of complimentary alcohol to maintain its sense of well-being."

But when the trip is over, says the CP Air chief, "it is surprisingly difficult to tell the two classes apart except perhaps from the more ruffled appearance of the less fortunate."

Mr. Sinclair sensibly suggested that the airlines of the world begin to think of their wide-bodied jets space to be filled.

One way to fill this space would be to offer the public a more realistic choice—or example, seating of approximately first-class width but without the necessity to pay for a Bacchanalian orgy of food and drink; or economy-width seating without the ritual of expensive and unwanted meals which, on an overnight flight, are almost sure to be served just when the passenger is trying to sleep.

How did the airlines of the world develop such unrealistic standards of service in the first place?

Largely because of two reasons: Most of the international airlines are state monopolies and they established uniform standards for fares through their cartel, IATA.

Monopolies or near-monopolies are notoriously indifferent to the individual. Airline presidents must receive more letters from the public than any other business executives, but complaints appear to fall on deaf ears.

The current shortage of fuels is forcing many airlines throughout the world to curtail their schedules and to lay off employees.

Let's hope that as they trim the fat from their operations—a trimming that is long overdue in some cases — they will take the opportunity to consider the future. Perhaps they could offer more sensible and efficient services at a reasonable fare.

Earnings From The Arts Tax-Free

Cornwall Standard - Freeholder

There has been little or no news from Ireland lately except stories of bombing and shootings, and those have been mainly in Northern Ireland.

Southern Ireland or Eire has remained peaceful, and it has a little-known quality no doubt many people have heard about. If you earn money there in any way considered of cultural merit, your income from that source is tax free.

This was made law in 1969, mainly because almost every Irishman with any talent in the arts, including literature, was leaving the country. They hadn't much choice since there was only a limited local market for that sort of thing and high taxes and, in some ways, difficult living conditions from the point of view of an intellectual made life in any other part of Europe almost seem preferable.

Of course the situation has greatly changed. Since 1969 many Irish artists, writers and musicians have stayed at home, the writers and artists, especially, having the advantage of being able to market some of their work abroad. Other exceptions since then was only a limited local market for that sort of thing and high taxes and, in some ways, difficult living conditions from the point of view of an intellectual made life in any other part of Europe almost seem preferable.

The Irish government says the idea has worked well with a resulting improvement in the cultural climate sufficient to make creative people want to live in Ireland even without the tax incentive. As for money lost in taxes that has been at least partly made up for by new money brought in Ireland by resident writers who use there grown wealthy by writing for television, stage and publishing abroad.

It's an interesting idea, especially since Canada is not much different from Ireland in that almost every creative individual leaves the country about as soon as he or she begins to show signs of being outstanding. And wouldn't it be nice if we in Canada was even contended to editorial writers ... we hope!) who must contribute something to cultural life ...

Anzac Geological Drift

UNESCO Features

Analysis of core samples taken from holes drilled to a depth of about two kilometres (6,200 feet) at 10 sites in the Southern Ocean suggest that New Zealand drifted away from Australia between 60,000,000 and 90,000,000 years ago — in the age of the dinosaurs. At that time, according to geological theory, Australia was not where it is now, but along with South Africa, South America and India formed one vast land attached to Antarctica.

The drilling vessel, Glomar Challenger, used in the exploration belongs to the Scripps Institute of Oceanography at California University and is staffed by American, Australian and New Zealand scientists.

Pollution Factors

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

These days no administrative pressure-cooker is so tightly sealed that it does not spring the occasional leak.

Just now, such a leak has produced a document encountered the fecal pollution of the Belleville General Hospital's effluents pouring freely into the Bay of Quinte. In concerned circles, the document, a letter from the Ontario Environmental Protection Agency to the B.G.H., has been widely discussed; and, to my knowledge, copies have been forwarded to influential parties.

Until recently, citizens who had singled out the B.G.H. as a polluter of that sort were discounted by the authorities in charge as cupcopillin freaks. The leaked document proves that they are not.

The authorities who denigrated the action of interested citizens are well advised to apologize to those whose civil courage they belittled and scorned in order to protect their public image and sedentary peace of mind.

BERT GERLING

Editor's note: Since receipt of this letter the board of governors of Belleville General Hospital has met and heard complaints about pollution in the bay from Clarence Young of People Against A Contaminated Environment (PACE). Board chairman Magr. J.P. Sullivan said it was hospital policy to work closely with environmental authorities and he outlined steps taken to correct drainage contamination near the bay. At the same meeting, Mr. Young acknowledged receipt of a letter from a hospital administration official indicating a "positive approach" was now being taken in the matter of pollution control.

On Tuesday directors and officers of Belleville Curling Club for 1954 were installed into their respective offices at the club's meeting in the Centre. Lieut.-Gov. Bill Slade conducted the installation ceremony. L.A. Kells was presented with the original 20-year-old curling stone by Slade before the membership as he officially took the chair for 1954. Staff McKenna received the vice presidency from Mr. Slade and Ted Clark was installed as treasurer.

Entrance was forced into three Front St. places of business early Tuesday morning but no robberies resulted, police reported. While on patrol, shortly before five o'clock a.m. Constable Carruthers discovered a rear door standing into Wray's Furniture Store had been forced open, and later the same officer discovered a window leading into the furnishing shop at the rear of the Smith Hardware Co. had been removed. Later the door in Boyce's garage was found forced open.

Protestant, Catholic, Orthodox Agree on Content of Bible

This is the first of a five-part series about the making of the Bible. The first part deals with modern interest in the Scriptures and new findings about them.

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

The Bible is currently in a heyday of sharpening clarity. Interest and linguistic influence. It is being turned out in new, more lucid language as a result of fuller knowledge of its roots, background and composition.

Modern archeological findings have added confirmation to its historical elements and illuminated its cultural settings, while linguistic research has enriched its meanings.

Simultaneously, for the first time since the church ruptures of nearly five centuries ago, the different branches of Christianity have reached a consensus about the content.

A "common" Bible, sanctioned by Protestant, Roman Catholic and Eastern Orthodox wings of the faith, became a reality this year.

This achievement — "real breakthrough" in the annals of interchurch relationships, says Rev. Walter Abbott, an American who serves as the Vatican's Bible specialist.

He notes that common translations now are in progress in 117 languages besides English.

"A tremendous new interest in the Bible has sprung up almost overnight," says Rev. Dr. Eugene A. Nida, a worldrenowned expert in Bible translations. "It's a grassroots thing."

At the same time, Bible publishing is booming, with sales of the volumes now regularly outstrip all other books, now an all-time high, a market wheeled by a rise of new translations.

The major, top-quality new translations, in most cases involving the work of more or more of work by teams of scholars, include:

—The American Bible, a project of U.S. Roman Catholic scholars in co-operation with Protestant experts, completed in 1970.

—The New English Bible, turned out in 1970 by British Protestants with Catholic participation.

—The Jerusalem Bible, a work by French Catholics with Protestants taking part, issued in English in 1966.

—The Bible in Modern English, a simply worded, popular work whose New Testament portion, called Good News for Modern Man, was issued by the American Bible Society in 1966 with the Old Testament expected to be finished by 1975.

—The Revised Standard Version (RSV) an ecumenical, Protestant-sponsored work completed in 1952 and now widely used.

Substantially, it is the RSV, with some minor modifications, which in 1973 was issued as the long-sought Bible approved by Catholics, Orthodox and Protestant leaders.

The new translations, rapidly replacing the older, archaic-worded versions in popularity, have sparked Bible sales to a peak. Estimates place the total output at 29 million Bibles annually in the U.S., which doubles the number of 10 years ago.

One paraphrased version, the Living Bible, put together by evangelical scholar Kenneth Taylor to clarify and add explanatory background to the basic text, has sold 19 million copies since it was issued in 1971, far outdrawing any hardback secular bestseller on record.

What has pumped fresh life into Bible publishing is the expanded information about the Bible's origins, gleaned through newly found artifacts and fuller understanding.

These include such 20th century finds as the Dead Sea Scrolls, containing Jewish Scripture texts in Hebrew dating to 200 B.C., and various papyrus portions of the New Testament in Greek found in Egypt—the Beatty papyri (1931), the Oxyrhynchus papyri (1903) and the Rylands papyri (1920), dating back as far as 150 A.D.

Parts of the Old Testament turned up in the Dead Sea caves [illegible] are 1,000 years older than any Hebrew texts available before. Previously the oldest had been the St. Petersburg Codex, now in Leningrad.

Other ancient volumes have come into use, providing new documentation.

The previously dominant Protestant translation, the King James Version of 1611, and the previously dominant Catholic version, the Rheims-Douay Version of 1610, were based mainly on Latin and 10th later Greek texts.

Among the major ancient Greek texts now used are the Vaticanus Codex, of about 350 AD now in the Vatican Library; the Alexandrinus Codex, about 450 AD, in the British Museum; the Besae Codex, around 500 AD, in Britain's Cambridge Library, and the Sinaiticus Codex, about 300 AD, in the British Museum.

The new translations have put the Bible in fresher, more currently accurate English than the stilted, often misleading language in the King James and Rheims-Douay versions.

With the heightened Catholic concern for the Bible spurred by the Second Vatican Council of 1962-65, Catholic, Protestant and Jewish scholars work together, analyzing texts and deciphering meanings.

This ecumenical collaboration is what yielded the common Bible. Psychology on the difference had been seven so-called "deuterocanonical" books included in Catholic Old Testaments, but not in most Protestant Bibles.

Although not accepted in Jewish Scriptures, they had appeared in some early Greek versions, and Catholics decided them as a "secondary canon," Protestant reformer Martin Luther called the books useful, but not inspired Scripture.

Until the mid-19th century, they appeared in a midsection of Protestant Bibles, but commercial publishers dropped them to save printing costs. For the approved common Bible, they are restored, placed between the Old and New Testaments, with notes indicating differences about them.

Meanwhile, modern archeological research has swept away many concepts about the culture and history of Biblical times and has validated many aspects that were denied by 19th century detractors.

The digs have shown that the Biblical King Solomon did indeed rule a rich kingdom, which critics before considered legendary; that there was indeed an ancient people called Hittites, previously named only in the Bible and whose existence was disputed.

Twentieth century excavations have turned up the ancient Sumerian capital of Ur, previously associated only with the Biblical account of Abraham's departure from it but now disclosed beneath the sands around the Tigris and Euphrates rivers as the site of probably the world's oldest civilization.

The discoveries have unearthed the steps of the 295-foot Ziggurat, the Biblical Tower of Babel, and have shown that the thick walls of ancient Jericho did, in fact, come tumbling down.

There also is evidence of Noah's flood in an eight-foot layer of clay sediment between strata of artifacts above and below, extending over an area 400 miles long and 100 miles wide, the allusion of an unparalleled flood of about 2350 BC.

An Egyptian portrays has been unearthed at Beth-shan north of Jerusalem, with inscriptions that Egyptian Pharaoh Ramses II of about 1200 BC did hold the enslaved Israelites in bondage by bloses.

There also are remains of the Temple of Dagon and House of Ashtoreth, pagan shrines mentioned in the book of Samuel. Clay tablets at Tel Amarna in Egypt tell of a nation called the Habiru (Hebrews) "taking the cities" of Canaan.

"The world of the Bible is not a dead world," says archeologist C. W. Van Beek. Theologian Walbert C. Outler of Protestant Bishop, has noted research has "rediscovered the Bible almost as if it were truly a new book."

Religion Not Luxury But Daily Necessity

By REV. GORDON C. SMYTH

In one of the Gospels the message of Christ is described as "the bread of life". In the Book of Revelation it is described as "the water of life".

Bread and water - - - the plainest, most essential needs, the forms of nourishment of which we seldom think with gratitude, but which on no day we go without.

But according to the greatest teacher who ever taught, religion is no such super-imposed accessory. It is bread and water - daily necessity, a universal essential, and normal satisfaction of man's fundamental hunger and thirst.

Let us, of all things, hold fast to the naturalness, simplicity and wholesomeness of our religious life. Religion is no luxury. It is the normal attitude of creaturality in its relation to the universe of God.

It is no accident that the Lord's Supper as a sacrament of Christian worship is a sacrament of familiar food and drink. "Do this", said Christ, "in remembrance of me".

Moreover, how elementary are the sources of religious confidence! They lie, not in ecclesiastical authority, not in mysterious regions of theology, not in rigid conformity, not in church history, but in "reverence for life" as the universal quality of life. His example throws light on what Christ said, "My teaching is not mine, but his who sent me." If any man's will is to do his will, he shall know whether the teaching is from God."

A satisfying revelation of God reaches you, not in the exceptional, occasional or spectacular incidents which stop you in your tracks, but in appreciation of the bread and water of life, so to speak, which you eat and drink every day.

CP News Roundup

No Film Yet Of Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — Government officials expressed annoyance Friday at not having received long-promised film of Canada taken during the Skylab 2 mission that ended last September.

Canada and other countries were to receive results of pictures taken by a $7-million array of six photosensors aboard the Skylab.

U.S. space officials have been promising the film to Ottawa for months now, said F. A. Stewart, chief of the photogrammetric engineering division of the surveys and mapping branch of the energy, mines and resources department.

However, Mr. Stewart acknowledged that the Americans have been busy sifting through the Skylab data, which contains 50 per-cent more scientific information than expected.

The film is to show Canada from Windsor, Ont., to Newfoundland taken during a single pass of the Skylab craft. Taken from 270 miles in space, the film will show objects as small as houses.

Free On Bail

TORONTO (CP) — James Ince, a naturalized Canadian who spent 15 days in a Buffalo, N.Y. jail charged with evading the United States draft, returned to Canada Friday, free on $2,000 bail.

Mr. Ince, a first-year arts student at York University who plans to become a lawyer, said in an interview he was arrested five days before Christmas by United States immigration authorities in Queenston, N.Y. where he crossed the border en route for a holiday in Massachusetts.

Fuller Happy

TORONTO (CP) — Philosopher-economist Buckminster Fuller said Friday he is encouraged by the escalating energy crisis because it may result in a world where every person can live well.

Changes Mind

HALIFAX (CP) — Premier Gerald Regan said Friday he now would favor extension of a reversible oil pipeline to the Maritime provinces to supply the region with Canadian crude oil.

Such a pipeline also would be available to carry oil westbound in the event of petroleum finds off the Atlantic coast.

The statement reversed an earlier position,

Sultsman Says Alberta Now Canada's Bad Boy

OTTAWA (CP) — Western oil-producing provinces have replaced Quebec as the "bad boy of Confederation", Max Saltsman (NDP—Waterloo) said in the Commons Friday.

Quebec never has taken a position against the federal government as it has been held by Alberta and, to a lesser extent, Saskatchewan, Mr. Saltsman said.

"If Quebec had ever behaved in such a way, there would have been such an uproar . . . it would have been hard to put down," he said during debate on the government's bill to tax crude oil exports. He argued the bill should be approved before the Jan. 22-23 first ministers' energy conference to give Ottawa a strong voice to counter the provinces' constitutional rights on energy matters.

Mr. Saltsman said the federalist position should be one of sharing resources and diminishing differences.

"To say that any individual, province or even country can do what it wants with its resources to the detriment of others would be wrong."

He said Canada, for example, should not charge the United States the same price for oil charged by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC). Canada should keep its prices perhaps 10 to 15 per cent below those charged by the OPEC members.

"One country hasn't the right to squeeze the hell out of another country, even if it is in the position to do so."

Cross Kidnappers Want to Return

OTTAWA (CP) — A Conservative MP says he has learned the Front de Libération du Quebec (FLQ) kidnappers of James Cross want to return to Canada from exile in Cuba.

Paul Dick (Lanark-Renfrew-Carleton) said in an interview Friday the kidnappers of the former British trade commissioner in Montreal would rather face charges in Canada than remain in Cuba where they were granted exile in December, 1970.

Mr. Dick said he learned from a reliable source that negotiations took place last September between the kidnappers and external affairs officials over the possibility of their return to Canada.

Mr. Dick said he has learned the Cross kidnappers are bored in Cuba and have been forced to join other political cells in performing manual labor.

The four men are Jacques Cossette-Trudel, Jacques Lanctôt, Marc Carbonneau and Yves Langlois. With them were flown by the Canadian Armed Forces to Cuba were the wives of Cossette-Trudel and Lanctôt and the Lanctôt child.

Commons, Senate Must Approve Allocating Fuel

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons resources committee passed the bill on energy-allocation bill Friday and returned it to the Commons for final approval.

The bill left the committee after Energy Minister Donald Macdonald agreed Conservative demands that any declaration of an energy emergency—first step to compulsory allocation of fuels at wholesale levels—must be submitted to the Commons and Senate for confirmation.

Mr. Macdonald said an amendment making that change would be introduced when the bill is reported back to the House.

The committee also passed an amendment proposed by John Fraser (PC—Vancouver South) limiting the bill's original provisions allowing the cabinet to allocation board to over-ride local anti-pollution laws.

Under the Fraser amendment, the board would have power to rule a emission standards only for subdour compounds from oil refineries. The amendment authorizes public hearings on any changes with a view to the hearing to be published in Parliament.

Under the bill, the cabinet would be empowered to set up the five-man allocation board, which in turn could decide who can buy fuels at the wholesale level.

If scarcity became severe, the cabinet could empower the board to initiate a rationing system for retail sales.

But that measure probably also have to be passed by Parliament.

The National Energy Board gave the committee figures to-ether as expected deficit of heating oils in the next three months in all regions except the Prairies.

But a board official stressed that the figures show trends rather than actual fuel levels, and are based on a survey of the industry carried out before mid-December.

If the winter is mild, shortages of heating oils may be small- or nonexistent.

The deficits do not necessarily mean that tanks will run dry. Instead inventories of fuel could simply be lower than they were at the same time last year.

Officials say that if real shortages occur, they will happen in the areas toward the end of the first quarter.

Sales Reported to Be Slow For Auto Licence Tags

TORONTO (CP) — Only about 60 per cent of Ontario automobiles are carrying the 1974-red licence renewal labels on their 1973 plates and provincial licensing officials are worried about the exceptionally slow response after the first month of sales.

Douglas Backs Stanfield

Opposition Wants Oil Tax Bill Limited Until Policy Is Set

OTTAWA (CP) — The Conservatives and New Democrats were shindig alike Friday in a bid to change the government's crude oil export tax bill, and there were signs the government might compromise with opposition parties, which outnumber the minority Liberals in the Commons, allowed the bill to pass second reading Friday. It comes to a final vote Monday night.

But they came out strongly against a section that would let the cabinet adjust the tax monthly after Feb. 1, the date when the rate is scheduled to increase to $6.40 a barrel from $2.25.

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield said the tax is an integral part of long-range domestic oil-pricing policies the government still has to decide. He said his party is willing to approve retroactive sections of the bill stretching back to Oct. 1, when the tax was first imposed, but Parliament should not be asked to approve the rest until the government makes a clear-cut statement on domestic pricing plans.

NDP energy critic T. C. Douglas agreed with a suggestion by Mr. Stanfield that the tax be continued in its present form until the end of March. That would mean monthly export tax rates would be set by legislation rather than by the cabinet.

Domestic oil prices now are frozen at about $4 a barrel. The tax ensures exported oil is sold at full international rates, expected to be about $10.35 a barrel by Feb. 1.

The Ottawa-requested voluntary freeze is scheduled to continue until the end of the winter heating season. After that the government plans to let domestic prices rise, but has given no firm indication how great the increase will be.

Mr. Douglas said Parliament should set out a long-term program of energy-development plans before turning reasonable for the tax over to the cabinet.

Finance Minister John Turner rejected the opposition criticism initially Friday, arguing that legislation should be passed immediately to let the government deal with changing international energy situations and negotiate meaningfully with the provinces at the first ministers energy conference Jan. 22-23.

Accepting Mr. Stanfield's proposal would rob the government of the flexibility needed to cope with difficult and changing circumstances, Mr. Turner said.

Later, however, he indicated he may be willing to yield ground. He said shortly before the Commons adjourned there would be an opportunity to discuss the Conservative proposal further.

Mr. Turner reiterated Friday that money raised by the tax until Feb. 1—about $150 million—will be shared on a 50-50 basis with the producing provinces. The federal portion will be used to develop new energy sources in the producing provinces.

Meanwhile, the Commons received the government's emergency energy allocation bill.

The measure was sent back to the Commons for report stage and third reading after Energy Minister Donald Macdonald agreed to meet Conservative demands providing for parliamentary confirmation of any energy emergency declared by the government.

With parliamentary approval, the board could extend wholesale-level rationing to individual retail outlets.

Canalitics Canada reported Friday.

CP Rail Plans Raise In Passenger Fares

MONTREAL (CP) — CP Rail has announced Friday it has filed notice with the Canadian Transport commission that it intends to raise most inter-city passenger fares and sleeping car rates effective Jan. 15.

Fare increases on the railway's transcontinental train, The Canadian, will apply between most points, including Montreal and Toronto; Montreal, Toronto and Vancouver; Toronto and Regina, and Toronto and Calgary.

Fare increases between Montreal and Ottawa will range between $1 and $2, depending on whether you use the bargain, economy or standard fare program. Travel costs between Montreal and Vancouver will be increased between $10 and $13 while those between Toronto and Vancouver will be increased between $10 and $12.

Fares for the transcontinental service between Toronto and Thunder Bay; Winnipeg and Calgary, and Calgary and Vancouver will remain unchanged.

The bargain, economy and standard fare program will continue but application of this plan will take effect after a minimum journey of 20 miles instead of 100 miles.

CP Rail said the new rates will affect financial losses incurred recently because of increases in labor- and material costs.

GM Plans Layoffs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

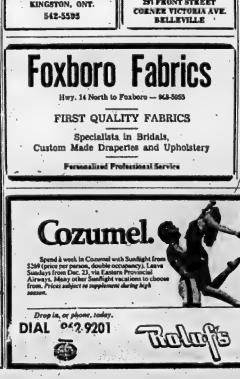
General Motors of Canada Ltd. announced plans Friday to lay off about 1,700 workers at three Ontario centres for an indefinite period, citing unfavorable United States market conditions as the major reason for the move.

David C. Collier, GM of Canada president, said he is unprepresecting about two per cent of the company's work force, will take effect in two to three weeks. They will involve 500-600 workers at the Oshawa plant, about 400 at St. Catharines and 100-150 employees in two Windsor plants.

"I don't consider this a large layoff," he said. "The U.S. side of the market has softened up such an extent that everybody has to share in that softening."

Last week, General Motors Corp. announced layoffs of about 45,000 employees in the U.S., about 25 per cent of the corporation's work force.

Dennis McDermott, Canadian director of the United Auto Workers, said in an interview Friday that "we're in for a rough year," adding, however, he wasn't surprised by the decision.



Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd. also announced Friday it will lay off an additional 180 workers Jan. 14 due to production cbanges in its plant at Talbotville Creek, about 15 miles south of London.

Costs Rise

OTTAWA (CP) — Residential construction prices rose one per cent in Canada in November, resulting a 13.2-per-cent rise in labor costs and a rise of nine-tenths of one per cent for materials, Statistics Canada reported Friday.

Classroom Recorders Suggested

BRACEBRIDGE, Ont. (CP) — A school board trustee suggested Thursday that tape recorders be placed in classrooms to discover what is going on in schools.

Steven Pickard, trustee on the Muskoka district board of education, said he was angered by some letters principals sent parents with students prior to the Dec. 18 province-wide teachers' walkout.

"If principals could be so naive as to send home propaganda with students, it makes you wonder what goes on in the classrooms," he said, in proposing the installation of tapes recorders.

The board, however, failed to pick up the suggestion. In a formal motion it chastised the principals and warned them to comply with provincial regulations forbidding issuing of information to students concerning teachers' union activities.

B.C. Time Stays Same

VICTORIA (CP) — The British Columbia government Friday reversed its decision to go on daylight time this weekend, in the face of mounting protests from the forest industry, airlines, financial institutions, and school organizations.

Provincial Secretary Ernie Hall, who said only Thursday that B.C. would stick to its decision to follow the United States onto daylight time on Sunday, said Friday, however, that the province will remain on standard time at least for another month.

Comet Dims

HOUSTON (AP) — Kohoutek, once billed as "the comet of the century," may be the astronomical flop of the century.

The Skylab 3 astronauts and other expert observers say it is rapidly growing dimmer as it races away from the sun.

Rehabilitation Talk In Jail Said Nonsense

EDMONTON (CP) — The report from a public inquiry said Friday the suggestion that correctional institutes in Alberta or elsewhere in Canada are examples of rehabilitating prisoners is a "cynical farce."

Mr. Justice Milt Hill Jail the Calgary Correctional Institute is akin to calling Attila the Hun a diplomat," Calgary lawyer A. M. Harradence said in his report into allegations that prisoners were beaten at the provincial jail.

The government-ordered report said the Spy Hill Jail and other provincial jails are well-suited for the first two priorities of incarceration in Canada: deterrents and punishments.

However, it said, the objectives of the concept of rehabilitation "cannot be met within the custodial environment."

The report found that there was no excessive use of force by guards at the Spy Hill jail on July 17—date of the alleged beat-ings—or any of the other incidents mentioned during the inquiry.

In addition, the commission also finds that on occasions, admirable restraint was exercised by these officers."

The report said the use of force "is an inescapable consequence of the maintenance of incarceration."

For Fashion Conscious, Bath Is City to See

BATH, England (CP) — For anyone interested in fashions, this is the city to visit on a trip to Britain.

Here is the largest permanent collection of fashions to be found in the world. It's housed in the Assembly Rooms, opened in 1771, with a ball attended by 1,200 people. The Museum of Costume has been located here since 1963.

Every aspect of fashionable clothing is included. There are 4,500 articles so the displays are changed at various times. The collection starts with Elizabethan times.

In the centre glass case in the Card Room was a coif, that stand-out ruffled neckpiece of the Elizabethan age. It's odd to realize that its wearer could have attended some of Shakespeare's plays. In the same case was a man's nightcap with intricately worked designs. In the early 17th century night air was considered unhealthy. So when the master of the house came home he changed his hat for an elaborate nightcap and then changed that for a plain one for bed.

Of special interest to men in this room was a man's suit in deep-pile velvet. Early 18th-century gentlemen favored colors—all shades of pink from light to rose to brick red and all ranges of browns from palest biscuit to darkened chestnut, including gold and apricot.

In another room is the wedding dress of Lord Byron's bride. The gown is simple white muslin. Her going-away costume was a pelisse of thin satin. This was for a long carriage drive on a cold January day in 1815.

There's also a costume of Byron's. He bought it on his grand tour of Europe in 1808 and gave it to an attractive woman friend for a masquerade.

There are costumes from the period when Beau Nash—1674-1761—ruled Bath society as the master of ceremonies.

In the Victorian section there's a tartan dressmaker made in 1873 by a French dressmaker for Alexandra, Princess of Wales. And Queen Mary is represented by one of her famous toques in beige with feather trim-piece. She wore it at the Jubilee Drive in 1935.

In the Panorama Room the clothes were arranged in scenes with painted backdrops or period furniture. They progress from 1807 in late Victorian. Several groups have Bath settings for added interest. One represented a room in the 18th-century Circus, a swank residential section, so the clothes were evening gowns. Another was a Pulteney Street backdrop with a genuine three-wheel Bath chair. Crinolines with six petticoats or a cage were the fashion of the day, in 1858.

A cluttered mid-Victorian parlor featured a young girl showing off her wedding gown to her grandmother. In another scene long-skirted women were playing croquet.

When you've toured the museum, go down to the Pump Room in the City Centre where Beau Nash reigned and have lunch or afternoon tea in the charming Terrace Restaurant.

WOMEN AT WORK

By 1971, the participation rate of women in Canada's labor force was highest in Alberta with 39.4 per cent and lowest in Newfoundland with 25.8.

Sheila Hannon in the Bridge Street Gallery, run by Mr. Hannon and her husband Dan Sherrett. The gallery features local artists including batik, pottery, woven wall-hangings and batik fabric.

Gallery Stresses 'Quality'

The tall thin figure of a stripper dominates the elongated room. Her sequined G-string glitters as the 10 ft. lamp flickers in a breeze.

On the walls, batiks and prints. On shelves, good pottery.

"I've seen too many shops start out with quality stuff and end up taking anything. We're not going to do that"

No handcraft shop of bad batik and crocheted doilies, the gallery is a showcase for the work of local artists, whatever their media.

Sheila Hannon says they don't draw a line it's, even craft and art but in every case try to select art objects of good quality.

"People have offered us work that doesn't think was up to par. It probably would have sold but. ...."

Sheila and Dan arrived in Belleville as the result of an impulse and the shop itself came into being almost by accident.

They were visiting area friends — including potter Peter Coviello — when they rented a tiny Bridge Street storefront as living quarters.

They thought it might take a good gallery and after several months work, they opened the doors.

Now, Coviello's work - - Bronte Pottery - - is displayed there alongside work by potters Kathry and John Cody, woven wall-hangings by Marion Casson, batiks by Dan and Orlava artists Patrick Cockin.

The gallery - - and Dan's work as a commercial artist at Canadian Forces Base Trenton - - has limited, so far, the amount of time the pair have been able to spend on their own work.

Former creative art students at Brampton's Sheridan College Coviello was one of their instructors there, they decided to limit themselves to one medium.

"I try to work in whatever medium suits the idea I want to express," Sheila says.

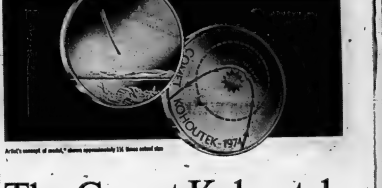
"I want people to come in and browse," she adds, "and not feel they have to buy. It's a gallery in the true sense of the word."

Princess Anne Makes Worst Dressed List

LOS ANGELES Reuter) — Los Angeles fashion designer Mr. Blackwell Thursday put Britain's Princess Anne high on his annual worst dressed women's list and said her wedding dress was "dreadful."

"That had to be the dumbest dress in the world from the neck to the hem," he said. "The only part that had any tone was the sleeves and that went out with Henry VII, and I don't think she should have brought it back."

Blackwell, who has often put Princess Elizabeth on his list, said of Princess Anne: "She makes her mother the Queen look fashionable."



Queen on the Blackwell list were tennis star Billie Jean King, film actresses Raquel Welch and Liv Ullman, Jacqueline Onassis and, for the first time in seven years, a man—British rock star David Bowie.

Explaining why he had included Bowie, Blackwell said: "If they want to face the public in a woman's image, they deserve to make a list of women."

Blackwell, who put Princess Anne in second place, gave first position to eccentric eightchild Bertha Midler whose clothes, he said, looked like she took "potluck in a laundromat."

Magic Magnets

If you're one of the lucky families who found a dishwasher under the tree last week (it must have been a very big tree), there are some things that can't be washed in it. The Consumers' Association of Canada says keep out the following items for these reasons: anodized aluminum because the finish may dull, or discolor; antique or handpainted china which may fade; cast iron, because the finish may be damaged causing rusting; dirtyles, that gold-colored flatware; hollow-handled knives because the adhesive may loosen, milk glassware which will yellow and woodenware which will warp and lose its finish.

More good advice from the Consumers' Association: Hockey helmets without Canadian Standards Association seal of approval are banned from sale in Canada as of January 1. The Consumers' Association cautions that if you bought a helmet in a pre-Christmas sale, it may have been one of those retailers were trying to get rid of before the new regulations came into effect. The Association itself tested 12 popular makes of hockey helmets and found only three which met the specification: Spalding HHI, CCM Pro-Standard 504238, Cooper SK 300. At that the Cooper SK300 has been rated unacceptable for outdoor winter temperatures.

Judged unacceptable are CCM Pro-Card 504241; CCM Pro-Standard 504234; Cooper SK100; Mastercraft 33-2335 and 83-2537; Mylec 150, Patterson; Streetlife HH75, Winnwell 420 and 421.

Some people will buy anything. And some people will try to sell anything.

The offer offered two (countless) "double-powered, miniature, brute-encased permanent magnets". For what? For relieving arthritic pain. Not to mention leg cramps. Of course.

Since it was one of those business reply cards, the lucky recipients of the "Free Trial Offer" might have added an old favorite dirty trick of direct mail advertising-fees.

If you don't like the direct mail advertising you're getting, do right with the business reply card. They'll send the product to get your message. Your message might be anything (except your name and address of course.) Like "Junk mail is annoying". Or "Stop littering my mail box." Or "Stuff it."

All of this may indicate to you that here you have a true-blue junk mail baker.

The Canada Post Office which pales at the words 'junk mail' says third class mail brings in millions of dollars in revenue annually making it possible for you and I to send first class mail for a paltry eight cents.

That may be true but its still your mail box and some persons feel your privacy is being invaded when unwanted goods or advertising is dropped in.

To protect yourself, remember you don't have to pay for anything you didn't order.

If a record club or book club sends you a sample, enjoy it. You don't have to pay for it if you didn't indicate you wanted it and don't let the outfit dun you into thinking you owe it. They'll tell you they're going to take your to court. They won't.

The Department of Consumer and Corporate Affairs has one recommendation which may protect you when it comes to junk mail advertising.

"Don't expect something for nothing."

Successful Living

Daughter Fixes Her Life

By DORIS CLARK

About the new — or not-so-new — morality confusion reigns in many quarters. The Teens write to ask me whether or not (this time meaning intimate physical contact) is the only way to interest the opposite sex. Not only the girls, but the boys write; many to find out how to get out how to get out of "following the crowd".

Parents write asking what to do about their young people, some of whom have gone so far as to take up housekeeping with a partner of the opposite sex, without marriage. You have read these letters and some suggested approaches from trained workers with teen-agers.

I asked a thoughtful, sympathetic and senior social worker to write me his thoughts, and here they are:

Dear Doris: I enjoyed reading 'Concerned Parent's' reply to a letter from Mrs. Maureen Orton, social worker and mother, on teen-agers and sex—While I sympathize with concern and sentiment expressed, I think Concerned Parent drew some conclusions that I didn't find in Mrs. Orton's letter — comments and practical suggestions.

As a social worker, I know that we do not keep sex on a high level by treating it as anything but sacrosanct and keeping young people in ignorance until they hear the wedding march played. I do not think Mrs. Orton is promoting or advocating young people "sleeping around for experience". She is stressing the importance — that we must help young people understand and be prepared for their developing sexuality, their responsibilities to life, and teach them the consequences and alternatives they have - - contraception included.

We should know by now that you cannot legislate or impose moral standards on anyone. If they are to be real and valid to the individual, morals must be absorbed and shaped by the individual willingly, through example, understanding choice and acceptance. Imposition of a moral standard, whatever that might be, might appear to work but it is a shame.

One of the reasons we have corruption in high places - - and Watergate is not the only current example — is that people can assume or pretend to have moral standards that do not really exist in them. They use this assumption as a convenient cloak, but when you really test or examine underneath, there is nothing there.

Although parents are much maligned these days, I still think they can be the most important examples to their offspring on how to learn to cope with life. But our children are not our possessions to objects to be moulded and shaped into set images.

Therefore, our greatest task in to help them grow and mature with our love and nurture, to prepare them to make the important choices and decisions they must in order to live life. What to do about sex is only one of these, but let's be honest and comfortable with them about all the facts before they study a version of Russian roulette.

Hush-hush Sex No Answer

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: The letter signed "Another Sad Mother" must have 25 million mothers where they live—and at least that many daughters.

I went through the same thing, only worse. My boyfriend was even more dependent than her daughter's. Her guy was just a lazy slob who couldn't hold a job. My guy was a junkie, wanted by the police for stealing, mugging and whatever else junkies have to do to support their habit.

My mother kept threatening to turn me in to the police for keeping company with him. I begged her not to. Finally she compromised and told my high school principal. By the time he came a living hell. I kept fighting everyone who tried to break us up. The harder they tried, the more I defended Joey.

As I look back I see what pressure can do to a normal person. It nearly drove me to insanity. When Mom finally gave up and let me alone I decided to drop Joey. The day I did that, my life took a turn for the better.

I am now a sophomore in college. I can't believe that was me back there. I must have been crazy. Today I wouldn't go near a guy who showed up. No! I had to decide on my own what to do with my life. I couldn't let anybody do it for me.—Got It All Together

Dear Together: I received a blizzard of letters from girls who had similar experiences. It was no easy job selecting the best letter to print. Thanks to all who wrote.

Dear Ann Landers: I had a sister-in-law just like "Rattled" and it nearly drove me to distraction. I refer to the dear friends and relatives who bring you a long tired back and suggested I tack it over the door. I did better than that. I had my artistic daughter make a canvas and I did it up in needlepoint. It is now handsomely framed and hanging on my kitchen wall.

Please stay away from my door.
From my dishwashing, cooking and such.
The very kind to have offered to help me
And I do want to thank you so much.
When I ask that you leave me alone.
For my kitchen is not very spacious
And my system is strictly my own.
So please stay out of my kitchen,
It may well prevent a few wars.
And when I am invited to your house,
I promise to stay out of yours.—An Admirer

Dear Ad: Thanks a lot. I had forgotten. It was good of you to remind me.

Confidential to Dead End: The end that is dead is your head, kiddo. Stop wasting time and energy trying to place the blame. No wound will heal if you continue to pick at it.

Nixon Accuses Sam Ervin Of Bid to Usurp Power

SAN CLEMENTE (AP) — President Nixon's personal rejection of broad-scale Senate Watergate committee subpoenas for tapes and documents will stand even if the committee scales down its demands, a White House official has indicated.

Nixon used strong language Friday in telling committee Chairman Sam Ervin by letter: "I can only view your subpoenas as an overt attempt to intrude into the executive to a degree that constitutes an unconstitutional usurpation of power."

Anticipating Nixon's reaction to three subpoenas for nearly 500 tapes and scores of documents, the deputy counsel of the Senate committee, Rufus Edmisten, had predicted the committee would narrow its subpoenas "to the essentials."

But a high administration official who normally reflects Nixon's views said "the redefining should have taken place . . . before they took such an absurd, ridiculous step" as issuing the subpoenas. He said Edmisten's remark showed "total lack of understanding, perspective and respect for the . . . office of the president."

Nixon's letter was released simultaneously with an announcement that he has shaken up his Watergate legal defence staff, criticized recently by Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler as having made some mistakes he attributed to overwork.

To replace Fred Buzhardt as chief of the Watergate legal staff, Nixon named James St. Clair, 53, of Boston, a Harvard lecturer.

Also removed from the handling of Watergate-related legal matters was former Nixon law partner Leonard Garment. Both men were given other high White House appointments. Buzhardt as general counsel to succeed John Dean, fired in April. Garment, who had been acting general counsel, was named an assistant to the president to specialize in cultural affairs, voluntary action programs and civil rights matters.

Nixon wrote Ervin that "to produce the materials you now seek would unquestionably destroy any vestige of confidentiality of presidential communications, thereby irreparably impairing the constitutional functions of the office of the presidency."

He also argued it could impair the work of special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski.

In Washington, Ervin responded that "there is nothing in the Constitution of the United States that gives the president the power to withhold information concerning political activities or information concerning illegal activities," the two areas to which the committee's search for evidence was confined.

Meanwhile, Watergate conspirator Bernard Barker was freed from prison Friday to await the outcome of his appeal.

He said exposure to cold while in prison caused paralysis of the right side of his face, but a prison official says the condition is the temporary side-effect of a Bell's palsy.

Barker, one of five Watergate defendants who pleaded guilty to burglary, conspiracy and wiretapping in the break-in of Democratic party headquarters, has served a little more than a year of a sentence that was to run 18 months to six years.

Barker said the paralysis, diagnosed as Bell's palsy, was caused by exposure to cold a week or 10 days ago while he was digging a ditch at Eglin Air Force Base in Florida, where he was imprisoned.

However, Marion Lacy, assistant prison superintendent, said, "the doctor said it was a side effect of a head cold and it didn't require hospitalization."

"It's not a permanent thing."

In Washington, reporters asked Barker whether he would participate in the Watergate burglary now, He replied:

"I believe today that nothing has shown me any different from the things I believed. I was recruited for the service of my country and I could never refuse that service."

Barker is the third Watergate defendant to be freed pending appeal. Howard Hunt, who recruited Barker and three others for the June 17, 1972 break-in, was released Wednesday and James McCord has been free on $5,000 bond.

Two Die in Explosion

VANCOUVER (CP) — The search resumed today for the bodies of at least two persons killed when a marine fueling barge exploded and burned Friday in Vancouver's Coal Harbor.

The 36-year-old wooden barge used to refuel pleasure boats and small commercial vessels such as fishing boats, was owned by Home Oil Distributors Ltd., a subsidiary of Imperial Oil Ltd.

Stanley Knapp, Home Oil consumer sales manager, said it wasn't known how many people were aboard "but there was an operator and probably at least one person on the pleasure boat."

One of the victims was identified as John Bannerman Campbell, 46, of North Vancouver who worked on the barge.

Some witnesses said there may have been a second small boat tied to the barge.

A Home spokesman said the barge tanks had a capacity of 60,000 gallons of fuel—including diesel oil, gasoline and stove oil.

Police said the barge tanks were about one-third full.

Intense heat from the blaze blistered paint and broke windows on the Exso barge 100 yards south and the Standard barge 100 yards north in the row of four fuel barges.

Also moored Kcast of the 86-foot tug Lawrence L and his crew raced a quarter mile to about six minutes and risked their lives to attach a steel cable to the blazing barge and pull it away from other barges.

Attendance Doubled

Glanmore House Packs 'em In

By PETER GOODSPEED
Staff Reporter

It's dated, it's grey but it's interesting.

Glanmore House, the Hastings County Museum, is well on its way to becoming one of the most popular tourist and general interest spots in Belleville.

In the six months since its opening last July, more than 6,000 history buffs have toured the Bridge Street museum.

That is nearly double the number for previous yearly attendance figures at museums in Belleville.

Museum curator Marion Lewis, said yesterday that 6,429 people have caught the nostalgic bug and toured the museum since it opened its doors to the public last July 1.

"In the first six months of Glanmore's existence, we have surpassed all year-long attendance records for previous museums in Belleville," Mr. Lewis said. "I think the maximum attendance figure for other museums was something like 3,500 visitors. If we can keep presenting the public with interesting exhibits, I think we could see as many as 10,000 people coming here this year and with a little bit of luck we might even be able to double the present attendance figures next year."

If the museum continues to play host to the special tour groups who visit Belleville each year, it shouldn't take a great deal of effort to meet those attendance projections.

Last year the museum was host to 82 special tour groups in the evenings and, since September, 45 groups of school children have visited the museum.

Now that the boards of education in Hastings County pay yearly dues, to the historical society, the number of school tours could increase greatly, Mr. Lewis said. All school groups in the County can visit the museum without having to pay an admission charge.

By far the largest number of people to visit the museum this year, however, were the 1,099 history buffs from the Belleville area who attended the historical society's Christmas celebration during the two weeks before Christmas Eve.

Basing their exhibits and special entertainment features on the theme of a Victorian Christmas, the historical society provided Belleville residents with two weeks of free horse and buggy rides, a special series of marionette performances for children in the Paul Lamp Room, and a series of caroling sessions.

This year, the museum staff hopes to expand their special events calendar. At present they are in the process of putting the final touches to a series of special exhibits and entertainment features for the coming months.

When Belleville's community television station comes on the air, sometime later this month, the historical society will have its own television series, Quinte Heritage. Using a portable television outfit consisting of a small hand-held camera that also picks up voice tracks while it records a picture, the Collective Quinte people and the historical society expect to wander about the county talking to people with some knowledge of the area's history and traditions.

"The series will provide the historical society with an informal and flexible approach to historical research," Mr. Lewis said. "Rather than have dead artifacts — things that you simply talk about — we will talk to people who actually used them. There are so many people in this area who have so much to say about these things that it is really tremendously exciting."

In addition to the television program, the historical society has added a special French Day at the museum on Jan. 26. Students from Quinte Secondary School will provide French Canadian residents of the area with guided tours in the French language.

In February the museum will open an exhibit in the Breakfast Room that will feature a display of life-size, realistic dioramas of shore and non-diving birds of the world.

The dioramas, made by Charles P. Duesberry, of Belleville, will feature 16 different varieties of birds, most of which are found in the Belleville area.

In March, another display, depicting the development and use of "Horse Power" in Belleville, will be opened in the Barn area of the basement at Glanmore House.

April will see a special display of sketches of Belleville Churches being unveiled at the Museum on Easter Sunday and in June Mr. Lewis hopes to have a special exhibit commemorating the 21st anniversary of Queen Elizabeth II's coronation.

Trenton Lands 3 LIP Grants

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Three approvals have been received for Trenton area Local Initiatives Projects, The Intelligencer has learned.

A Canada Manpower spokesman said the three accepted programs would provide some 13 jobs and slightly more than $28,000 in payroll over a combined 744 man-weeks.

These totals represent only a small fraction compared to the total of applications. A record 18 local groups applied for LIP funding this year and asking for a total of $320,000.

The three programs are: the Quinte Handicapped and Recreation Club — $11,760; the Citizens Bureau, new established in Belleville. — $9,360; and the Conseconn Recreation and Picnic Grounds program — $7,358.

John Cote, representing the Trenton manpower office, said all approved groups have been notified and projects should be starting soon. Final contractual arrangements still must be made between applicants and the program's federal sponsors.

According to the spokesman this choice of approvals is final and said there will be no extensions for programs once the money runs out.

In the past, if projects were deemed worthwhile and no other form of funding could be obtained, the government in several instances extended funding to Quinte area projects.

Mr. Cote said groups should be receiving the money immediately to begin their projects. Many of the organizations became concerned in late fall if any projects at all would be approved.

The manpower spokesman said he did not think there was a cut-off date when programs had to end, relieving the pressure of late starts and too little time to use all the money.

Friday Alarm Box

Friday, Jan. 4, 11:41 a.m., faulty space heater, 322 Pinnacle St., no damage.

Friday, 12:02 p.m. faulty motor in a clothes dryer at 18 Strathcona St., no damage.

Friday, 2.25 p.m. false service call while furnace being refit at 8 Stanley Park Dr., no damage.

Museum Tours Popular

Marten Lewis, the curator of the Hastings County Museum, Glanmore House, announced Friday some of the plans he has for the Bridge Street museum in the coming year. Last year, the museum proved to be one of the most popular spots in Belleville with more than 6,000 visitors coming to see the late-Victorian showcase. Here Mr. Lewis points out some of the interesting features of the second floor library to a group of people who just popped in to spend a few minutes at the museum.

Citizens' Bureau Fate Unsure

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

The fate of Belleville's controversial Citizens Bureau hangs in the balance with the announcement of a new bureau opening in Trenton under the sponsorship of a Local Initiatives Project grant.

Belleville's director Bill Hockley said today the Trenton LIP grant and the shaky performance of the Quinte Help Fund, which has pledged to bail out the Belleville bureau, are the two factors that dictate the local bureau's future.

The federal government has approved a $9,000 grant for the Quinte District Labor Council for the formation of the Trenton bureau. Both labor council and Canada Manpower sources are saying Mr. Hockley will be program director — but he isn't sure.

Mr. Hockley, responsible for bringing the bureau concept to the area a year ago, said he hoped both bureaus could operate but his financial security would govern where he was going to work.

"Where I work will depend on what I'm offered and how I assess the situation," he said. "Right now, it's up in the air.

"In Trenton they'll have to start right from scratch and I have to give it a lot of consideration.

"There's room to question whether I'll be/ve Belleville," said Mr. Hockley.

Looking at the Belleville office, the Quinte Help Fund has gone on record saying it will subsidize the operation and unsuccessful approaches have been made to get Mr. Hockley on payroll.

To accommodate the expense of the bureau, the fund organizers began their ticket sales at December. Mr. Hockley described the month a poor one and says January won't be much better.

He's looking for February to be the month where the Help Fund can determine if they have the business to support the bureau.

According to Doug Sword of the Labor Council, to run a three-man bureau on a yearly basis, sponsors would need a minimum of $20,000.

Monies collected by the fund — rather than being applied to a salary — have been diverted to a publicity campaign. Leaflets are being produced to advertise the prize of the draw and the proposed sponsorship of the bureau.

Mr. Sword, intending to hire Mr. Hockley as director for the Trenton operation, says he hopes the Belleville bureau continues. He says finding office space and staff are his two pressing problems at this time.

Mr. Hockley says the expense of travel and limited funds for the Trenton operation make his decision difficult and he doesn't cross out the possibility of finding a totally separate career and devote spare time to the bureau here.

No job decision will be made soon, either before next week when the Trenton operation begins by February when the Help Fund knows how it stands, or when a better job opportunity comes along.

Tweed Gets New Chief

TWEED — Robert Gagne, a native of Timmons, Ontario, has been appointed Chief Constable of the Tweed (Village) Police Department.

Mr. Gagne began his police career with the Gagnon Municipal Police Department in Labrador.

He spent 7½ years as a member of the Timmons Police Force, before joining the Mississauga Police Force.

Mr. Gagne is married, has a wife, Lilliane and two sons.

Markets Robbed

PICTON — Town police today are investigating two breakins at local food markets.

Constable Ronald Roblin of the Picton police department said that a rear door of Vince's Farmers' Market on Bridge Street had been forced open as a thief or thieves gained entry to the building. A quantity of cigarettes was taken.

The door was discovered shortly after 1 a.m. today.

The front entrance to Stark's Meat Market also was forced open sometime before 3 a.m. by a person or persons who used a knife to slash open a number of packaged goods, such as cake mix. Damage was reported missing from a cash register and a can kept on a shelf in the store.

Helping Hand

The Salvation Army has always been an organization that is willing to help others. In a time of rapidly rising prices the help they offer the poor and the unfortunate takes on an added importance. Once a week the Army's citizens hold a rummage sale at their hall on Station St. to help people with large families to clothe themselves. Here, Envoy Mary Townsend and Mrs. Elsie Johnson, two members of the Salvation Army, arrange some of the clothes that were on sale at Friday's sale. The rummage sale is held every Friday from 10 a.m. to 12 p.m.

It may not be NHL style, but road hockey is just as absorbing to small fry as the big leagues are to their elders. And it only takes two players to get a rousing after-school game going. Darren Portt, right, and friend tangle in front of the net in young Canada's favorite winter pastime.

Queen's Park Yields on Time Issue

By LENNY WILLIAMSON

The decision against putting Ontario on daylight saving time in winter proves that you can fight Queen's Park and win.

A major factor in the cabinet's decision to stick with standard time was the opposition of rural school boards, said Provincial Treasurer John White. With the exception of airlines and radio and television companies, most people were indifferent to daylight saving time.

Except school boards, especially those that send a majority of pupils to school by bus.

Children clustered along some seemingly country roads are a nightmare to trustees at any time — they are sitting ducks for an out-of-control or careless driver. The thought of children clustered along the road in pitch darkness sent trustees to Queen's Park in full fury.

School buses begin their runs at about 7:30 when light is beginning to show in the east. (The sun rose today at about 7:50). The major part of a bus's run can be accomplished in daylight. But if the clock had been moved ahead an hour, buses would have picked up their loads before the sun was up.

The saving of an hour of daylight at the end of the day makes little difference in rural areas. The run is setting during the early part of this month at about 4:50, after most children have been delivered home.

The Globe and Mail, with a city dweller's insensitivity toward rural areas, takes a dim view of the government's decision. It means that city drivers won't get an extra hour of light during the evening rush hour and city youngsters will have to drag their sleepy home from the park in the dusk. It ignores the safety hazard for rural children with a glib remark about farmers rod their cows - - - an issue that died year ago.

As trustee Rev. Louis Caparelli of Maytooh remarked at the separate school board meeting that sent trustees' objections to Toronto: "Daylight saving in winter is not practical in northern country."

The amount of electricity burned in the morning as children are readied for school in the dark would make a mockery of energy saving. Even the battery power expended on school bus lights would increase with pre-dawn runs on daylight saving time.

New Cable

Hugh McMullen Construction is now installing new TV conduit for Bell Telephone to service the Hastings Drive loop in the city's east end. Elwood Corey guides a piece of the new cable into place during the construction project. Excavation and cable-laying was formerly a warm-weather activity, but Bell has recently moved to winter work to service its customers.

Tax Tab Up

TRENTON — Trenton's 1974 capital budget is presently being struck with the latest addition being the unexpected renovation costs to four old municipal offices.

The federal government has announced it will not be providing the anticipated Local Initiatives Program funds for labor costs in the renovating job and its going to cost Trenton taxpayers 50 cents a head.

Town council applied for the funds several months ago once the deal to rent the offices to the Quinte District Planning Board had been finalized.

Only three programs of the 18 submitted from the Trenton area were approved by the federal government. According to a Canada Manpower spokesman, the town's renovating scheme was out one of them.

The job has been estimated at about $21,000, of which slightly more than $9,000 could have been picked up by LIP funds which cover labor costs. Capital improvements must be borne by the town.

The loss of federal support will result in a dollar or half of a mill to local taxpayers.

Work has already begun on the project and according to town treasurer Brian Fagan, the loss of support is disappointing but won't hinder completion of the job. The capital budget has not yet been approved or even discussed in council and the additional cost can be included.

Bruins Pad Lead in NHL East

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

While Montreal Canadiens attempted to settle quietly an internal dispute, Boston Bruins padded their lead in the National Hockey League's East Division here Friday night with a 6-3 victory over New York Rangers.

The victory gave Bruins an eight-point bulge on the second place Canadiens and left Rangers in a tie for third place with Toronto Maple Leafs. The Leafs, however, have a game in hand.

There were no other games Friday. Tonight Vancouver Canucks visit Montreal, St. Louis play the Kings in Los Angeles, the Bruins are at New York Islanders, Buffalo Sabres are guests of Pittsburgh Penguins, Philadelphia Flyers go to Minnesota North Stars and California Golden Seals are at St. Louis Blues.

Sunday, the Rangers are hosts to Atlanta Flames, the North Stars travel to Detroit for an afternoon encounter with the Red Wings, Vancouver is at Buffalo and California plays at Chicago.

"After a good save," said Boston goaltender Gilles Gilbert, "you can see your team start to get stronger."

"It was our best game in months," said Bruins' defenceman Bobby Orr who wrapped it up with the 78th of the season and 200th of his career.

"Those two quick goals changed the whole game around," said Rangers' coach Larry Popein. "That was all the game proved."

That and some big saves by Gilbert.

Boston centre Phil Esposito failed to get a goal but remained well in front in the scoring race by picking up an assist. He has 76 points, 14 ahead of runner-up Orr.

Meanwhile, at the Forum in Montreal, Canadiens' coach Scotty Bowman took a low-key approach to the feud that has developed between him and veteran defenceman Jacques Laperriere.

Laperriere, 32, and a regular member of the Canadiens since 1963, said there was "no way" he could stay with the team through the season if relations between the two men did not improve.

Bowman is reported to have told Laperriere after Canadiens' 8-4 loss in St. Louis Wednesday that "you're finished, hang up your skates—don't ruin your life and don't try to ruin mine."

However, Bowman said Friday, "I think Laperriere's record speaks for itself as does mine. It's pretty hard to keep them all happy at the same time."

Whalers Going Nowhere But Up

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rumors of a move to a new location often seem to have an unsettling affect on the players of a hockey team. Not so with New England Whalers of the World Hockey Association.

The Whalers, leaders of the East Division by four points, were unruffled Friday after they defeated the West Division's third-place Winnipeg Jets 4-3.

In the only other game, Edmonton Oilers were upset 4-3 on the West Coast by Los Angeles Sharks. The loss left the Oilers two points behind first-place Houston Aeros, as they remained in a tie with the Jets.

In tonight's action, Vancouver Blazers play the Northguns in Quebec City, the Aeros visit New Jersey Knights, the Whalers go to Cleveland to play the Crusaders and Minnesota Fighting Saints visit Chicago Cougars.

On Sunday, Edmonton plays in Minnesota, Winnipeg is at Houston, New Jersey visits Toronto, Chicago plays in Quebec and Vancouver is at Cleveland.

The Whalers got second-period goals from Hugh Harris, John French and Tom Webster and then stayed off a Winnipeg rally in the final 20 minutes.

New England goaltender Bill Berglund, playing his first WHA game, stopped 15 shots, as his team-mates helped out with defensive wall. Berglund was called up from Jacksonville Barons of the American Hockey League because of injuries to regular netminders Al Smith and Bruce Langdon.

Earlier in the day, Howard Baldwin, president of the Whalers, said a report that the team plans to move to Hartford Conn., is, at the best, premature.

"There isn't any denying that Hartford has been in contact with the Whalers," Baldwin said, "but our interest in Hartford at this point has been in discussion of exhibition games, plus a partial allotment of regular season games because of the date problems that have existed for the Whalers at Boston Garden.

"At this time it is our intention to play the bulk of our regular games in Boston as we are confident that our dates in the future will be more desirable."

Los Angeles 4 Edmonton 3

The last-place Sharks yielded first when a 2-0 lead on goals by Rusty Patenaude and Ron Climie, then rallied for victory when a power play and two-goal performance of Marc Tardif climaxed a two-goal man for the losers.

The Sharks broke a five-game losing streak and Coach Ted McCaskill says it came not a moment too soon.

"It's about time," he said.

The Sharks, besides losing five in a row, had lost seven of their last eight games going against Edmonton.

"We worked hard on our power plays in practice this week and it paid off," McCaskill said of the two goals the Sharks scored while the Oilers were shorthanded.

"Maybe we'll start cheering up the fans after we've been playing hard.

"We have a long row to hoe," he said, "but the guys know we can do it."

THE SLAP SHOT

No matter how often coaches and hockey players such as myself advise against the use of the slap shot, every minor hockey player tries to master it.

The fact is youngsters are not strong enough plus their failure to keep their stick blade on the slap shot the hardest shot to actually learn. If very few pros can use a slap shot accurately, why do youngsters seem to think they can do it?

We do not want to teach kids the slap shot but since they all try it on their own, we feel we have to instruct them as best we can. Besides, the instruction can be directed my way; if the slap shot is bad, why I'm not to afraid.

Simply because I am a defenceman stationed on the point it's a must that I use to have a good slap shot. But if I move up 25 feet closer I always use a wrist shot because a low, hard wrist shot could result in a goal for me and gives one of my teammates a better chance of deflecting the puck.

For a slap shot, your hands should be slightly lower on the stick than for a wrist shot. Do not take a full swing at the puck, another weakness we spot among youngsters. Raising the stick well above your head or kicking your legs up in the air really will do little to improve your shot.

As a matter of fact, many times you cause a fault or a slap shot when a back checker pokes his puck away or knocks the shooter down during the big wind up.

Your weight is important in a slap shot as most of it should be on your front leg. The puck is not hoisted up in the air, but shot low, rather your are either on top of it or a little behind the puck.

Do not strike the ice too early because if you do, you will lose a lot of momentum. Instead, stick to wicking on the wrist shot.

Bobcats Win 8-4

Oshawa Lead is Short Lived

By MIKE BRADSHAW
Sports Staff

The Oshawa Legionaires had a 1-0 lead in last night's Metro Junior B game against the Belleville Bobcats, but the slightness of the lead could really be compared to the length of time that the Oshawa margin actually lasted.

Belleville fell behind at the 19 second mark of the first period, when Oshawa's Craig MacLeod scored. Unfortunately for the visiting Legionaires, the Cats tied the score back up just two minutes later and fired seven more goals before the visitors' netminder, Rick Walpole, to win 8-4.

Brian Cousins, a high scoring Bobcat last year, came up with his best scoring output since his return to the locals' lineup. Cousins tallied a pair of markers and added two assists.

Brian was justly rewarded for his offensive efforts, being voted the game's first star. His abilities weren't strictly limited to offense however, as defensively Cousins was one of the many forwards who stood out.

The Cats were short handed five times, with Cousins used on the penalty killing unit on all occasions. The Legionaires didn't score a single time while the locals were short staffed.

Belleville's front lines not only did the scoring, but they found themselves doing most of the defensive work also.

Six defencemen started the game for the Bobcats. Approximately two finished the 60 minutes of hockey with any resemblance of defencemen at all.

"I'm not going to criticize them," said Bobcat coach, Moe Hunter referring to his d-fensive corps. "they've played too many good games."

The remaining four defencemen will go unnamed for their regretable displays this time.

Mark Coates, third star of the contest, played his usually outstanding game, offensively and defensively, leading a forechecking attack and backchecking fervently.

Coates' linemates, Kip Acton and John Sergeant, weren't far behind him in their performances and team captain Rob Foster also demonstrated his regular consistency in a two-way game.

The contest itself, and on before 1100 fans, started out to be one of the fastest of the season. For the first ten minutes of the opening period, both teams skated end-to-end. After that, most of the game left much to be desired.

"I guess we only play as hard as we have to" commented coach Hunter. That statement sums up the whole game. Belleville really only played a total of 20 minutes out of the entire, 60.

Even without the appearance of defencemen in front of him, Bob Moore, the Belleville goalie stopped 39 of the Legionaires' 43 shots on net. His counterpart, Rick Walpole, who found himself in much the same predicament as Moore, managed only to stop 45 of the Bobcats' 53 shots.

By the end of the opening 20 minutes it was 2-1 in favor of Belleville on tallies by Rob Foster and Brian Cousins.

The middle period saw the Cats pull in front 4-2, as Dave Taylor and Norm Jones scored for the locals, while Jeff Rorsbeck, the games second star, singled for Oshawa.

Third Period action saw the Bobcats outscore their opponents 4-2, and round off the scoreboard at 8-4, Belleville.

Andy Ricketts cashed in at the 4:35 mark and the Cats added three more in the final six minutes. Cousins, Kevin Joudrey and Mark Coates got numbers six, seven and eight.

For the visitors, Dave McKee and Jim Dulgnan did the honors in the final 20 minutes.

On Sunday, the Cats travel to Markham to try to make it two in a row over the Royals.

Brian Cousins (20) came through with a strong offensive, and defensive game for the Belleville Bobcats last night, as the locals won their Metro Junior B encounter with the Oshawa Legionaires 8-4. Cousins, who captured the first star honors of the contest, scored the first of his two goals on an impressive second effort, here, in the first period. Brian also added a pair of assists to his scoring output to help the Cats to their fourth straight victory. The win put Belleville in second spot in the Metro standings.

Quinte Gets 3 Wins

Quinte's Secondary School had three good team efforts last night, as all of their school representative teams picked up victories against Moira Secondary in Basketball encounters at Quinte.

The Saints seniors dumped Moira 89-37, the Quinte juniors beat the visiting juniors 66-40 and the QSS midgets trounced the Moira midgets 70-28.

In the senior contest, Mark Gallupe led the way for the Saints, hooping 24 points. The win gave the team a record of 13 and 1 for the season, tops in the division. Ken McTaggart and Terry Collins had 16 each for the Saints, while Peter Vos got 13.

Steve McCracken was high scorer for the Quinte juniors, with 15. Scott Gallupe, 13, and Bob Wallbridge with 10 were next on Saints gunning list.

For Moira, Dan Gutoskie hit for 12 points. Next to him Scott Sisson. Alec Olav son and Mike Kirby each fired 10.

Statistics were not available for the midget game.

Perfect Check

Quinte's Terry Collins (22) puts a perfect check on Moira's Mike Meagher attempting to hoop a two pointer in last night's Bay of Quinte Basketball game played at Quinte. Collins just put his hand on the ball in time to prevent the Moira forward from making the shot. It seems there were a few other shots from the Moira team blocked during the game as well, as the Saints came up with an 89-37 win over the Trojans.

IN MEMORIAM

ROBLESKE — In loving memory of a dear husband, father and friend, passed away January 8, 1972.
Sadly missed by wife Ann.
It's a year to-day since he left us,
And those who think of him is few.
Only those
Who have lost
The truest friend they ever knew.

JOHNSON — In loving memory of our dear mother and grandmother Ida Mae Johnson, who passed away January 7th, 1972.
The time has flown so much in many ways
We miss the things you used to say.
We miss the things you used to do
It's time to see you most of all.
—Always remembered by son Gordon and family, daughter Gail and grandchildren George, Judy, Annie and Gordon.

PULFORD — In loving memory of a dear husband, father and friend, Arthur Pulford, who passed away three years to-day.
Three years have passed
Since you're gone
Your time I'd have you on.
Many sorrows
Have I gone through
Since you left me
Alone and blue.
But I may walk the same,
Or pursue my path
Sorrowfully
Each busy day call your name,
Lovingly remembered by wife Lovella.

PULFORD — In loving memory of a dear husband, father and friend, Arthur Pulford, who passed away three years to-day.
Remembrance is a golden chain,
That links those we love to us.
So love, it never can be lost,
While memory of God's back.
The years may wipe out many things,
But this they wipe out never,
The memory of those happy days,
When we were together.
—Sadly missed by son Mel, daughter and family.

PUTMAN, Edith — In loving memory of our dear mother and grandmother, who died January 8th, 1972 and sweet Mary, 1962.
Until as you were you will always be Treasured forever in our memory.
Sadly missed by son Jack and Arthur, Jim and their families.

IN MEMORIAM

ELLSWORTH, Laura — In loving memory of our dear mother, who died one year ago to-day.
She is gone but not forgotten,
Her memory will never die,
Her smile, her laughter, her kindness,
Thoughts of her are always near.
Sadly missed and always remembered by daughter Mary Hulbert, Nathan Andrew, January 19th, 1972.

COWLEY — In loving memory of my dear husband George who passed away Jan. 7, 1972.
Though his smile is gone forever,
And his face we cannot see,
Memories of his kindness
Are the ones I love so much.
Sadly missed and always remembered by wife Irene.
Love Roger, Peter-Lang.

MONTGOMERY — In loving memory of my dear Dorcas who passed away January 7th, 1972.
Sadly missed and always remembered by husband Harry, Nathan Andrew, January 19th, 1972.

COWLEY — In loving memory of my dear husband George who passed away Jan. 7, 1972.
To lose your voice was your desire,
To lose your life was your wish,
You have been a sufferer
Therein him with care.
Your pain is over,
Your heart is still,
But you see his empty chair.
Sadly missed by wife Irene.
Gloria, Ron and George.

Monday, Jan. 7

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Aries (March 21-April 19) Try to make financial decisions on your own. Your mate or partner will have other ideas about how certain funds should be spent.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) You're likely to bite off more than you can chew today; particularly workwise. A task you'll begin will prove difficult to complete.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) Manage your money with extra care the next few days. You have a tendency to be wasteful or take financial risks at this time.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) Activities outside the home will be far more appealing than domestic responsibilities. Something you'll neglect will irk a family member.

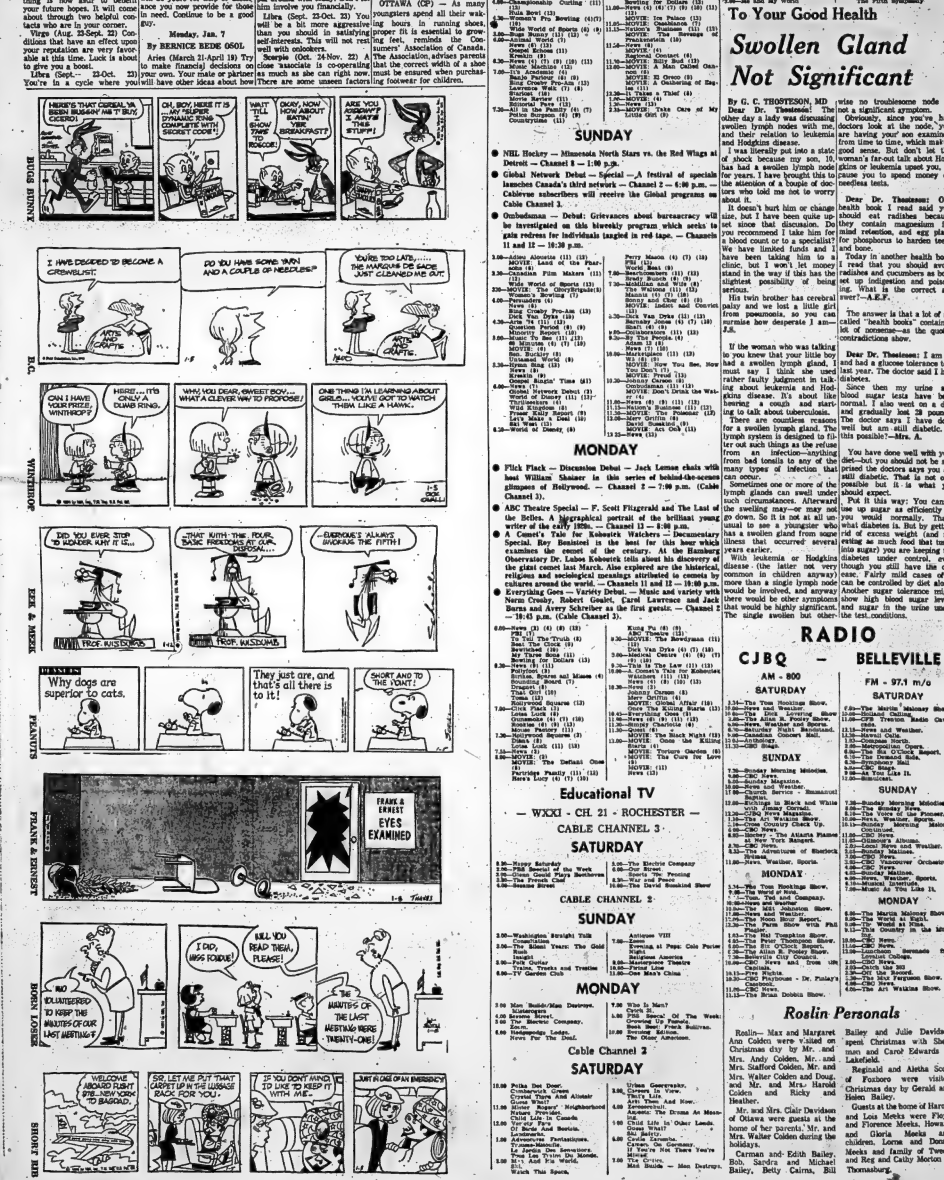
Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) You're overly sensitive regarding your ideas. Should someone challenge them, you are likely to blow up in their person ed.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) A free spirit you're friend will prove a trifle too expensive to pal around with today. Don't let them involve your finances badly.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You will be a bit more aggressive than you should in satisfying self-interests. This will not rest well with others.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) A close associate is co-operating as much as she can right now. There are some unseen factors that restrict her.

Sagittarius, (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Keep a weather eye peeled in any area where you share a joint interest. Something underhanded is going on you don't know about.



Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Any bargains you enter into today will require more than enthusiasm from the other party. Be sure you're in harmony about goals.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Work done today should be performed because you take pride in it, not because you feel you have to do it to impress a thankless taskmaster.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) You're apt to feel a bit censorious. That's fine, so long as it doesn't lead you down a path you shouldn't tread.

Swollen Gland Not Significant

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: The last other day a lady was discussing her swollen lymph nodes with me, and their relation to leukemia and Hodgkins disease.

I was injected once into a state of shock because my son, 10, has had a swollen lymph node for years. I have hoped in vain to get the attention of a couple of doctors who told me not to worry about it.

It doesn't hurt him or change size, but I have been quite upset since that discussion. Do you recommend I take him for a blood count or to a specialist? We have limited funds, and I have been taking him to a clinic, but I won't let money stand in the way if that has the slightest possibility of being serious.

His twin brother has cerebral palsy and we lost a little girl from pneumonia, so you can surmise how desperate I am—A.S.

If the woman who was talking to you knew that your little boy had a swollen lymph gland, I must say I marvel at her rather faulty judgment in talking about leukemia and Hodgkins disease. It's about like hearing a cough and starting to talk about tuberculosis.

There are countless reasons for a swollen lymph gland. The lymph system is designed to filter out such things as the system from an infection—anything from bad toenails to any of the many types of infection that can occur.

Sometimes one or more of the lymph glands can swell under such circumstances. Afterward the swelling may—or may not go down. So it is not at all unusual to see a youngster who has a swollen gland from some illness that occurred months or years earlier.

With leukemia or Hodgkins disease (the latter not very common in children anyway) more than a single lymph node would be involved, and anyway there would be other symptoms that would be highly significant. The single swollen but otherwise no troublesome node is not a significant symptom.

Frankly, since you've had doctors look at the node, you and your son examined from time to time, which makes good sense. But I don't let the woman's far-out talk about Hodgkins or leukemia upset you, or cause you to spend money on needless tests.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: One health book I read said you should eat radishes because they contain magnesium for blood retention, and egg shells for phosphorus to harden teeth and bone.

Today in another health book I read that you should avoid radishes and cucumbers as both set up indigestion and poisoning. What is the correct answer?—A.E.F.

The answer is that a lot of so-called "health books" contain a lot of nonsense about the quoted contradictions show.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 64 and had a glucose tolerance test which showed I had mild diabetes.

Since then my urine and blood sugar tests have been normal. I also went on a diet and gradually lost 28 pounds. The doctor says I have done very well am still diabetic. Is this possible?—Mrs. A.

You have done well with your diet—but you should not be surprised the doctor says you are still diabetic. That is not only possible but is what you should expect.

Put it this way: You cannot use up sugar as efficiently as you would normally. That's what diabetes is. But by getting rid of excess weight (and not eating as much food that turns into sugar) you are keeping the diabetes under control, even though you still have the disease. Fairly mild cases often can be controlled by diet alone. Another sugar tolerance might show high blood sugar levels and sugar in the urine under the test conditions.

Opening lead—Q♠

By Oswald and James Jacoby

Every book on play gives a table to show what card should be led from various high-card combinations. These tables are just about the same as you would have found in auction books 50 years ago, but that doesn't mean that modern experts have not been experimenting with new leads. Most of these new leads have both advantages and disadvantages and the difference is not enough to warrant changing.

Today's hand shows one exception. The book lead from the West hand is the king of spades. The modernists lead the queen. He would also lead the queen from queen-jack-ten or nine but the confusion is not going to worry his partner. If East doesn't hold the ace or jack his play won't matter. If he holds the ace he can put it up; lead his suit back and force the declarer's jack.

He knows that his partner has led from king-queen-10 and drops the jack whereupon West has no problem continues the suit; sets it up and defeats the contract.

Of course, he could get the same result with the king lead. East might play the jack any way. Or if East played the three, West might still continue spades.

If you want to use this convention make sure that your partner will understand it; also have either a six-card suit or the nine foot so your partner can afford to get rid of the jack if he has it.

V+CARD Special

The bidding has been: — 1

Pass	2♥	Pass	3♦
Pass	4♠	Pass	?

You, South, hold:

What do you do now?

A — We recommend a pass, but if you are ambitious you might bid four notrump, intending to ask for a partner hoist two aces.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of bidding two hearts your partner has bid two spades. Now you bid six diamonds. What do you do now?

Oil Deal Made

France to Sell Arms t o Arabia

PARIS (Reuter) — France has reached an agreement with Saudi Arabia to buy 800 million tons of crude oil in the next 20 years, French officials said today.

In turn, the French will sell Mirage-jet aircraft and heavy arms to Saudi Arabia.

An average of 40 million tons of oil will be shipped to France yearly, the officials said.

The officials said France also is seeking to link Arab oil-producing countries in major development schemes, including the distribution, marketing and refining of oil.

French Foreign Minister Michel Jobert is due to pay an official visit to Saudi Arabia this month when he is expected to sign the oil pact.

Further details of the deal were not disclosed.

The agreement reflects President Georges Pompidou's desire to work with the Arab oil countries without giving grounds for Arab fears that the major Western countries are ganging up against them to reduce soaring oil prices.

France believes there is room for considerable improvement in U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger's proposal for the principal oil-producing countries to band together with the major oil-consuming countries in an effort to avert a global depression, French officials said.

The French government is studying the Kissinger proposal, but consider it insufficient, they said.

French officials said their government is pushing ahead with its plans to deal with the Arab oil-producing countries directly, avoiding as much as possible the international oil companies or any other go-between.

They believe that the oil crisis and spiralling prices can be discussed and resolved more effectively in small groups.

The finance ministers of the United States, Britain, France, West Germany and Japan have already started such talks.

As part of E Peropidenat' policy to assist the Arab countries' economic development, French engineering companies will shortly start building petrochemical industries in Kuwait and Abu Dhabi, major suppliers of oil to France.

Motorized Roundup

Not too many years ago this scene would have been a rarity with the saddlehorse being the faithful retainer for rounding up the cattle. Farmers and ranchers now, however, are making increasing use of motorized transport to take care of such chores, and even the cows have grown used to the change on this farm east of Saskatoon. Faulkner Quits Unionists BELFAST (AP) — Brian Faulkner announced his resignation today as leader of the Unionist party. He remains chief executive of the Northern Ireland government.

His decision followed last week's decisive defeat in his party's council of his policies of power-sharing with the Roman Catholic minority.

Friends said they expect him to seek to set up a new grouping of moderate Protestants built around his supporters in the Northern Ireland Assembly.

Teachers Want Right to Strike

TORONTO (CP) — The executive council of Ontario's 34,000 high school teachers will be asked later this month to make the right to strike a "priority" issue with the provincial government, Donald Dinsmore said Sunday.

Mr. Dinsmore, president of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation (OSSTF), said a questionnaire will be sent this week to federation members asking how far they are willing to go in an effort to influence the government on the issue of collective bargaining rights.

He said the survey will be considered at a policy-making council meeting Jan. 19.

Among other things, the survey will ask whether teachers are willing to take part in a province-wide walkout.

"I'm kind of leery we have to make the right to strike a priority," Mr. Dinsmore said. "But it has to be in the light of the attitude of Education Minister Thomas Wells toward mass resignation by teachers."

In September, 1973, the executive council decided its priority was the right to negotiate working conditions.

The change would bring the OSSTF into line with the four other teacher affiliates of the Provincial Teachers' Federation (OTF).

Mr. Dinsmore said long-term negotiations dealing with teachers' collective bargaining is objectionable on several counts.

Among objections are including teachers as a so-called essential service, imposing compulsory arbitration on free collective bargaining in the absence any deadline on arbitrators, and government's insistence on two-year contracts.

Britain's Troubles Boost Production

LONDON (AP) — "It's a crisis, we we will weather it," said Tom Barnsley, a bicycle manufacturer whose firm employs 10,000 men.

Barnsley said despite the three-day work week Britain went on last week to save electricity, his Raleigh industries kept production up to 75 per cent. It switched all available power to the production line while the office staff worked without electric light or heat.

Stephens Belling, a small engineering firm in the industrial Midlands, kept up production for five days by operating three machines—a pump, a guillotine cutter and a compressor—by manpower instead of electricity.

"We are only getting 50 per cent output on the two manual days, but without this we would not get," he have had to lay off 56 people in the workshop," said manager Michael Silles.

Jim Samuels, a printer in Saffron Walden, Essex, turned to an 1883 foot-operated treadle press for his two poweriess days. He found it worked fine.

Christmas Lights Cut

TORONTO (CP) — Energy conscious residents of Ontario burned only one-third as much electricity to brighten Christmas trees and outdoor lighting in 1973 as they did the previous year, Ontario Hydro says.

Rebels Attacked

PHNOM PENH (AP) — Cambodian government armor and infantry forces have killed more than 100 Khmer Rouge insurgents in four attacks on a large rebel force five to seven miles northwest of Phnom Penh, military sources said today.

Yen Devalued

TOKYO (AP) — The Japanese government in effect devalued the yen nearly seven per cent today. Prompting the move was the continuing deficit in Japan's balance of payments and the certainty of even greater deficits because of the recent big increase in crude-oil prices.

Dead Men Had Records

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Province says two of the three men killed in an oil barge explosion in Vancouver harbor Friday had lengthy criminal records. But the officer in charge of the investigation by the National Harbors Board said Sunday he knows nothing to indicate anything illegal had been aboard the barge. Sgt. Robert Sharp said that until there is definite evidence to indicate otherwise, the matter will be treated as an accident.

Indians Fight Police

SEPT-ILES, Que. (CP) — Three policemen were injured and five Indians arrested on the Sept-Iles reserve Saturday after a brawl broke out among rival factions. Police said about 50 Indians were involved in the scuffle after the results of elections for a new band council were announced.

Productivity Low

NEW YORK (AP) — Plant maintenance workers spend only 2.6 hours of every eight-hour day productively, says Dana Laverence, president of a management consulting firm, after a study of practices in 35 plants in 13 industries. And while he cited union agreements regarding coffee breaks, cleanup time and the like as one of the major causes, he also blamed poor management practices.

Ritual Stabbing Alleged

DETROIT (AP) — A 16-month-old girl was in critical condition today following what her grandfather described as a ritual stabbing police said. Police quoted the grandfather, Wallace Thompkins, 50, as saying: "There were two glasses of water, a fish and a Bible on the table like they were sacrificing someone." Thompkins, who lives downstairs from the apartment where the girl was found, said he had repeatedly tried to get police to come to the upstairs flat, occupied by April's aunt, Caroline, and her two small children. Thompkins said April and another grandchild arrived a week ago to visit Caroline.

Control Concealed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two Senate subcommittees have charged that control of many of the largest United States corporations is hidden from government regulators and concentrated in the hands of a few institutional investors, especially large banks. In many cases the true identities of the institutional stockholders were hidden behind nominee or street names. "The consequences of this confusing use of nominees in ownership reports to federal regulators is a massive cover-up of the extent to which holdings of stock have become concentrated," the report said.

Israel To Offer Pullback

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Israeli and Egyptian envoys resumed troop-pullback talks in Geneva today amid reports that Israel is preparing an offer to withdraw 18 miles from the Suez canal.

The press reports in Israel and the United States said the Israeli offer will be coupled with a demand that Egypt reduce its troops and armor on the east side of the waterway.

But there was no indication whether the reported Israeli plan was placed on the negotiating table at the Geneva discussions continued between Maj.-Gen. Aharon Yariv of Israel and Col. Dov Sion for Israel, and Brig.-Gen. Taha el-Magdoub and Col. Ahmed Fouad Hwaidi for Egypt.

After about 2½ hours of talks, they broke up for half an hour for consultations. United Nations sources said. This presumably meant checks by telephone with their governments in Tel Aviv and Cairo.

Prof.-Gen. Silvio Silvasvuo, the UN peacekeeping commander who presides over the meetings, said after the session that the officers will meet again Wednesday.

Libya and Iraq Will Demand At Least $20 a Barrel for Oil

GENEVA (CP) — With at least two of its members reported to be asking $20 a barrel for their oil, the 13-country Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) is reviewing "all aspects" of its pricing system.

Oil ministers of OPEC are meeting here today.

Abderrahman Khene of Algeria, OPEC secretary-general, said the meeting will discuss the price producers should charge oil companies.

The OPEC meeting follows a report from the authoritative Middle East Economic Survey that Libya and Iraq are asking at least $20 a barrel for their oil.

The weekly oil news letter said Libya is offering crude oil at $20 a barrel to selected buyers on a take-it-or-leave-it basis and that Iraq is asking $21.50 a barrel for its oil. The survey says bids for crude oil have reached $22.00 a barrel in Nigeria, another OPEC member. A barrel is 35 gallons.

Libya announced last week that it is raising its posted price—the amount on which oil companies are liable for taxes and royalties—to $13.786 a barrel from $9.061.

The six Persian Gulf OPEC members last month raised their price of crude to $11.65 a barrel from $5.11. Algeria is the only OPEC member not to have raised its price. Algerian oil sells for $9.25 a barrel.

Need Reason to Lift Embargo Says Egyptian

NEW YORK (AP) — Egyptian Ambassador-designate Asiraf Ghorbal said Sunday there would have to be a clear reason for the Arab states to lift their oil embargo. He implied that this would be the return by Israel of Arab territories conquered since 1967.

"We do not like the boycott," he said. "We all wish it would stop, but we would also like to have our territories back."

Ghorbal, on the CBS television program Face the Nation broadcast here, said the oil boycott "was meant only to bring a bell load and clear that we are also human beings."

The ambassador-designate, who is in the United States to re-establish full diplomatic relations, reiterated that "we don't have any designs on Israel within its June 5, 1967, borders."

Troops Guard Windsor Castle As Airport Alert Is Extended

LONDON (AP) — British soldiers and police are patrolling the grounds of Windsor Castle, one of the Queen's official residences, in an extension of an alert for terrorists at London's Heathrow Airport about fix weeks away.

The castle is in direct line with the flight paths of many planes using Heathrow and police and troops armed with machine-guns and light tanks have been ordered to surround unprecedented in peacetime Britain.

Army and police chiefs say officially that the operation is only a precaution. But British press reports link it with a report of Arab terrorists believed to have infiltrated into Europe armed with Soviet-made SAM-7 missiles.

The SAM ground-to-air missile has a range of about three miles, and there is speculation that the terrorists plan to attack an airliner in flight near one of Europe's major airports.

The Queen was not in her castle when soldiers arrived in armored cars Sunday to ensure guard. She is staying with other members of the Royal Family more than 100 miles away at Sandringham, another royal residence, in rural Norfolk.

The anti-terrorist clampdown at Heathrow is likely to continue for several days.

Press reports said the alert was ordered late Friday night after a series of reports from the secret services of West European countries said that three SAM missiles have been smuggled into Europe.

The SAM is about five feet long and, dismantled, can be hidden in a suitcase. It is fired from the shoulder, homing in on its target by seeking the heat from the aircraft engine.

SAM missiles were used with considerable effect by the Viet Cong in the latter stages of the Vietnam war and by the Egyptians and Syrians in the Mideast war last year.

The Arab terrorists are believed to have got their SAMs through Libya which helps finance Palestinian guerrilla groups.

Security precautions have also been increased at most British international airports, including those of Amsterdam, Brussels, Rome and Bonn, with paratroops, armored cars or sharpshooters keeping guard.

An Air Canada spokesman said in Montreal that a special security force is under way at all Canadian airports. He said the airline's internal security has been issued an alert bulletin to all operations personnel outlining additional security measures to be taken.

British security sources ruled out a direct connection between the expected attacks and the arrest of members of an alleged arms smuggling ring apparently based in California.

At New York's Kennedy Airport, FBI agents questioned Robin Orsin, 23, a San Diego model stopped and turned back by British authorities at Heathrow Airport. They identified her as a "known associate" of three persons arrested in England earlier and charged with possession of firearms.

Another woman, Theodora Brown, a U.S. Navy veteran, was arrested Saturday at Travis Air Force Base in California in connection with taking Miss Thompson smuggle arms into Britain.

Armor at Airport

Two British army tanks are deployed at London's Heathrow airport to guard against terrorist attacks. "This is part of the contingency plans that have been prepared to deal flith emergencies," Scotland Yard said in a statement. (AP Photo)

The Sidney Township municipal garage was officially opened Saturday night, when Hastings County Warden, Horace Casey, snipped a ribbon strung across one of the garage doors. Assisting the Warden were Reeve Gordon Wilman and Sidney Fire Chief, John Amino. The new garage, originally scheduled to be opened in October, will house the Township's road maintenance equipment and three fire trucks. The opening was delayed by a series of unforeseen strikes and building material shortages during the fall.

Transport Minister Will Release Rail Report

From The Ottawa Bureau Of The Intelligencer

OTTAWA — Transport Minister Jean Marchand told the House of Commons Friday that he has no objection to the release of the Canadian Transport Commission (CTC) report on rail safety by the standing committee on transportation.

The minister's apparently positive response came in answer to a question by Jack Ellis, Conservative MP for Hastings, who enquired if the minister is prepared to send the report to the committee.

The report expressed last week criticizes the two major railways — Canadian National Railways and CP Rail — for not taking all steps reasonable to improve rail safety.

Mr. Ellis noted there have been two further derailments in Eastern Canada since the report came out.

Mr. Marchand noted the report contains a series of good recommendations and said the government should not wait until the committee sits in order to correct what has to be corrected.

The CTC ordered both railways to begin daily checks of the rails and track bed on main lines and said it may order reduction in car loads and rail speeds unless rail safety is improved.

Mr. Marchand also told the House he thinks a suggestion by J. M. Forestall, Conservative MP for Dartmouth-Halifax East, should be looked into very seriously.

Mr. Forestall asked if the minister now believes investigations into air, rail and other transportation accidents might be expected by establishment of an independent Canadian Commission for accident investigation.

Trenton Safety Check Ends in Serious Crash

Trenton— One man was hurt and two police officers had to jump for safety when an automobile smashed into the rear of a halted car here Sunday morning.

The driver of the vehicle which had been stopped by police for a safety check was pinned in the pile-up.

Calvin MacDonald, Short St., Belleville, is in Trenton Memorial Hospital with a fractured leg and pelvis.

The driver of the second car, an airman, was taken to the military hospital at CFB Trenton. He was identified as George Morrison, believed to hold the rank of corporal. Police said he had been charged with impaired driving.

The incident occurred when constables Fred Nokes and Bob Hall stopped the MacDonald vehicle. The officers and the car's owner were standing behind the rear of the automobile when a second car bore down on the scene.

Both constables were slightly injured as they leapt for safety.

Damage to both vehicles and a police cruiser was estimated at $2,00.

Glenora Mill (1797) is Chicken Hatchery

Stone Mill Solid History

GLENORA — A stone mill built in 1797 here is among the historic buildings mentioned in the CORTS (Canada-Ontario - Rideau-Trent-Severn) report as an important structure for preservation.

The mill, located at the foot of Lake-On-The-Mountain, was one of two built by United Empire Loyalist leader Peter Van Alstine. The other was constructed at the top of the mountain. Both were powered by the lake.

Today, the historic stone mill is in use as a privately-owned chicken hatchery. A nearby stone building is operated as a fisheries research station by the Ontario Ministry of Natural Resources.

The CORTS report recommends the Mill "be acquired, should it at any future time be offered for sale.

"These buildings are not only of significance historically, but could be grouped with the structures of the fisheries research station should the latter move to the proposed new hatchery at Bath or to some other location," says the report.

Fair Ferrying

Quinte Loyalist ferry at Glenora has had fair passage so far this winter. Mild weather, along with ice-control bubble system, near docks, are providing a wide channel.

Whig Is the Oldest, 125 Years of News

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Canada's oldest New Year's baby, The Whig-Standard, is celebrating its 125th birthday and lays claim to the title of the Canadian newspaper with the longest continuous record of daily publication.

The Whig-Standard is the direct descendant of The British Whig, which became a daily Jan. 1, 1849.

The newspaper is observing the anniversary modestly today with a tabloid insert as its fourth section.

Publisher Michael Davies, representing the third generation of his family to head the paper, said research by the National Library confirms that The Whig-Standard holds the record of unbroken daily appearance.

Several dailies were published before The Whig-Standard—at least one as early as 1833—but either they reverted to less frequent appearance annually or went out of existence.

The British Whig made its debut as a semi-weekly in 1834 with crusading founder Edward Barry attacking colonial abuses and directly challenging the Family Compact that dominated the government of Upper Canada.

Opponents donned masks and formed mobs to attack him in the streets but The British Whig survived—partly because of Barker's keen business sense in bringing stock market reports to its readers—and it outlived several contemporaries.

The paper remained in the estate of a Barker grandson until 1925 when it was bought by Rupert Davies, a native of Wales. Within a year it was merged with The Daily Standard to form the present paper.

On the death of his partner, Harry B. Muir of London, Ont., in 1929 Mr. Davies bought out his interest. He became a senator in 1942 and retired in 1950.

His son, Arthur Llewellyn Davies, became publisher until 1960 when Arthur Davies' son, Michael, took over. Michael Davies remains publisher, with Mrs. (Bob) Owen—who joined the paper in 1941—as executive editor and acting publisher when Mr. Davies is not at his desk.

In the last 13 years The Whig-Standard has won 18 MacLaren Newspaper Awards for layout and design in various categories.

In the public service field, a fund established in 1964 by the newspaper enables 300 underprivileged children to attend summer camp annually.

Tweed Meeting On County's Official Plan

The meeting will be in the Hungerford township hall and will begin at 8:00 p.m. Its purpose is to acquaint the public with recommendations of the board members and the new county official plan. The plan is not final, and is subject to change following a series of public meetings now being held throughout the county.

Already, the report has run into some opposition here in Tweed. Some residents feel a suggested population increase to 1,900 persons by 1991, is a much too conservative estimate, in view of the fact that the population is now approximately 1,700.

The report also states that Tweed serves as a commercial centre for Hungerford Township and the northern part of Elzevir township. The report failed to note, however, that Tweed derives a great deal of commercial support from the residents of northern sections of Lennox and Addington and Frontenac counties.

One group of concerned citizens have placed an advertisement in the local newspaper urging residents of Hastings County to attend the meeting here.

The Tweed Chamber of Commerce is urging not only its members but all district residents, to attend this important meeting.

Thieves Cut Phone, Take Car in Flight

TRENTON—Brighton provincial police are on the lookout today for at least two males who broke into the residence of former Murray Township reeve Gerald Ross, at RR 1, Trenton.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross said sometime Saturday night or early Sunday morning, someone broke into their home while they were sleeping. The telephone wires were cut and the keys to the family car taken.

Police determined from footprints left in the vicinity of the driveway there were at least two burglars.

Apart from the slashed telephone wires, there was no other damage, according to a report from an OPP spokesman. Police said the wires were "obviously cut to keep anyone from calling for help."

Police are on the lookout for the stolen car — a 1972 Chrysler, with gold body and brown roof. The licence number is ECL 820.

Wandering Pony Killed

Fighting Pollution In '74

Ecology, or the branch of biology that deals with the relations between living organisms and their environment, is a word seized upon in recent years by the environmentalists who themselves are persons of fairly recent growth in the professional and semi-professional spheres. Setting aside the hysteria, politicking, and the spawning of red herrings that on occasions have accompanied their claim to public attention, the very existence of these people does act as a spur to more careful husbanding and care of the world around us.

Some however think they go too far. For instance, Roger Davies, who is editor of Water and Pollution Control magazine, goes so far as to say pollution problems "should grow up." He claims there are "professional protesters" who will oppose anything and are giving legitimate pressure groups a bad name.

Davies (who does not specify who the "legitimate pressure groups" are) says the result is everyone getting confused as to what is an environmental issue and what is not. Thus, any development, whether it is a possible pollution source or not, becomes the target of attack . . ." Many pollution groups, Davies adds, employ 'collegiate antics' that often end up looking ridiculous and alienate the pollution control industry.

* * *

Locally, the persistence of Clarence Young has done much to focus attention on instances of industrial pollution and has led to steps being taken to counter this blight.

But for the public to be left with the impression that municipalities and industries are entirely insensitive to pollution control would be unreasonable and unfair. It is fashionable to label as a villain of the piece (along with industry) the provincial government and its agent in this context, the Ministry of the Environment. However, the latter is a good deal more active in the sphere of pollution control than is generally acknowledged.

An example in recent days is the ministry's announcement of plans for construction of pollution abatement facilities worth $190,090 at the R. B. Eddy Mill in Ottawa.

From the Environment ministry itself in recent months we have received such extensively-researched reports as Air Pollution and Human Health (published in conjunction with the Ministry of Health), An Introduction to Water Pollution Control, and Waste Management and Public Health.

The existence of these publications affords practical proof of Government concern for the protection of the environment and of our material resources.

Perhaps the soundest advice on this subject is contained within yet another Government publication — this one from the federal administration in Ottawa. In a chapter entitled The Environment and You, there are these words: "The supply of air and water and land on planet earth is strictly limited — we cannot create more. However, we can decide whether the supply remains clean and useful or polluted and useless. . .

"You can fight pollution in many ways. The first step is self-education — know the problem, learn the basic laws of ecology and join with others interested in fighting pollution. The actions of individuals can set a good example. However, many of the problems are of great magnitude and complexity, involving industry, labor, finance and government. They must be dealt with at municipal, provincial, national and even international levels. The individual can become well informed, influence public opinion, and demand priority for the things that matter most."

* * *

We have seen the evidence of individual effort in our own midst, in focusing attention on problems of pollution that must be tackled. If such public-spirited action continues, as for the most part it has done, on a reasonable and factual basis, devoid of political posturing, then this community will be well served.

In this new year of 1974 we all have opportunity to put into practice the common sense principles of an environment fit for human beings. Each can play his part.

Pugwash Conferences Still Being Held

Cyrus Eaton, Now 90, Played Part in East-West Detente

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Who is Cyrus Eaton? In this age of pop stars and heroes, Anne Murray, Stompin' Tom Connors, Phil Esposito and Chief Dan George, and at the time of the year-end survey of the best-known Canadians, Cyrus Eaton's name won't be there.

That's because he isn't a Canadian, hasn't been since 1924, though he is Nova Scotian-born and for most of his 88 years as an American, a time span much greater than that of most living Canadians, he has made much of his fame and Rockfeller-like fortune in the United States.

At 90, which he celebrated Dec 27 last as the honored guest of Cleveland, Ohio, where he lives and works, Cyrus Eaton wants to be remembered for what's the word—for a man who has lost and made again $100 million, so his associates estimate, since the beginning of this century.

Especially Cyrus Eaton wants to be remembered for his Canadian activities, the best known of which is the world-famous Pugwash Conferences. It's named after tiny Pugwash, N.S., where the spry Eaton was born in 1883, son of the village storekeeper, descendant of a United Empire Loyalist family who also had built wooden sailing ships.

Almost 40 Pugwash conferences have been held since 1954, when Mr. Eaton first came up with the idea, though not all are held in his Nova Scotian birthplace. They were created mainly as a vehicle to bring together the then rival groups of American and Soviet scientists and scholars during the intense anti-Soviet era of the Cold War.

But this and his continuous visits and associations with Soviet and Eastern European political leaders from Khruschev to Brezhnev, as well as his Lenin Peace Prize, Eaton has faced constant criticism.

The reasons for Eaton's unusual Communist-like' associations are typical of the personal commitment of this unsocialistic of people and ideas. His early interest in Russia stemmed from a youthful friendship with the late President Samuel Harper, first chairman of the Russian department at the University of Chicago.

In those years of the Charleston era before the First World War, Eaton was working at his first job as a special aide to John D. Rockefeller, the world's first multi-billionaire. Samuel Harper's father was the first president of the University of Chicago, which John D. Rockefeller Sr. had founded with a $26-million cash grant at the turn of the century.

The second major pro-Russian impetus of the Cleveland multi-millionaire was his fear that nuclear arms build-up in the Cold War era would lead to war, not peace, and that someone above suspicion had to open a route to Soviet scientists and technologists.

Eaton, who would emulate John D. Rockefeller Sr. in the way he put together and controlled corporations, and is indeed an unusual supporter of East-West detente.

In a spectacular, life-long array of corporate deals, financial dredgers and spinoffs spanning the 20th-century history of American capitalism, Cyrus Eaton built a personal fortune from Canadian and American utilities, real estate, iron ore and coal, consumer product firms like Sherwin Williams.

His auspices and his business partners have been blue-ribbon all the way from John D. Rockefeller, who hired him as a McMaster University graduate at the turn of the century, to the controversial men of power with whom he made most of his multi-billion-dollar deals.

Mr. Eaton constantly returns to Canada, either to grow prize-winning cattle or to relax on his thousands of acres of prime Nova Scotian land, and eight miles of ocean shoreline.

The Pugwash Conference with its Canadian connection and Legion, England, and costing him at least $50,000 annually, is where Eaton may be best remembered, not only because of the style of the conferences but from their controversial makeup.

The 1957 meeting, called the First Pugwash Conference on Nuclear Scientists, and which saw not only Soviet but one Chinese scientist in attendance, might have been the best. Held at the height of the Cold War, it brought down on Eaton the wrath of many leading American and personal attacks on the patriotism of this super-capitalist.

But it was propitious. Within months of that conference, the West would be in intellectual upheaval over the advanced developments of some of the same Soviet scientists in the first Sputnik space programs and Russian know-how in the 1957 International Geophysical Year. A semi-skeptical Fortune magazine in March, 1961, in an article headed The Pugwash Approach, suggested Mr. Eaton "might be very helpful when need to deal with the Russians."

This year's Pugwash Conference will be about bilingualism, now an old-hat theme in Canada. Will tycoon Eaton and his resident intellectuals pull a rabbit from that old hat and produce a latter-day answer from Pugwash on how to solve bilingual problems?

So far such an answer has evaded Pierre Elliott Trudeau, our committed federalist prime minister, and for many Canadians still the man of the year—in 1973, that is.

Canadians Tagged as 'North American Arabs'

By BRUCE LEVETT
WASHINGTON (CP) — The Canadian embassy, in an effort to combat a growing tendency to regard Canadians as "North American Arabs," has published a four-page special report outlining the Canadian energy policy.

More than 2,000 copies have been printed and sent to senators, congressmen, congressional and senatorial committees and their staffs and to "academics and news people—anyone we felt would be interested."

An embassy official said Wednesday "there has been misunderstanding or misinterpretation of Canadian policy in some parts" of the United States.

"It's such a big issue that we can't leave it to chance to ensure what we are doing and why."

Publication of the special report follows a recent Ottawa announcement of a proposed increase to $9.50 from $1.90 in crude-oil export taxes.

There has been no official U.S. reaction to the announcement beyond the statement that top U.S. and Canadian energy chiefs will meet in about a month to discuss the entire energy picture.

Unofficially, Canadians have been taking a beating on the cocktail-party circuit where such statements have been heard as "you guys are making more than North American Arabs."

The proposed export tax "raised a number of questions and some explanation had to be made that Canada was not engaged in flagrant profiteering," the embassy official said.

He stressed that the four-page summary was not designed to be a regular publication, but said it could become "the forerunner of other position reports—a vehicle for the dissemination of Canadian policy decisions as needed."

The embassy official said it's okay for Canada to be misunderstood all over the country.

"The experts know what Canada is doing and why, but the population, even officials who are not experts in the energy field, may not. Any congressmen may sense unhappiness among their constituents."

The report opens with a quotation from Prime Minister Trudeau's Nov. 22, 1973, speech:

". . . By increasing Canadian production, we have been able to respond to our neighbor (United States) needs—while at the same time meeting our first responsibility, which is to ensure basic fuel requirements for Canadians.

"Consistent with that responsibility, the government policy is—and will continue to be—to supply the U.S. from domestic oil production with all the help and flexibility can. We are friends, and friends care about each other's problems."

It outlines Canadian energy policy in general, the U.S.-Canada oil trade, the Canadian export tax and other energy matters.

Copies will be sent to Canadian consulates all over the U.S. .

Unity and Energy Focal Points in '74

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
Thomson News Service

TORONTO — There are two points which should get a lot of attention this year, and which may cause a lot of commotion before the year is over.

The first of these is national unity.

This is not at all a new question, of course, but it appears as though it may shape up with a new sharpness and in a new form this year.

For the problem is heading towards a new focus.

Where until now it has largely been a semi-spiritual matter—a question of "national unity" sticking together. Now it is moving toward hard fact.

The oil question has brought things to a head.

It has switched the focus from whether we share spirit to whether we share resources.

The question has already decyphered to the point "whether Quebec and the East should not have gasoline and oil at the same price as the rest of the country.

We can expect it to expand well beyond this, probably starting at the federal-provincial conference later this month when the Western oil provinces will be expressing their views—which it is assumed will be contrary—directly across the table from the country's older heirdictions.

This will be only initial discussions, of course. But the dialogue which will evolve from them well may eventually give us a much better concept of what Canada is.

The second point of potential consequence is more internal to the province itself.

This point is what, if anything, is to be the long term of con-pensation for citizens who incidentally, through action by the government, suffer damages or loss.

This also, of course, is not a new problem.

For years, and particularly since we started on massive super-highway programs, there have been people whose property has dropped in value because of government action.

The government has never recognized any claim by these people. When it has given any answer at all it has been that no matter how sympathetic it might be there simply wasn't money available for compensation.

But now with the new planning laws land use across the province is to be restricted with important loss in property values.

The pressure for compensation could grow so powerful that some better answer will be demanded.

Retiring The Mortgage

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer
Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

If you have a mortgage on your house, should you pay it off as quickly as possible?

For some people, there are greater advantages than ever in wiping out a mortgage today. But if that's not possible in your case, don't despair.

First, let's look at the case for reducing or retiring a mortgage on the family home (providing that the terms of the mortgage allow accelerated payments.)

If the interest rate on your mortgage is 11 per cent, and assuming, for easy arithmetic, that your top rate of personal income tax is 50 per cent (you should be so lucky), then your interest payments represent 22 per cent of the outstanding mortgage in terms of your gross, pre-tax income.

If you could find the money to pay off such a mortgage, you would in effect be achieving a 22 per cent yield on that money. What other investment offers a 22 per cent yield, involves no risk, and attracts no tax?

Your interest rate and your marginal tax rate may well be lower (or even higher). But if the figures are different in your case, the principle is the same.

One other factor worth considering is the security you feel when your home is free of debt. You may have life insurance that would retire the mortgage in case of an early demise, but an economic slow-down—such as the one that has hit Britain—could turn a high-interest mortgage into a much heavier burden than it might be in time of prosperity.

Finding the capital to make a substantial prepayment on a mortgage isn't easy—especially after a stock market slump.

Nevertheless, an extra payment out of current income, or even from the proceeds of a bank loan, will whittle away at the principal outstanding, and thereby achieve a disproportionate reduction in the total amount of interest payable over the life of the mortgage.

If, on the other hand, you have to stick to the original mortgage repayment schedule, you can take comfort in the thought that inflation is working for you, the borrower, and not for the lender.

In other words, the money that you have borrowed and will be repaying for many years, is fast declining in value. The dollars you received from the lender were worth much more than those with which you will pay back in 10, 15 or 20 years, if inflation continues unchecked.

And you have more of today's dollars to spend currently.

Remember, though, that if the inflationary spiral should ever begin to level off—an unlikely prospect—this advantage would disappear.

Troubles of The UIC

Editor
The Intelligencer

We all surely know that there are bad faults with the UIC but to pinpoint these faults haphazardly is something else.

Instead of attempting to arouse public interest in his crusade for rock throwing, our Mr. Jack Ellis, M.P. be asked to come forth with some sensible proposals for change in the system. Such a thing would surely inspire confidence.

It is so easy to say that the consumers are dissatisfied. They can't talk back and defend themselves.

Here's one suggestion for improvement. The administration of the UIC especially in the carporal and sergeant grades, is lousy. I know because I was in the employ of the UIC for over 20 time. My thinking is supported by others. My present work brings me in contact with UIC people from time to time.

A big business is successful because it has competent administrative people to govern it. It has competent working people to operate it. It generally has competent instructional staff to guide the working people every day in their jobs. This is big business. Why not follow the pattern. I think it is really first simple.

Management Vital Skill

Royal Bank

Every business knows that in good management lies the difference between success and failure. Administering a staff, a factory or an office is a difficult and complicated job. To find managers who are capable of more and will improve their capabilities to meet new requirements is one of the serious problems in industry. The Economic Council of Canada published a report in April last year saying that the demand for managerial and professional recruits is expected to grow at a faster rate than the pace of the entire labour force.

Lineups Ahead

The lineups at the Front Street Licence Bureau were short Saturday, but they should be getting longer as the Feb 28 deadline for licence plate renewals approaches, George Olsen, supervisor at the bureau, says that only about 6.7 per cent of the Belleville area's motorists have believed to come and get their licences so far this year. Mr. Olsen said that motorists can speed up the issuing procedure if they stop by the office and pick up their insurance forms before they apply for their new licence renewal stickers.

Stickers Not Selling

George Olsen, the man who supervises the sale of licence plate renewal stickers in Belleville, is the loneliest man in town.

To date only 6.7 per cent of the Belleville area's 30,800 automobile drivers have purchased their 1974 licence plate stickers from Mr. Olsen.

The renewal stickers have been on sale at 291 issuing offices throughout the province since Dec. 1 and ministry of transportation and communications officials are concerned that if the number of motorists applying for renewal does not soon increase, it will be impossible to avoid lineups at the end of February.

"We've only sold 1,400 stickers so far this year," Mr. Olsen said Saturday. "By this time last year we had sold more than 2,000 plates."

"I guess a lot of people have put off coming into the office early this year simply because they know the stickers are easy to put on", he continued.

"When we sold plates every year, we used to always get a lot of people who wanted to get the job of putting the plates on over with as quickly as possible. Now they don't seem to worry about it."

Pressed mulit-year plates must be validated by applying a sticker to the lower right-hand corner of the rear plate prior to midnight February 28.

To rush the sticker issuing procedure, you can pick up an insurance form at the Licence Bureau on Front Street. When you return with the completed form, your ownership permit and your licence fee you can get your 1974 sticker in a matter of minutes.

However, if you wait until the last minute to apply for renewal, you will find yourself waiting in line for quite some time.

As in 1973, licence fees this year are $23 for a four-cylinder car; $33 for six-cylinders; $40 for an eight-cylinder car and $5 for trailers. A licence for a motorized snow vehicle costs $10, while a licence for a motorcycle costs $15.

If you plan to pay for your licence by cheque, remember that the bureau only accepts certified cheques made payable to the Treasurer of Ontario.

The Front Street Licence Bureau is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 9 a.m. to noon on Saturdays.

Six Injured In Collision

Six persons were treated for cuts and bruises and released from Belleville General Hospital following a two-car crash on Highway 37, just north of the Latta junction, Sunday.

The Belleville detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police reports that two southbound cars driven by Peter Feindel, 30, of Weston and by Bruce Woodcock, 46, of Toronto, were involved in a rear-end collision around 4:30 p.m. yesterday.

According to the investigating officer, PC Mike Ducette, the Feindel auto was slowing down to make a turn when the Woodcock car skidded on the icy roadway and banged into it.

Three passengers in the Feindel car, Barbara Yates, of Weston, Susan Furry, and Mahr Jens, both of Don Mills, were injured in the accident along with Mrs. Jacqueline Woodcock and her two sons, Randy and Dale.

Damage to the Feindel vehicle was approximately $2,000 while the Woodcock car received an estimated $1,400 worth of damage.

Bus Schedule Won't Change

The change to daylight saving time in the United States won't affect Voyageur-Colonial bus service here.

A spokesman at the Belleville bus terminal said no bulletins have been issued by either Voyageur-Colonial or Greyhound in the United States on bus schedule changes.

Voyageur-Colonial serves Ontario and makes connections with Greyhound at border points for U.S. travel. Connections for eastern Ontario are made at Kingston.

One Voyageur-Colonial bus serves upper New York state, leaving Kinston every morning at 8:15 for Brockville, Ivy Lea Bridge, Watertown and Syracuse. It returns to Brockville at night. No change in its schedule is anticipated.

Mormons Meet Public

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints is holding an open house for the public.

The open house will feature a film entitled "Ancient America Speaks" which tells of the people in the ancient Americas along with their history and record which is known as the Book of Mormon. Displays and visual aids, depicting scenes from the Book of Mormon and ancient civilizations of the Americas will also be on hand for the evening.

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, better known as Mormons, holds the Book of Mormon as sacred scripture and uses it, along with the Bible, for its doctrines. The Book of Mormon is a history of the inhabitants of the ancient American and tells of their religion, culture and society.

Copies of the Book of Mormon will be available at the open house along with music by the Mormon Tabernacle Choir.

The public is invited, free of charge, to attend the open house at 135 Palmer Road on Saturday, Jan. 19.

Quinte Cuisine

Bunty Hitchon, Home Economics teacher at Belleville Collegiate Institute, enjoys teaching recipes she learned during two years spent in Nigeria. She recommends this curry as a never-fail entertaining dish which can be made before hand. The curry sauce can dress up any kind of leftover meat, fowl or fish.

West African Curry

1 chicken (3-3½ lbs.)
2 cups rice
1 large onion, chopped
½ green pepper, chopped
2 apples, diced
¼ cup raisins
1-2 tbsp. Vencat curry powder
2 tbsp. flour
salt and pepper
chicken stock
oil for frying

Simmer the chicken until tender, then cut into bite-size pieces. Reserve the stock for sauce. Sauté the onions, green pepper and apples in oil until tender-crisp. Stir in raisins, curry powder, flour, salt and pepper and blend until smooth. Add chicken stock gradually and boil until thick. Add diced chicken and simmer ½ hour or longer. (If hotter curry is desired, simmer ½ hour without chicken, then ½ hour with chicken.) Serve with steamed rice and side dishes. The rice should be mounded in the centre of the plate, the curry poured on top, and a spoonful or more of each side dish arranged around the edge.

Suggested side dishes: chopped spanish onion, orange slices, grapefruit slices, cucumber cubes, peanuts, pineapple tit-bits, sliced bananas, grated coconut, or any other fruit in season to cool the palate.

MR. AND MRS. DENNIS BRAZEAU

The bride is the daughter of Robert McLuskie and Trula McLuskie, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Brazeau.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white gown of peau de soie with a high mandarin collar trimmed with lace in the Victorian style, and long puffed sleeves and an empire waist. Her lace veil fell to her waist and she carried a white fur muff and red roses.

Sheila Kelly acted as matron of honor in a burgundy gown with a scoop neckline, long sleeves and an empire waist. She carried yellow mums.

The bride's sister, Kelly Ann McLuskie was junior bridesmaid in a turquoise gown with a scoop neck, long sleeves and an empire waist. She also carried yellow mums.

The groom's best man was his brother, Ronald Brazeau. The bride's brothers, Jim and Allen McLuskie were ushers.

After a dinner at Tabernacle United Church, an evening reception was held at the Sergeant's Mess in the Belleville Armories. A traditional cupid which has been in the bride's family for six generations adorned the wedding cake.

Mr. and Mrs. Brazeau now reside in Thompson, Manitoba.

EDMONTON (CP) — A researcher at the Centre for the Study of Mental Retardation says retarded children, in controlled settings, can maintain their attention as consistently as normal children. Dr. J. F. Das says learning problems experienced by the retarded are linked to distractions around them.

Well Matched

COVENTRY, England (CP) — Bernard Hickman and June Allen were not going to let a little thing like their wedding interfere with seeing their home soccer team play Southampton. They went straight from a brief reception to the match—June still in her white wedding dress—to cheer Coventry's victory. The reception was later resumed.

School Costs Triple Normal

LONDON (AP) — The school in the tiny village of Millbrook, Bedfordshire, is threatened with closure because the cost per pil is as high as the fees at the best private schools.

The village has a population of 190. The school, founded in 1840, has its own swimming pool, modern play equipment, and high education standards. It also has nine pupils. And it costs the taxpayers £500—that's around $1,250—for every one of them.

Bedfordshire County Council says that is more than three times the average cost in the country's primary schools.

In the event of closure the children would be bused two miles to the nearest town Ampthill.

Mona Lisa Face, Mind of Her Own

LONDON (AP) — Lady Jane Wellesley, only daughter of the eighth Duke of Wellington, is small and dark with long hair, a Mona Lisa face and mind of her own. She is interested in art, antiques and politics and friends say she is a typical Wellington, "stubborn, proud, determined. Snappy at times, but sociable."

She also is linked romantically with Prince Charles, heir to the British throne and, despite denials from both families, is widely expected by Britons to become his bride.

Lady Jane celebrated the New Year with the 25-year-old prince at Sandringham, Queen Elizabth's country estate. Afterwards the prince, serving in the Royal Navy, flew to Singapore for a three-month stay. Interpreted here as a lasting period for the couple.

A worker on the royal estate was quoted as saying: "For a couple who are supposed to be by friends they seem to squeeze hands and kiss an awful lot."

The Wellingtons, whose family name is Wellesley, are out of royal blood, but rank among Britain's most aristocratic. Descrats, thanks to the first duke, the victor of Waterloo.

Unlike Mark Phillips, the cavalry commander who married Charles' sister Princess Anne, the 23-year-old Lady Jane has moved in royal circles all her life. Her parents are intimates of the Queen and her husband, Prince Philip. Prince Charles was a childhood friend. Buckingham Palace gardens are only crown's throw from the Duke of Wellington's elegant Piccadilly town house.

Lady Jane, shoulder-high to the 6-foot-1 prince at just 5-foot-7, recently moved from her parents' stately home to a small terraced house in Fulham, an unassuming London district popular with the young. She shares a white-painted house with several girls.

She started out two years ago as general help in a public relations firm, working her way up to her current job as personal assistant to an exclusive Bond Street art dealer.

Her boss in the public relations firm, Billy Hamilton, described her this way:

"She has a tremendous sense of humor without being flippant. She's a serious-minded girl but serious and intelligent without being a bluestocking."

The Wellingtons are among Britain's biggest landowners. Their mansion on Hyde Park Corner used to be known as "No. 1, London." The gift of a grateful nation to the first duke. It was handed back in 1947 as a museum, with a privision that the Wellingtons should keep a free apartment there.

Lady Jane's mother is the only daughter of the late Maj. Gen. D. F. McConnel, Britain's Second World War commander in Palestine and Transjordan.

The family recently sold a 325-acre estate in Devonshire to help ease the burden of death duties on the will of the seventh duke. They remain, according to friends, well up the million-aire league.

Vice Squad Snaps Dancer

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — City Commissioner Connie Peters applied for a municipal license to be a go-go dancer, but she has no plans to take to the stage.

Mrs. Peters said she paid the $6 fee and applied for a licence in order to demonstrate the humiliation that female entertainers are required to go through, and to point out that the licences are not required for male dancers.

When she filed her application, the police department directed her to report to its vice squad office to have her picture taken.

Mrs. Peters is a 33-year-old divorcee with three children.

More Japanese Marry For Love

TOKYO (AP) — Marriages based on love are increasing among Japanese as more young people give up the traditional "mial," or arranged marriages a government survey showed today.

The survey conducted by the health and welfare ministry said 62.8 per cent of 4,525 couples who registered their marriage May 28 and 29 of last year reported they married for love.

Successful Living

Husband, Wife Need Wills

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: Lately you have been talking about wills.

Could you tell me if a will made in the province of Quebec, before a notary, would be valid in the province of New Brunswick? When we made it we were living in Quebec but we have been transferred in New Brunswick.

Maybe this would interest some of your readers as there are lots of people being transferred from one place to another these days. This will was also registered in the registrar's office.

I like your column and have learned quite a few things from it.

Marguerite.

Dear Marguerite: You were residents in Quebec, you made the will there in accordance with Quebec laws. Right? Then it would be legal in New Brunswick.

One question: Did your husband and you each make your own will. If you didn't, you should.

When you get into questions about will, it is well worth while to talk to a lawyer.

Dear Doris: Ever since I was 15 I haven't been lucky at all when it comes to asking a girl out. I used to get my friends to act as a substitute and I soon found out what friends would do; so I finally got smart and tried my own ways of getting a date.

When I try to start a conversation the girl is usually flustered or a little nervous. Sometimes she giggle and I wonder whether she is laughing at me. Sure, I can talk about the weather, or school, or those subjects but can't talk about about this day in and day out. Some guys have no trouble at all talking to the girls.

All I want is to take them to some event and have a good time. Then sometimes I learn later that they already have a boy friend and have just been stringing me along.

Dear Ann I: Well, you just nee.l one — at a time. Girls sometimes cover up their own nervousness by giggling. But if she is the kind of girl who laughs at you, would you want to date her

Next time you see a girl you'd like to date, do three things: (1) Makes sure she's not going steady with somebody. (3) Make sure you had a bath within the last 24 hours and that you look nicely groomed — the sort of person a girl would be proud to be seen with. (3) Learn what goes on in the world and eliminate weather-talk. This means reading about sports, politics, world events.

It is up to you to realize that you are growing up.

Confidential to No Curves: Oh, come on, N.C., what do you expect at 14. You've got some growing and rounding out to do! Don't let your chestier girl friends make you feel inferior.

It's normal enough to want to grow up and blossom out, but you're better off to enjoy things right where you are. It won't be long before you'll get the expansion you crave.

(Are you in doubt about the proper etiquette to use for your special occasion. Ask Doris, in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for her reply.)

Ann Landers

'Staggering' Demand for Information Readers Ask for Medical Booklets

Dear Ann Landers: I have been an avid reader and a loyal fan for 15 years. When Ann Landers says something I listen. When she says do something, I do it.

Last autumn you devoted your entire column to high blood pressure. You referred to it as "dangerous and sneaky disease," that "about 23 million Americans have it, and at least half of them don't even know it because high blood pressure often has no specific symptoms. You also said people over 30, blacks, and women on the pill were more vulnerable than others. Your urgent plea was "Education yourself. Send for the free booklet called High Blood Pressure."

I wrote for the booklet the day you asked me to. That was in October, and at this writing I have not received it. Are you sure that organization in Battleboro is as anxious to help people as you said? Sign me—Disappointed And Unconvinced.

Dear D and U: "That organization in Bethesda" is the National Institutes of Health and yes, I am sure they are anxious to help people.

I'm glad you wrote because hundreds of others have not received their booklets and have written to complain. There are two explanations. First, the response was so heavy they ran out of booklets and mailing envelopes. The second reason is expressed in the next letter.

Dear Ann Landers: I am an employee with the department of Health, Education and Welfare. I was one of many asked to sign the gigantic job of filling the booklet requests on high blood pressure. The results of your column were, to say the least, staggering. No one here had ever seen anything like it. The last count was well over half a million and there are still several bags of mail sitting on the floor.

The reason I am writing is to let you know why some of these requests will never be filled. We cannot read the handwriting. Some people left off the zip code which means a long delay because zip codes must be looked up and recorded in by our personnel. When we have a load like that we set aside the letters with no zip codes and they must wait until someone can get to them.

Please, Ann, we want every one who wants a booklet to have one. I am asking you to print this letter and ask those who have not received their booklet to write again and please print their name and address and zip code so we can read it. Thank you.—Frustrated In Bethesda.

Dear Beth: Thanks for your letter. And now here's one that should make you feel better:

Dear Ann Landers: A few months ago you asked your readers to send for the free booklet on high blood pressure. I did and it arrived the following week. My husband sent for both read it and we went to our family doctor and had our blood pressures taken. I had a borderline convincing my husband that he should go because he said he felt fine.

Well, Ann, my blood pressure was normal, but his was 240 over 120. (He's 42.) The doctor said it was a miracle he hadn't suffered a stroke or had a heart attack. Medication was ordered at once and he started taking it that day. Last week my husband's blood pressure was 137 over 90. So thank you, dear Ann, for saving his life.—Grateful In Chicago

Dear Grateful: Thanks for the good news. Sign me—Grateful, Also.

LONDON — Lady Jane Wellesley, 22, only daughter of the eighth Duke of Wellington, leaves her house in the Fulham District of London on her way to work at an art gallery. Parent Power

LONDON (AP) — Parent power is recommended by the Advisory Centre for Education as a potential force to improve Britain's educational system.

The centre's magazine, Where, gives practical advice to parents on how to get things done, like getting rid of a disastrous teacher, compiling and using a dossier on the local education situation, raising money for an improvement the authority cannot or will not provide.

The magazine says there is no quick answer to bad teaching, inadequate buildings and equipment or the problems of an individual child. For all the excitement of campaigning and pressure-group activity, the real place for the exercise of parent power is on the governing and managing bodies of schools.

Decision Due On Export Tax

OTTAWA (CP) — That the government has not spelled out its long-term plans for domestic oil prices may be a deciding factor tonight when the Commons votes on the crude oil export tax bill.

Today is the last scheduled day of debate on the bill and neither Progressive Conservative, nor New Democratic Party spokesmen are totally pleased with the proposed legislation.

It would formally approve the crude oil export tax announced by the government in September and put into effect Oct. 1.

One part sets the tax, retroactively, at 40 cents a barrel for October and November, at $1.80 for December and $2.20 for January. A second part would give the cabinet power to adjust the rate monthly after Feb. 1, when the rate is to jump to $6.40 a barrel.

Basically, the tax is to ensure that exported oil is sold at the current international price, now more than $10 a barrel. Domestic oil is fixed at $4 a barrel under an Ottawa-requested voluntary freeze and the idea of the tax is to make up the difference.

The Conservatives and the NDP want the bill divided, one part for immediate passage tonight, the other to be set aside until after the Jan. 22-23 federal-provincial energy conference.

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield proposed Friday that the government continue the tax in its present form until the end of March or until long-range domestic pricing plans are formulated.

NDP energy spokesman T. C. Douglas (Humboldt-Lumsden-The Islands) says the second part of the bill should not be handled until after the federal-provincial conference.

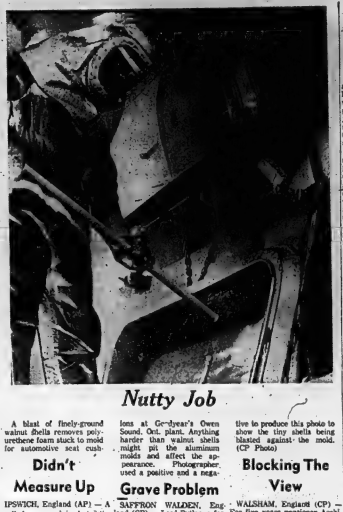
Finance Minister John Turner said final policy will depend on the outcome of those talks between Prime Minister Trudeau and provincial premiers and on later discussions between finance ministers.

Mr. Douglas says this only supports his arguments for dividing the bill, but Mr. Turner rejects this in favor of what he terms a flexible instrument now.

But there were signs Friday that Mr. Turner was coming around to Mr. Stanfield's way of thinking.

"Turner seems willing and Douglas likes it," Conservative House Leader Don Bell said in an interview after a caucus meeting.

The main concern of Mr. Douglas is that while he and his party support the principle of the bill, there is no assurance of what is going to happen to the extra revenue created by rising domestic prices.



"There's no justification for raising prices unless they (the producers) can show production costs have gone up," he said in an interview.

His caucus was to meet today with Party Leader David Lewis who returned during the weekend from a holiday.

Mr. Douglas said the NDP might vote against the parts of the bill it does not like.

If and when the bill is disposed of—and there seems little doubt it will not be—the House turns its attention to the commission bill establishing energy allocation machinery.

This would allow the government to establish a supply board to implement oil rationing at the wholesale level if the energy shortage reaches crisis proportions.

Didn't Measure Up

IPSWICH, England (AP) — A small boy complained to the government that a boomerang he bought didn't sail back to him when thrown. The government's chief weights and measures inspector tried the thing out in a park. The boomerang flunked the test. The government ordered the lad's money refunded.

Last-hour Accords Prevent Montreal Refinery Strikes

MONTREAL (CP) — Labor agreements reached in 11th-hour bargaining during the weekend averted a strike by 700 production workers at two major oil refineries and settled a strike begun Saturday by 60 truck drivers at one of the refineries.

A spokesman for the United Oil Workers of Canada, which had threatened strikes at Shell Canada Ltd. and Petrofina Canada Ltd. refineries, said 78 per cent of the production workers voted Saturday night to approve a pact drawn up in last-minute talks.

A Shell spokesman said Sunday night an agreement also had been reached with the truck drivers at the company's Montreal marketing plant who had walked off the job Saturday.

The production workers had set a midnight Saturday strike deadline at Shell and were planning a strike at Petrofina if a settlement was not reached by Saturday night.

The contracts for drivers and production workers are identical in basic wage increases and duration.

The 36-month pacts ending Oct. 15, 1976, at Shell and Oct. 31, 1976, at Petrofina, provide 20-per-cent wage increases, but contain a clause allowing new wage negotiations to begin Dec. 1, 1975.

Of the increase, eight per cent is retroactive to April 1, 1973, and another eight per cent is effective April 1 of this year. The final four-per-cent boost is scheduled for Sept. 15.

Bill Butcher, vice-president of the oil workers' union, said the retroactive pay hike will mean $500-$1,000 a man in back pay. He said he considers the wage reopener clause a major victory.

Spokesmen said that averaged pay for production workers under the old contract was about $4.35 an hour.

The Shell refinery produces about 175,000 barrels of fuel a day and the Petrofina plant about 75,000 barrels. Together, the two companies produce about half the fuel refined in the Montreal area.

Ford Sees Compromise Possible on Watergate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice-President Gerald Ford held out the possibility Sunday of a compromise between the White House and the Senate Watergate committee over the rejected subpoenas of presidential tapes.

If the committee is "willing to make some refinement in their demands, then there may be some area of compromise," Ford said. He added, however, that he has not discussed the possibility of a compromise "in any depth" with President Nixon.

Nixon rejected the committee's request for nearly 500 presidential tapes and documents Friday, saying that compliance with the subpoenas "would unquestionably destroy any vestige of confidentiality of presidential communications."

Appearing on the NBC television program Meet the Press, Ford said he agrees with the president's decision but added that he stands by an earlier statement that the White House should make available any evidence related to criminal activity.

"I can't believe all those documents involved alleged criminal actions by the White House," Ford said.

Fashion Lesson

BRIGHTON, England (CP) — The schoolgirls were lined up and cut across the ruler—to measure the height of their platform shoes. Those whose shoes were ruled too high were sent home to change, the headmaster explaining that the shoes were dangerous and that one girl could trip a neighboring school had fallen down steps and broken a leg.

Fresh Air Offered As Cure for Drugs

TORONTO (CP) — Two years ago a group of young persons decided that one way to help emotionally disturbed children or youngsters on drugs was to offer them the fresh air and wilds of the outdoors.

"So we went downtown and found these kids with their heads in a bag sniffing glue and said 'Do you want to do something different?' " said Philip Fischer, a leader of the group.

That something different was a two-week canoe trip into the lake country of the Haliburton region.

Since then, the group has taken more than 100 city youngsters into such areas as Algonquin Park, Temagami, and the Nageiswan River.

On Saturday about 10 members of the group, called Project Whitewater, and 60 youngsters held a party to plan the next stage—winter camping.

Mr. Fischer, 21, said in an interview he believes that many of today's problems result from crowded cities where young stiers turn to drugs "as a method of synthesizing space." He said that in the "wild environment" the youngsters learn to live without drugs and make do with a few simple tools and whatever will sod muscle power they are able to summon.

"All these kids have the potential to do all these wonderful things they never have the chance to do in the city."

Another leader, Mary McDonough, said the project's first tries brought most of the 45 youngsters out of their problems, but when they returned home they were often confronted with parents who were either drunk or uninterested.

The group now has turned to social agencies to recruit young campers.

Mr. Fischer said this provides a screening method to get youngsters physically and mentally prepared for the rigorous trips. It also provides follow-up counselling services for the return to the city.

Canadian Man Killed By Thief in Bogota

VANCOUVER (CP) — James Lowery, 27, of Vancouver was killed on a street in Bogota, Columbia, and his travelling companion from Montreal was wounded when they tried to retrieve belongings stolen from them, Bogota officials said Saturday.

An external affairs official in Ottawa said Lowery was shot in the heart and Robert-Jamert Beaupre of Montreal was shot in the left leg Friday when they confronted a man who had robbed them Christmas Day.

Mr. and Mrs. James Lowery of Vancouver learned of their son's death Saturday from the external affairs department.

"He left here near the end of October for a trip to South America," Mrs. Lowery said. "What a terrible ending to his holiday."

The couple, who have one other son, Gordon Stewart Lowery, 32, now face a $1,900 bill to have James' body flown back to Canada.

Beaupre told Bogota police he and Lowery had been on an extended trip through South America when they met a man, who was travelling on a Spanish passport, several weeks ago in Venezuela.

Neither Canadian spoke Spanish and the man offered to be their interpreter.

The three entered Bogota Christmas Day. Later that day, the Canadians' camera, money and identification papers disappeared from their hotel room. The interpreter was also missing.

The Canadians reported the theft of their papers and money to a Canadian embassy official and spent the last week and a half trying to earn money so they could continue their trip.

The Canadian embassy quoted Beaupre as saying he and Lowery noticed the other man by chance on a Bogota street Friday.

"We tried to grab him, but he pulled a pistol," Beaupre said.

After the shooting, the man disappeared in the back alleys of the city. Police were searching for him.

Third Body Discovered In Gas Station Ruins

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — Police reported a third body was found late Sunday and searchers continued today to check the ruins of a service station in western Saint John for two other persons reported missing following an explosion Friday night.

The identity of the body found Sunday was withheld.

The two men whose bodies were found in the smoldering ruins Saturday were identified as transport drivers Ivan R. Lunn, 48, and William M. Corner, 36, both of Saint John.

At least six persons were injured when the Irving Oil Co. station disintegrated.

The blast shattered windows and cracked plaster and walls in houses and business establishments over a wide area.

Police Chief Harry McKay said Sunday preliminary investigation indicated a truck had struck one of the service station's gasoline pumps, knocking it off its base and allowing gasoline to spill.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, MONDAY, JANUARY 7, 1974

Telas Pardubicé goaltender George Raca watches the puck slide past the corner of his net in last night's exhibition game between the touring Czech team and the Belleville Eagles, while his defenceman, Francis Panchartrex (7) hustles back to help-out. Waiting on Raca's doorstep for the rebound that didn't come is Eagle's George Godson. The Czechs came up with a 7-6 win over the Eagles before a disappointing crowd of only 650 fans.

Eagles Give Czechs Battle

By ALAN TEWORTH
Sports Staff

For the 650 fans that did show up the exhibition hockey game at the Arena last night between the Belleville Eagles and the touring Czechoslovakian Telas Pardubicé team was an entertaining hockey show.

Unfortunately, the Eagles did come out on the short end of the stick, dropping a 7-6 decision to the touring team, who skated just completed their play in the CCM International Tournament.

In the tournament the Pardubice team recorded two wins, two losses, and a three-way fourth place in the tournament.

The Eagles have had but one practice in the past two weeks, a fact that got a short skating session, last Wednesday night.

It was a very respectable score, considering the lack of playing time the Eagles have had lately.

The Eagles opened the scoring in the game early in the first period. Bobby Taylor scored the goal, after a fine play by Greg Marchen at the blueline and kept the puck in the Czech end.

Marchen made a sliding pass at the line, with the puck going onto the stick of Les Colligan, who fed it around the back of the net, where Taylor picked it up. He made no mistake, finding the wide open Pardubice net.

Ken Knapton made it 2-0 at 16:08 of the first, when he made a perfect deflection of George Godson's pass as he was cruising in the slot.

George Novak narrowed the count to 2-1, just 57 second later, finishing off a passing play started at the blueline by Francis Panchartrex. Panchartrex fired the puck to Horymir Seˇsaru, who in turn whipped it to Novak, stading at the crease. It was a powerplay goal, with Knapton off for a high sticking minor.

Kari Bagnell played a very steady game in the Belleville net-nets, as did his replacement at the 30 minute mark, Clyde Harris.

Together, they faced a total of 33 Czech drives, many of them labelled for corners.

Goals by Joseph Palacek, Horymir Sekeru, and Vladimir Martinec, and the first of two by Milan Kodrouck, gave the Czech team a 5-3 lead going into the third period.

Bobby Taylor scored the only goal for Belleville in the period, taking a rink-wide pass from Knapton at the Eagles' blueline, skating the length of the ice, and shooting a low drive between Czech goaltender George Raca's legs from the faceoff spot in Raca's left.

The Eagles tied it with two goals within the first 38 seconds of their period, by Greg Marchen and Wayne Weller, but it wasn't enough, as the Czechs kept coming back with more.

Bob Kirk scored the other Belleville goal, at 12:46, as his centering pass from the corner seemed to go in off a Czech defenceman's skate.

The Eagles' drive notched 33-21, but the shots were by no means an indication of the balance of play.

Eagles came up with one of their better games of the year in controlling the play.

The Belleville team played a very tenacious brand of hockey, which led to coach Harry Hughes' post game comfomism for the rest of the season.

Hughes stated "we're just one player away from the top few we want. Everyone is a good shape now, and we're going to raise Cain, hopefully."

That one player is Dick Cherry. He was up from Kingston to last Wednesday night's workout, and will be back to this week's, according to Hughes.

"He will play as soon as he gets in shape" said the coach, "hopefully he will be playing in our next game, which will be a week from Tuesday night, a home game with the Welland Blenchants.

Durham Lords Champs

Loyalist College held it's annual Invitational Men's Basketball Tournament Saturday and the Grand Championship honors went home on the Durham Lords' bus.

Only four other teams, besides Loyalist, were invited to the Tournament, but the success of the single-day affair was measured in quality, not quantity.

"A lot of the other college tournaments get out of hand," said Loyalist coach, Don Stinson, "too many teams are invited to make them competitive. I'm not looking forward to the day when ours becomes of any great size, I like to see it's good competition where all the teams that are entered have a strong possibility of winning; right from the start.

Stinson has derived the theory that the ayrshit meet should be kept small to keep the pay as keen as it can possibly be.

"Next I look for is three teams that would play us and give us stiff competition," added the Loyalist coach, "I could make the tournament as large as most of the others in the province, but what good would that do the majority of the teams involved, including us."

"Besides," commented Stinson, "what takes out the Christmas holiday kinks better than a good, hard basketball game."

The four teams involved are all guaranteed two games, regardless of what happens in their first match-up.

Preliminary play saw the host team, the Loyalist Lancers, squeese past Sir Sandford Fleming of Peterborough, 62 and Durham defeat Trent University, of Peterborough, 69-53.

Loyalist only had a four point margin, at half time, in their victory over Sir Sandford Fleming, but it proved to be the insurmountable lead.

Bill Kyle hooped 14 points to lead the Lancers attack, while Harvey Sharpe got nine. Rob Clowater was next with 8 points.

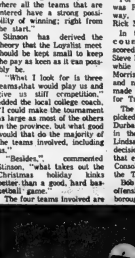
For the Lindsay squad, it was Ron Wilkie leading the way, scoring 11 points and Rick Micks getting nine.

In the Durham-Trent encounter, Charis Staeger scored 16, Rod Fillier 12 and Dave Ball 10, for the winners while 14 points to Gary Stewart, 11 to Bob Holmes and nine to Grant Morrison made those three top scorers for Trent.

The Peterborough squad picked up their loss to Durham however, and went on to the next game to beat Lindsay by a narrow 45-39 decision. Trent's victory in that encounter gave them the Consolation Championship of the Tournament.

Bob Hobbs was the main offensive asset to the Peterborough attack as he scored 18 points. Teamate Brent Palmer got seven.

In the losing cause, Keith Ebbs kept the score close as he bucketed 15 and Rick Bell 6 well got nine.



Durham won the championship, beating out Loyalist by a slim seven point margin, 67-60. At this point in the second quarter, of the final game, the host team was behind by 17 with the scoreboard reading 32-15.

"We couldn't buy a basket in the first half," said coach Stinson, "the ball just wouldn't drop for us."

The Lancers didn't let an 11 point deficit get to them, as noticed half time, as they came onto the courts in the second half and soundly contested the Lords lead. Even though the Loyalist squad outscored their opponents 45-28 in the second half, it just wasn't enough to overtake them.

Durham was led on the scoreboard by their six footer, Rod Fillier with 20 points, the individual game high of the Tournament. Right behind Fillier on the scoreboard was teammate Bob Beckley with 18.

Rob Clewater gunned 16 points for the Lancers, while Bill Kyle and Harvey Sharpe added 15 each.

Not one, not two, but three. That's right, three Alouettes hold down the top three places going into the last of Peterborough's Morrow Park. The race, in which these three are running, is the 440 cc modified snowmobile section of the Kawartha Cup held over the past three days.

Championship for Kingston

Proving they were the best team was not hard for the Kingston Juveniles in yesterday's Belleville Yardmen Tournament. All they did was take the A Championship of the day, winning three games, scoring 15 goals while allowing only three enroute to the title and the Yardmen Trophy.

They opened with a tight 1-0 win over Lindsay in the opening round of the tournament, on a goal by Paul Melling, the only point he got in the tourney.

They advanced to the final game with a 4-1 win over the Belleville Western Threenes. Steve Little and Bill Trussell scored twice for the winners, with Peter Crawford scoring the only goal for Belleville.

In the final game for the four-foot high Belleville Yardmen Trophy, the Limestone City crew completely dominated play over a tired Belleville Western Threenes.

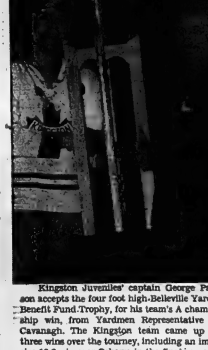
Danny Marshall scored three times for the winners in the final game, with Jim Higgins and Bob Machen each scoring two. Other goals went to John Valberg, Brian Reish, and Scott Ellis.

Evanson and Marcel Belanger scored for Oshawa in a losing cause. Belleville's Western Tire team made it to the semi-finals in the A side, before bowing to the eventual winners of the tournament.

Belleville won their first game of the tournament, after tying the score 3-3 with Brampton. They won the game, after a ten minute over time period, when penalty shots were awarded each team, to determine the winners.

Joey Zebrards scored three times for Belleville, including the first goal on a penalty shot, with Mike Wright and Peter Crawford scoring the others.

Edwards went into the goal-post heavily on scoring the goal, pulling ligaments and will probably be out the rest of the season.



Crawford's was the goal that won the game for Belleville, it being the second Belleville penalty shot marker.

Glen Thomas scored twice for the Brampton team, including once on a penalty shot, with Bobby Elnke and Dave White adding the others.

The Consolation Championship and the Western Tire Trophy went to Peterborough, with a 4-1 win over Lindsay. Blaine Larock, Bill Watts, Chris Long, and Warren Sweeling all scored for the Lilthick City team in the B final, with Rick Barrowlough resigning for Lindsay.

In other games played in the tournament, Markham dropped a pair, 7-0 to Oshawa in the first round, and 4-1 to Peterborough in the second round.

Kitchener dropped a first round game to Oshawa, 2-1 before edging Peterborough 1-0.

Kingston Juveniles' captain George Patterson accepts the four foot high-Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund Trophy, for his team's A championship win, from Yardmen Representative Tom Cavanagh. The Kingston team came up with three wins over the tourney, including an impressive 10-2 win over Oshawa in the final game.

Bobcats Second, Tie Markham 3-3

The Belleville Bobcats came out of this weekend with a little more breathing room, but are still hard pressed to move into first place.

Nine points now separate the top four teams in the Metro Junior B Hockey League. The Cats are in second with 46 points, two points behind first place Pickering and six points ahead of third place Markham. Bramalea is in fourth with 28.

Last night Belleville played to a 3-3 tie with the Markham Royals in Markham.

"It was a fast, hard game," said Bobcat coach, Moe Hunter, "but the officiating left much to be desired."

According to Hunter, Markham's first goal, at the 18:09 mark of the first period by Norm Kojak, was offside and should not have been allowed. In contrest, Hunter also said that one of the Cats' tallies was called back when it shouldn't have been.

The first period ended in a 1-1 tie, at Belleville's Mark Coates scored about half way through.

Markham jumped into a 3-1 lead by the end of the second period on individual goals by Joe Lalonde and Kip Churchill.

Belleville made it 3-2 at the 10:56 mark of the third when Wally Dainard tallied. The Cats got the tying goal with just 57 seconds left in the game, after they had pulled goalie Bruce Clark in favor of a sixth attacker. Brian Coulter was the scorer who gave Belleville the split.

Eight penalties were assessed, the Bobcats got six of them.

Jim Richardson, Belleville's scoring leader, picked up three assists to boost his points drive.

The Cats next game is at the Memorial Arena, Friday night at 9 o'clock, when they play host to Wexford Warriors.

Goodwin Rink Wins Royal Bank Tourney

The first Annual Royal Bank of Canada Curling Tournament was wrapped up Saturday night, with the rink of Vern Goodwin, skip, Gloria Goodwin, Don and Bev. Moore taking home the impressive trophy for the first time in the mixed tournament.

The Goodwin rink collected 45 points in the three draw tournament, which began Friday night with the first of three games.

They edged the Hughes rink of John and Jackie Hughes and John and Donna Kennedy, who compiled 43 points in the three games.

In next with 42½ points was the Morrell rink, comprised of Ron and Carole Grey and Mary and Jim McFarlane.

Frank Morrell's rink took home the dubious honours of no game winner's high total, with 19½ points. Included along with Morrell in the rink were Betty Gregory, and Jim and Lil Taylor.

The next tournament coming up at the Quinte Club is the annual Sportsmen's Tournament put on by the past presidents of the Club.

In this tournament no women are allowed in the building, even in so much as the kitchen. Needless to say, it is strictly a men's tournament.

It takes place Friday and Saturday.

It's Kingston Again In Doug Grant Event

Winning a trophy for the fifth time in its nine year history isn't a bad record. That total is held by the Kingston Badminton Club in the Belleville Badminton Club's Doug Grant Invitational Tournament.

Kingston won the trophy for the fifth time, Saturday, at Centennial Secondary School.

They downed Trenton 16-5 in the finals.

The tournament was run a little differently this year, because of the number of entrants.

The six clubs entered were split into two groups, with the two playing a round robin tournament with each playing men's single, men's and ladies' doubles, and mixed doubles events.

In the Eastern group were placed Kingston, Sydenham, and Belleville, while Trenton, Peterborough, and Oshawa were grouped in the West.

Kingston came up with a 38 point total in the round robin in the East, with Belleville and Sydenham each winning 17 games.

In the West, Trenton and Oshawa both came up with 28 wins, while Peterborough had a total of only 16.

Trenton gained the right to play Kingston in the final set by virtue of a sudden death singles set by Trenton's Dick Clinical and Oshawa's Barry Symmons. Gilbeau took Symmons two games straight to take the match and the first place finish in the West.

Members of the Trenton team are Dick Gilbeau, Bill Cameron, Harry Boudreau, Ken McKellar, David Pond, Gord Barker, Barb Bateuse, Cathy Hills, Marilyn Kirkman, Ruth Barker, Lucy Gilbeau, and Kay Helps.

Members of the winning Kingston team were Gary Quinn, Bernie Houghton, Jack Campbell, Cliff Andre, Eugene Pelletier, Jim Cole, Irma Lalonde, Ginny Crozier, Barb Carey, Jane Machin, Bea Moore, and Betsy Carey. Bernie Houghton doubles as coach of the team.

PETERBOROUGH—A great number of snowmobile racing fans felt that this years' running of the Kawartha Cup, here would lose most of its excitement because of the renovations that had been made to the track.

For the first time in the Cups 11-year history, competitors would be running on natural, safe running, as the events' directors decided to change the quarter-mile surface from a snow-banked one to a flat track, enclosed by a wooden fence.

Nevertheless, snowmobile enthusiasts, approximately 75,000 of them, crammed into Morrow Park to witness the three-day event.

To a certain degree some of the excitement was lost because of the danger that had been eliminated by the inauguration of the flat track.

Still, adrenalin flowed like water as spectators remained captivated by the mere excitement of some of the toughest racing competition the Cup has ever seen.

Added to the high calibre of competitions was an event that's introduced the fans.

Three classes of snow machines, 340 440 and 650 cc, squared off in what has been some of the most extravagant modifications made to snowmobiles.

The event, SnoPro. A name to remember in future races.

The United States Snowmobile Association (USSA) in conjunction with the Ontario, and other provincial Snowmobile Racing Federations have sanctioned a series of 12 SnoPro races throughout North America where by any factory producing snowmobiles may make almost any kind of modifications to their machines. Previous to the introduction of SnoPro, a factory had to produce at least 25 machines before they could race one and even then, modifications were limited. With SnoPro a factory has the opportunity to construct a one-of-a-kind machine with literally no restrictions on its modifications, except for track width and engine size.

Snowmobile fans saw machines that looked like standard, everyday store front snowmobiles, until they were raced. Then the drastic engine modifications became apparent.

The most incredible SnoPro machine in the three classes was the one with the loud very few engine modifications.

Indent 3p

Designed and driven by Alouettes', Jacques Villeneuve, the 440 cc machine won its class of SnoPro competition. three-quarters of a lap ahead of the rest of the 440 entries.

The Snomobile itself looked more like a hydo-plane than a snow racer. From its appearance one would think it would be more at home careening across Lake Ontario, the body was so designed for maneuverability on corners. While other machines were slowing down for the turns, the Alloette was easily taking the corners at speeds in the area of 78 mph.

Although Villeneuve came up with the most radical changes in snowmobile design, the SnoPro machines were the ones with the most effective engine modifications.

The Polaris company is taking advantage of the new racing class to test out many new ideas that can be used in their factory machines as soon as the new ideas have been proven effective.

Most of their ideas for the SnoPro machines are in fact working out quite well. The Polaris team captured the top three places in the 340 class and placed first and third in the 650 class.

Mike Vaughan, a Polaris spokesman, said, "We're planning on putting the new modifications into our stock machines just as soon as we're sure that they're successful." This is definitely a step in the right direction for snowmobiles owners.

Jim Admea, one of the best drivers in the racing circuit, captured the Kawartha Cup Championship on a Sno-Jet. It was the second consecutive cup win for him.

Admea won four firsts to take the title, including a victory in the open modified event, the next best thing to SnoPro.

The win paid Jim in the vicinity of $12,000.

Villeneuve finished second with three wins and would have taken Admea for first except that his SnoPro 650, which was of the same design as his 440, broke down just five minutes before race time.

Delvecchio's New Line Wrecks North Stars

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Coach Parker MacDonald should have bit his tongue and kept quiet after the Minnesota North Stars lost 9-6 to Detroit Red Wings in a National Hockey League game Sunday.

Instead he said: "I hate to say it, but I'm trying to cut down our goals against."

The result might have been different if Detroit coach Alex Delvecchio hadn't thrown a new line against the Stars consisting of Bill Hogaboam, Pierre Jarry and Mickey Redmond.

Jarry, acquired from Toronto Maple Leafs in a trade for Tim Ecclestone, Garry Monahan called up from Virginia Red Wings of the American Hockey League, each had a goal and three assists. Redmond contributed his part with two goals, his 20th and 21st of the season.

In other games, New York Rangers defeated Atlanta Flames 5-2, Chicago Black Hawks whipped California Golden Seals 8-4 and Buffalo Sabres downed Vancouver Canucks 6-3.

Saturday's scores were: Montreal 5, Vancouver 3; Boston 6, NY Islanders 2, with Johnny Bucyk scoring goals for the Bruins; Pittsburgh 5, Buffalo 2; Philadelphia 2, Minnesota 2; St. Louis 4, California 1; and Los Angeles 5, Toronto 3.

Detroit 9 Minnesota 6

"I was just happy to get back because I hadn't played the last few games," said the 24-year-old Hogaboam, from Swift Current, Sask.

Jarry said: "I figured we were only going to be on for a couple shifts, and we had to go as hard as we could. But after we got going in, we thought we might as well keep going."

Red Berenson and Marcel Dionne each got two for the Red Wings and Danny Grant scored twice for the Stars.

On another matter, Delvecchio said Dionne denied reports in which he was quoted as saying he wanted to leave the Red Wings.

"I talked to him before the game," Delvecchio said. "A lot was written in between (the lines): Marcel denied it with me."

"I asked him if he wanted to play here or not, and he said he did."

NY Rangers 5 Atlanta 2

"They weren't jumping—moving fast; we made them look good for two periods."

In those first two periods, the Rangers built a 3-0 lead on goals by Rod Gilbert, Brad Park and Vic Hadfield. Then, suddenly, the lead was almost wiped out in the first 5½ minutes of the third period when Al McDonough and Curt Bennett scored for the Flames.

"When we started forcing them in their own end, we got a couple of goals," Geoffrion said. "That's how you can beat that club."

However, Billy Fairbairn gave the Rangers a 4-2 lead with his first goal in 10 games and then defenseman Gilles Marotte added another for a 5-2 margin.

"I think Mr. Geoffrion should worry about his own team," said coach Larry Popein of the Rangers. "Our defencemen aren't exactly frightened. They can handle the puck in our zone."

Chicago 8 California 4

The Hawks got three goals and two assists from Dennis Hull—the second time in his career he has scored three in one game—to whip the Seals. Hull, who connected twice in the first period, has 19 goals this year.

Chicago led 3-1 after the first period and 6-3 at the end of the second, while outshooting California 39-26.

Reg Leach scored three goals for the Seals, raising his total to nine.

Buffalo 6 Vancouver 3

The Sabres, with two goals by Rene Robert—his 18th and 19th of the season—extended the Canucks' winless streak to six games. It was Vancouver's 16th loss in 20 road games.

Bobby Schmautz scored his 21st goal and his 12th in the last 16 games when he beat Dan Bouchard to the open corner for Buffalo's first goal.

Sorel Tops Royals 8-2

Even Cornwall Royals, the leaders in the West Division of the Quebec Major Junior A Hockey League, can't stop Sorel Black Hawks, the East Division leaders.

Sorel, which defeated the Royals 4-3 Dec. 28, added to its lead in the league standings Sunday when it smashed Cornwall 8-2.

Sorel's victory was its 21st straight and its 12th in the last 16 games since it opened the season with a 6-0 loss to Quebec Nordiques.

The Old Pros Praise Leader

"For someone to catch him, Johnny could have to play, bed," Nicklaus said after a glance at the scoreboard at the Bing Crosby National pro-am golf tournament.

"This course can grab your said Crier cones, who has the best chance of overtaking Miller. "But Johnny doesn't like he wants to beat off."

Miller had some similar thoughts.

"Maybe I shouldn't say this, and maybe it won't happen but I think another 70 will win it," he said Sunday after his two-under-par effort staked him to a four-stroke lead over Jones, alone in second going into today's weather-delayed final round of the chase for $115,000 in total prizes.

Miller who gained the front rank of the games stars with his record-breaking United States' Open triumph last year, had a 208 total and an eight under par.

Jones was next at 212 with Rod Funseth, Ellis Dorsey, Bob Summerhays and John Jacobs sharing third at 214.

McCarthy complained to supervisors of officials Bob Saal after his Colonels lost 103-100 to New York in an American Basketball Association game.

He was complaining about two goaltending calls late in the game. The Nets went ahead 99-98 when Artis Gilmore was called for goaltending a shot by Nets' Brian Taylor. Then guard Mike Gale was called for illegally blocking a shot by Julius Erving.

The teams trail first-place Carolina Cougars by half a game in the ABA's Eastern Division.

New York 103 Kentucky 100

Erving led the Nets with 29 points.

Chicago 120 Phoenix 116

Capital 99 Milwaukee 88

Phil Chenier had 31 points and Mike Riordan sank three free throws in the final two minutes to lead Capital to its third straight victory.

Buffalo 117 Atlanta 109

Buffalo's Bob McAdoo and Atlanta's Pete Maravich scored 34 points each, but the Braves got superb defensive play from guard Mike Gale who called for illegally blocking a shot by Julius Erving.

The Lakers led 98-82 with 6:19 remaining, but K.C.-Omaha cut the deficit to five points at 106-99 before Los Angeles' Happy Hairston hit two free throws to cap the victory, Gail Goodrich scored 28 points in the winning campaign.

Portland 106 Golden State 105

Sidney Wicks and Geoff Petrie scored 26 points each and Portland got off a late jumper by Golden State to preserve the triumph. Rick Barry, who led all scorers with 27 points, missed a free throw with 1:27 to play and left Golden State at a one-point disadvantage.

CN Says CTC Report Outdated

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadian National Railways says conclusions reached by the Canadian transport commission last week in its report on railway safety "are based on outdated figures and do not reflect current conditions."

Many of the safety measures proposed by the CTC have already been carried out with a resulting 13-per-cent improvement in CN's accident record for 1973 compared with 1972," the company said in a statement issued here Sunday.

The commission issued new rules last week intended to curb rising rail accident rates and increase track inspection. The new rules follow a long inquiry on rail safety completed two years ago.

A report by commission officials said that much of the rail trackage in Canada was not built to handle the heavier trains running now.

CN said the situation depicted in the commission's report "is out of perspective with no consideration given to the massive workload imposed on CN during the past decade."

The company concluded that its safety standards "are as good or better than those of Class 1 railways in North America," adding that CN officials will discuss the findings of the report at a later meeting with commission representatives.

Delay Strike

TORONTO (CP) — Workers at 11 Metropolitan Toronto hospitals have temporarily withdrawn their threat of an illegal strike to support contract demands.

Instead, the 8,000 members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE) will launch a $40,000 advertising campaign for public support with a mass rally Feb. 3 at St. Lawrence Centre.

The workers, including kitchen staff and technicians, are asking for a 40-per-cent raise. The average male CUPE hospital worker now earns a basic $5,500 a year.

The union will wage the campaign through commercials on radio and television, said hospital co-ordinator Tom Edwards.

If the advertising drive and collective bargaining fail, the workers are still prepared to strike illegally, he said.

Tumor Treated

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Hubert H. Humphrey's physician disclosed Saturday that the former vice-president underwent x-ray therapy last month for a possibly malignant bladder tumor.

Dr. Edgar Berman said the condition would be rechecked in about two months to determine whether the treatment had been successful.

THE HAGUE (Reuter) — More than 1,000 motorcycles carrying some 2,500 protesters from all over the Netherlands drove through the city centre here Saturday in a demonstration against the government's gasoline rationing proposals. The government has decided to allocate eight litres (about two gallons) of gasoline a week to motorcyclists when rationing begins Jan. 12, compared with 15 litres (3.3 gallons) for car drivers.

Fuel Burned

MACON, France (AP) — An oil refinery fire, the second to hit France in a week, burned up more than half a million gallons of fuel Sunday and officials said the blaze was deliberately set.

A refinery fire at Reche les Beaupre near Besancon on Dec. 29 destroyed more than 300,000 gallons of fuel.

Marijuana Cigarette Consumption Very High

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate internal security subcommittee estimates that making for more than five billion marijuana and hashish cigarettes entered the United States last year.

This indicates "consumption far exceeds any previous estimates," it said in a report released Saturday.

The subcommittee's estimate of imports was based on Drug Enforcement Administration figures on seizures of marijuana and hashish, both products of the cannabis plant.

The estimate assumes that roughly 10 times as much marijuana and hashish gets into the country as is seized by authorities.

Paper Says Kidnapper Threatening to Talk

ROME (Reuter) — A Rome newspaper reports it received a call from a Sicilian claiming to be one of the kidnappers of 17-year-old J. Paul Getty III and threatening to tell all he knows unless he is paid his fair share of the ransom.

The Getty boy, grandson of American oil magnate J. Paul Getty, was held hostage for five months and released just before Christmas after his right ear was cut off and his family was reported to have paid more than $2 million (£840,000).

The newspaper Il Messaggero, which had received the Getty ear in the mail, says a caller, who said he was paid only about $85 for acting as chauffeur in the boy during his first but the group then grew to 10, that the Mafia was involved and that the boy had been kept in various hideouts.

Italian police investigators have so far failed to produce any suspects.

False Cassefire Offer Sent by CIA Agent

BANGKOK (AP) — An agent of the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency sent a phony ceasefire offer to the Thai government and said it came from a Thai Communist insurgent leader, the United States embassy admitted Saturday.

Informed sources said the unidentified agent is an American. He was said to have hoped the offer would increase defections to the government.

The embassy, which admitted the episode after three Bangkok newspapers reported it, said: "The incident of the ceasefire letter . . . was a regrettable, unauthorized initiative."

Inventor Will Sue Dustbane

OTTAWA (CP) — Inventor Bob Jerabek might know more about vacuum cleaners than anybody else in the world. He didn't invent them, but he's also made a lot of refinements in them.

He's also a fighter against a form of politics you can't see, hear or smell — electronic interference, which he measures and analyses in a $90,000 basement laboratory in his spacious Ottawa home.

And with the zeal and tireless curiosity of a Ralph Nader, he is forever testing electrical appliances for defects and potential menace dangerous electrical leaks. Manufacturers hear from him a lot.

He is described by C. L. Annis, general manager of the Canadian Patents and Development Corp., as a true inventor, a "first-class original thinker," and "a crusader for consumers."

So it's ironic the 48-year-old Czechoslovakian-born inventor, with four top-notch vacuum cleaner inventions selling well around the world, is not getting a penny in royalties.

His inventions, now making their way to factories in Europe, Australia and the United States, are the result of years of research, he says because he tried to get defective vacuum cleaners recalled — and the company still holds rights to his inventions. However, he plans to take the issue to court.

Meantime, he has set up shop in his basement, with much equipment as a digital voltmeter which can measure one-millionth of a volt, a small energy computer he built himself, a stereoscope microscope and an air-flow meter.

A member of a Canadian Standard Associations committee, Mr. Jerabek studies electromagnetic interference, those uncontrolled wave forces that make television sets snowy and radios crackle.

Arabs Said Risking Demand U.S. Use Force

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defence Secretary James Schlesinger says Arab countries risk decreasing United States public support for force against them if they carry their oil embargo too far.

"I think that that is a risk," Schlesinger said.

However, the defence chief said he does not believe it will come to that because the oil-producing states already have indicated an easing of pressure by increasing the flow to some European countries and Japan.

"We should recognize that the independent powers of sovereign states should not be used in such a way as would cripple the larger mass of the industrialized world," Schlesinger said in an interview recorded for broadcast Sunday on television.

"That is running too high a risk and it is a source of danger, I think, not only from our standpoint, but from the standpoint of the oil-producing nations."

At the same time, Schlesinger said, "the alleviation of pressure" represented by a 10-per-cent increase in Arab oil output announced last month "is an indication that the oil-producing states recognize their common interests with the industrialized world."

Although the Arabs did not reopen the oil tap to the United States, Schlesinger is known to feel that responsible leaders in the Arab producing states already recognize the embargo against the U.S. has reached the point of diminishing returns from a political standpoint.

Associates say he is optimistic the embargo will be relaxed or ended, although he is uncertain how soon.

In one way, Schlesinger viewed the Middle East crisis as benefiting the U.S. military establishment by restoring some of the standing it lost with the American public as a result of the Vietnam war.

"The entire resolution of the Middle Eastern conflict has been in the direction of making people appreciate more the reasons for which the United States maintains a defence establishment," he said.

Ritter Buried

PORT NECHES, Tex. (AP) — Country and western star Tex Ritter was buried Sunday in his native East Texas.

Ritter, 67, died of a heart attack last Wednesday.

About 700 to 800 friends, relatives and admirers attended funeral services at First United Methodist Church in nearby Beaumont.

The crowd swelled to 1,200 for the graveside services as Ritter was buried in a family plot.

Sakharov and Friends Defend Solzhenitsyn

MOSCOW (AP) — Nuclear physicist Andrei Sakharov and four other political dissidents have come to the defence of Soviet novelist Alexander Solzhenitsyn—his first public support from within the Soviet Union.

They said in a statement Sunday they were appalled by "new threats" to Solzhenitsyn issued by the Tass news agency Tass.

After Solzhenitsyn's book Gulag Archipelago, about Stalinist labor camps, was published in Paris last month, Tass called the Nobel Prize-winning novelist "a renegade" and a "puppet of reactionary propaganda."

The dissidents' statement said the rights of a writer to write and publish what his conscience dictates is "one of the most basic in a civilized society" and cannot be limited to state borders.

In addition to Sakharov, the statement was signed by writers Alexander Galich, Vladimir Maximov and Vladimir Voinovich and by Igor Shafarevich, Moscow University mathematics professor.

It asked how it was possible for Tass to call an attempt to collect historical evidence about "admitted mistakes" a slander.

Unregistered Banff Trips Will Bring Prosecution

BANFF, Alta. (CP) — Failure by hikers and cross-country skiers to register their wilderness trips with the Banff Park Warden Service will be punished by prosecution in the courts, Chief Warden A. S. Andersen said Saturday.

The old policy of warning those who fail to register appears to have failed, he said in an interview. The new policy, calling for fines, will apply to all wilderness travellers who either fail to register initially or who provoke a needless search by neglecting to notify authorities of their return.

In 1973, he said more than 50 needless searches were conducted by the service because travellers failed to register their return. Most of these cases did not result in prosecutions.

In Banff magistrate's court Thursday, three men were fined $75 each after they failed to register.

1920 Pierce-Arrow Coupe Is Sold for $180,000

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. AP) — After being wooed into the auction ring because of a cracked oil pan, a 1920 Pierce-Arrow Opera Coupe was sold for $180,000 Saturday.

The body was plated in 23-carat gold and every other part, not and bolt were plated in chrome or other shiny metal.

Earl Clark, bidding by telephone from Pennsylvania, paid the record price to Ken Mauloff of Denver. Mauloff said he purchased the car earlier this year from Wayne Pritchard of Great Bend, Kan. He said Pritchard had paid $62.50 for the ungainly-looking coupe in 1945 and spent 28 years replacing it.

Clark had paid $153,000 last year at the Scottsdale sale for the parade car once used by Adolf Hitler. He sold it last October for $176,000, establishing a world record for classic cars.

Three Special Autos Are Shown to Reporters

MONTREAL (CP) — David C. Collier, president of General Motors of Canada, demonstrated three experimental special purpose cars to reporters at a news conference Friday.

Ranging in weight from 950 to 1,250 pounds, the cars could not mix safely with today's street traffic, he said, and would require special reserve lanes.

Kissinger and Shultz Nixon's Biggest Assets

WASHINGTON (CP) — Isolated, his prestige at an alarming low point, Richard Nixon will need all of his innate combativeness and resiliency in 1974 to sustain the power of his presidency— or even to survive as president.

The coming months are being viewed as crucial. A growing number of Republican congressmen are said to feel that if Nixon has not rebuilt public support for his administration by spring, he risks a tide of congressional sentiment for his resignation or impeachment.

Installation of the unabrasive Gerald Ford as vice-president Dec. 6 may prove to have been a watershed for the 60-year-old president's fortunes.

Sentiment among Nixon's fellow Republicans on Capitol Hill is overlaid with impatience about the never-ending Watergate revelations and anxiety that their own prospects in next November's off-year elections will be jeopardized without drastic changes in the White House.

With Ford available now as a potential successor to Nixon, their willingness to carry the burden of White House scandal into the election campaign is likely to be scant.

Nixon's battle for political survival must be fought at the same time as he attempts to cope with fuel shortages, Middle East negotiations, the threat of economic recession and the countless other problems which wind up on a president's desk.

But even at his most embattled, Nixon has been able to veto a series of congressional bills and make the veto stick.

However, what remains of public confidence in Nixon's abilities can probably be attributed in large measure to the work of a handful of senior aides, most notably Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and Treasury Secretary George Shultz.

The Nixon-Kissinger team continued to claim success for U.S. foreign policy in 1973, although there were unresolved problems with major allies.

With the long-walled American withdrawal from Vietnam last January and the return of some 600 American prisoners of war, the U.S. expanded its détente with China and the Soviet Union.

Kissinger made a new trip to Peking in the fall and two more visits to Moscow. Communist Party Secretary Leonid Brezhnev responded with an eight-day visit to the U.S. in June for talks with Nixon and unsuccessful attempts to get congressional support for Soviet trade concessions.

Kissinger's role in defusing the October war in the Middle East was widely praised. He patiently enlisted Soviet agreement on ceasefire terms and wooed the Arab states into face-to-face negotiations with the Israelis.

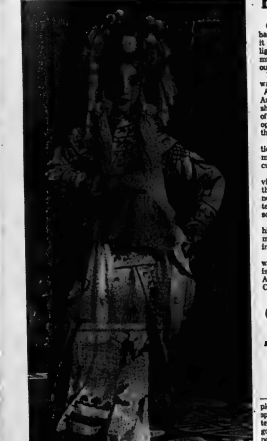
In contrast to its success with old opponents, the U.S. had trouble with old friends.

Kissinger's call in April for a "new Atlantic Charter" was greeted coldly by the allies and Nixon's hopes for making 1973 the "Year of Europe" faded badly.

There was suspicion in Europe that Kissinger and Washington were ordering world affairs to suit themselves.

George Shultz, for his part, had some of his best moments abroad. The American dollar survived a second devaluation and a lurching slide before recovering strongly by year's end.

And the world community, particularly the industrialized West, took the first hesitant steps—under pressure from Shultz and his American colleagues—toward reform of the international monetary system and liberalization of world trade.



Shultz had less success at home influencing the anti-inflation program and the burgeoning fuel shortage. His personal standing remained high but the Nixon administration, I but its domestic economic policies were under constant attack.

Most other administration figures kept their heads down as the Watergate mess rolled on. Even such aggressive operators as Caspar Weinberger, head of the vast health-education-welfare bureaucracy, and Interior Secretary Rogers Morton avoid the limelight.

In the 1972 election campaign, there were complaints that the high-flying Nixon refused to extend his help to other Republican office-seekers.

Now the neglected candidates are breathing a sigh of relief. And the unwillingness of elected politicians to be associated too publicly with the president has extended to the men the president has named to run his government departments.

Considering the self-assurance and optimism which accompanied Nixon's second inauguration last January for a second four-year term, the deterioration in his public standing during the last year has been one of the most stunning in American political history.

Black Comedy Is Next

After many years of absence, Betty Sadler returns to the Belleville Theatre Guild stage as the central character in The Anniversary, a black comedy by English playwright Bill Macilwraith.

One of the Guild's original members, she assumes the role of Mum in the three-act play, the third in the drama group's current season. The former director played last as Aunt Pennimuh in an adaptation of Henry James' novel, The Heiress.

Last night, on the Pinnacle Playhouse stage the sixth to her cast went through their first rehearsal overseen by director Flo Yanover and stage manager Rene Robertson. Jim Alexander is the producer. The set is designed by Jeffrey Slaco, a Montreal-based professional artist.

Opening night is set for Wednesday, Feb. 13 and the play continues through to Feb. 16 and Feb. 20-23.

The play centres around the attempts of Mum's three sons to break her hold on their lives, a hold she has maintained with gifts, threats and a heartless exploitation of their weak points. The action takes place the night of Mum's wedding anniversary, commemorated despite her husband's death years earlier.

In supporting roles, Steve Forrester, late of Arnold in this year's one-act Crowing Arnold by John Foster, portrays a son. Mike Hanley another, and Cliff Hay another son.

In the remaining female roles are Diana Coyne, last played Natasha in Anton Chekov's The Proposal, and Sharon Poirier, whose latest performance was in John Hawkes' The Wax Museum. Both are one-act plays the Guild staged in the first production this season, Comedy Bizarre II.

CN Tower Straight

TORONTO (CP) — Engineers have hinted at least one major problem during construction of the CN Tower—straightness.

The tower, which when complete will be the largest free-standing structure in the world, now varies only 1.1 inch from top to bottom.

Engineers usually allow for a variance of up to three inches for tall structures.

The control system was devised by Andre Jordan, project manager; Doug Sumner, project engineer; Len Varey, project superintendent, and Wally Kolodziej, field engineer.

Mr. Kolodziej said the four had different views on what system should be used and so a combination was arranged.

"This way we're all happy."

While the new system makes sure the tower does not incline, it also reduces what engineers call torsional oscillation.

This is an unexplained tendency of tall, slender structures to begin to twist slightly when they are being built in the Northern Hemisphere.

In the Northern Hemisphere, anything rising away from the earth goes counter-clockwise and anything going towards the earth goes clockwise. In the Southern Hemisphere, the direction is reversed.

He Eats Light Bulbs For Living

OTTAWA (CP) — Ali Kabah eats light bulbs. He does it quite casually, cracking the light bulb against his teeth, munching the glass thoroughly and swallowing it.

He follows it with a glass of water.

Ali Kabah is from Sydney, Australia, and is part of a show called a World Festival of Magic and Occult which opened Wednesday night at the National Arts Centre.

Ali Kabah said in an interview after the water chaser that he has been in show business for 25 years. He got interested in magic shows as a school kid in Sydney.

He's the third generation of his family on the stage. His mother was an opera singer in Australia.

He has been around the world several times but this is his first tour of North America and first visit to Canada.

Crosby Spectator This Year

BURLINGAME, Calif. (AP) — Bing Crosby, in hospital with pleurisy, was reported in good spirits Sunday as he watched a telecast of the annual Pro-Am golf tournament for which he normally is host at Pebble Beach.

The crooner's condition remained satisfactory, the nursing supervisor at Peninsula Hospital said, but Crosby will miss the final round of the 33rd Crosby National Pro-Am, scheduled to be played today.

"The doctors have not decided when to release him," the supervisor said.

Going For Song

TORONTO (CP) — In this day and age of rising boxtop prices, here's a bargain which recently appeared on the Toronto house market and was, naturally enough, snapped up within a few hours. For sale was a three-room bungalow in a low-class downtown area. Complete with a tiny surrounding garden, it sold for $5,500.

STARS—TUES. Jan. 8

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Aries (March 21-April 19) Your wigwam will not be big enough for two chiefs today. Maintain peace letting the other guy have his way, even if it hurts.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Avoid the opinionated friend who feels he is always right. Today he is even more distasteful than usual.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) Past obligations are likely to put some extra strain on the pocketbook. Pay what you can or you won't fall too far behind.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) An association that has caused some frustration in the past will have to be dealt with tactfully, else you could reopen an old wound.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 23) Don't try to dodge an important responsibility you should attend to today. It won't stay swept under the rug.

Virgo (Aug. 24-Sept. 23) Today you will find yourself at odds with your group. It's because your interests and the group's are no different to recognize.

Libra (Sept. 24-Oct. 23) Everything to be accomplished you're not way? Let someone else do it yourself, who specifically am?

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Don't be too proud to change your mind if someone has better ideas than yours. Be glad you have friends who can make constructive suggestions.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Partnership situations will need to be watched closely if material interests are to be protected. Look again at the balance sheet.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Treat one-to-one relationships with utmost consideration today. A companion has a chip on her shoulder. You can't want to brush it o f lucrativelarly.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If you have any doubts regarding a person who is performing work or service for you, you'll be better off getting someone else to do the job.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) You're putting more value on a relationship recently established with new social contact than you should. This person may try to use you.

Blood Pressure Gives No Signs

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: How can you tell when you start having high blood pressure? And can you give me some signs to look for? (Ohio)

No, because there aren't any early signs which you can detect just from the way you feel. And the worst point in the attack on the damage caused by high blood pressure, or hypertension.

If we could catch all cases early, the amount of deadly damage from hypertension could be enormously reduced. The only way to find it early is by having your blood pressure checked by your doctor and it takes only a matter of three or four minutes.

The American Medical Association recently published a report listing "five facts" about high blood pressure. The following five facts are well worth clipping out and remembering:

1—Hypertension is a very common health problem. Many people are unaware that they have high blood pressure because they feel perfectly well.

2—Hypertension is a major cause of stroke, heart failure and renal (kidney) failure, but these complications can be prevented with control of blood pressure.

3—Hypertension usually cannot be cured and requires lifetime medical care. It can be controlled by taking medication daily as directed.

4—Those being treated for hypertension should take their medicine every day even if they feel well. If they feel sick, they should check with their physician.

5—Anyone who is being treated for hypertension or who ever has been told that his blood pressure was high should have it checked frequently.

Opening lead—3♥

By Oswald and James Jacoby

Oswald: "Up to 1915 all auction bridge doubles were for penalty. Then the takeout double was invented. In the early days of contract this takeout double was used only against an opening bid. Then it was extended to the situation shown in today's hand. North knows his partner can't have much of a hand, but he sure has a long suit and six points.

Jim: "If North couldn't make a takeout double he would undoubtedly bid one spade and the chances are that he would play it right there."

Oswald: "Five clubs turns out to be a cinch. South has to lose one trick each in hearts and spades but has no trouble taking the other 11."

Jim: "The actual method of getting to the club game is open to question. Some people would jump right to three clubs after North's reopening double. I would only bid two but would have jumped right to game after my partner raised me to three."

Oswald: "I agree with you. South had nothing for his two bids but his shape made a game try and South should have relieved all further anxiety by bidding the game directly."

The CARD Service

The bidding has been:

West	North	East	South
Pass	1♥	Pass	2♠
Pass	3♠	Pass	?

You South hold:
♠K 7 3 ♥ 9 7 4 ♦ K 10 9 ♣ A K 6 3

What do you do now?

A — Strong action is indicated. One way is to re-raise to four Blackwood. A more scientific way is to raise to three spades with every intention of making a further bid later.

TODAY'S QUESTION

You do bid three spades and your partner continues in four spades. What do you do now?

U.S. to Probe Rumor Oil Is Being Hoarded

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States energy office has begun looking into rumors that corporations are stockpiling oil and hoarding fuel despite shortages.

Officials said Monday they are investigating possible petroleum stockpiling by the oil industry and possible fuel hoarding by railway and trucking firms. They said there is no evidence so far to support the rumors.

The office sent telegrams to the railway and major trucking firms asking for data on fuel stocks.

The office also asked major and independent oil companies to submit data on production and stockpiling.

Attorney-General William Saxbe threatened criminal and civil action against gas station operators who illegally require customers to buy other items as a condition for obtaining gasoline.

"I am talking not only about price-gouging but also indirect overcharges, which employ some transparent gimmick to cover what is in fact a higher price for gasoline sold," he said.

And the Internal Revenue Service sued one of the largest U.S. oil companies, Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, to collect $40 million in additional taxes.

The IRS contended that the company took unjustified depreciation and depletion allowances during 1967, 1968 and 1969. It also said the company claimed $14 million in excessive deductions for operations of foreign subsidiaries.

Meanwhile, an Associated Press survey showed about 700 commercial airline flight departures were eliminated Monday as a result of fuel cuts.

Airline officials said the latest cut did not appear to cause much of a problem.

About 1,500 daily departures—slightly more than 10 per cent of the total—have been cancelled since the energy crisis began, the Air Transport Association said.

Air National Guard and air reserve training flights, halted since Dec. 22, were resumed were-increased.

Defence department spokesman Jerry Friedheim said the Pentagon has received from the Federal Energy Office a daily allocation of 637,000 barrels of oil, an increase of about two per cent over the last three months of 1973.

Kidnapped Ajax Boy, 12, Rescued at Deep River

DEEP RIVER, Ont. (CP) — A 12-year-old boy who disappeared Saturday night in Ajax, Ont., was rescued unharmed Monday by a policemap who shot his knife-wielding abductor in the lig.

Robert Eskens, who failed to return from church Saturday night in Ajax, just east of Metropolitan Toronto, had been the subject of a search by hundreds before he was found in this Ottawa Valley community.

Constable Greg Robbins, making a routine check of two hitch-hikers, was questioning a man when the boy said: "Help me. Help me. I'm being kidnapped. He has a knife on me."

The boy started to run but his companion tried to grab him and threatened to kill him if the constable approached. However, the officer got between the two and drew his gun.

As the boy took refuge behind the police car, the man retreated to the nearby home of Lawrence Cotter and broke a panel of glass in the back door to gain entrance. Constable Robbins shot him in the leg as he entered.

Mr. Cotter was stabbed in the hand by the intruder, who ran upstairs.

"If my wife hadn't been home I would have run like hell," Mr. Cotter said. "The guy was out of his skull."

Constable Robbins and another Deep River policeman, Peter Vachon, talked to the man for almost half an hour before they persuaded him to throw his knife down the stairs and give up.

A spokesman for Durham regional police, who have jurisdiction in the Ajax area, said a warrant was issued charging Wayne Lockhart, 22, of Oshawa, Ont., with kidnapping.

Police in Deep River said they believed the abductor was at first driving a stolen truck, abandoned in Trenton or Belleville area when it ran out of gas. The journey continued in a stolen car which ran out of gas in the Deep River area, about 30 miles northwest of Pembroke.

"I was scared as hell," the boy told police. He said he had convinced the man to hitch-hike back towards Pembroke after the car ran out of gas.

The boy, who had gone two days without sleep, stayed Monday night at the home of the policeman who rescued him.

Mr. Cotter was treated for his hand wound and released from hospital and the arrested man was reported in good condition in hospital.

Chief Neil Raven of the Deep River police said a bullet from the policeman's revolver inflicted a minor wound just above the man's right knee.

Canadian Novelist Quarrels with Time

TORONTO (CP) — Richard Rohmer, Toronto lawyer and novelist, has sent a letter to Time magazine demanding that Time make its book section in the Canadian edition more Canadian.

In a letter delivered Monday to Stephen La Rue, president of Time Canada Ltd., Mr. Rohmer says the company has until Thursday to make amends or he will go to the Supreme Court of Ontario for an injunction against the sale and distribution of Time magazine in Canada and for damages."

He says Canadian readers are misled on two counts.

Books produced in the United States are reviewed but the name of the U.S. publisher is replaced in the Canadian edition with that of the Canadian distributor, he says.

The letter says this misleads the Canadian reader into believing that the books are published and manufactured in Canada.

His second complaint is that Time's best-seller list is a U.S. list but is not so identified.

He has attached a best seller list from last week's Time and last Saturday's Toronto Star. The Star list shows the top fiction in Canada was Ultimatum by Mr. Rohmer.

It is not on Time list.

Mr. Rohmer claims he has "suffered substantial damage o potential sales of my book" because Canadian readers would assume Time's list is Canadian and his book hasn't made it.

Tight Security Is Enforced For Israeli Envoy at London

LONDON (AP) — Troops and police maintained a heavy special guard for the fourth day today at London's Heathrow Airport, on the lookout for Arab terrorists with some anti-aircraft mini-rockets.

Special precautions were taken for the arrival today of Gideon Rafael, Israel's new ambassador to Britain.

Rafael and his wife arrived without incident aboard an El Al plane. Uniformed and plainclothes police swarmed around the airport.

Home Secretary Robert Carr confirmed in an interview that the unprecedented precautions were taken because of reports that Arab terrorists are believed planning to use stolen SAM-7 rockets against an airliner taking off or landing at London's big international airport.

The Soviet rocket is small enough to fit inside a suitcase when dismantled, is fired from a shoulder launcher, is effective on the heat of a plane's jet exhaust.

"I hope the public generally will feel pleased that when we press the button, things can happen quite smartly," Carr said. "I hope equally that those who are hatching plans for attacks on aircraft using British airports will feel a little less pleased."

But the chairman of the 4,500 British airline pilots said the show of force will not deter terrorist attacks. "If there is one more outrage there will be an instant 24-hour strike by every British pilot, and we hope other countries will follow suit."

Sources in the Canadian transport department said the RCMP was asked to place its airport forces on alert. Air Canada employees also were asked to "exercise precaution."

U.S. Wholesale Prices Climb Close to Record

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new surge in food prices combined with rising fuel costs to drive United States wholesale prices to near-record levels in December, the government reported today.

December's increase brought wholesale prices to a level 18.2 per cent above a year ago, closing out 1973 with the worst record in more than 25 years.

Wholesale prices, which fell in September and October, began climbing in November as the inflationary effects of the fuel shortage and the Arab oil cutoff began to show.

Prices of farm products, processed foods and feed reversed a three-month decline and rose sharply in December by 1.4 per cent, the report said.

Neither Carr nor other government officials would comment on a leaflet by the Provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army that it has obtained two planes and is training 18 pilots for commando strikes in Britain.

The IRA said that two dismantled planes have been smuggled into Dublin. It said nine pilots are being trained in the Irish republic and another nine in Libya. It said the operation is being financed by Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy.

Watergate Paroles Approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three Cuban exiles whose arrest in Democratic national committee headquarters was the start of the Watergate case are scheduled to be released March 7.

The U.S. parole board voted Monday to release the three from the federal prison camp at Elgin Air Force Base in Florida after they have served about 15 months of their one-to four-year sentences for conspiracy, burglary and wiretapping.

Eugenio Martinez, Frank Sturgis and Virgilio Gonzalez, all from Miami, were the lowest ranking of the seven men originally convicted in the Watergate conspiracy.

Three Watergate conspirators, Bernard Barker, Howard Hunt and James McCord are free on bail pending the outcome of appeals.

The seventh man, Gordon Liddy, is serving a term for contempt of court and has an appeal pending of his Watergate conviction.

Meanwhile, the Senate Watergate committee returned to court to get its civil suit against President Nixon moving ahead of a decision. Committee lawyers filed a brief contending that jurisdictional problems have been resolved by an act of Congress and asking the court to set consideration of the legal issues raised in the committee's subpoena of White House tapes.

Chief U.S. District Judge John Sirica, who dismissed the suit on jurisdictional grounds last Oct. 17, reassigned the case to Judge Gerhard Gesell.

Drifting Plagues Motorists

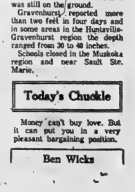
BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Most of Ontario reported fair to poor highway conditions Monday when the roads were pelted with heavy snowfall and drifting.

But no major accidents occurred, provincial police said.

The ministry of transportation and communications said visibility in Sault Ste. Marie, Ottawa and southern Georgian Bay regions was reduced to zero at times and police said highways near Midland were closed.

Muskoka airport reported that 21.2 inches of snow has fallen since Jan. 1 and almost all of it was still on the ground.



Gravenhurst reported more than two feet in four days and in some areas in the Huntsville-Gravenhurst region the depth ranged from 20 to 48 inches.

Schools closed in the Muskoka region and near Sault Ste. Marie.

City Kinsmen Urged to Support Fight Against Cystic Fibrosis

The Kinsmen Club of Belleville is being asked to support the fight against cystic fibrosis.

Director of the National Foundation of Cystic Fibrosis, Jan McClure, told Kinsmen members at their regular meeting last night, that their help is needed in curtailing the dreaded disease.

The disease has no known cause but is one of the most common serious chronic disorders of Canadian infants and children. It comes without warning and its victims often do not reach adulthood.

One in approximately every 1,000 babies is born with the disease in which certain glands do not operate properly. That is, the mucous glands secrete an abnormal thick, gluey mucus and the sweat glands produce an unusually salty sweat. It is the sticky mucus which causes trouble, mainly in the lungs by clogging the bronchial tubes although the digestive system is also affected.

And, Mr. McClure, while children suffer physically and mentally from the disease, their parents suffer as well, emotionally and financially.

It is estimated that the cost of medication, equipment and other items needed to alleviate the disease can cost a family as much as $5,000 a year.

Mr. McClure mentioned the case of one young cystic fibrosis victim who must take 106 pills a day. He then asked Kinsmen members to multiply this times the number of days in a year. "And how many aspirins do you swallow take in a year?" he asked his listeners after they had time to let the figure sink in.

Mr. McClure was accompanied by Bob Richey, president of the Peterborough chapter of the Cystic Fibrosis Association. Mr. McClure is vice-president of the Peterborough chapter. He lives and works in Lindsay.

Mr. McClure, himself a Kinsman, told fellow club members that since the Kinsmen clubs of Ontario started in 1963 to raise money to fight cystic fibrosis, over half a million dollars has been raised.

Out of that total, $300,000 was raised by the Belleville district 8 ranging from Toronto and going right to Belleville, Quinte and Trenton.

Youths Escape Bay Ice Mishap

TRENTON — The warm flow from town sewers creating a soft spot in Bay of Quinte ice was the undoing of two Trenton snowmobilers last night.

Police said two teenagers on their father's snowmachine hit the soft spot (just short of the enclosed tennis courts at Centennial Park) and sank with their vehicle.

Both boys made it out of the water, but not the snowmachine. It remains under three feet of water until crews haul it out. The salvage operation was expected to begin today.

Police are considering approaching council to have the area of the sewer inflow fenced off to deter other snowmobile enthusiasts. Parents sked police to withhold the boys' names.

New Snowmobile Bylaw for Picton

PICTON — Town solicitor Jack Ward has been instructed to prepare a new bylaw for snowmobile operation control for presentation to council.

The request followed a letter to council from Picton Police Chief George Pitt. The chief said the existing bylaw does not stipulate snowmobiles cannot be run on the sidewalks.

Reeve James Bird noted many town sidewalks are left unshovelled and snowmobilers are riding them.

Councillor Larry Richardson urged, "if we don't enforce regulations we will have someone seriously hurt. Do we wait for the first death in Picton, or do we do something?"

He said that during summer months snowmobilers seem to "holler" loudest about the noise of motorcycles. But in winter they become greater nuisances by riding the streets in the early hours of the morning.

Councillor Bessie Ward noted that one snowmobile club had approached council with a code of ethics and promised safe sport among its members. Other councillors quickly stressed that effort is "the odd Joe" who creates the problem and snowmobile clubs cannot be expected to influence incompetent or non-members.

Safety Assurance Sought for Highrise

TRENTON — Work on the Tripp Blvd. highrise has stopped until such time as it is satisfied the building will be structurally sound.

As one councillor put it, "We don't want a building dropping on someone's head."

Following the opinion of Arie Hoornweg acting commissioner of works, council agreed to have specialists come in from Kingston to examine the concrete used in the structure.

According to Mr. Hoornweg, the cement was poured in subzero weather, freezing the moisture which could ultimately weaken it.

From his report, contractors already tested the concrete and an engineer signed a statement saying it was safe. Some councillors could not understand why the acting commissioner needed further proof.

"It's a precautionary thing we feel is valuable," said Mr. Hoornweg, a civil engineer.

"There's no use proving the building is unsafe once completed."

The town will have to pay for the second opinion.

According to municipal staff, the town would not in any way be responsible for a cavein if one should occur.

Kingston engineers will inspect the building today, as arranged by Mr. Hoornweg. When questioned what would have happened if council didn't approve the action, Mr. Hoornweg said "we could have told the firm to forget it."

The Kingston engineers were due in Trenton today to do unrelated work.

Trenton Man Found Dead

TRENTON— The body of 42-year-old Marcel Sauve was found at his 165 Bay St. residence shortly before noon Monday.

Friends discovered Mr. Sauve when he failed to show up for work that morning. According to police reports he lived alone.

Both Trenton police and the coroner say a pathology report is still needed accurately determine the cause of death. The report is expected in two weeks.

LIP Error Pays Picton Councillor

PICTON — The town's recreation and parks committee has received a $12,944 Local Initiatives Program grant for community improvements.

Committee chairman and Picton deputy-reeve Ross Cronkwright informed council of the unexpected windfall — and of an attendant problem.

The committee originally had applied for an $18,000 grant to cover the cost of Queen's centre, a youth centre, to hire an equipment control manager at the arena and provide outdoor rinks.

The $12,944 grant received has through error, been made payable to deputy-reeve Cronkwright who must borrow and spend some of the money for the community projects before the grant funds will be paid to the municipality's recreation committee.

Council agreed that the mistake should be rectified as quickly as possible.

Taxi Fares Up In Picton

PICTON—Town council has passed a by-law approving a 25-cent increase in direct two taxi cells. The raise is the first sought by cabbies since 1969 when the fee was set at the present 75 cents for in-town calls.

All steps made by drivers will be 10 cents extra. A rate of 35 cents extra per mile will be sought for out-of-town calls. A fee of $5 per hour waiting time also has been set.

Leonard Cluting, a veteran cab driver in Picton and Prince Edward and operator of Quinte Taxi told council that increased gas prices and vehicle depreciation have prompted the raise in rates.

TRENTON — Canadian Armed Forces Boeing 707 left CFB Trenton Monday to pick up Chileans who recently sought refuge in Canada.

Cpt. Bob Burke, protocol officer at CFB Trenton said all "we are doing is picking up a package — we haven't any idea of its contents other that we are dropping it off in Toronto."

Reports on the number of refugees vary widely from 112 to 36. Armed Forces spokesmen will not comment on the venture saying it is simply a sideshow to a scheduled familiarization flight, current in procedures.

The flight — being — before reaching Chile Thursday night — will make stops in Mexico City, Buenos Aires and Rio De Janeiro.

"It is purely an immigration department deal — we're nothing to Ottawa on," said Cpt. Burke.

"We're not sending a plane to pick up refugees — our aircraft just happens to be in the area," he said.

The refugees who sought asylum in Canada will arrive in Toronto early Saturday.

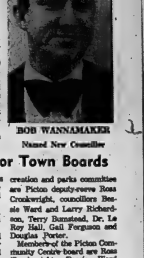
Trenton's Mayor-for-a-Year

Patrick Officially Takes Over

TRENTON — In a brief ceremony, Councillor Bob Patrick was officially sworn in as Trenton's mayor last night in council's first meeting of the new year.

Mayor Patrick replaces Duncan McDonald, forced to resign the mayor's position Dec. 31 because of business commitments. Mayor Patrick received unanimous council endorsement in taking over the position.



Taking little time for an inaugural speech, Mayor Patrick urged continued cooperation among councillors to aid in the progress of the community.

"I'm deeply honored to take over the position and I'm following a lot of good men," he said.

His first official act was to ask council to retire from chambers into a smaller committee room. This responded to a biting editorial in the Trenton newspaper which criticized council for stumbling, both making it difficult for the paper's reporter to hear proceedings. Council will consider moving the press table closer the public area.

Also sworn in last night was new councillor Bob Wannamaker. He will take Mayor Patrick's chair at the council table.

Councillor Wannamaker was selected for the position after placing seventh in the last town election.

McFarland Asks 'Teamwork'

PICTON — Teamwork is the key to a successful future for Picton, says Mayor H. G. McFarland.

In a New Year's address to council Monday night Mayor McFarland gave capsulized reports of several major issues in town affairs during 1973 — including the salary dispute between the Picton police commission and town police.

He observed that in numerous other matters discussion has led to settlement terms in the best interests of both parties — ratepayers and employees. In negotiations with the police force an arbitrator was called in and a $1 per cent salary increase was granted.

"We (the police commission) did our best for months and months until only arbitration was left;" said the mayor.

He said the Public Utilities Commission now has arrived at a two-year agreement that he supports.

In mentioning town finances the mayor remarked on "a nice surplus".

The town has a reserve fund of approximately $50,000 said the mayor.

Building permits in Picton in 1973 totalled approximately $1 million, indicating new growth.

Mayor McFarland said that many persons have predicted 1974 will-be "a bad year" but he disagrees with this outlook.

"If we will just go back to the basic, good principles that our country was built on this could be one of our best years," he said.

"We must pull together, be honest and live by the Golden Rule."

He expressed concern for Prince Edward should regional government be introduced. Municipalities then would not be as close to the people as municipal councillors are today, he said. He pointed out that regional government can lose touch with the needs of the people and stressed that it will cost much more than the approximate $8,000 paid annually in honoraria to town and township councillors.

It's No Difference To the Dogs, Is It?

PICTON—Often running at large in Picton despite an animal control officer, dogs became a topic for review at town council Monday night.

Discussion was sparked by an application from David Thompson of Gahonk Kennels, RR 1, Deseronto, for the job of dogcatcher and poundkeeper.

The Deseronto kennel operator offered to make patrols at a cost of $40 per trip. He also suggested a contract with $37 a patrol by the dog catcher, Cpt. Burke.

Councillor Larry Richardson challenged these figures, noting that Stirling dogcatcher Donald Tucker patrolled Picton from seven to ten times a month in 1973. That work averaged $20 a trip, half of the fee proposed by Mr. Thompson, he said.

Councillor Richardson suggested that Mr. Thompson should be informed of the inaccuracies in his figures and told of council's satisfaction with Mr. Tucker as control officer.

A more moderate approach was suggested by Councillor Jack Evans. He stressed the applicant should not be "dissuaded" in the event Mr. Tucker proves unsatisfactory at a later date.

Picton deputy-reeve Ross Cronkwright supported this stand. He said he has received many inquiries about the terms of Mr. Tucker's employment. Some ratepayers feel that the dog catcher's live closer than Stirling if he is to do his job effectively, he said.

Councillor Richardson noted that a town pound, perhaps, should hold the job and said that Mr. Thompson might tender his application should a vacancy be reported.

Council agreed to acknowledge his letter of application and to point out his inaccurate figures. He will be informed that council will consider an application from him should the animal control officer's job become vacant.

Town clerk Andrew Jarvis said that Mr. Tucker's agreement runs to June 1975.

Car Hits Rock

MADOC — A Stirling area man has been charged with careless driving following an accident early today on Highway 7, three miles west of here.

Ralph Francis Ray, 20, of RR3, Stirling lost control of his car, went into a ditch and hit a rock, said police. The accident occurred at 2.15 a.m.

A car being driven by Michael Patrick Gabourie RR 4, Tweed was destroyed by fire on Hungerford township's 9th concession early today. The fire started under the car's dashboard as Mr. Gabourie was driving. He escaped uninjured.

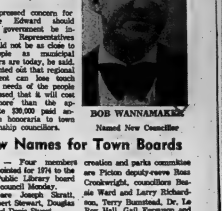
Trenton's Mayor-for-a-Year

Patrick Officially Takes Over

TRENTON — In a brief ceremony, Councillor Bob Patrick was officially sworn in as Trenton's mayor last night in council's first meeting of the new year.

Mayor Patrick replaces Duncan McDonald, forced to resign the mayor's position Dec. 31 because of business commitments. Mayor Patrick received unanimous council endorsement in taking over the mayoralty.



Taking little time for an inaugural speech, Mayor Patrick urged continued co-operation among councillors to aid in the progress of the community.

"I'm deeply honored to take over the position and I'm following a lot of good men," he said.

His first official act was to ask council to retire from chambers into a smaller committee room. This responded to a biting editorial in the Trenton newspaper which criticized council for mumbling thus making it difficult for the paper's reporter to hear proceedings. Council will consider moving the press table closer the debate area.

Also sworn in last night was new councillor Bob Wannamaker. He will take Mayor Patrick's chair at the council table.

Councillor Wannamaker was selected for the position after placing seventh in the last town election.

McFarland Asks 'Teamwork'

PICTON — Teamwork is the key to a successful future for Picton, says Mayor H. J. McFarland.

In a New Year's address to council Monday night Mayor McFarland gave capsulized reports of several major issues in town affairs during 1975 — including the salary dispute between the Picton police commission and town police.

He observed that in numerous other matters discussion has led to settlement terms in the best interests of both parties — ratepayers and employees. In negotiations with the police force an arbitrator was called in and a 31 per cent salary increase was granted.

"We (the police commission) did our best for months and months until only arbitration was left;" said the mayor.

He said the Public Utilities Commission now has arrived at a two-year agreement that he supports.

In mentioning town finances the mayor remarked on "a nice surplus".

The town has a reserve fund of approximately $50,000 said the mayor.

Building permits in Picton in 1975 totalled approximately $1 million, indicating new growth.

Mayor McFarland said that many persons have predicted 1976 will-be "a bad year" but he disagrees with this outlook.

"If we will just go back to the basic, good principles that our country was built on this could be one of our best years," he said.

"We must pull together, be honest and live by the Golden Rule."

He expressed concern for Prince Edward should regional government be introduced. Representatives then would not be as close to the people as municipal councillors are today, he said.

He pointed out that regional government can lose touch with the needs of the people and stressed that it will cost much more than the approximate $28,000 paid annually in this area to keep town and township councillors.

It's No Decision To the Dogs, Is It?

PICTON—Often running at large in Picton despite an animal control officer, dogs became a topic for review at town council Monday night.

Discussion was sparked by an application from David Thompson of Gahonk Kennels, RR 1, Deseronto for the job of Bogcatcher and pound-keeper.

The Deseronto kennel operator offered to make patrols at a cost of $40 per trip. He claimed, however, success with $37 a period by the dogcatcher in 1975.

Councillor Larry Richardson challenged these figures, noting that Picton Dogcatcher Donald Tucker patrolled Picton from seven to ten times a month in 1975 and his work averaged $20 a trip, half of the fee proposed by Mr. Thompson, he said.

Councillor Richardson suggested that Mr. Thompson should be informed of the inaccuracies in his figures and told of council's satisfaction with Mr. Tucker as control officer.

A more moderate approach was suggested by Councillor Jack Evans. He stressed the applicant should not be "dissuaded" in the event Mr. Tucker proves unsatisfactory at a later date.

Picton deputy-reeve Ross Crookwright supported this stand. He said he has received many inquiries about the terms of Mr. Tucker's employment. Some ratepayers feel the dog control duties live closer than Stirling if he is to do his job effectively, he said.

Councillor Richardson said a town meeting, perhaps should hold the job and said that Mr. Thompson might inquire his application should a vacancy be reported.

Council agreed to acknowledge receipt of application and to point out his inaccurate figures. He will be informed that council will consider an application from him should the animal control officer's job become vacant.

Town clerk Andrew Jarvis said that Mr. Tucker's agreement with the town will expire before February.

Car Hits Rock

MADOC — A Stirling area man has been charged with careless driving following an accident early today on Highway 14 three miles west of here.

Ralph Francis' Ray, 39, of RR 1 Stirling lost control of his car, went into a ditch and hit a rock, said police. The accident occurred at 2.30 a.m.

A car being driven by Michael Patrick Gehourie RR 4, Tweed was destroyed by fire in Hungerford township's fire station accident early today. The fire started under the car's dashboard as Mr. Gehourie was driving. He escaped uninjured.

"I hurt all over!"

Crises of The '70s

In one of his pieces on the energy crisis columnist Vincent Egan takes note of an observation made by French Nobel peace prize winner Norman Borlaug, that "it may take a global famine to shock the world nations into effective action."

And Egan words of some anonymous philosopher that "men and nations only behave wisely once they have exhausted all other alternatives."

The last two comments are contained in a valuable report by the farm business section of Kemptville College of Agricultural Tecmology, in association with the Agricultural Economic Research Council of Canada.

They reflect the dilemma of our modern world threatened on every side by growing material pressures and shortages, and a parallel inability to cope with them.

The full text of the Kemptville college's report will appear on this page shortly. Meantime it is important to note from its pages the warning that while there is 1.2 cultivated acres for each person in the world today, by the year 2000 there will be only .8 cultivated acres per person.

Canada has five acres per person, but the report reminds us that there are large quantities of land suitable for cultivation and this despite current warnings about the encroachment of urban and industrial sprawl), that output per acre can be increased, and that with less than five per cent of the population actually involved in farming there is an abundance of human and capital resources available for the expansion of food production.

Is there a message here for young people seeking meaningful involvement in a society that alternately has no jobs for them in the city and then makes it easy for them with unemployment Insurance and make-work programs of often dubious value?

Desiderata

The first time we heard that inspiring soliloquy, Desiderata, was in a recitation by actress Ali McGraw (Love Story) on the old Ed Sullivan show.

Then, as often enough nowadays, its source was given as a centuries old inscription in Old St. Paul's Church in Baltimore.

However, we understand its origin is more recent — the work of an American, Max Ehrmann, in 1927, and this and the copyright are indicated on records and prints available in stores.

In language as sensitive and taut as Lincoln used in the Getysburg Oration, Desiderata says it all. Everything of a philosophical nature that an individual needs to know in life is there.

The significance of such a work is perennial, weathering even the perhaps overgenerous exposure it has been receiving since its "discovery" in the past two or three years. Already in this first month of the year we have seen it quoted in a newspaper ad in the Industrial Accident Prevention Association's publication, Accident Prevention.

Say Cheese

Notice that item at the end of December about the decline and fall of the pin-up calendar. True, there are a few holdouts but it seems that cheesecake — in the calendar business at least — is not the attraction it once was.

An exception, surprisingly perhaps, could be the company magazines that reach this editor's desk last year we recall receiving a pretty young blonde model called Trixie Schink who graced the cover of Bub and Truck Transport. Anyone less like a bus or a truck one could not imagine, nevertheless Miss Schink was portrayed holding a muffler pipe to illustrate an article in the magazine on auto emission standards.

Meanwhile a recent issue of Alcan News has on the cover a "fun" picture showing a delectable young woman demonstrating the efficacy of an aluminum household ladder.

So if it is ten times finer than gold once kept the calendar business going, there apparently is still scope in the company magazines. They frequently alternate photos of executive presidents and grand new producing projects with some of the best looking members of the modelling profession. A pretty girl is more like a melody than a muffler or a ladder . . . but viewed together, it is good business for mufflers and ladders.

MP Bill Knight Gets Some Answers

Bureaucrat Junkets to Faraway Places Draining Tax $

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Take it from us-bureaucrat Douglas Fullerton, young Bill Knight, the New Democratic sharpie from Assiniboia, is really getting through to the mandarins with the scores of questions about overtime costs and travel charges he has been asking.

He is starting to get them running — or, perhaps more correctly, flying — slightly scared.

"I suspect," Douglas Fullerton says, "I have been confusing in the public print, "that there are too many trips being taken by too many public servants.

"One of the best ways to reduce them is to ask about them in Parliament — for this will give any public servant pause before he steps aboard the plane for a single places to escape our northern climate."

So who is Douglas Fullerton that he should be sitting in judgment on his speers?

He is the former chairman of both the Cape Breton Development Corporation and the National Capital Commission, and is currently on special task force assignment from Prime Minister Trudeau to study and recommend the possible future form of government for the whole 65-community region of Canada's capital.

And, he has been making some "exotic" — well, sort of — trips himself, so he is qualified on two counts to comment.

But back to "Bad Bill" Knight, the terror of the mandarins.

He got a little upset when, as an elected representative of the taxpayers, he could not discover how much they were being nicked for overtime in the well-paid senior ranks of the public service.

He suspected it ran high into the millions, but there was no way to trace it in the Public Accounts and the Government, when confronted with the question, alleged that it would take too many thousands of hours and who-knows-how-many-dollars to find out.

With bureaucratic travel expenses, he got a little closer. For the Public Accounts revealed that combined with "removal" costs, the figure ran $273 million last year and currently $403 million.

And so he asked for details and got them in a book, three inches thick, detailing who went where, when, why, and for how much.

There were trips — hundreds of them in Washington, London, Paris, Rome, and other world capitals, of course — but more intriguingly, to such Faraway Pleasure Places as Nassau, Las Vegas, Bermuda, Jamaica, Nice, Capri, Cannes, Barbados, Miami, Antigua, Trinidad, Corfu, and other such world-famed sun-and-sand watering holes.

So Bill Knight asked for details.

And here are a sampling few:

Deputy Solicitor General R.A. Cote, salary up to $40,000, spent $1,344 going to Abidjan, famed spa on the African Coast, "to attend a seminar on Scientific Methods Used in Search for Truth."

The Quotes are all from the official answers the department involved gave Bill Knight.

Public Service Commission Chairman John Carson, salary up to $40,000, spent $4,178 to go to Australia to, among other things, make three speeches: South Africa, Zambia and England, then to New York to discuss "the proposed creation of an International Civil Service Commission."

(Like who needs, asks bill Knight, the world-steeped in red tape?)

Vice chairman of the Economic Council O. Thur, salary up to $40,000, spent $520 to go to Jamaica "to attend conference on the family . . ."

Ivan Head of the Prime Minister's office, salary up $35,000, spent $1,689 going to New York, Washington, London, the Soviet Union, Nigeria, Zambia and Tanzania to make speeches, take part in discussions, engage in consultations, and keep Pierre Trudeau company.

Assistant Undersecretary of State M. Yalden, salary up to $35,000, spent $2,178 getting to New York and Paris for conferences on "languages and culture."

Undersecretary of State Jules Leger, new Governor General, salary up to $50,000, spent $2,353 travelling to Paris, Yaounde, Cameroon, Africa, for a "study group on bilingualism and discussion with French authorities on Canadian Youth," that $2 million project on which Prime Minister Trudeau "leaned" on State Secretary Hugh Faulkner on behalf of his old friend Jacques Hebert of Montreal.

The answers to Bill Knight's questions are only starting to come in - - "the easy ones," as he sees them - - and still awaited are the details of those jaunts to Nassau, Barbados, Las Vegas, Capri.

Memories of Anne Frank Return As Dutch Combat Fuel Shortage

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Few of us will ever forget the deep tragedy of the Anne Frank story from the Second World War days of Jewish persecution and mass murder.

But many of us who will always remember the sad little girl and her best-selling diary are likely to forget that she was Dutch and that her long and difficult seclusion from the ever-vigilant German Gestapo and Dutch Quislings was in a Dutch home.

Dear all-like in mind and the immortality of the Diary of Anne Frank when you read about the present Dutch resistance to the Arab boycott of their oil exports to Holland.

On this crisis like so many in their past, the Spanish conquests of the 16th century, the struggle against the sea, the resistance against the Germans in the early 1940s, the Dutch remain resolute and determined to face much suffering for a cause.

Unlike the earlier crises mentioned above, chiefly the May, 1940, invasion for which there could be little preparation, there has been plenty of preparation for this crisis in which Holland doggedly continues to support Israel.

Any week now the last tanker from an Arab oil country port will pull out of busy Rotterdam harbor leaving the Dutch on their own to scramble for supplies to carry on the country's economy.

Again, on meeting you would hardly pick him as a political cabinet minister.

He is a quiet bachelor, short on the stocky side, with a round youthful face, he gives an image of boyishness.

Rather than driving around in a limousine of his chauffeur, as a minister, you picture him on a bicycle—probably with pant clips around his cuffs.

Yet as a parliamentary assistant, expert in trade and now in education, he has done some fair work.

Above all he is ambitious.

And for this one would say that on the apparent merits if he gets his cabinet post he is fortunate.

Yet if he doesn't get it, investing it as much as he obviously does, he will be unfortunate, time show a profit.

As for Smith, time will tell whether he will turn out to be one of the fortunates -- the unfortunate of politics.

At first meeting you would hardly expect him to be a politician.

Rather, he conces across very much as what he is: an elementary school teacher.

Yet as he has shown he is a good politician, at least in getting a vote out.

John Smith Lobbyists Want Their Man in The Cabinet

By DON O'HEARN

Thomson News Service

TORONTO — That's some idea that supporters of John Smith have come up with to try and boost him into the cabinet.

You've read about it? Key people behind the young Hamilton Mountain member organized a letter-writing campaign.

They managed to gang-up more than 2,000 post cards on Premier Davis saying that their boy should get a top spot.

Poor Bill Davis.

Perhaps he had thought of bringing in Smith.

At least he had one of the largest majorities of any PC in the last election.

But if he did bring him in then what could he do about his mail?

For if this appeared to work for Smith then what would happen? What a can of worms—or bags of mail—would then be opened up.

Every rookie—or veteran—who thinks he should be on the first team would get to letter, letter, letter-writing.

The premier's office would be jammed with mail bags.

Metals Crisis Possibility

By AL COLLETTI
NEW YORK (CP) — The grim possibility that a metals crisis might follow the so-called energy crisis is believed to be a heavy key officials in the Nixon administration.

The success of the Persian Gulf producers in boosting oil prices by 400 per cent since the end of 1972 is bound to rub off on the less-developed countries which have only raw materials to sell.

What worries Washington now is that the Arab oil embargo might give "dangerous ideas" to countries in Africa, Asia and Latin America that supply the United States with minerals.

The profits of U.S. corporations in Africa and Asia in particular have been enormous. If the less-developed countries should decide to use their mineral wealth to boost their economies, the result will be rising prices and dwindling supplies on world markets.

The U.S. has been a net importer of minerals since 1926.

The interior departments say the U.S. already depends on imports for more than half the supply of six of the 13 basic raw materials required by an industrial society—aluminum, nickel, zinc, chromium, manganese and tin.

Canada is a major U.S. supplier of aluminum, nickel and zinc.

C. Fred Bergsten, an international-economics expert with the Brookings Institute, says that perhaps the lesson to be learned from the Arab oil boycott—"is that countries will adopt extreme . . . policies when frustrated repeatedly in achieving their most cherished ambitions."

For years, producers of raw materials have been organizing together in a sort of "trade union" to bargain collectively for higher prices. The oil embargo is seen as only the culmination of this process.

What happened in oil may happen in copper and other raw materials, says Arthur Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board which controls the U.S. money supply.

Interior Secretary Rogers Morton conceded that the U.S. is vulnerable to a "minerals crisis." He suggests that among protective steps the U.S. should take is maximizing its huge stockpiles of metals.

Morton expressed his concern over the problem last week. He said increased research is in the books to develop new processes for getting more mineral wealth out of the country's own backyard—including low-grade iron ore.

He says he doesn't want the country to drift toward "a dangerous and costly dependence on imports."

But projections by the interior department show the U.S. by 1985 will depend on imports for more than half its iron, lead, and tungsten.

Some analysts believe that any metals crisis will force Washington to give more attention and money to the less-developed countries than in the past.

But in recent years, it has not moved in that direction, in fact, the U.S. has become increasingly stingy with its economic aid.

In 1972, the U.S. contributed 39 per cent of its Gross National Product to official development assistance.

Challenge to Legislators

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

The oil crisis has made several things obvious to the people of those who live an ostrich type existence—sticking to busy their heads in the sand rather than face the unpleasantest facts of life.

Second, the unavailability of fuel will have serious effects on employment and production. Third, the advertising campaign pire seem similarly doomed. Having drowned us in nauseating detail for the past two years it at long last appears as if production will have to be limited to those things that are necessary to preserve life and health.

What a wonderful challenge this gives our legislators at all levels. Even here in the city of Belleville our local politicians will have an opportunity to show what they are made of.

Who is going to be the first to move to lower bus fares and increase the service fees? Sorry I forgot this is an election year — so we will have to wait until after the 30th of January.

Export Tax Set for 2 Months

Turner Bows to Opposition, Trims Crude Oil Tax Bill

OTTAWA (CP) — The battered crude oil export tax met final Commons approval Monday after Finance Minister John Turner bowed to opposition pressure and deleted a major section from the bill.

Faced with heavy Progressive Conservative and New Democratic Party resistance, he abandoned a provision that would have made the tax permanent and would have empowered the cabinet to change the tax rate on its own. Instead, the House approved a compromise measure put forward by Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield.

The altered bill raises the tax rate from $2.30 a barrel for January to $6.40 for February and March, in line with government plans, but contains no provision for extending it beyond these two months.

Mr. Stanfield objected to making the tax permanent before the Jan. 23-23 federal-provincial conference on energy.

The government may then present a new bill to Parliament before April 1st.

The original bill would have changed the tax to a so-called charge effective Feb. 1, and the cabinet would have been authorized to raise or lower the rate each month to keep Canadian export prices in line with international rates.

The government made only one concession in response to Stanfield proposal and it was approved by the Conservative caucus before the Commons met Monday. It dealt with sharing the huge revenue generated by the tax.

Until Feb. 1, the government is committed to giving the oil-producing provinces 50 per cent of all revenue raised by the spending the remaining federal share on development of new energy sources in the same provinces. Mr. Turner still plans to give producing provinces one-half the revenue for February and March but the government, not bound by the previous commitment on spending the federal share.

Several government spokesmen have indicated the government will use part of its share after Feb. 1 to finance an oil-subsidy program in Quebec and the Atlantic provinces where consumers are almost totally dependent on high-price imported oil.

Most of Ontario and all four western provinces are supplied by domestic oil frozen at $4 a barrel by an arrangement between the government and major oil companies.

Rising overseas prices have pushed gasoline and heating oil costs in the five eastern provinces above rates in the rest of the country. By the end of January, when the latest Arab and Venezuelan price boosts begin to take effect, the difference is expected to be about 20 cents a gallon.

The subsidy program for eastern consumers will be a major topic when Prime Minister Trudeau and provincial premiers meet here later in the month.

Meanwhile, the late-1975 deadline for completing the Montreal to Toronto section of the Interprovincial pipeline was questioned by opposition energy spokesmen after Energy Minister Donald Macdonald disclosed that National Energy Board hearings, mandatory for all pipeline projects, will be delayed until spring.

Hearings had been scheduled to start this month or in March and construction was to begin in the spring. The delay will push this timetable back to the summer or fall, Mr. Macdonald said.

However, he told reporters, the pipeline still can be built by the end of 1975 if the government decides to start the extension from Sarnia, Ont., the major eastern terminus of the pipeline.

His estimate was backed by later in the day by David G. Walden, president of Interprovincial Pipe Line Ltd. which operates the existing Edmonton-Sarnia line.

Mr. Macdonald said the government has not decided whether to extend the line from Sarnia, Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., or possibly Winnipeg. A decision should be made within "a couple of weeks" he said.

Both Mr. Walden and Mr. Macdonald said the project will be delayed beyond 1975 if any delay at Sarnia is chosen.

T. C. Douglas (NDP—Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands) said the delay in energy board hearings appears to "shoot the (late-1975) completable all to blazes" even if the Sarnia route is chosen.

Acquiring land, ordering pipe sections, and carrying out construction work could hold back completion until well past the deadline, he said.

Mr. Waldon said in a telephone interview from his Toronto home that there are 4,000 pieces of property that must be purchased for the Sarnia route.

Pipe sections for the Sarnia route has been ordered on a tentative basis from Steel Co. Canada) Ltd., he said. Manufacturing will start at Stelco's Hamilton headquarters in November, if the pipeline project is approved by the energy board.

Stanfield Outlines Ten-point Program

OTTAWA (CP) —Progressive Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield watched the government energy position soften Monday, then moved in with his own 10-point program for a short-term national oil policy.

His 10-point program was perhaps the most comprehensive energy statement by the Conservatives and came after weeks of charges by the Liberals and NDP that his party lacks an energy policy.

Mr. Stanfield called for national self-sufficiency in oil, a better financial return to oil-producing provinces, agreement on a fair domestic oil price, federal-provincial understanding on a flexible mechanism to administer petroleum export prices and price shelters for Canadians dependent on expensive foreign oil.

Tax and royalty rates should be used to windfall profits but take into account the need for new oil discovery and production incentives for private companies, he told the Commons.

Mr. Stanfield called for urgent increased government revenues from oil by boosting Canadian ownership and development of new energy resources, federal incentive programs to ensure a minimum 90-day oil supply and all vulnerable communities and conservation of existing oil resources.

A national forum for continuing discussion of energy problems by all jurisdictional and administrative groups should be formed at the Jan. 23-23 energy conference, he said.

After laying down the principles of his policy, Mr. Stanfield blasted the Liberals for introducing in December "an unrealistic and sweeping policy which left Quebec and the Atlantic provinces totally in the energy planning framework of national prices."

Kierans Says Foreign Firms' Energy Grip Must Be Broken

MONTREAL (CP) — The grip that multinational corporations hold over sources and distribution of energy supplies must be broken if national interests are to be met, says Eric Kierans.

In Canada's case, that means greater government participation in exploration and development of natural resources, the former federal cabinet minister said in an interview Monday.

"The real profits to be made are in the area of control over the resources themselves and only political authorities can make the long-term judgments on what should be exported or kept for future generations," he said.

"I don't see why Canadians should have to surrender half the value of their resources to obtain the co-operation of the private sector."

The enormous sums Canada could turn back into resource development—such as funds from the export tax on petroleum or joint government-industry financing of projects—would make no sense if a good part of the end product were going to meet the needs of somebody else.

"Canada was very silly to get into the position where it is exporting more than 300,000 barrels of oil a day," said Mr. Kierans, now an economics professor at McGill University. "The blame lies squarely on the federal cabinet."

Canada currently exports about a million barrels of oil a day to the United States.

What about U.S. reaction to drastic diversion of petroleum to Canadian markets?

"The problem in Canada is that we fear these confrontation situations more than the fear measures," he said. "It would be quite simple to explain to the Americans that our own needs mean that we can only afford to export so many barrels of oil and that's it.

"It's only been in the last three or four years that the Americans have become enormous importers of petroleum. After that, they had sources—we've been building up the pipelines for many years.

"In the wider context of securing adequate supplies of energies the Arab states and Venezuela, Mr. Kierans said it is time to end the middleman powers of the multinational corporations.

"These corporations have sat in the middle controlling both the supply of resources and tax distribution," he said.

"What the governments of consumer nations have got to do is to attempt to deal directly with producing nations for long-term supply contracts—and go like to prices, and companies—and tax the oil companies simply as charter transporters.

Mr. Kierans said the current energy crisis is the product of a long-term economic battle between the Arab states and supporting countries as well as problems within the petroleum industry.

The governments in the Western world and Japan have come to realize their heavy dependence on getting sufficiently inexpensive supplies of oil to maintain their own rate of growth," he said.

"The Middle East countries rebelled, with reason, against low volumes of declining revenues expected from them."

The Arab rebellion took the form of production cutbacks and higher prices with the Middle East war making a dramatic backdrop against which to make these demands.

Mr. Kierans said the rapid rise in prices could be matched by other oil exporting countries, will taper off and likely decline

Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids...and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a new healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painfully. In repeven itching and discomfort in tests, this substance actually shrank the injured, inflamed tissue.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported actual "very striking improvement." This was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most important—this improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. All this was accomplished

Storing gasoline not recommended

With all the talk about the energy crisis and a possible gasoline shortage, some of my friends have suggested it might be an idea to stockpile gasoline. Is this safe?

No it isn't. There is a natural tendency to want to store an extra supply of gasoline for the snowmobile, or to keep five or ten gallons at the cottage for an emergency. It's hard to resist the temptation, but storing this highly volatile liquid can be quite dangerous. While even a small quantity is risky, a stockpile is equivalent to hoarding a bomb.

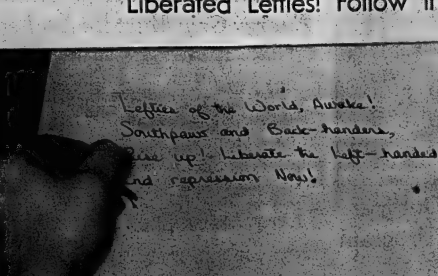
Pressures can release fumes

Storage of gasoline can be extremely dangerous. Gasoline fresh from underground storage tanks is always cool. As it is pumped to the surface at temperatures above 50° F. it starts to warm up and expand. Remember last summer when your car gasoline tank overflowed on your driveway? This expansion also occurs in a warm garage or basement. High pressures, powerful enough to split the seams or dislodge the cap of an unapproved container, can build up, releasing the highly volatile fumes which can be ignited with a single spark. Even when stored in approved containers, gasoline vaporizes and the vapor can escape through a closure that has not been tightly closed. The vapor can be drawn by air currents to various sources of ignition such as furnace or water heater pilot lights, poor electrical connections or a lighted cigarette. Aside from the explosive nature of gasoline, it is also impractical to store because its quality can deteriorate resulting in poor engine performance.

Use only approved containers

If you must store gasoline, store it in a place separate from the house and under lock and key. Keep it away from ignition sources and small children. Children are fascinated by closed containers and have been the victims of tragedies because of their curiosity. All it takes is a spill and a source of ignition. All gasoline has to be stored in an approved container. Approved containers sold in Ontario are labeled either CSA (Canadian Standards Association) ULC (Underwriters Laboratories of Canada) and are either plastic or metal. Older type rectangular metal unlabeled containers that are predominently red in color, not more than 5 gallons in capacity, will not leak in any position, have a carrying handle and bear a clearly legible warning that the contents are dangerous and flammable, may continue in use but are not recommended.

It is illegal to buy or sell a non-approved container for gasoline or naphtha.



Never, under any circumstances, use gasoline or naphtha as a cleaning solvent or fire starter. There are specific safe products on the market for these purposes, and for cleaning of paint brushes, removing floor wax, washing of grease off lawn mower or outboard or snowmobile parts.

Failure to recognize these safety rules too frequently results in disaster. Before storing gasoline check with your insurance agent. His company's liability can change if you are storing gasoline in a quantity, container or place that the company considers unsafe.

Liberated Lefties! Follow in the Footsteps of Leonardo!

By ISABEL (LEFTY) HUGGAN

Did you know that there are probably 4,000 people in Belleville who are discriminated against every day? Yet most of them don't even realize their existence.

They are the left-handers, that hardy band of non-conformists who live in a world where they are always odd men out.

In an early age, they learn to cope with "southpaw," "lefty" and other nicknames that often stick for life.

"I was even called "Wizard" when I was young," recalls left-handed Barbara Shepard, now a receptionist at Coca Cola Ltd.

These childhood memories stick. Ask almost anyone over 30 who is (or was) left-handed what they remember about their early days in school and they'll invariably describe having hands smacked with rulers, pages of printing mashed with erasers, and little success with kindergarten artwork.

Luckily, the centuries-old belief that a child showing left-handed tendencies was "not quite right" has been banished from the minds of modern day educators.

Evidence from surveys and tests has shown that switching a child's natural hand preference can have damaging effects, such as stunting stuttering.

Children beginning school in the past 25 years have been allowed to use the hand they prefer, though psychologists claim that they probably don't show a strong preference for either hand until mid-childhood.

A survey at Bayside Public School seems to bear this out: In Grade 1, only three out of 37 children are left-handed. By Grade 5, seven out of 33 use their lefts. In Grade 7, nine out of 32 are lefties.

In the six grades surveyed at Bayside there were 20 right-handed pupils and 39 who favor their left hands. These figures are only a little higher than popular estimates that between eight and ten per cent of the world's population is left-handed.

Do lefties make better students than righties? There are no figures, but it is interesting to note that one in five of Bayside Public's teaching staff is left-handed . . . a significant 20 per cent.

* * *

Even though the discrimination against lefties at school has ended, it's very evident at home and at work.

Around the house, just about everything from pull-start lawnmowers to kitchen cupboard doors are made for right-handed operation.

If you don't like to try using a screwdriver with your left hand, tend to a complicated system of switching utensils and hands.

If a leftie is seated at a crowded table by a right-hander, he's usually the right of a right-handed diner — the result is a clashing of elbows and spoons. And who gets the sweeping glares? Always the non-conformist, the trouble-maker, the lefty.

* * *

Despite much modern research into the problems of the left-handed, the world is still designed to be used by either hand, there are still areas where being a leftie can be disadvantageous.

Canada Manpower's Frank Martin explains that, in the needle trades, where sewing machines are used, and in most - automated production lines where high speed is essential, a worker's left-handedness could be detrimental.

Some machines have safety controls set in such a manner that the punching or pressing operations can only be done in conjunction with a right hand movement. This means that left-handed operators to cross hands, thus slowing down the production and sometimes creating a dangerous situation.

Manpower's Metric reports that its Belleville plant has only one area where a leftie would have difficulty working. A wire-wrapping machine operates by allowing a worker to hold a wire "gun" in his right hand (the wire being supplied from the left). Extra movement to accommodate a left-handed worker would slow down production.

Take a look, too, at the lunch counter you visit regularly. No matter who the girl is that's pouring the coffee, the cups are always stacked on the left . . . the coffee pot on the right. All done to speed up the process -- if you're right-handed, that is.

* * *

Of course, things are getting better for lefties. They can buy left-handed scissors now at a few stores, only in the "top quality" range. There are some available at lower prices. They can buy left-threaded screws and screw drivers (I don't ask us to name a source in Belleville, though. And adjustable irons.

Many assembly lines (Mead Johnson and Coca Cola, for instance, in Belleville) are organized so that it doesn't matter which hands workers use.

In the recreation field, it is now possible to buy left-handed golf clubs, hockey sticks, catchers' mitts and fishing reels at no extra cost. However, it is obvious that only the major manufacturers cater to lefties, and their products are never bargain-priced.

According to Griffin's Guns and Sports, the last four or five years has seen an increase in guns made for left-handed sportsmen, but in terms of something to be thankful for, as a normal rifle or shotgun would cost about double to cartridges inward the face of a lefty.

Of course, the guns will cost about 10 per cent more than the normal ones.

So, if they want to pay a little extra, the lefties will be able to get over many of their former physical annoyances. The social discriminations won't be so easy to forget, however.

* * *

For instance, they'll always be reminded that:

— A left-handed compliment is a very nice one.

—To do something left-handed means to do it the worst way. Use hard way, or even backwards.

—To be gauchely left is not a favored position in North America.

—One of the synonyms for left-handed is "clumsy" . . . the French word for left is "gauche", which also means awkwardness or physical awkward

—The Latin word for left is "sinister" which has its present meaning of evil because, in Roman fortune-telling, bad omens always came from the left

—Though there are more than 180 Biblical references making complementary statements to the right hand, when the left does get a mention it is the lesser of the two. When the sheep and goats get separated, the goats go to the left.

* * *

Despite these slurs and difficulties, left - handed people seem to end up well-adjusted, often more capable with both their hands than righties.

For instance, Ira Smith who works at Walter's Hardware Store uses her left hand for everything but writing. She went to school in Scotland where everyone was made to write right-handed, but she still considers herself a lefty.

* * *

Other famous lefties range from Benjamin Franklin to Charlie Chaplin and Ringo Starr.

One of the most brilliant was Leonardo da Vinci, who developed an ingenious style of writing unique to his left-handedness. He wrote in mirror-writing, from left to right across the page, confounding righties who tried to read his notebooks.

A New Slant On a Social Issue

Brazil Still 'Male Dominated'

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — More women in Brazil are beating the "machismo" system and getting good jobs that once were considered for men only, despite the fact that this South American nation remains a stronghold of male dominance.

It's a tough battle. Recent laws have given Brazilian women equal rights—on paper—with men. But most Brazilian men still think a woman should stay home and have babies. The census shows that while women make up nearly 25 per cent of Brazil's population of 100 million, they constitute just 17 per cent of the work force.

There are no militant women's rights groups in Brazil. Yet it is possible now for a determined Brazilian woman to compete on an equal basis with men.

Here are three examples:

In Fortaleza, capital of the northeastern Brazilian state to Ceara, you might expect to encounter a collection of tough, spikily hot-blooded "machos" Latins in the police force. And you do, except at the eighth precinct. There the chief is a dynamic, 25-year-old blonde named Margarida Maria Pereira de Carvalho. The first woman precinct chief in Ceara's history, Miss Carvalho is the boss of 31 policemen and detectives—all males.

"I competed for this job against 32 men," she said. "I found no discrimination based on sex.

"It's difficult to be the first anything. But government officials, the press and the people here in general have been behind me all the way."

Miss Carvalho graduated from Ceara Federal University's law school and then entered in the state police school. She was a top student and wound up as state pistol shooting champion.

"I think I have the same chance for advancement on the police force as a man," she said. "And in this department there is no salary discrimination between men and women."

Her father, a German immigrant who died four years ago, willed the factory to his seven children—five sons and two daughters. The brothers assumed they would run the operation and give the women honorary positions on the board of directors.

"I was determined to take an active role," Mrs. Dias said. "I told myself I wasn't going to be relegated to the back seat because I was a woman."

She took an intensive university night course in marketing and then strode boldly into the gear factory to take up her position.

"The idea of a woman taking charge offended my brothers' male vanity," she said. "When I started work, most of them would teach me the ropes. So I learned the hard way—by myself."

Mrs. Dias won the respect and authority that go with her present position inch by inch. Her husband, a physician, and six children, realize she needs a lot of freedom, she said.

Maria Stella Lopes Rodrigues, 41, is one of 175 judges in the Brazilian state of Guanabara, which encompasses the city of Rio. Only four of her colleagues on the bench are women.

"Many well-meaning people tried to discourage me from this career," she said. "But I've been a judge since 1965, and there haven't been any problems."

Mrs. Rodrigues, a law school graduate and author of a standard two-volume legal textbook used at universities throughout Brazil, was the first woman ever to serve on the Guanabara juvenile court—a position she held for eight years before moving to the state civil court.

As a juvenile court officer, she once broke up a rebellion at a tough Rio reform school, to the amazement of male wardens and guards who thought the situation was out of control.

"I went in alone and quietly talked to the boys about their complaints," she said. "I was just doing my job."

When she finished high school, Mrs. Rodrigues said her father gave her a ring to symbolize the end of her education. There was a family battle when she decided to go on to college and graduate school. She met her husband when he was a juvenile court commissioner, one of her subordinates.

"I'm useless in the kitchen," she grinned. "The only things I can make are salads and gelatine.

"Now my husband, he loves to cook."

Preserving Cultural Heritage Aim of Arts Foundation

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Vancouver school board has launched a campaign to end guerrilla warfare in the classroom.

The board has asked Education Minister Eileen Dailly for $877,000 and has retained Dr. Oscar Christensen, consultant in counselling and psychology at University of Arizona, to set guidelines for the three-year project in adult-pupil co-operation.

The program is aimed at making parents aware of the ways by which children and adults can get along and avoid a constant state of war between generations.

Dr. Christensen, 46, said today's adult generation is the most confused of any who have had the job of raising children. "Traditional child-rearing methods don't work. The trouble with traditional methods is they're 200 years out of touch with reality."

Those methods were suitable for training a child for the Utopian feudal system, where he was expected to play a subservient role throughout life, but they're not valid today because people are more conscious of their equality, said the consultant.

"Today's children are the last minority group to have won equality. They see themselves as equal to adults, but adults still talk down to them. When a child answers the adult from his self-perceived stance of equality, it's called assuming back."

And that's where conflict begins in the classroom, said Dr. Christensen.

The proposed system, to be set up by the school board under Dr. Christensen's direction, will train school board counsellors to train teachers.

"This means school counsellors will change from being paper-shufflers and child-schedulers to working one-third of the time with parents in community settings, one-third of the time with teachers and give equal time to direct counselling of students."

The expected end result of replacing ineffective reward-and-punishment systems with encouragement and logical consequences is to make discipline the responsibility of the individual rather than the responsibility of the enforcer.

"An adult's responses to a child's behavior is the reason the child continues to behave in the same way," said Dr. Christensen.

"All punishment should be wiped out. Once a child is punished it wipes out his responsibility for his behavior. If he isn't punished, he will learn to accept personal responsibility for his actions."

Plan Approved

VANCOUVER (CP) — West Vancouver school board has approved plans for an educational-recreational work at Sentinel secretary school. Students in groups of 10 to 15 will spend the week starting April 29 travelling at their own expense on indoor and outdoor excursions for academic or recreational purposes.

People and Events

The Bay of Quinte Chapter, Association, and Donald E. Ireland, secretary of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association, Toronto, speak at its monthly dinner meeting.

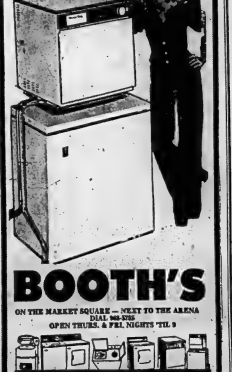
He told the women that the IAPA is a consulting and functional firm which serves thousands of companies.

He said offices are the safest place to work but there are still 8,000 disabling office injuries annually. Slips and falls account for 50 per cent of these accidents, he said.

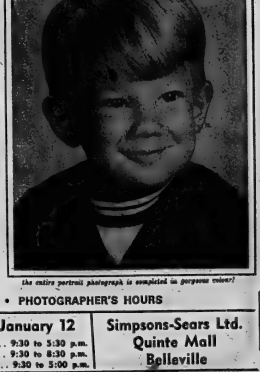
The group will meet again January 15.

A travelogue was the highlights of the most recent meeting of the Marysville Catholic Women's League.

Dr. Bryan Callaghan, who recently returned from a tour of Russia, displayed slides with his commentary.



Members of the Kingston Presbyterial will meet Wednesday 10 at 8 in St. Andrew's Church, Trenton, for the 88th annual meeting.



New Mission Opportunity is the theme of the meeting. Guest speaker will be Patricia Hanna, director of Services for Overseas Students and Laymen Abroad.

Homosexuality 'Off Sick List'

Dear Ann: I trust you read the page one story in your parent paper, the Chicago Sun-Times, stating that homosexuality is now "off the sick list."

The American Psychiatric Association announced that homosexuality has been removed from the lexicon of diseases. A spokesman for the Gay Movement heralded the announcement as "an instant cure."

The American Psychiatric Association also asked federal, state and local governments to end all forms of discrimination against homosexuals.

Gay Task Force leader Dr. Frank G. Kameny said he hoped the action of the American Psychiatric Association would be taken to heart by Ann Landers because "she is one of the country's most influential opinion-molders and her impact on American thinking is enormous."

How about it, Ann Landers? Are you big enough to reverse yourself and give the gay population a clean bill of health?— Waiting To Hear.

Dear Waiting: I did, indeed, read that the American Psychiatric Association had voted to remove homosexuality from the "sick list." I also read the following statement by people who hope you missed. It was issued as the APA's official position by the board of trustees. Here it is:

"For a mental condition to be considered a psychiatric disorder, it should either regularly cause emotional distress or regularly be associated with generalized impairment of social functioning. Homosexuality does not meet these criteria. This is not to say that homosexuality is 'normal' or that it is a desirable sexual preference."

In the past I have said homosexuals are sick, in the sense that homosexuality is a dysfunction, a form of aberrant behavior. My opinion has not changed. When the APA says homosexuality is "not normal" they are saying, in a different way, what I have been saying all along. But labels can be dangerously misleading, and herein lies part of the problem.

I am 18 years ahead of the American Psychiatric Association in appealing to federal, state and local governments to stop discriminating against homosexuals.

Illinois was the first state in the union to pass legislation declaring homosexuality between consenting adults to be longer a crime. To quote Dr. Frank G. Kameny, "one of the country's most influential opinion-makers" had something to do with this giant step toward human understanding. I am currently battling to have all questions relating to sexual behavior removed from employment applications. I am also fighting to protect homosexuals from job dismissal or demotion.

And now about the "sick" label. In my opinion, the heterosexual who is at war with himself, abuses others, engages in orgies, excessive drinking or drug abuse is sicker than the homosexual who is at peace with himself and is a productive member of society.

The Robert T. Morse Award for the "outstanding contribution to the public's understanding of psychiatry." I consider this one of my most meaningful citations. It was presented to me by the American Psychiatric Association.

Casual Sex Cause Infertility, Impotence Soviet Threatens

MOSCOW (Reuter) — "I didn't want to end up an old maid..."

"I wanted to find out if I could be a man."

These were two of the most common reasons given by a group of Soviet teen-agers recently for their first, experimenta in sex.

"I had a lot to drink and couldn't remember myself."

"He told me that I ought to show him how much I was."

The familiar phrases were quoted with obvious disapproval by Prof. Anatoly Kharchov, one of the Soviet Union's top specialists on questions of marriage and the family.

In an interview with the Moscow Young Communist newspaper Moskovsky Komsomolets, Kharchov said the remarks revealed a "irresponsible attitude to sex: 'Foreign notions' mixed primitives."

The quotations came from replies by teen-agers at a technical college in Odessa to a survey by a local sociologist.

Kharchov said some of the youngsters explained their attitude with the following formula:

"In our age of technical and scientific progress, man should be guided by an industrial philosophy which sees in love only a physical need."

The professor issued a warning for young people misled by the temptations of the flesh.

Casual sex, he wrote, might lead to infertility among women. Impotence among men and the contraction of venereal diseases by both.

And he had another admonition. Research showed that 90 per cent of the children born with congenital brain defects were the product of sexual encounters while one or both partners were drunk.

Some 25 per cent of the Odessa teen-agers admitted premarital experience of sex, the professor reported. Of these, only 11 per cent of the girls and seven per cent of the boys said they had been in love with their partners.

"Real love is always chaste, timid and respectful, and is always dominated by self-control as well as self-sacrifice for the sake of the loved one," said Kharchov.

The professor had further strictures on the attitude of many men and women here towards marriage.

According to the most recent census, he noted, some 35 per cent of men between the ages of 25 and 30 were unmarried, and 11 per cent of the 30-35 group were still bachelors.

"This means that many of our contemporary fellow-countrymen have a certain fear of taking on the responsibility of a family and children," he said.

And for women he had the following message:

"Get rid of the idea implanted by the war and the post-war demographical imbalance that you will end up a spinster if you don't take the chance of marriage when it turns up.

World's Worst-Dressed

Singer Bette Midler, shown here at a concert in Los Angeles last autumn, was Number One on dress designer Mr. Blackwell's list of the ten worst-dressed women of 1975. Plan Now For Spring Garden

With the winter wind blowing outside, it might be difficult to envision your spring and summer garden. But think about it: would a climbing rose look good near the patio? Or an evergreen at the corner of the house?

Your ideas and plans can get an added boost if you look through one of the new seed catalogues, says Dave Sangster, horticultural specialist with the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food.

Mr. Sangster points out that the latest flower and vegetable varieties are listed, and often illustrated in color, so that you can see the results yourself before you buy.

Seed catalogues contain some useful cultural information including the number of days to maturity, tolerance to disease, temperature and soil requirements and suitability of vegetables for canning and freezing.

A wide range of gardening equipment is also listed that could make your gardening more enjoyable and more successful. Many of the seed catalogues contain a list of gardening books which give more detailed information on specific crops.

How to Trace Your Family Tree

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: You were asking about tracing back for family trees in the United Kingdom. I have just about finished my own family tree, but oh, what a painstaking job. due to having to use the mail between here and the U.K.!

The current price for a birth certificate is one pound and thirty pence at Somerset House, London.

I have several tips to give you for your file on genealogy, like getting a copy of a will from Somerset House, tracing family relatives front the first public census in England as from 1841 on; also from the public records microfilm office in Chancery Lane, London.

I got back to 1808 and further yet. The Genealogical Society in London have now tabulated over two million names from old parish records done before 1837.

Bill

Dear Bill: We often have enquiries about searches back into family records, so I may be asking for details. Hope your own family tree gave you something to boast about - and no horse thieves! Today the black sheep of the family would be - maybe - a car thief.

• • •

Dear Doris: I belong to a women's club which earns money to help needy children, such as paying their way to summer camp; and now we want to help buy school lunches for some who can't pay for their own."

Now our problem is this: We are saving used ordinary stamps and we can't find out where to send them and how to package them or the price we will receive. We need the money to do what we have in mind.

Fidelio Club.

Dear Fidelio: It's true - there's gold in them thar stamps! But they have to be in bulk, and you are paid for them by the pound.

Stamps should be mailed in large quantities in boxes. And the dealers themselves are the ones to tell you the going rate for used stamps.

Look in the yellow pages of the telephone directory in your nearest large city to find at least one or more dealers listed under "Stamps for Collectors" or "Stamp Dealers". If your group is large and everyone is enthusiastic about this, you might turn it into a real money maker to help those luncheon kids.

Confidential to Boy Friend Trouble: Seven years is far too much difference, when it happens between 18 for the girl and 23 for the boy.

Without forbidding your girl to see this young man, encourage her to have a party, with boys and girls in her own age range - but not necessarily excluding him.

This way she can make her own comparisons. If you say he can't come she may even defend him unreasonably, and persist in seeing him.

Feathery Fashions Would Improve Lives Of Ostrich Farmers

OUDTSHOORN, South Africa (Reuter) — Farmers around this sun-scorched South African town don't comb their eyes to the sky and pray for rain. They look to Western Europe and pray for a change in women's fashions.

For Oudtshoorn is the centre of the world's largest ostrich-farming industry, and a revival of the feathery fashions popular in the 1920s before the First World War would be worth hundreds of thousands of dollars to local breeders.

As it is, the Oudtshoorn area now produces some 120,000 pounds of feathers a year from the 60,000 birds herded like penguins on the 170 ostrich farms dotted around the arid countryside.

With top - quality plumes bringing as much as $117 for 2.2 pounds, the feather industry is a small-million-dollar concern and since ostriches flourish in a dry, sun-drenched climate, heavy rainfall is the last thing the breeders want.

It is not only the feathers that the farmers sell. The bird's flesh is turned into "biltong," a South African dried meat delicacy, while the skins provide leather for shoes and handbags.

The intestines and blood are used in cattle feed and surplus eggs—26 times the volume of chicken eggs and strong enough to stand on—are sold to bakeries.

In addition, ostrich feet are turned into lamps and cigarette lighters, to be sold as gruesome souvenirs to the thousands of tourists who flock to Oudtshoorn each year.

Taking all this into account, the local breeders' association estimates that a fully grown bird—and some stand nearly nine feet tall—is worth about $135.

But this is a far cry from the boom days of the industry at the start of the century when feathers ranked after South African gold, diamonds and wool as export earners.

Those halcyon times began in the last quarter of the 19th century. By 1900, the ostrich industry was reaping greater profits than any other type of South African farming. The boom grew until the peak year of 1913 when 1,023,000 pounds of feathers were exported, worth the equivalent today of $227 million.

But then came the First World War, and stern, utilitarian fashions took the place of self-indulgent finery.

The Oudtshoorn industry collapsed as quickly as it had arisen and remained depressed for more than 10 years. A slow recovery came gradually, until now the industry is firmly established and thrives on a scale all over the world, primarily in the U.S., Japan and Australia.

The ostriches, which once roamed wild over the rugged landscape, are now herded down for their meat and feathers—a somewhat dangerous activity since a kick from one of the creatures can easily kill a man—now grase behind barbed wire and are slaughtered in the local abattoir, capable of "processing 2,000 birds a month.

City Man Jailed

A Belleville man, convicted on three counts of fraud, one count of false pretences, one charge of uttering and one charge of failing to appear at his original trial, was yesterday sentenced to two years less a day in a reformatory, when he appeared before Judge J. L. Clendenning in provincial court here.

Robert Howard McGee, 30, was arrested by police last December after he and a female companion toured Hastings and Prince Edward Counties passing worthless cheques in exchange for merchandise and cash.

McGee, who has been in custody since his arrest Dec. 7, was also found not guilty of a charge of break,enter and theft.

Court was told yesterday that McGee had cashed two worthless cheques for $50 worth of groceries and cash at the IGA store in Marmora on Nov. 18.

Both cheques were drawn on non-existant accounts at the Toronto Dominion bank in Marmora. One of the cheques was signed with McGee's name, while the other carried the alias, Bob Green.

Later in November, he purchased a diamond ring, valued at $250, from Ralf's Jewellers in Trenton, using a worthless cheque drawn on a none-existent bank account.

The uttering charge arose from an incident in August when McGee cashed a forged $20 cheque, made payable to himself, at a gas bar in Hallowell.

In passing sentence, Judge Clendenning drew attention to McGee's previous record which included a lengthy list of convictions for fraud and false pretences. Noting, that he believed McGee's method of passing bad cheques was an organized attempt to illegally obtain merchandise and cash, the judge said that he felt the principle of deterrence was an important factor in the passing of sentence.

McGee received concurrent jail terms of one month on the failure to appear conviction and two years less a day on each of the fraud, false pretences and uttering charges.

Oshawa Man Found Guilty

An Oshawa man, Andrew Soulios, was remanded in custody in court here yesterday, after he was convicted in provincial court here of three charges of possession of stolen property, one charge of false pretences and one charge of theft under $200.

Soulios was arrested by Belleville police Nov. 10, after he was found driving along Pinnacle Street in a car that was outfitted with licence plates belonged to an other vehicle.

An investigation into the incident revealed that Soflios also had two stolen credit cards in his possession.

Court was told yesterday that the Oshawa man had used the credit cards and the license plates, which had been taken from an abandoned wreck, to fraudulently obtain gasoline, oil and cash from gas stations in Sidney Township and Oshawa.

Soulos, a former servcie station attendent in Oshawa, obtained the two credit cards while he was employed in that city and police said that the junction with the invalid license plates, to obtain gasoline in a way that he felt could not connect the purchases to himself.

He also used the credit cards to hide the theft of $170 that he had taken from cash purchases of gasoline while working at an Oshawa service station between Nov. 5 and Nov. 8.

On Nov. 10, Soulos used one of the stolen credit cards to purchase $12.26 worth of gasoline and oil from the Towers Gas Bar on Dundas Street West.

Judge J. L. Clendenning remanded Soulos, in custody, to Jan. 28 for sentencing, pending the preparation of a presentence report.

Mineral Makeup

E. B. Freeman, provincial govern ment geological lecturer, outlines formations in rock sample for Nancy Priest, 17-year-old student interested in geology. She was among more than 100 who turned up for first night of basic course on minerals at Bayside Secondary School.

Rockhounds Out in Force

Fascination with the romance and reality of rocks is steady as ever in the Quinte district.

Proving the point was the hefty response Monday night to a week-long provincial government course on mineral exploration opened at Bayside Secondary School.

Some 104 turned out for the program, one of 13 being held around the province.

Such interest didn't seem to surprise E. B. Freehan, the natural resources ministry geological lecturer who runs the courses from fall to spring.

Fascination with minerals has various promptings. There's the romantic attraction for the rockhound, aiming for a glittering collection of mineral samples. There's the intriguing realities of mining and prospecting, the sheer educational attraction of geology.

In recent years something has been added. Public preoccupation with the environment has extended to minerals, says Mr. Freeman. The general concern with the outdoors has stimulated more interest in geology — an inquisitiveness that should increase.

In the future, I think you'll find more and more people curious about minerals," says the lecturer.

Numbers vary across the province. In Toronto alone last year about 400 people took the five, week-long night course.

Such response — and reasons for it — are a far cry from the first years of the course originally launched in the Quinte area.

The mobile program was first funded as an aid to fortune-hunting prospectors — and hence, provincial prosperity — in 1896. The first course was held at Belmora.

The Marmora-Madoc area is the threshold to Canadian Shield country through north Hastings County, a reason for the high interest in minerals by Quinte residents.

Cheshire Home Grant Approved

The appeal of Cheshire Homes for municipal financial assistance to help get its John Street residential headquarters ready for occupancy has met with success.

Late last year a board official appeared before city council asking for financial assistance but at the request of Mayor Robin Jeffrey it was tabled to allow it to be taken up at the Quinte Executive level.

At Monday's first council meeting of the year, Mayor Jeffrey reported that there had been agreement that all four Quinte area municipalities — Belleville, Trenton, Hastings county and Prince Edward county should share in the financial responsibility.

Alarm Box

Belleville firefighters responded to the following call for assistance during the 24-hour period ending at 8 a.m. Tuesday:

Monday, 5.32 p.m. smoking chimney, 4 Forin Street, no damage.

The interest is centralized in the Quinte Gem and Mineral Club — which assisted in locating this week's course.

Founded eight years ago it now counts 101 members throughout the Quinte mineral collections taking this week's course.

Councillors Report to Rotary

In an address to Belleville Rotary Club at its civic day meeting on Monday, Mayor Robin Jeffrey urged the club to begin planning for the city's centennial celebration in 1978.

Noting that the Chamber of Commerce had accepted responsibility as the planning and co - ordinating body, Mrs. Jeffrey said there was much to be done and she wondered if service clubs could unite in a single project for 1978

Among projects for consideration, the Mayor suggested a centre for the performing arts, an art gallery, a municipal swimming pool, a carriage house for further displays in conjunction with the Hastings county museum at Glanmore House, and a new home for the aged.

In connection with the last-named project, Mrs. Jeffrey said there was a waiting list of 52 senior citizens seeking admission in the existing facilities.

Members of Council at the lunch gave brief outlines of their work on the municipal scene in 1973 with a look ahead to what they considered would be this year's highlights.

Alderman Ben Corke alluded to criticism and gossip directed at the hospital and to decisions that were not very popular. He thought this was a pity, for he believed decisions had been made that were good for the city.

"We have the best run hospital by far that we have ever had and it will be even better as time goes on."

Alderman Jack Cox, in his first year on Council, said it had been a period of learning and trying to help promote a good administration.

When Mr. Cox said there had been hopes of a good road program in 1973 and that this year something definite should be done, Mayor Jeffrey said a road program would be announced at the next meeting of council.

Alderman Art Keegan said a question of importance for municipalities today is where are they going and how can they be limited in size.

He pointed to the growth of Canada's bigger cities, especially Toronto, and said "we have (scientific and technical) people who could be idling down trying to figure this out so things will not get completely out of hand."

Should a city grow to a population of 100,000, or 200,000 be asked. The answers to such questions could assist municipalities to plan in many spheres of activity.

Alderman Jack Weeks spoke of the volunteer dock building program he and others had undertaken in 1973 and hoped the facilities would be in the water next spring. He was looking forward to other harbor developments, the Moira River conservation authority, he was hoping to finish the tree planting program throughout the Moira watershed. He hoped this would cut algae growth. Spawning grounds for fish are to be dredged to bring fish back into the bay.

Mr. Weeks acknowledged there was pollution in the bay but claimed the government's program to combat it was the best in the country. He referred to the change in color of the water encountered in the

Early Payment Discount Finds Little Support

The question of municipal financing policy under which ratepayers could benefit by early payment of taxes was raised in city council Monday.

The matter already has an instalment system of tax payments which is felt acceptable as much the same as early tax payments and extra municipal borrowing to a minimum.

Alderman Siu Meeks raised the question when a by-law recommendation authorizing the city to borrow up to $2,500,000 was under discussion.

Aldérman Meeks noted that Sidney township had allowed a discount this year for early payment of taxes and suggested that many Belleville residents might wish to take advantage of the same idea.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey agreed that a further look might be given the matter but city staff members were not altogether enthusiastic.

City treasurer Frank Morrell stated that we already allows tax payments in five instalments in which discounts are figured in.

He said it would not be a simple calculation to figure out whether discounts for early payment would allow for an additional saving to taxpayers.

City Manager Albert Elliott said that following discounts for early payment of taxes had the effect of raising the tax burden for those taxpayers with excess money and had a detrimental effect on people with the least money. Municipal tax discounts increase the cost of operations, he said.

Under the present system of instalment paying of taxes, the city pays only about $6,000 annually in interest on money borrowed for current use.

This came as a surprise to Alderman Meeks who said he was under the impression that interest payments amount to considerably more.

Scouts Planning Birthday Party

This was decided at District Council meeting held last night at St. Thomas Parish House on Bridge Street.

Bob Shaw, scout leader for 18th Belleville, speaking for the Scouters' Club, received approval from District Council and in turn, the Quinte Mall to hold such an event.

The birthday party taking part during Baden-Powell week will come complete with cake, candles, including camping and crafts. And there will be free coffee and cake as well.

In other business last night, it was decided effective from the first of this year, the location of the Scout Office would be moved from 105 John Street South to the Eighth floor of the St. Thomas Parish Hall on Bridge Street.

Also it was reported at last night's meeting that at Camp Sagonaska at Vanderwater Park, there were a total of 2,459 camp days throughout 1973.

That means that all those who made use of the camp did so for a period of 2.49 days. And not only boy scouts, but students, YMCA members and girl scouts also made use of operation.

Procter and Gamble Formal Announcement Of New Plant Expected

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

A formal announcement by Procter and Gamble Company of Canada Ltd. that the firm has decided to establish a manufacturing plant at Belleville is expected in the city within the next year.

At city council last night a recommendation approved by annexation by the city of a parcel of land in Thurlow township for use by a new industry was passed by council members.

It was not stated specifically in council but the assumption is that the reason for the annexation would be to make it possible for extension of city sewer and water to serve the area.

Neither was the name Procter and Gamble mentioned in the recommendation for the property for which the annexation agreement covers but the same as that for which the firm took an option last August.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey, following the council meeting, declined to identify the company involved, stating that he only wished to make its own announcement.

The meeting Industrial Commissioner Fred Bemis who dealt with city land unavailable for comment.

The announcement last night indicated that Procter and Gamble had taken options on approximately 100 acres of undeveloped property in the city's northeast industrial area and in adjoining Thurlow township.

It is understood that a similar resolution to that passed by city council has been approved by Thurlow township.

Here again, however, Warden Horace Casey, reeve of Thurlow township, declined to identify the company involved.

But Mayor Jeffrey said the Thurlow resolution to "allow" the required annexation for the industrial site was an important step in co-operative planning between the township and the city.

The original announcement made in city council last August by Industrial Commission Chairman Bruce Nickson, said the Belleville property was being considered for its suitability for construction of a new plant for the company's growing consumer products line.

Proposed was construction of a 1,130,000-square-foot plant which would employ approximately 150 persons. If the company decided to come to Belleville plans called for construction to commence before spring of 1974.

Production is planned for manufacture at the proposed Belleville plant were not indicated by the city industrial commission chairman but it was said it would be a light manufacturing operation with no environmental problems. The plant would be compatible with the existing industrial community.

Some of Procter and Gamble's better known products include Tide, Ivory and Camay soaps, Spic and Span, Crisco and Duncan Hines food products.

Thurlow Will Use Inspectors

Thurlow township will soon join the ranks of other Hastings County municipalities now using the services of county building and plumbing inspectors.

At its meeting Monday, township council passed a motion enabling Thurlow to enter into an agreement with the county for the enforcement of township building and plumbing bylaws.

As soon as necessary paperwork can be completed, the township's inspections will be conducted by the county, said clerk Clare Horton.

Council's action came in response to a letter from Carl Bateman, county ed-administrator. Mr. Bateman requested some indication from Thurlow as to plans for the coming year. This, Mr. Bateman's letter explained, would allow the county to project its manpower needs in this.

Since January of last year, MacLennan, 31, of 1 Crenshaw Ave., on Beverlee Acres, would be 18 on Dec. 9.

Both men received minor cuts and bruises as a result of the accident. They were treated and released from Belleville General Hospital.

The cars, a 1963 Valiant and a 1967 Rambler, collided with a northbound vehicle, driven by John M. MacLennan, 31, of 1 Crenshaw Ave., on Beverlee Acres, around 6:15 p.m. yesterday.

Convention Costs Concerning Corke

Belleville Alderman Ben Corke is becoming concerned about the cost of sending city representatives to attend conferences outside the city.

The alderman raised the question at Monday's meeting of council during discussion as to the number of delegates who should attend the March Ontario Traffic Conference.

Alderman Corke said that now was the time to decide on who and how many representatives would go to conventions during the year instead of making decisions piecemeal.

The matter of delegates to the conference was eventually tabled until the next meeting of council.

Cars Collide Drivers Hurt

A two-car collision at the intersection of Bleecker Ave. and Emily Street sent two men to hospital with minor injuries and an estimated $1,400 worth of damage early yesterday evening.

Police reported today that a car driven west on Emily Street by Myles Warren Pringle, 20, of West Moira, collided with a northbound vehicle, driven by John M. MacLennan, 31, of 1 Crenshaw Ave., on Beverlee Acres, around 6:15 p.m. yesterday.

Both men received minor cuts and bruises as a result of the accident. They were treated and released from Belleville General Hospital.

The cars, a 1963 Valiant and a 1967 Rambler, collided with a northbound vehicle, driven by John M. MacLennan, 31, of 1 Crenshaw Ave., on Beverlee Acres, around 6:15 p.m. yesterday.

Genesee River area around Rochester, describing it as akin to cream of mushroom soup.

Alderman Roger Porter, as one of the newer members of council, said it had been a time for gaining experience. He said council had good department heads, "a terrific new city manager and excellent mayor."

Also new on council is Alderman George Zegouras who said he hoped to see work proceeding toward an official plan for the entire city and toward better streets. Alderman Jean Smith spoke of a new day-care centre in John Street, which was now undergoing renovation. She said she is also hoping for a start on a glass recycling program similar to the one for paper.

Present at the meeting were officials of the city administration.

Residential Complex Rezoning Requested

Construction of new residential complex of apartments or townhouses on the city's bayfront area west of the Moira River and south of the CPR tracks is proposed by a Belleville industrialist.

Morch Holdings Limited Ltd. has an application in to city council for rezoning of property owned by the company south of the railway tracks to permit construction of between 180 and 280 residential units.

Sketch drawings of the proposed development were included with the application but a spokesman for Morch Manufacturing emphasized that the drawings did not necessarily indicate the exact type of development planned.

The rezoning application was referred by council to the traffic committee, board of parks management, the subdivision planning committee, Quinte Planning Board and other agencies for comment and recommendation.

125 Permits Year's Total

A total of 125 building permits were issued by Thurlow township building inspector James Logue last year, George Hall, chief clerk, reported, rounded out the yearly count it was revealed by the inspector's report to council Monday.

More than 65, with an estimated value of over 1.7 million, were issued for residential construction starts in 1973.

The seven issued in December were valued at $174,000, four for single family dwellings.

Taking the Oath

Belleville District Scout Council's new president Len Rogers was officially sworn in last night during council's annual general meeting at St. Thomas' Parish House. While past president Bill Williams, left, holds the flag for Mr. Rodgers, centre, to make his oath on, District Commissioner Arnold Welch administers the oath to Mr. Rodgers. Bob Watson continues as treasurer while first vice-president is Jan Brandsma and second vice-president is Ken Bartlett. A new secretary will be appointed at a later meeting.

Toros, Whalers 'Painted Out'

Blazers Edge Knights

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Sport teams are well used to rainouts, and this season are learning to take blackouts in their stride too. But paintouts?

Monday's scheduled clash between the two top teams in the World Hockey Association East Division had to be postponed because the Boston Garden ice surface, painted for the Ice Capades, wouldn't come clean.

New England Whalers and Toronto Toros will meet tonight instead, joining Boston Braves and Baltimore Clippers of the American Hokey League IE in a double bill.

The postponement gave a monopoly on the evening's sports spotlight to lowly Vancouver Blazers and New Jersey Knights and, like Broadway understudies suddenly given their big chance, they came up with a blockbuster performance.

Danny Lawson's third goal of the night gave Vancouver a 5-3 lead early in the third period, but the Knights charged back with goals by Andre Lacroix and Wayne Rivers to narrow the gap. But despite outshooting the Blazers 13-6 in the period they couldn't even the score, and the game ended as a 5-4 Vancouver victory.

Lawson got a goal in each period, the first-period marker unassisted, giving him 32 goals for the year and lengthening his league lead in that department to seven over Wayne Carleton of Toronto Toros. But Carleton, with 26 assists to add to his 25 goals, still leads the league scoring race with 61 points, one ahead of Lawson.

Lacroix added two assists to his third-period goal. It now has 16 goals and 31 assists for 47 points, and moves up into a five-way tie for fourth place among WHA scorers.

Rivers got two goals and an assist for the Knights, with Dean Boylan rounding out the New Jersey scoring. Murray Myers and Don Burgess added the other Vancouver goals.

Jersey, which took a slight 34-33 edge in shots on goal, blew the chance to escape the dive-bin dungeon. The loss left them tied with Chicago Cougars in last place with 17 victories and two ties apiece, although Chicago has three games in hand.

The victory left Vancouver still in fifth place in the West, eight points back of Winnipeg Jets.

The Jets get a chance tonight to vault past idle Minnesota Fighting Saints. Winnipeg visits the last-place Sharks in Los Angeles, and a victory would blast the Jets out of fourth place and they could even tie for second with Edmonton, provided the Oilers co-operate by losing to the Aeros in a clash of the West Division leaders at Houston.

In the East tonight, in addition to the rescheduled Boston-New England game, Cleveland Crusaders visit Chicago. A Cleveland victory coupled with a tie or loss by Toronto would put the Crusaders past the Toros into second place.

The Jets, sputtering because of injuries, will get some of their old steam back with defenceman Chris Bordeleau and defenceman Joe Zanussi rejoining the team at Los Angeles. Bordeleau's Ken Broderick injured and Larry Hornung are both still out with leg injuries.

The game at Boston Garden was postponed an hour Monday night while the ice crew tried to repair the damage, but the ice was still dangerously soft.

It had been chipped and gouged by the ice scraper as the crew worked 18 hours straight trying to remove special paint used to cover hockey markings for the ice show.

Climie Moves Up In Race

SANTA ANA, Calif. (CP) — Ron Climie of Edmonton Oilers was the biggest points gainer in the World Hockey Association scoring race last week, moving to seventh spot among the leaders from 19th.

Climie now is tied with Gordie Howe of Houston Aeros with 46 points. Howe's total of 14 assists is also tied for the league's leading scorer. Wayne Carleton, who has 25 goals and 36 assists for 61 points, is Toronto Toros' leading scorer.

Danny Lawson of Vancouver Blazers leads in goal-scoring with 29.

Four Players Spark St. Louis

MONTREAL (CP) — St. Louis Blues haven't missed the National Hockey League playoffs since they joined the league as an expansion team for the 1967-68 season.

And today, by blending the ingredients of one established star, a pair of journeymen performers and a fine amateur draft choice, the Blues hope to keep that record intact this year.

Centre Garry Unger at 26 is the established star and the spearhead of the St. Louis attack.

Since moving to the Blues in a four-player trade from Detroit Red Wings three years ago, Unger has scored 105 goals and added 125 assists for 214 points in 219 games with St. Louis. He is the current leader among active players in consecutive games played, having appeared in 466 without missing an appearance.

Unger has never scored fewer than 30 goals in a season since becoming an NHL regular in 1968-69, and netted 42 in 1969-70 with Detroit and 41 last season with St. Louis.

Forwards Lou Angotti and Glen Sather fall into the journeymen category.

Angotti, who will be 36 Jan. 16, has made St. Louis his fifth stop in the NHL with 240 goals and 18 assists in 35 games, his best season so far in that department. His previous high was in 1967-68 when he scored 25 goals and had 37 assists for 62 points with Philadelphia Flyers.

Sather, 30, went to the Blues from New York Rangers last October.

Since joining the Blues, Sather has collected 27 points with nine goals and 18 assists. He never had more than 34 points in any previous season.

The new draft choice is goaltender John Davidson. He was the 1973 amateur draft choice of the Minnesota North Stars, one of four goalkeepers who has made the direct jump to the NHL from junior ranks.

In 21 games to date, Davidson has allowed 53 goals for a 2.53 goals-against average and a record of nine wins, seven losses, and five ties.

Meanwhile, centre Phil Esposito and defenceman Brian Conacher, his scoring rampage with 37 goals and 41 assists for 78 points and a wide lead in the individual scoring race.

Esposito has developed a 15-point lead over team-mate Bobby Orr.

Orr is second with 63 points, including a league-leading 41 assists, and Conacher is third on the first defenceman in NHL history to score 200 goals.

'Shabby' Charges Bud Grant

HOUSTON (AP) — An indignant Bud Grant of Minnesota Vikings blasted the National Football League for inadequate training facilities and said Miami Dolphins have been given preferential treatment in the Super Bowl game Sunday.

"This is shabby treatment — the normally quiet-spoken coach of the Vikings said.

"It's the Super Bowl. It's not just another pickup game. These facilities look like something the kids would have for a Saturday afternoon game."

Grant voiced his bitterest statement after viewing facilities at a high school stadium where the National Conference champion-ship game practice field has been quartered for the week.

The American Conference champion Miami Dolphins were assigned the more luxurious quarters of Houston Oilers', within walking distance of the hotel where they are living.

Grant has indicated he plans to protest to Commissioner Pete Rozelle in New York.

Jim Kensil, Rozelle's No. 1 assistant, said the Vikings would be given the choice of moving to Rice Stadium, if they preferred those facilities to the team representing the same conference. That, Miami had the preferential choice in the AFC team, as are the Oilers.

Ballard Seeks Franchise

TORONTO (CP) — Harold Ballard, president of Maple Leaf Gardens, says he has applied for a National Basketball Association franchise.

Ballard said he expects some reaction to his bid before NBA meetings in Seattle Jan. 15.

"If there is any chance of our getting a franchise for next season, I'll go to Seattle and make a presentation," said Ballard. "I'll know this week where we stand."

The Gardens has staged five home games of the NBA Buffalo Braves with four more scheduled in an attempt to test fan reaction.

Habs Nip Flyers 2-1

Bowman and Clarke Have War of Words

By GLENN COLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A feud is growing between coach Scotty Bowman of Montreal Canadiens and Bobby Clarke, team captain of Philadelphia Flyers.

The latest episode occurred during the first period of Monday night's National Hockey League game won 2-1 by the Canadiens before a record crowd of 19,040.

In the only NHL action, the Maple Leafs were 6-2 over Atlanta Flames at Toronto.

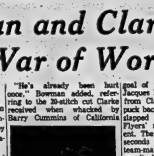
Bowman and Clarke exchanged unpleasantries last year during the Stanley Cup semi-finals. After an overzealous goal by defenceman Larry Robinson gave Montreal a 4-3 victory in the second game of the series, Bowman was quick to claim that Philadelphia's Gary Dornhoefer had made a mistake.

When Clarke heard about the remark, he said Bowman should "mind his own business and worry about coaching his own team."

After the first meeting between Montreal and Philadelphia Oct. 4 won 4-0 by the Canadiens, Bowman called Clarke a "cheap-shot artist."

The trouble started in the first period when Clarke was assessed a tripping minor. As Clarke was skating to the penalty bench, Bowman started yapping at him.

Just one minute later, Yvan Cournoyer of Montreal and Jim Watson of the Flyers were penalized for high sticking and as they were entering the box, Clarke spelled something at Bowman.



Bowman barked something back and Clarke attempted to get at him only to be restrained by a few hefty Forum security guards. At the same time, the Philadelphia bench cleared and rushed over to see what was happening.

Some of the Flyers, including Bob Kelly became verbally involved with the Montreal coach, but nothing in the way of an altercation developed. However referee Bob Myers, who had his hands full all evening, warned both benches to cool it.

When asked if Clarke had "rabbit ears" to be able to pick up Bowman's comments, the Montreal coach said:

"Put it this way, if A bothers this game, that's what we're trying to do. Apparently it bothered his game.

"I think Clarke is the dirtiest player in the league. He uses that stick of his a lot and he uses it pretty good.

BOBBY CLARKE

Golden Seals earlier this year.

Clarke, who won the Hart Trophy last year as the league's most valuable player, said Bowman had yelled some profanity at him as he was skating to the penalty bench.

"He does that to players all the time," said Clarke.

"Bowman's an ass. He should keep his players happy. All he has to do with a team like that is change lines and he can't even do that."

The Canadiens got the lone goal of the first period when Jacques Lemaire won a faceoff from Clarke and snapped the puck back to Guy Lapointe who slapped a screened shot past Flyers' netminder Bernie Parent. The goal came just three seconds after Watson joined team-mate Tom Bladon in the penalty box.

Ginger Murray Wilson got what proved to be the winning goal 40 seconds into the second period firing a wrist shot past Parent after taking Yvan Lambert's pass.

Simon Nolet got the lone Philadelphia goal at 6:40 of the middle period on the power play but the Flyers could not get goalie Wayne Thomas' arrogan.

MAPLE LEAFS 6 FLAMES 2.

Three goals by Darryl Sittler powered Toronto to victory decided win over Atlanta. Rick Kehoe, Ron Ellis and Mike Pelyk were the others. Toronto marksmen with Lew Morrison and Lou Bourbeau replying for Atlanta.

Rochefort's goal was his seventh of the season and the 100th in the NHL.

Leafs' forward Butch Deadmarsh suffered a broken fibula in his left leg when checked into the boards by Ellis in the first period. He could be sidelined from six to eight weeks.

Tonight, Los Angeles Kings visit New York Islanders and St. Louis Blues travel to Vancouver to meet the Canucks.

Injury Puts Gary Walt Out

By MIKE BRADSHAW
Sports Staff

"I wanted to go so bad I was starving for it," said Gary Walt, "I knew I could have brought home a gold medal."

Gary was describing his desire to travel to New Zealand as part of the Canadian Weightlifting Team at the Commonwealth Games. He had already qualified to be part of the Canadian representative squad, which is leaving for the Games on Friday.

A member of the local Apollo Barbell Club, Gary found himself in a Belleville General Hospital bed little more than a week before he was supposed to fly to New Zealand.

In rather an ironic way, weightlifting is what kept Walt from going to the Commonwealth competitions.

"Everything was going great," said the 25-year-old Belleville lifter, "I was in top physical condition. I was stronger than I had ever been in my eight years of weightlifting, I had the confidence I needed to win. It was like everything was peaking towards the Games and I knew I could get Canada a gold medal."

Maybe everything was going too good for Gary and fate had to step in and take its toll.

"I was in the gym, clean and jerking 350 pounds. I wasn't really too concerned about upping the weights of my lifts. Ken (Carr-Brainf, Apollo coach) wanted me to smooth out my technique, so he was hanging me with my half catches. I jerked the bar and heaved it over my head, but when I went to split my legs to balance it, the accident happened.

"The wooden platform that all the lifting is done on had gotten a little groove in it from where all the weights had dropped on it. The groove can't be any more than a quarter of an inch deep, but when I went to split my legs the toe of one shoe got caught and there I was with 350 pounds of metal (weight plus 227 pounds of my own weight standing on one leg.,

"On top of that my leg had become turned a little. Well, everything in my knee just went pop and I collapsed, throwing the weights away from me on my way down."

Walt was taken to the hospital and his knee was operated on. All his tendons had split and his knee cap had dropped a couple of inches.

"They'll take the cast off and the physical pain will disappear after a while," said Gary, "what's going to hurt for a long time though, is the fact that what I had worked so hard for and wanted so badly might not ever come true.

Gary had been coming into his own in the past three years. In 1971 he was ranked the third best heavyweight lifter in Canada, in '72 he was number one and in '73 he was ranked second. On top of this he had set a Canadian weightlifting record for the best press.

How successful the operation was is still not known. Walt will have the leg in a cast for the next tw omonths and won't be able to do much moving around for four months after that.

Canada will be going to the Commonwealth games without the aid of a top weightlifter Belleville and the Apollo Club has lost an opportunity for world recognition and what's worse, a truly talented weightlifter might not be able to compete again.

What does Gary Walt say to all of this?

"Right now I'm just wondering if I can get myself back into shape for competition in 1978."

Now that's the statement of a real champ!

Ferguson Skating

George Ferguson is back with Oklahoma City Blazers of the Central Hockey League.

Knocked out of the club's lineup with a shoulder separation during league play shortly before Christmas, George spent the next few weeks at home in Trenton, recuperating.

George's brother Al, former member of the Belleville Eagles of the OHA's Senior A League, says the shoulder came along very well.

"George left for Oklahoma City late last week and it wouldn't surprise me if he's ready for action for games this weekend," advised Al. Monday.

According to Al, all George needed was to work the skating legs and there would be no holding the younger Ferguson back.

George was the league's top point-getter when he was injured. He was making a determined bid to earn promotion to the parent Toronto Maple Leafs. And officials of the Leaf team were very happy with the centre's progress with the Blazers.

Yardmen Lose

The Belleville Yardmen Minor Midgets went down to defeat Saturday at the hands of the Peterborough Gray Munro Minor Midgets by a score of 5-0 in an Ontario Minor Hockey Association game played at the Memorial Arena.

Brian Courie fired the hat trick for the winners, while Andre Arbour and Jim McBowell added the singles.

Top Teams Win In Gas House

Four games were played in the Gas House Hockey League last night at the Memorial Arena, with no surprises resulting in the outcomes. Rollins Lumber defeated Stewart Warner in the first game of the night, while Cable Sales edged Fraser and O'Neil Real Estate 4-3 in the second contest.

The Yardmen took a 12-4 trouncing at the hands of the Doctors, while in the 11:30 game, Mead Johnson drubbed Chuckwagon Foods 8-1.

Bob Smith led the Rollins' squad with three goals to pace their win. Bob Hiltz added a pair. Dale Kiley replied with the only marker for Stewart Warner.

Carl Boomhower's two goals led the way for Golden Mile over Fraser and O'Neil, with Ralph Boomhower and Jerry Lucas adding the others.

Bruce Pascoe and Wayne Harrison scored the Fraser and O'Neil markers.

The Doctors received a four goal effort from Garry Geyer and three more from Hyslop Bryant as they bumbled the Yardmen 12-4. George Jardine scored twice, with Bill Van Zoelen, Paul Koutsos, and Jim Jones each tallying twice.

Four players scored in a losing cause for the Yardmen, with Steve Deveau, Chuck Kemp, Doug Thompson, and Richard Fobert all bagging one.

In the late game of the evening, Mike Geegan fired four goals to lead Meads' win over Chuckwagon. Ray Summers added a pair, while Ted Rowlands and Bob Mulvihill each scored once.

Jack Tyistra was the only Chuckwagon marksman.

Steve Keech Now a Spitfire

Windsor Spitfires of the Southern Ontario Junior Hockey League have acquired centre Steve Keech from Buffalo Tondas of the same league.

A Trenton product in his final year as a junior, Keech had 20 goals and 28 assists with Tondas.

Spitfires are second in the eight team grouping behind first place Welland. Tondas are in seventh place.

Six Finalists Chosen For Sports Awards

MONTREAL— Six finalists have been chosen for the 1973 Sir Canada Amateur Sport Awards.

Three have been chosen from a total of 16 candidates for the Executive of the Year in Amateur Sport Award, while three have been chosen from 16 candidates for the Coach of the Year in Amateur Sport.

The winner 65 each category will be announced at the Annual Sports Award Dinner in Quebec City, January 21, 1974.

Nominations for each award were made by amateur sport organizations in Canada. Judging is done by a panel of authorities.

The finalists for the Executive of the Year Award are: Lorne Plower, Kingston, national president of the Canadian Water Ski Association; Robert B. Spray, Vancouver, immediate past president of the Canadian Rugby Union; and Dr. Terrance Kavanagh, Toronto, president of the Commitee of Physical Fitness and a director of the Canadian Academy of Sports Medicine, nominated by the Canadian Track and Field Association.

Finalists for the Coach of the Year Award are: Lionel Pugh, Vancouver, coach of the University of British Columbia track and field team, nominated by the Canadian Track and Field Association; Miss Suzanne Eon, Quebec City, internationally acclaimed swimming coach nominated by the Canadian Amateur Synchronized Swimming Association; and Mrs. Marilyn Savage, Toronto member of the board of directors of the Coaches Association of Canada, and gymnastic coach of the Canadian Team for the 1972 Olympic Games. Mrs. Savage was nominated by the Canadian Gymnastics Federation. This year marks the first time an award will be presented to an amateur coach. Executive of the Year Awards were started by Air Canada in 1968. Last year's Executive Award winner was Joe Krycuka, of Calgary, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association and a member of the Hockey Canada steering committee co-ordinating the 1972 Canada-Soviet Union hockey series.

He'll Miss the Games

Gary Walt, lifter for the Apollo Barbell Club, was just about to leave for Canada when travelling to New Zealand with the Canadian Commonwealth Games Weightlifting Team when a freak accident during a practice session sent him to Belleville General Hospital instead. Chief Storeberg, RN, gives Gary a hand as his mobility has been slightly slowed down by the full length cast on his leg. Gary's cast will have to stay on for eight weeks and the injury will keep him out of weightlifting for the next six months.

Doug Grant Trophy

Peter Stephenson (right) president of the Central Ontario Badminton Association, makes the presentation of the Doug Grant Trophy to Bernie Houghton, the captain of the Kingston Badminton Club's winning team in the ninth annual Doug Grant Invitational Tournament, held Saturday at Centennial Secondary School. Kingston took the Trophy back to their own showcase for the fifth time, defeating Trenton in the final set, 16-6.

Officials Cancel Crosby Tourney

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Steady rains forced cancellation of Monday's final round of the Bing Crosby national pro-am golf tournament and officials called off the weather-plagued tournament after 54 holes of play.

Officials made the decision to call off the tournament late in the day.

Earlier, Monday's round was postponed and another try at completing the twice-postponed event was scheduled for today.

After a late inspection of the water-soaked greens at Pebble Beach Golf Club it was decided to cancel the tournament.

That meant that players would be paid on the basis of their 54-hole scores and receive 75 per cent of the announced $215,000 prize money.

Johnny Miller, who held a four-stroke lead through 54 holes, was declared the winner and received $27,750 instead of the announced first prize of $37,000.

The last time weather prevented completion of a round was the Kaiser in early 1969 at the Napa, Calif., course.

Fran Tarkenton Proof Scramblers Can Win

HOUSTON (AP) — Scrambling Fran Tarkenton of Minnesota Vikings and poised Bob Griese of Miami Dolphins were born on the same day but they took different roads to get to the same place, Sunday; the eighth annual Super Bowl game.

Tarkenton, with the reputation as the premier scrambler in the National Football League, has long been an established pro quarterback but is making his first appearance in the championship.

Griese went to the Dolphins during the expansion stages and started a steady climb to prominence that has paralleled Miami's rise to three straight Super Bowl berths.

Scrambling is what opposing teams think about most when they think about Tarkenton. Stopping Tarkenton's madcap gyrations Sunday will be a major factor in Miami's title bid.

Tarkenton, the second-ranked National Conference quarterback during the regular season, finally is laying to rest a long standing rumor: You can't win with a scrambler.

"It was the greatest lie ever perpetrated on the pro football public," Tarkenton said. "I don't want to be known as a scrambler. I don't want to be known as a loser. I just want to be known as a winner."

Tarkenton completed 61 per cent of his passes for 15 touchdowns and threw only seven interceptions during the 1973 regular season. He'll have his work cut out for him Sunday; Miami led the American Conference in pass defence.

Opposing Miami Coach Don Shula recognizes the danger.

"The biggest fear about Tarkenton is that he'll take a play and make a big gainer out of it. We'll do a lot of work this week on covering the rushing lanes with the idea of containment."

Tarkenton presents a special problem to any defence. With most quarterbacks, the idea is to force him out of the pocket. With Tarkenton, the Dolphins want to keep him in it.

Tarkenton will throw the bomb to John Gilliam as he did for three touchdowns in the divisional playoff against Washington. The Vikings, who led the NFC in pass-completions average and fewest interceptions thrown, also use flare passes to rookie running back Chuck Foreman.

Griese also enters the game as the second-ranked quarterback in his division.

"He's a delight," Shula said. "He's one of the most unselfish men I've ever known.

"He doesn't care how he moves the ball, just so it moves. The only thing he has on his mind constantly is to put seven on the board."

Far more than merely he man who hands off to Larry Csonka and Mercury Morris, Griese's ace is a strong, if seldom-used, passing attack. He completed 53 per cent of his passes in the regular season for 17 touchdowns and only eight interceptions.

Six Dolphins Named All-pro

NEW YORK (AP) — Record-shattering O. J. Simpson of Buffalo Bills was a unanimous choice and Miami's dazzling twin safeties, Dick Anderson and Jake Scott, headed six Dolphins named to the National Football League all-pro team by The Associated Press today.

Wide receiver Paul Warfield, running back Larry Csonka, guard Larry Little and placekicker Garo Yepremian were the other Miami players selected to the 22-man squad by a panel of sports writers and broadcasters covering the 26 NFL teams.

Simpson, the NFL's offensive player of the year who set a rushing record with 2,003 yards for the season, was named on every ballot cast in the poll. And the Bills' offensive line, key part of Simpson's success, was represented by O. J.'s roommate, guard Reggie McKenzie.

Joining McKenzie on the offensive line were Little, San Francisco 49ers centre Forrest Blue and tackles Ron Yary of Minnesota Vikings and Rayfield Wright of Dallas Cowboys, all repeaters from last year's all-pro team.

The only rookie selected to the squad was tight end Charles Young of Philadelphia Eagles, who finished with 55 catches in his first pro season. John Hadl, who led Los Angeles Rams to a 12-3 record, best in the club's history, and threw 32 touchdown passes, was named the quarterback.

Minnesota, which will oppose Miami in Sunday's Super Bowl, had two players besides Yary named to the squad, both on the defensive line. They were tackle Alan Page and defensive end Carl Eller.

The other side of the defensive line is manned by Atlanta Falcons end Claude Humphrey and tackle Mean Joe Greene of Pittsburgh Steelers.

Isiah Robertson of Los Angeles Washington Redskins' Chris Hanburger are the team's outside linebackers with Willie Lanier of Kansas City Chiefs manning the middle.

Completing the team in the defensive secondary with safeties Anderson, who led the league with eight interceptions, and Scott, were cornerbacks Robert James of Buffalo and Willie Brown of Oakland Raiders.

Her gentle smile we miss,
To hear her voice, to see her smile,
Is more than words can tell.
Sadly missed by sister Betty and family.

BROWN — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Ida Muriel Brown, who passed away Jan. 8, 1973.
The depths of sorrow we cannot tell
Of the loss of one so well beloved
Whose life we keep a precious shrine.
Her memory we shall always keep,
Her sweet face we shall see,
A beautiful smile, a heart so kind
Was always meant for me.
Sadly missed by husband Ernest, daughter Betty and Sherry Lynn.

WOOD — In loving memory of a dear mother, Mildred Wood, who passed away Jan. 8, 1967.
Time has flown and I've grown to give, I've given it to you and more,
To hear her call me dear, to see her smile,
But all I can do dear mother is pray
And keep you near.
And have loved ones of you today.
Sadly missed by daughter Shirley-in-law Jack and grandchildren Debbie, David and Sherry Lynn.

WOOD — In loving memory of my dear wife Beatrice Ann, who passed away Jan. 8, 1973.
Though tears in my eyes do not show
Though I smile
And try hard to cheer others
There is never a night or a morning
But I think of you.
Still I think of you, I will
And that do I forget you,
In my heart I hold you dear here.
For I love you and miss you,
As it once was so it will be
Lovingly remembered by husband Ernest Wood.

Sins who passed away Jan. 8, 1973.
Time has flown and I've grown
Since mother dear was taken
Who passed away Jan. 7, 1973.
And we are parted by death,
But memories live on
And the years speed by.
And whenever I think of you,
You
You didn't deserve what you went through
And so He gave you rest.
Don't mother look beautiful,
For he only takes the best.
Sadly missed by daughter Shirley-in-law Jack and grandchildren Debbie, Sherry Lynn and Carol. Love and Kiss and Hugs Forever.

Without goodbye you left us all.
Lovingly remembered by daughter Mildred, son-in-law Ted, grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

Montreal Art Museum Loan Whets Gallery's Appetite

OTTAWA (CP) — A loan by the Montreal Museum of Fine Arts of some of its medieval manuscripts and ivory carvings is whetting the appetite of the National Gallery of Canada for similar art treasures.

The loan from the Montreal institution is only for the two years that it is undergoing reconstruction and expansion, Gallery officials here say restore of the treasures will leave a big gap in the National Gallery's collection.

The Montreal pieces include stained glass, stone and ivory carvings and gilt plaques and vessels.

One of the manuscripts dates from 14th-century Italy. For more than 600 years choirs have sung the familiar nativity anthem from Handel's Messiah, For unto us a Child is born. This manuscript gives a setting of the same words, in Latin, dating from the 1300s.

It has been traced to Siena, sacred music flourished earlier than in other parts of Europe. The page almost 14 by 20 inches, was probably labored over for weeks while monks in their scriptorium painstakingly decorated the ancient manuscript with a scene of the nativity in the initial P, the start of the words "Puer natus est" (A boy is born).

Gyde Y. Shepherd, curator of European art, said the scene, in gold leaf, blue and red, has an oriental or Eastern European air, representing the story of the nativity in a cave instead of the more traditional creche in a stable.

The vellum came from a book—called an antiphonary—of church or monastery anthems, inscribed large enough so that a group of singers could gather around the single copy.

"The pages float around the art markets anonymously and it is a real detective job to trace them to their origins," Mr. Shepherd said. "We desperately need manuscripts in our national collection. It would be nice to think of acquiring a complete book."

Turning to other parts of the loan from Montreal, Mr. Shepherd added: "We haven't any fine objects like the ivories, or the Limoges enamels, or any stained glass in our collection either."

One of the several glass panels is from the cathedral of Saint Germain des Pres in Paris about 1250. Another is from Worcester Cathedral in England, dated from the 1300s.

Not all of the works have a Christmas theme. Some of them depict the beheading of St. John the Baptist at the insistence of Salome.

Window Loaned to Gallery

This is part of a stained glass window from the Lady Chapel of the Abbey of Saint Germain Des Pres, Paris, dated about mid-13th century. It was purchased by the Montreal Museum of Fine Arts in 1929 and currently on loan to the National Gallery of Canada. Curators are uncertain of which biblical story is portrayed, but believe it to be one involving an old testament prophet. (CP Photo)

Canadian Labor Congress

Pressure for Reform Builds

OTTAWA (CP) — Reform could be the watchword of organized labor in 1974 as militant elements in the Canadian Labor Congress (CLC) press for an overhaul of leadership and policies of the 1.8-million-member organization.

The pressure for change has arisen from a dispute that came to a head in 1973 over membership rights for provincial government employees. The quarrel was between CLC leadership and the 185,000-member Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE).

CUPE, largest congress affiliate, is being backed in its reform efforts by several other large unions. A set of proposals backed in its resolutions by several other large unions. A set of proposals for change includes fewer but stronger unions and more Canadian autonomy for branches of international unions.

The reform debate, perhaps accompanied by a race for the soon-to-be-vacant congress presidency, promises to be one of the most exciting events for labor in 1974.

CUPE, determined to leave the congress unless change comes, has indicated it will propose a slate of reform candidates to oppose established congress leaders.

Congress president Donald MacDonald, CLC leader since 1968, retires in 1974 at the May convention in Vancouver. His most likely successor is William Dodge, the quiet-spoken but articulate CLC secretary-treasurer.

Only opponent to Mr. Dodge so far is Homer Stevens, militant president of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union, who is given little chance of success.

The reformers have not yet set out a slate, but Mr. Dodge may be unacceptable to them because of his ties with the congress "establishment."

Unless there is a compromise before the convention, the factions will be involved in a tough battle for delegate support. CUPE counts as allies about one-third of the congress membership.

The groups backing reform so far include the 145,000-member Public Service Alliance of Canada, 105,000 United Auto Workers, the 70,000-member Quebec Federation of Labor, the 36,000-member Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers and the 42,000-member Canadian Food and Allied Workers Union.

Another major problem for the congress is an affiliation bid by 70,000 Canadian Teamsters. The 30-member executive council will probably make a decision by March.

While the council is generally favorable to the Teamster bid, some disputes that have arisen between congress affiliates and the International Brotherhood of Teamsters during years of separation must be resolved. The Teamsters were expelled 13 years ago after jurisdictional disputes with other CLC unions.

A major difficulty may be the Teamsters' claim over Canadian brewery workers, who have rejected a U.S. teamster-brewer merger, preferring direct affiliation within the congress. This direct membership has been granted.

On the collective bargaining front 1974 promises to be relatively quiet year unlike 1973, when there were major strikes on railways and airlines, in newsprint and other manufacturing industries.

All told 270 "non-construction agreements, each covering 500 or more employees, are expiring. These contracts cover 318,000 workers in total—not affecting 170,000 of them on 366 end until December, 1974.

In addition, 115 construction industry contracts are ending, 47 of them in British Columbia, which must also face negotiations with about 40 lumberwood workers.

Among major expiring agreements are those covering farm-equipment production workers in Hamilton and Brantford, Ont., food store employees in Ontario, food-packing-plant workers in Montreal and Toronto transportation workers.

Other major contracts covering supplementary and postal workers are to end next December and are not expected likely to result in strikes in 1974.

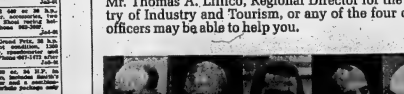
The big strike in 1973 was a nationwide walkout by 56,000 non-operating rail workers, which was forcibly ended by Parliament in September. The strike-ending law set out minimum pay increases for the non-ops, 22,000 shopcraft tradesmen and 14,500 trainmen.

It also provided for appointment of an arbitrator. Labor Minister John Munro subsequently chose Emmett Hall, retired Supreme Court of Canada Justice. His arbitration report has been promised for Jan. 15.

The year also saw strikes by Air Canada and CP Air machinists and a last-ditch settlement for 20,000 postal workers, who staged a series of wildcat walkouts in various cities before an agreement was reached.

Fancy-dancy Restaurants Not CN Job

OTTAWA (CP) — Operating "hotels, towers and fancy-dancy restaurants in the sky" are not jobs originally intended for Canadian National Railways, Don Benham (PC—Mississauga) told the Commons Monday.



Speaking during debate on two of three amendments he has proposed to the annual CN budget bill, Mr. Benham said CN bureaucrats are more interested in erecting building than providing service and are using the taxpayers as anchors to finance money-losing ventures.

CN is being held in the hotel business by the taxpayers who annually spend millions of dollars on the money-losing operation, he said. The only CN hotel which showed a profit was the Queen Elizabeth in Montreal—managed by the U.S.-based Hilton chain.

Canada Council Report Says More $ Needed

OTTAWA (CP) — Unless the purse strings are loosened on the arts and performing groups, Canada has gone more than $15.5 million to music, dance, opera, theatre, the visual arts, film, writers and publishers, including $1 million for the establishment of an art bank for federal government departments.

But reporting on a survey of 30 major, long-established performing arts organizations, the council said costs outpaced the revenues from subsidies and box office.

Their combined deficit in 1971-72 was more than $1.1 million, when their costs were $24 million, double what they were five years earlier. Their costs could double again by 1976-77, the report said.

"Everything points in fact to an explosion in public participation in the arts," the report said.

"A great deal of money will be needed to meet the challenges posed by this growth. The council will be called on to give much more money, and so will governments at all levels, and the private sector."

On the other side of its work—assistance to research in the humanities and social sciences—the council reported subsidies ran to $20 million in 1972-73, showing $12 million over the second year.

There has been an unexplained drop of $2 million a year in the demand for doctoral fellowships. What this means to Canadian scholarship, the council was unable to say. But it meant the council was able to increase other subsidies to the humanities within the over-all total.

While the operating costs of the 29 performing arts doubled, Canada Council grants to them tripled. Still they recorded a huge deficit, and performers were notoriously underpaid. Five of any organizations, including the Montreal and Toronto Symphonies, give artists a full-year's employment.

What these unfavorable working conditions mean is that artists are in effect subsidizing the arts organizations and the public which enjoys their work.

The average income of professional performing artists in Canada in 1972 was $6,300, well below the national average of $6,900."

Dancers Receive A Raise

TORONTO (CP) — The National Ballet of Canada has announced salary increases of 23 per cent during the next two seasons for its dancers following negotiations with Actor's Equity Association.

Gerry Eitzel, general manager of the company, said the agreement, for the 1974-75 and 1975-76 seasons, gives across-the-board increases of 15.1 per cent in the first season and about 18 per cent in the second.

Basic weekly wage for the first year members of the corps de ballet will be in the first season of the agreement is $180 in the second $198 and the minimum wage of $126.

Principal dancers will receive a minimum of $200 weekly next season and $300 the following season. The present minimum is $205 a week.

Negotiations between Actors' Equity and the company conclude recently in arbitration before a provincial judge.

Showbiz Shorts

His wife, Frances, who was admitted to St. John's Hospital in Santa Monica at the same time suffering from an undiagnosed illness, left the hospital with her husband.

Goldwyn, who made Hollywood's first full-length feature movies in 1913 in conjunction with Cecil B. DeMille and Jesse Lasky, has been in poor health since he suffered a stroke five years ago.

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — About $4,000 in jewelry was stolen from the hotel room of singing star Fatie Page while she appeared briefly last night in the hotel's night club, police said.

Miss Page told police she left her room at 7:30 p.m., locked the door and returned about 2:30 a.m.

Officers said the room was still locked when she returned, but a suitcase was open and nine articles—including two wrist watches, two rings and two chains—were missing.

LOS ANGELES (Reuter) — Film actress Katharine Hepburn, 64, has been hospitalized here for nearly two weeks but hospital officials refuse to disclose details of her illness.

Spokesman Jeff Buck of the University of California Medical Centre, said Miss Hepburn was admitted Dec. 27 and is expected to leave soon. He said Miss Hepburn had asked that no information be given out.

A Hollywood columnist reported that she is suffering from inflammation of the hip joint.

Friends said Miss Hepburn is in satisfactory condition and good spirits.

Brandy With Coffee Can Prove Dangerous

PARIS (Reuter) — The typical images of the typical Frenchman taking a brandy with his early-morning coffee has a darker side to it. Alcoholism is a national scourge here killing more than 30,000 people a year and filling hospital beds to capacity.

According to government statistics, France, with six gallons a head, has the highest annual alcoholic beverage consumption in the world.

But can the government get the drink habit toll down? So far the answer has been a resounding no, but Health Minister Michel Poniatowski hopes to change all that.

His complaint is that the major problem is that "not enough Frenchmen know that among the major causes of mortality in France alcoholism comes third (after heart disease and cancer)—that is the cause of road and work accidents.

"This is surely frightening enough for alcoholism to be taken seriously at last both by the medical profession and public opinion."

Reeling off a list of funeral statistics, he said:

"For instance 96 per cent of cancer of the mouth, throat and larynx are due to alcoholism. Also about 46 per cent of all suicides in general hospitals are filled by alcoholics and a much higher percentage in psychiatric hospitals. One-third of the road accidents, a quarter of the suicides and half the homicides arise from alcohol."

Poniatowski has worked out a four-pronged attack.

"First of all we must increase the information campaign which were begun 18 years ago", he said. Spearheading this drive is a series of television advertisements including one of an anxious doctor with hospital fingers trying to help his son build a model airplane.

"The man's fumbling fingers defeat him, he smashes the tiny plane before his son's horrified eyes and up comes the message: 'Alcohol makes the hand of a man, not more.'"

Poniatowski complains: "It is also abnormal that the cheapest product in a cafe should be wine, which is half as expensive as mineral water or fruit juice. I intend examining this problem with the finance ministry."

"Thirdly, there should be more studies made in the medical field. At the moment there is no course on alcoholism in medical schools. The medical profession cannot cope and it tends to see the alcoholic not as a sick but a guilty man."

Finally comes the all-important state problem of finance. Health ministry figures show that each alcoholic costs 11,350 to cure—three times more than the average patient.

Poniatowski said: "Alcoholics are usually treated in general medical centres. They receive only part of the treatment which they need. They have to be taken in hand on the psychological level too. That is why I propose the creation in each department of special centres for alcoholics.

"I believe strongly in psychological action to help the sick once they are cured and out of the hospital. The alcoholic must not feel blamed, isolated and watched. He should feel he is getting plenty of attention and support."

Sun, Wind, Rain and Waste Will Run Research House

CAMBRIDGE, England (AP) — A Cambridge University research team plans to build a house next year that will be run solely by the sun, the wind, the rain and the waste of its occupants.

The team plans to create a house for the future that can generate its own supply of power from nature alone, entirely independent of outside syst... of electricity, gas, oil, water and sewage.

"We are not trying to create a house for a clog-out society or for cranky freaks but one that will allow us to maintain our present standards of living with no more sacrifices than we will have to make when we run into future energy crises in 20 to 30 years," says Alexander Pike, head of the team.

"Our homes contribute much to our suicidal waste of energy. We can use our own waste—including that excrement—to provide methane gas for cooking.

"Our baths haven't improved since the Minoan Crete—much of the heat runs out with the bath water. We feel we can recapture the heat and recycle the bath water, using both again.

"We can use the sun and the wind to provide heat and light for our homes and run our refrigerators so that we cannot generate quite enough power in our self-sufficient house but we do think it is going to diminish our living standards to dispense with such items as electric carving knives.

The team includes engineers, biologists, chemists and architects who believe they have already worked out the essential ideas for their house and expect to start experimenting with its various systems by next year.

Pike and his colleagues expect that their experimental home will run like this:

They will combine into one integrated system many principles that previously have been used in isolation: solar energy to provide heat; wind to provide power; rain to provide water requirements; excrement and food and garden wastes to provide gas for cooking and new designs to recapture and recycle lost heat and water.

The South side of the house will combine glass with new ways to collect the sun's heat. This solar energy will produce domestic hot water and warm air for space heating. When the sun isn't shining, solar energy will be recalled from a storage unit under the house where the heat is collected when the sun shines.

Wind power will be generated into electricity for lighting, fans, pumps, auxiliary hot water heaters and refrigerators.

"Nobody wants to live among forests of windmills," Pike said. "We believe we may have the answer by using rotary vanes that can be integrated into the design of the roof of the house."

A miniature model plans a "digester" in a concrete tank under the house—will provide methane gas for cooking.

Water will be collected from the roof. The sun will cost some of it for domestic washing purposes. A windpower unit will recycle and provide hot water, combined with a do-it-yourself sprays, for dishwashing.

Warm, soapy water will be stored under the "organic farm" and provide the heat and fertilizer for other purposes.

"We hope to get data from this experiment that will help us find new ways to live and use our energy resources wisely so we can meet the year 2000 without diminution of our present lifestyles," Pike said.

Your Horoscope

Wednesday, Jan. 9

BY BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Aries (March 21-April 19) If you have a problem with a friend today try to solve it as quickly as possible to avoid hard feelings. Keep the matter between you.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Better allow for some unusual disruptions around the house, then you won't be caught off balance. Anticipate unannounced guests.

Gemini (May 21 - June 20) Later this evening you'll find yourself with one who had earlier done something to put you. Don't respond in poor taste.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) Today you will be both prudent and wasteful. What you save in one area will be spent too lavishly in another.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) Someone will irritate you by barring your path to something you want. Don't make the situation more sticky by trying to soft-soap him.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Keep overtaxing out in the open so that others won't feel you're up to something. Your motives will be highly suspect.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Follow your instincts regarding today's program for personal accomplishment. Well-intended advice will be of small value.

Sagittaries (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Wishful thinking won't cut the mustard. You must face things as they are. Conduct yourself accordingly.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Something you're involved in will get off-on ground quicker if you team up with the right party. It doesn't look like you can handle it alone.

Aquarius (Jan. 2-Feb. 19) Keep your dealings on a high plane. Those you're dealing with will follow suit. If you try to get cute, so will they.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) You will not put forth your best where work is concerned today. Shortcuts will prove to be the hard way in the long run.

Frequent Belch Likely Is Habit

By G. C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My boyfriend is a belcher (loud and straight from the gut). He belches at least once every 30 minutes and usually more often. It appears to be uncontrollable.

He says he is embarrassed very embarrassing to me. Don't you think he should see a doctor? Could you tell us what causes this condition?—Ms. J.M.

Belching to any such extent, whether in an older or a younger person, is usually a habit.

But even though the answer usually turns out to be habit, I think most assuredly he should see a doctor. If he has an ulcer or gastritis or some such condition that might contribute to belching, obviously it ought to be treated.

Even if nothing physically wrong is discovered, that could be important to him—because if there is no physical reason for the burps, he should be pretty well convinced that it may be just habit.

But if it is just habit, where does the gas come from, and how gas he belches? Likeliest answer, and really a quite common situation, is that he is unconsciously an air-swallower.

Rapid eaters, gulpers, and those who talk while eating often are air-swallowers. But there are others who, if they watch them at other times, can be seen to take mouthfuls of air—and then swallow it.

It's a habit. Like any habit, it requires constant vigilance to break. But if only a teaspoonful of air goes down at a swallow, dozen or so swallows can make a burp.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have high blood pressure which is very hard to control causing dizziness, blurry eyesight, etc. Is it true or false that a couple teaspoons each of honey and pure vinegar mixed together will lower the blood and bring the pressure down?

I wouldn't mind taking nature foods, but as I am a diabetic the thought of honey sort of scares me because it is 100 per cent sugar.—A. S.

The mixture won't "thin your blood," won't reduce your pressure, and you are entirely correct that diabetics should avoid the sugar—including honey.

High blood pressure can be controlled.

By Oswald and James Jacoby

In the first days of contract, players used to overcall on bad suits and low level doubles would produce great big penalties. By the '40s these cracker overcalls had practically disappeared and some time in the early '50s Alvin Roth, one of the great innovators of bridge history, invented what he called the negative double.

Today's hand shows this negative double in operation. North can't raise clubs and is not close to being strong enough to bid one of the red suits at the two level.

Thirty years ago he would pass or bid one no-trump. If he passed and East bid two spades, West would play there and probably go one trick down. If he bid one no-trump and East still raised spades, South would bid either three clubs or two no-trump. Neither contract would make and East-West would show a profit.

The negative double of one spade would tell South that North held four hearts and some cards. South would bid three hearts; we show North raising to four although some North players would pass.

Four hearts is a great contract, but it does make so some North-South pairs would make game. Others would make a nice part score. Either way the takeout double would be worthwhile.

Laporte Trials Suspended

MONTREAL (CP) — Court proceedings were suspended indefinitely Monday against Bernard Lortie and Francis Simard, charged in the October, 1970, kidnap-murder of Quebec Labor Minister Pierre Laporte.

Lortie, 22, serving 30 years in prison for kidnapping Laporte, was to stand trial at the January-February assizes on a charge of murder.

Simard, 25, a former laborer sentenced to life for Laporte's murder, was scheduled to be tried for kidnapping.

Crown Prosecutor Rene Dery told Mr. Justice James K. Hugessen of Court of Queen's Bench that the charges against the two men are being suspended. He gave no reason for the decision.

The announcement of nolle prosequi does not constitute acquittal and proceedings could, theoretically, be started again at a later date.

Defence lawyer Robert Lemieux termed the suspension of the charges "disgusting" and said the Crown is trying to prevent the defence from clearing up what he called the Laporte affair.

Mr. Laporte was kidnapped during the terrorist crisis of October, 1970. He was found strangled a week later in the trunk of a car.

Milk Scarce

TORONTO (CP) — Some crucial points of decision must be made in the next few months if the future of Canadian dairy industry is to be assured, George D. McLaughlin, chairman of the Ontario Milk Marketing Board, said Monday.

He said in an interview that milk production in Canada peaked in 1959, then fell steadily. Production of 17.7 billion pounds in 1972 was one billion pounds below the 1959 peak and during the first nine months of 1973 there was a further 1.5 per cent drop.

He said Canada will have to import about 10 million pounds of butter this year to meet domestic requirements and that tight supplies of other dairy products are pushing prices up.

Plans Fight

TORONTO (CP) — A naturalized Canadian who spent 19 days in a Buffalo, N.Y., jail charged with evading the United States draft, said Monday he will return to the U.S. today to fight the charge.

James Ince, 23, a first year arts student at York University, said he will appear in magistrate's court today where he may be ordered to Louisiana to stand trial.

Salt Hurts

Trudeau Host To Michenersi

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau Monday night bade a glittering farewell to retiring Gov.-Gen. Roland Michener, hosting him at a state dinner and paying tribute to his "enormous sense of exhilaration and enthusiasm . . ."

More than 300 people sat under candlelight in the ornate Confederation Room in Parliament Hill's West Block as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Trudeau to pay tribute to the 73-year-old governor-general, who is leaving Rideau Hall after 6½ years as the Queen's representative in Canada.

There were cabinet ministers, members of previous governments, Supreme Court judges, former provincial political leaders and friends of both families who gathered to dine on filet mignon and to toast the retiring governor-general. There were cheers, and a few tears, as the prime minister said his good byes to the likeable governor-general, a soft-spoken man who was Speaker of the House of Commons.

"I think you will be missed in this place, perhaps most of all because you have communicated to millions of Canadians an enormous sense of exhilaration and enthusiasm about your high office, about the Queen you represent, and about the country we all love."

And he praised Mrs. Michener, a woman of great determination and great thoughtfulness toward others, a person of notable achievement in her own right."

"May I say of Her Excellency, sir, that your good fortune, and that of your family, has also been the good fortune of our country."

The governor-general said he accepted the compliments without qualification. "I might, have been Speaker of the House of Commons on my own, but without the devotion and talents which she brought to the partnership, I could not have been governor-general."

The Micheners leave Ottawa Wednesday, with a military send-off, to spend their last few days as their Excellencies in Toronto, living with their daughter. When former diplomat Jules Leger is sworn in as governor-general next Monday, they will officially cease office.

The Trudeaus arrived at the West Block, carrying their two-week old son, Alexandre, in a large basket. He remained in a nearby room with a baby sitter, while his parents played host to the gala state dinner down the hall. This was Mrs. Trudeau's first official outing since the birth of her second child and she slipped out once or twice, apparently to feed the baby — called Sacha by the family.

Apart from members of the Trudeau family, Liberal party and privy Council, the cabinet, the diplomatic corps, the guests included former Newfoundland premier J. R. Smallwood, former Ontario premier John Robarts, and civic leaders.

Women Teachers Asked To Raise Rights Fund

TORONTO (CP) — The 23,000 members of the Federation of Women Teachers' Associations of Ontario will be asked to create a $1-million "civil rights fund" to oppose a provincial bill outlawing teacher strikes.

In a statement Monday, the federation's executive said it will urge its members to donate $5 a month from now until June 30 to raise the money.

The directors will also ask 31 women elementary teachers who worked on the day of protest, Dec. 18 to donate the day's pay to the fund.

The federation opposes the bill's principle of compulsory arbitration to settle contract disputes.

Courts Will Remain Under Attorney-General

TORONTO (CP) — The administration of courts in Ontario will continue to be under the control of the attorney-general, Dalton Bales said Monday.

In a speech during the province's opening session, the attorney-general reaffirmed the government's decision to keep courts under government control and rejected suggestions that the administration of Ontario courts be delegated to a quasi-independent administrative body.

"Under our constitutional system, the administration of justice is a responsibility of the legislature, which holds accountable to it for that responsibility those of its members who comprise the government of the day, and in particular, the attorney-general," Mr. Bales said.

"In order to ensure that this responsibility to the house is met, the government concluded that the administration of the courts should remain in the integral part of the ministry."

Held Hostage

Police Rescue Three Women

JUNCTION CITY, Okla. (AP) — The ordeal was over and Helen Blackley cried.

She said they were the first tears since she and two other women were held hostage for nearly six hours by two convicts who threatened to kill their captives unless they were provided a car for an escape.

Highway patrolmen freed the three women Monday evening by breaking into a barricaded office at the Junction City Treatment Facility and shooting the two convicts. One was killed and the other critically wounded.

The facility, located in the hills of southeastern Okla about 50 miles from Columbus, holds some 100 felons being treated for personality disturbances.

Mrs. Blackley, 55, said her captors were upset over a court ruling extending their sentences.

They said they just couldn't take another 38 months," she said.

Convict Michael Woods, 22, was shot twice in the abdomen and died a hospital in nearby Lancaster about an hour after the women were freed. Bernard Barbiaux, 32, suffered head and arm wounds. Early today Barbiaux's condition was described as satisfactory.

Mrs. Blockley said the two convicts entered the centre's records room about 1:30 p.m. and "came at us with knives and threatened us if we didn't co-operate."

"Then they barricaded the door, after everything had calmed down, they clearly stated they didn't want to hurt us."

Taken hostage with Mrs. Blockley were Debbie Carney, 18, and Vicki Clouse, 24. All are employees of the record room.

While state patrolmen surrounded the area, the convicts threatened to kill the women unless they were given an unmarked car and allowed to leave the facility by 7 p.m.

About 10 minutes after the deadline, police stormed the office.

The women hid beneath desks when the patrolmen opened fire, Mrs. Blockley said.

Dr. Kenneth Gaver, director of the Okla department of mental health and retardation, said he gave the order for police to enter the office and fire.

A spokesman for the department said the patrolmen fired three shots after the convicts, armed with homemade halves, came at them.

Cobourg Citizen's Mail Is Diverted

OTTAWA (CP) — The mail of a Cobourg, Ont., man was seized by the post office and turned over to the RCMP and the defence department, Allan Lawrence (PC-Durham-Northumberland-Durham) said Monday.

Mr. Lawrence said in an interview the mail of his constituent, Wally Keeler, finally was returned Thursday. He told the Commons earlier he was trying to get the mail returned since mid-November.

He described Mr. Keeler as a man who has written extensively on espionage and who came under investigation after sending computer cards in the mail.

Postmaster-General Andre Ouellet said in the Commons he will look into the matter.

Outside the House, Mr. Lawrence said that apparently Mr. Keeler and Terry Woolf of Sudbury, Ont., were exchanging correspondence. They thought it involved poetry—on computer cards. The computer writhout, the writers punching holes, was punched holes, was on the back of the cards.

Mr. Keeler both men are poets and obviously are familiar with computer language. One of the poems dealt with computer leaks, he said, and it was seized by the RCMP and the matter referred to the defence department and RCMP.

Both men used pseudonyms, but Mr. Lawrence said that the RCMP eventually identified Mr. Woolf. He said he has been told that two RCMP officers worked an entire summer on the case.

Eventually, said the former Ontario attorney-general, he was informed by Solicitor-General Warren Allmand that the RCMP decided that no crime was harmless, but a nuisance.

"But my constituent still hasn't got his mail back. And there is no doubt the post office seized it because Mr. Ouellet's office received a second copy of the card.

"And I am interested in it in the principle. Under what authority can the post office intercept mail? Is Solicitor-General Warren Allmand that the police should tell me how many other cases has it happened?"

Meanwhile, Mr. Keeler has sent Mr. Lawrence a card naming him a member of the republic of poetry.

Railways' Estimates Accepted

OTTAWA (CP) — The author of a special study to be incorporated into an arbitration award for nearly 95,000 railway workers has accepted company calculations which estimate a pension plan will cost the railways about 4.3 per cent of their annual wage bill.

But John Deutsch, a former chairman of the Economic Council of Canada and principal of Queen's University, adds in his report that changes to the Canada Pension Plan planned by the federal and provincial governments, if adopted, could reduce the costs to the companies.

During contract negotiations last summer which eventually led to a country-wide rail strike, the unions said companies, including Canadian National Railways and CP Rail, had disagreed about the cost of an adequate pension plan.

The companies calculated the plan would cost them 4.3 per cent of the total combined wage bill of $559 million and should be taken into account when wage increases were negotiated.

Union negotiators said the cost to the companies would not be that much and added the railways had accumulated profits to be made on money put into the pension fund.

The issue remained unresolved when Parliament ordered the strikers back to work in September and Labor Minister John Munro then appointed Mr. Deutsch to make a study of the true cost of the plan.

Mr. Justice Emmett Hall, retired judge of the Supreme Court of Canada who is the arbitrator between the parties, is to take into account the findings of Mr. Deutsch in making his award. Hearings on the pension study will be held today. The complete arbitration award is due Jan. 16.

Medical Body Drafting Code To Govern Treatment of Dying

OTTAWA (CP) — Guides for medical treatment of dying patients and an updated definition of death to take account of new transplant and medical technology are being prepared by the Canadian Medical Association.

The CMA's 13-member committee on health council is looking for middle ground as public pressure mounts on doctors to take positions on these moral and legal issues, the CMA representative on the council, Dr. John Bennett, said Monday.

However, a formal CMA stand on either issue was not expected before the association's annual meeting in June.

The council has been "wrestling" with euthanasia or mercy killing since it decided to study the question early last year, Dr. Bennett said in an interview.

Opponents had been growing to the practice of extending the lives of dying patients by mechanical means. But a general guide for doctors that pinpoints which patients should be kept alive by mechanical means and which should not was "fraught with danger."

Safeguards are needed to distinguish "passive" and "active" euthanasia or mercy killing, said Dr. Bennett.

Physicians who did not strive at their utmost to keep a patient alive when he is obviously dying are practising passive euthanasia. In some cases this now is being done in Canadian hospitals, he said.

It would be active euthanasia of doctors decided to turn off "the tubes, levers, machines that were going great guns" to keep a terminally-ill patient alive.

Any guides would have provisions for the wishes of the dying patients and their relatives, he said.

Last month the American Medical Association, traditionally regarded as a stand-pat conservative group, passed a resolution clearing the way for terminally ill patients to ask informally that they not be kept alive by artificial means.

It also approved state-sent, a patient, or his family if he is unconscious, can dispense with such devices as artificial respirators or kidney machines and allow doctors to administer heavy doses of pain-killing drugs, easing and possibly speeding death.

A new definition of death is sought because doctors want legislative protection from lawsuits for taking an organ for transplant out of a person whose brain stopped functioning but whose heart had not stopped. Life-support machines were turned off.

Legislative definitions of death rely mainly on neurological symptoms, such as cessation of brain waves, said Dr. Bennett.

But, in a U.S. court case now on, he said, a person accused of shooting another in the head is arguing that the victim's heart was used in a transplant, was still pumping when the victim was pronounced dead and that only the gun wound was not the cause of death.

A new definition of death would, take into account the ability of life-prolonging machines to keep vital organs going even after the "death" of the heart.

Dr. Bennett said technology was creating a growing rift of uncertainty between life and death. As in the abortion question, the moral judgments required were among the toughest issues facing doctors.

New Oil Policy Plann...

Exporters Freeze Prices Until April

GENEVA (Reuter) — There will be no change in oil prices before April 1, the world's oil-producing states decided today.

Ministers of the 12-member Organization of Oil Exporting countries (OPEC) decided to wait for a report from their economic commission before making a decision on prices.

The commission's report is to be presented by April 1, Iranian Finance Minister Jamshid Amouzegar told reporters after a final five-hour conference session.

Amouzegar said the ministers decided to abandon the current relationship between market and posted prices of crude oil as no longer workable.

Oil prices will be frozen until April, while the OPEC economic commission studies reports of a long-term pricing policy.

The ministers also agree to leave the door open for an exchange of views with oil-consuming states on oil prices, and to prepare a plan to create a financial institution aimed at helping the economies of developing countries.

Venezuelan Hydrocarbons Minister Hugo Perez la Salvia told reporters as he left the meeting that the ministers would wait for the economic commission's report to see what is going to be the trend of prices in the near future."

Mounties Arrest Five

Ex-Belleville Man Held In Record Hashish Haul

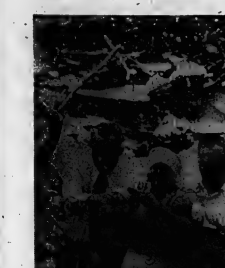
TORONTO (CP) — RCMP seized an estimated 2,000 pounds of hashish and arrested five persons Tuesday in the largest seizure of the drug involving arrests in Canadian history.

Insp. Emile J. Beaulieu of he RCMP drug squad said at a news conference the hashish has a street value of about $3 million.

Charged with conspiracy to import cannabis (resin) are Stephen Charles Assaff, 20, of Collingwood, Ont., Robert Wilson Rowbotham, 24, of Bolton, Ont., formerly of Belleville, Linda Hope Martyniuk, 23, and Carl Frederick Minor, 21, both of Toronto, and David Matthew Cripps, 28, of Mississauga, Ont.

The five are to appear in Brampton court Friday.

Insp. Beaulieu said the hashish had been under surveillance at Toronto International Airport for the last three weeks after arriving by air from Lebanon in 16 crates labelled "ornaments."



He said the hashish was in small blocks wrapped in cloth and placed in burlap sacks.

Police said the arrests were made when two teams arrived at the airport to pick up the shipment and were trailed to a Mississauga address.

The largest seizure of hashish in Canadian history was made in Montreal last year when 3,000 pounds were discovered. However, there have been no arrests in that case.

Insp. Beaulieu said the investigation into Tuesday's seizure is continuing in co-operation with provincial and Paris municipal police.

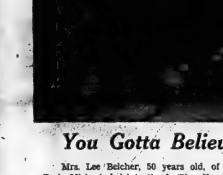
Disengagement Offer Not Made



By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Israeli and Egyptian generals met for 70 minutes today in Geneva, but the Israeli government said earlier that it has not completed its proposal for disengagement of the opposing armies along the Suez front.

The meeting between Maj.-Gen. Mordechai Gur of Israel and Brig.-Gen. Taha el-Magdoob of Egypt was the shortest of the six they have held so far. A United Nations announcement said they decided to meet again next Tuesday afternoon.

Official sources in Jerusalem said the two generals had been expected to start bargaining today on details of withdrawing forces from the Suez canal front.

But an Israeli foreign ministry spokesman said Tuesday: "No decisions have as yet been taken regarding the next phase of the issues discussed by Defence Minister Moshe Dayan during his visit to Washington."

U.S. Talk of Joint Policy Ignored

Storm Moves East To South of Lakes

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A snowfall which began over southern Ontario Tuesday night was expected to taper off by noon today, leaving about five inches of snow in its wake.

The snow was expected to reach as far north as the Muskokas, but farther north conditions were generally normal for this time of the year.

Temperatures from overnight until about noon today were forecast to be between 10 to 23 degrees above zero in the south and sharply lower in northern areas.

Most roads, although snow-covered in sections, were not considered hazardous.

He said work crews had restored service to some of the 1,000 customers left by early today. About half used the gas for heating, he said. Temperatures in the city were below zero for much of Tuesday with gusting winds providing a wind-chill factor of 30 below.

The spokesman declined to comment on whether the incidents might be linked with a strike of 560 production workers who walked off the job earlier in the day.

About 25 union men returned to work to help repair the valves but it was not known when the service would be fully restored, the spokesman added.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: A storm spread snow in five inches of snow across southwestern Ontario Tuesday night and the snow is expected to taper off to a few flurries by afternoon. British Parliament Called To Debate Energy Shortage

LONDON (AP) — Parliament was called back into session today to debate the energy crisis crippling Britain, the labor dispatch causing it and what the Conservative government is doing about it.

Before facing the House of Commons, Prime Minister Edward Heath created a new energy department and named the defence secretary, Lord Carrington, to head it. The government said he will be given wide powers over the coal, electricity and oil resources.

"This house does not know a coal mine if they fell down a pit shaft," said one Labor member of the House of Commons from a mining district after Carrington's appointment was announced.

Heath's employment secretary, William Whitelaw, was meeting with leaders of the coal miners whose refusal to work overtime has cut the supply of coal to power stations. Whitelaw planned to ask for the 280,000 miners to vote on the 16½-per-cent pay increase their leaders have rejected.

Leaders of the railway engineers' union also were meeting today to consider expanding their slowdown into a strike. The railmen are angry because the rail board announced anyone who "deliberately" refused to work will not be paid. Government sources said if the trainmen go on strike, the army might be used to keep the rail trains running so that deliveries of coal to the power stations would not be reduced further.

The miners' ban on overtime in support of their wage demands has cut coal output 40 per cent. The rail slowdown, also in support of demands for higher pay, has further reduced the supply of coal to the power stations as well as halted most train service in the sprawling London suburbs.

Britain Reported Ready to Trade Saudi Arabia Industrial Base for Oil

PARIS (AP) — West European countries are going ahead with new deals with the Arab oil producers despite the United States government's talk of a joint policy for the consumer countries.

U.S.-State Secretary Henry Kissinger called last December for the Western countries and Japan to work together in search of new energy sources and to counter their current supplies.

Kissinger said Monday that President Nixon will be making contact with about 20 countries this week, and officials in Brussels said Nixon is thinking about a conference on oil supplies in Washington next month.

Meanwhile, the French government has made a deal with Saudi Arabia guaranteeing it 10 million tons of Saudi oil a year for the next three years in addition to the 30 million tons France already buys.

The French are believed to have clinched the deal by agreeing to sell King Faisal 35 Mirage jet fighters. Sources say an understanding also may have been reached for the installation of the French color television system in the desert kingdom.

Britain is reported negotiating with the Saudis for about 35 million tons of oil a year for three years, in return, experts from London said, the British will supply Saudi Arabia with an industrial base including the capacity to produce sophisticated armaments.

Lord Balniel of the British foreign office left Tuesday on a tour of five Persian Gulf states to try to negotiate special oil arrangements.

Informants in Paris said West Germany, the Netherlands and Sweden also are trying to make their own separate oil agreements.

The French are reported seeking a long-term arrangement with Saudi Arabia, guaranteeing them 60 million tons of crude oil in the next 20 years and providing for France to set up an industrial base in Saudi Arabia.

French officials say the Saudis are reluctant to commit themselves to an agreement of that duration. They want short-term deals so they can make sure the French government continues its pro-Arab policies," one source said.

Not on Boycott List But We Don't Get Oil

OTTAWA (CP) — Officially, Canada has not been placed on the Saudi Arabian oil boycott list. In practice, the opposite seems to be the case.

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Tuesday that information from diplomatic sources has confirmed that Canada is not blacklisted by the Arab oil-producing country.

"But we're struggling with the fact that oil is not being delivered to us," he told the Commons.

Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said later no oil has been delivered from Saudi Arabia since Nov. 22. The Saudi government seems to have taken a clear stand but officials down the line "are acting the opposite way," he said.

Starter's Pistol Ruled Weapon

A 23-year-old Kingston man was yesterday fined $200 and prohibited from using a firearm or ammunition for two years after he was convicted in provincial court of having a restricted weapon in his car.

Delmar Leslie Eaford, appeared before Judge J. L. Clendenning yesterday charged with having had an adapted starter's pistol in his car when he was stopped by police on the Tyendinaga Indian Reserve on Aug. 31.

An expert from the Forensic Sciences Laboratory, in Toronto, told the court yesterday that the revolver found in Eaford's car had been tampered with in such a way as to make it possible to use it to fire .38 calibre Colt ammunition. Normally, the revolver fires blanks.

The firearms expert said that the barrel of the revolver had, apparently, been shortened so that it was no longer was a plug in the revolver to prevent the discharge of a bullet. Tests revealed that the revolver was capable of firing .38 calibre long and short Colt ammunition at 507.5 feet per second, the witness said.

Eaford told the court that he had bought the revolver from a friend just a few days prior to his arrest and that he had never fired it or known it was a restricted weapon.

With Appreciation

For the first time, the Refrigeration Service Engineers Society (Canada) held a meeting in Belleville last night. The group usually meets in Kingston but it was decided to tie in the meeting with a workshop for students at Loyalist College in the three - year refrigeration course there. Part of the meeting at the Quinte Hotel consisted of a speech by Chamber of Commerce manager, Don Sutton, on the role of the businessman in the community. Mr. Sutton, right, receives a gift from RSES president, Edwin Priest.

Chamber of Commerce Said Vital Organization

The role of the businessman in the community? This was the subject of Don Sutton, Belleville Chamber of Commerce manager last night at the Quinte Hotel to Refrigeration Service Engineers Society (Canada) members and Loyalist students taking a three-year refrigeration course.

As potential is linked very closely with leadership to attain success, Mr. Sutton told his listeners that "one vehicle for a community to move on is the chamber movement."

"The businessman can play a full role here without interference and be heard at all levels of government," he said.

But what are the advantages of belonging to the chamber? Mr. Sutton brought out the fact that one benefit is that chamber membership acknowledges that a person is a good citizen working to build a better community.

"The chamber is the cosiest and will of the community," he told the group. "It is the conscience to see and understand the needs of the community and the will to take some effective action to fill those needs."

Also, he said the chamber movement in Canada represents all businesses. "The Canadian leader of commerce movement is unique in that it makes a presentation through the municipal, provincial or federal government. It is now recognized that it does not represent the viewpoint of any one segment of community or any particular vested interest of business.

"And top leaders will listen to an immediate body rather than an individual who could have trouble expressing his views to public authorities," he said.

And belonging to a chamber gives the advantages of a unified front and makes effectiveness more meaningful.

Continued Mr. Sutton: "The chamber performs a public relations task for business as a whole, presenting to government and to the public the true image of business and so endeavors to broaden the understanding and appreciation of all Canadians of these basic principles of the private and competitive and enterprise system.

"This is a very important role for the businessman to assume in this very competitive community," said Mr. Sutton.

Mr. Sutton described the chamber movement in Canada as "one of the great educational, stabilizing and co-ordinating forces in the country today with business and community leaders working together in the interest of all Canadians."

The chamber manager went on to mention some of the areas in which the chamber movement has been especially active.

One was in economic growth where it urged all governmental levels of government to consider priority in spending funds about Canadian business.

In domestic and international trade, the chamber cooperated with government on trade promotion efforts and liaison with other trade bodies.

Concerning sound fiscal policy, the chamber made annual pre-budget submissions to the ministers of finance and national revenue on important national matters.

Mr. Sutton said the chamber provides representation on many national, international, public and governmental committees and organizations such as the International Labor Organization, Canada Pension Plan and Economic Council among others.

In closing, he urged citizens and businessmen to play their part and become personally involved.

"I am firmly convinced that through the chamber of commerce movement, working at the community level in all communities in Canada, businessmen can play their part in reaching reasonable objectives by working together . . . and make this a rich and noble heritage for those who follow us."

Minimum Fine Imposed

A Belleville man, convicted on a charge of careless driving that arose from a traffic accident that claimed the life of a 45-year-old woman last Oct. 2, was fined $100 in provincial court yesterday.

Sidney Ross Faulkner, 32, was fined by Judge J. L. Clendenning after he pleaded guilty to the charge of careless driving.

Faulkner was the driver of a propane truck that collided with a car at the intersection of Highway 14 and the Fourth Concession of Thurlow early in the morning of Oct. 2.

Mrs. Vona Mae Snider, of Church street, Stirling, was killed in that accident and her son, Harold Cameron Snider, 19, the driver of the car, received a concussion and cuts, when the propane truck failed to stop at the intersection and skidded into the intersection knocking the car into the east side ditch.

Court was told that Faulkner had tried to apply his brakes as he approached the intersection, but was unable to do so properly for some reason. Evidence revealed no positive mechanical failure in the truck's braking system and indicated that Faulkner was not exceeding the speed limit at the time of the accident.

When imposing the minimum fine for the conviction under the Highway Traffic Act, Judge Clendenning noted that he believed many accidents that were attributed to inattentive driving were completely unexplainable. He also said that he felt, in a case such as Faulkner's, where someone had been killed as a result of the accident, a penalty of any kind could not match the anguish to which the driver responsible had been subjected.

Liquor Store Rush Brings $125 Fine

A Belleville man, who was in a hurry to get to the liquor store on Station Street before closing time, was fined $125 yesterday in provincial court after he was convicted of careless driving.

John Barclay McKone, 24, was charged with the offence by police last November, after he was seen driving erratically at a high rate of speed on North Front Street.

Crown Attorney Glenn Deline told the court that an OPP constable gave chase in McKone's vehicle when he saw it weaving in and out of traffic on North Front Street without signalling lane changes. When the McKone car came to the intersection of Front and Pinacle Street it jumped a changing traffic light and nearly struck a youngster who was crossing the intersection on a bicycle, Mr. Deline said.

McKone told the court that he was in a hurry to get to the Station Street Liquor store before it closed when he was stopped by the police. He pleaded guilty to the careless driving charge.

Minor Praises Colleagues

As the second year of her two-year term of office as chief magistrate gets under way, Belleville Mayor Robin Jeffrey feels that many of the hopes and aspirations she expressed a year ago have been fulfilled.

First of her aims expressed at the inaugural session in January 1973 was to keep a good working council team from the eleven council members.

This, she feels, has been accomplished and Monday, during the first meeting of the new year, appreciation was expressed to council colleagues for their co-operation, understanding and respect.

Responsibilities assigned to council members have been accepted and the tasks of 1973 completed.

"As the quarterback of the team it was apparent that the team was ready to move on to passes," she said.

Mayor Jeffrey also had words of appreciation for city staff members and said much of the knowledge she gained from the office of mayor was the direct result of the participation, understanding and help of staff members.

Mayor Jeffrey said that in her inaugural address a year ago she promised to be a full-time mayor and this promise had been kept.

She said she had done her best to deal with the individual problems of citizens and attend as many as possible of the meetings and activities of citizen organizations.

She will continue to keep her office open at city hall every other Monday evening to be available to citizens unable to contact her during the day.

During the year 182 bylaws were introduced to council and 115 recommendations were approved.

But the responsibilities of being mayor go far beyond business in the council chambers.

During 1973 Mayor Jeffrey said she had made 34 addresses at various outside meetings and during the year had personally attended no less than 115 functions.

New Warden From Hallowell

"PICTON — Keith MacDonald, one-time World Champion hockey team player and now a Hallowell township farmer, has been elected warden of Prince Edward County.

He succeeds Reeve Russell Thompson of Ameliasburgh.

Warden MacDonald predicted 1974 will be "a rewarding and challenging year" and cited regional government as one of the major topics for discussion. He said that council, through the press, will attempt to keep the public informed of all developments in this area.

County council's museum projects were discussed by Warden MacDonald who feels the recent purchase of a five-acre land parcel including the Anglican rectory once owned by Rev. W. Macaulay is "a wise move."

As a hockey player, the new warden played with Belleville McFarlands hockey team that captured the Allan Cup and World Cup in the late 1950s.

He was escorted to the chair by former wardens John Fox and Clifford Wright.

County clerk Thomas Walker noted that the county buildings, or Shire Hall, this year is 100 years old. Warden MacDonald is the 100th warden to be elected there. Approximately 20 wardens were elected prior to building of the county centre.

Warden MacDonald was sworn into office by clerk Thomas Walker and received the chain of office from past wardens and Bloomfield reeve Allan Anderson.

Trenton Day Care Centre Certain by Early April?

TRENTON — Depending on how soon provincial government wheels roll, this community could have a county-administered day-care centre by April 1.

Reg Tucker, Hastings County, social services director, said formal application has been received on behalf of the town and will get immediate attention. He said the county "will rubberstamp the application and send it right on to the provincial authorities.

"The county wouldn't do anything to stand in the way of Trenton getting a day-care centre," he said. Much interest has been generated in a centre around Trenton since Grace United Church applied town subsidy while organizers canvassed provincial government funds. Council agreed to three months subsidy which ends April 1; the day Mr. Tucker hopes his department could begin administering a new scheme.

He said there are two means of organizing setting up the centre — either buy or rent a building.

Cost of purchasing is divided between the province and Trenton. In a rental situation, deemed the quickest way, the province would pay 80 percent capital costs. In neither situation would the county be asked for financial assistance. The county's sole responsibility would be the staffing and administration.

Mr. Tucker said the centre should accommodate about 35 children if plans go ahead.

Mr. Tucker is optimistic about the April 1 date. He said the province is anxious for communities to expand day nursery services."

Demand Grows For Services

MARMORA — Persistent demands for increasing municipal services will face Marmore-Lake township administration this year, Reeve Graham Bell has warned council's inaugural meeting.

Steady growth comparable to 1973 will add to pressures on council, he said.

Indicative of township expansion, he said, was the number of building permits issued during the past year — a total of 81 worth slightly under $750,000. Partial assessment on building already started this year has reached $25,000.

Such figures, said the reeve, probably would surprise most residents in the area.

Meantime, the township has picked up some additional assessment through a "closer relationship" with the provincial regional assessment office in Trenton.

Some 75 percent of the township's tax dollar continues to be paid out to other jurisdictions — school boards and county administration, he said.

Greetings!

Keith MacDonald Hallowell township reeve and former world champion hockey player briefly vacated warden's chair for wife, Margaret, Tuesday. They greeted well wishers after his election as top Prince Edward County parliament representative.

Regional Government Looms Large in '74

PICTON — As newly elected warden Keith MacDonald examines the question of regional government with his council he may study the dissolution of his own office.

James Taylor, MPP Prince Edward-Lennox pointed out that he may become "not only the centennial warden but the warden of the century."

He added that warden MacDonald is dedicated to do his utmost to advance the interests of the people of Prince Edward.

"We have a warden for every season, one for every problem we have," Mr. Taylor as he discussed the issues that will confront warden MacDonald in 1974.

The county's official plan has been presented in the community and does not necessarily offer a solution to all related difficulties."

"Problems don't end with an official plan. Sometimes I think they just begin,"said Mr. Taylor.

He remarked that the plan must forecast the development of this area.

The official plan must discriminate to some extent regarding land usage according to Mr. Taylor.

The question of solid waste disposal also must be faced in Prince Edward in 1974.

Mr. Taylor predicted that this will become a "landmark" year for the county.

Arena Drawing Funds

PICTON — Wellington reeve Robert Royce Tuesday accepted a $500 donation from Picton's Mayor Harvey McFarland toward the reconstruction of Wellington arena.

The arena, used by more than 400 youngsters was gutted by fire last month.

A fund-raising drive has been launched in Wellington Athra directors and a larger, modern arena will, hopefully, be ready for next hockey season. The building will be on the same site and the original ice pad will be used. Ice-making equipment was salvaged.

Reconstruction plans include combination of a community hall, greatly increased seating capacity and use of modern materials to minimize fire hazard and maintenance.

Delbert Boyle, president of the arena company has said the company has applied for registration as a non-profit organization for income tax free purposes.

Wreckage is being removed by a Bloomfield contractor and should be completed by the end of January.

Newly-elected county warden Keith MacDonald Thursday hoped county council would make a "sizable" grant to the arena's reconstruction.

Donations to the arena fund can be made through an account at the Wellington bank or sent through arena board members.

A second dance will be held on January 12 with music by the Cherry Valley Sweethearts who have volunteered their talent.

A giant lottery featuring major draw prizes also is being organized by the arena directors and tickets will go on sale soon.

Potter: Spending Restrictions Stand

Trenton Hospital in Budget Bind

By COLIN REUCE
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Trenton Memorial Hospital and the province's health ministry must soon sort fat from muscle in health delivery services here.

According to hospital administrator John Lupton the cost of living, cost of majorial and union wage agreement signed in 1973 are all pointing to a nine per cent increase in hospital operation cost for 1974, allowing for no new services or expansion of existing ones.

The province says the increase can be no greater than 6.8 per cent.

From his Queen's Park office, Health Minister Richard Potter told The Intelligencer, "some hospitals will say they are having problems. We'd be delighted to send someone down to take care of it. If they were having problems we'd know about it."

Mr. Lupton says "based on the same services offered last year, we're very much in excess of the allowable 6.8 per cent budget increase."

Dr. Potter said the spending ceiling will not be relaxed.

Mr. Lupton says linen is expected to become much more costly during the year and some plastic products used widely in the hospital have seen 50 per cent cost increases.

Of the total hospital budget, more than 75 per cent of the funds are allocated for salaries and payroll.

"The staff will hardly be satisfied with a 6.8 per cent increase . . . . the cost of living by Statistics Canada has risen about eight percent," said Mr. Lupton.

While Mr. Lupton says his hospital is "lean and muscular and not a fat cat," Dr. Potter says hospital boards must take out their pencils and sharpen their wits."

"Let's see what old programs can be taken out and new ones introduced," said the minister.

"Hospitals are big business .... we must make sure all money is well spent," he said.

Referring to Mr. Lupton's stand that muscle - not fat - could only be cut from the program of health delivery in Trenton, the doctor said, "Trenton may be unique .... other hospitals across the province have been most co-operative."

"We're at the point where we don't know where to turn," said the Trenton administrator, .

Mr. Lupton added "hospitals across the province are having a terrible struggle."

He said final hope exits were being completed on the 'accounting side of the budget and it would soon be sent to a finance committee for detailed study. From there the budget goes to the hospital's board of governors.

Dr. Potter said he would be in Trenton soon to meet with hospital representatives.

1,420 People

MARMORA — Population of Marmore-Lake township now totals 1,423. Township council received the tabulation from the provincial regional assessment office in Trenton.

Rural Traffic

A speeding car on a rural road is not the rarest of spectacles. Indeed reports of accidents, not to mention police chases, are common enough.

We don't like any reason to condone them, or let them — say through township or county neglect — go unchallenged? And not forgetting either that little matter of an energy crisis.

High-speed pursuit by police cruisers may be admissible, where necessary, but speeding drivers or a carload of hot-rodders is something else. We have in mind the experience of an Old Picton Road man who, out for a walk with his wife and two small children Sunday afternoon, witnessed a car travelling at what he estimated at least 90 m.p.h. And this on a damp surface slicked with snow. It was not the most dangerous of road conditions, but neither was it the safest. Moreover, the speed of the car was such that, some distance farther on, when the driver appeared to take his foot off the gas, the vehicle — a large station wagon — bucked and swayed with the sudden deceleration.

Now this road — County Road 28 — when free of traffic, including snowmobiles, is one of the most tranquil and attractive in the area immediately surrounding Belleville. We have said before, and we say it again, that there should be a speed limit on routes such as this, for there is a considerable population in that area, including children.

Meanwhile the OPP, which occasionally patrols the route, could do worse than set up a speed trap or two, here and on any other similar rural route that carries a fair amount of traffic. They may have their eyes opened, and drivers could be taught a lesson into the bargain.

First War Base

Deseronto's newspaper, The Quinte Scanner, has published some fascinating pictures of the World War 1 air training centres at Camp Mohawk and Camp Rathbun.

Shown are the handsome wooden buildings that served as quarters at that time, and a number of tents are also seen scattered around the grounds. Among a group of rural plans is one used by Norman Castle (of Vernon and Irene Castle dancing fame). Castle, an instructor at the Deseronto training complex, was subsequently killed flying a similar aircraft.

Perhaps the most notable of The Scanner's pictures (one of which, at Camp Rathbun, bears the date August 10, 1917) is of Deseronto's main street, with the post office in the foreground and a couple of biplanes overhead, in what today might be considered rather dangerous proximity since there are shown only on a one-hour familiarization course.

The pictures are all the more interesting for the fact there is talk of the possibility of bringing the old airstrip at Deseronto into use again, a prospect that should certainly benefit the community and the nearby Indian reserve from both a commercial and tourist standpoint.

There comes to mind a book someone was preparing a few years ago on the Deseronto base and wartime activities there. We wonder if the author ever got it altogether as far as they, for it would make absorbing reading for the many who trained there, as well as for area residents.

Calling It Quits

"Enough's enough" likely is what William Murray decided when he resigned in mid-term last month as deputy reeve of Ernestown township.

Mr. Murray had been in municipal politics for 11 years and before that he was active in organizing sports. He served also on Lennox and Addington county council and was chairman of the library board, not to mention his work on committees.

So don't a lot of people work virtually 24 hours a day in this, that and the other public activity?

Maybe . . . but Mr. Murray can be counted upon as one of those wise people who know when to call it quits. For one thing of the municipal activity he had his work as general manager of a realty company's offices in both Kingston and Amherstview.

Mr. Murray had reached a point where he felt he was unable to do any of the jobs properly or see enough of his family.

Yet in Warden Bruce Wease's words, "he has been a good man."

There are many like him, serving their communities across the land, but like Mr. Murray, do they know when enough is enough?

MP's Probe

Faraway Places Lure Ottawa's Jet-Set Bureaucrats

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA—What is young Bill Knight, the New Democratic MP from Assiniboia, trying to prove with those 84 questions asking why all these senior public servants are spending such a bundle of the taxpayers' money getting all over the world?

Looking at the $403 million public service travel and "removal" expenses bill for the last year, he suspects that the taxpayers are not getting full value out of all that inertial mileage.

He has been getting answers from individual departments on their junketing, but the replies are not very informative.

Just the bare facts, who, when, why, where and at what cost.

Like the $1,149 flight made to Paris by Assistant Undersecretary of State A. Fortier, salary to $33,000, for "meetings of the International Council of the French language and of the Joint Commission, and to meet people involved in cultural fields in September and October . . ."

And the $986 trip by Assistant Deputy Minister of Regional and Economic Expansion W. L. Lavigne, salary to $35,000, to Switzerland, Austria, Germany and Denmark "to make prospecting and appraisal visits to plants and industrial parks, together with speaking engagements and interviews with industrialists, financiers and consultants."

Or how about this?

Deputy Agriculture Minister S. B. Williams flew to Washington, to China, to Paris, Rome and Israel, accompanying his boss Eugene Whelan on various official missions such as "a high level meeting of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development and to attend Food and Agriculture Committee meetings."

The interesting thing was not the destination but the mission's but the price. It cost $33.60 for the Washington trip; $86.80 for the China flip, and $617.34 to Paris-Rome-Israel. No explanations were given.

And so go the answers — the easy ones — with the emphasis still to come.

Among those whose trips Bill Knight questioned was former National Capital Commission Chairman Douglas Fullerton on his special assignment from Prime Minister Trudeau.

Why, asked Bill Knight, had Douglas Fullerton, salary to $40,500, flown to Yugoslavia, England, and then Yugoslavia again?

The former NCC chairman, not known as "Fearless Fullerton" for nothing, has the advantage over most of his fellow mandarins in being a part-time newspaper commentator.

And characteristically he has made the most of it with a reply, in the public press, running to several hundred words, for Bill Knight.

And then he proceeds to answer it in standard public service style — just the facts Ma'am, no opinion special assignment from Mr. Trudeau.

Then he comes through with the real, tell-it-all answer . . .

Like the information Bill Knight was seeking . . . is whether such trips as mine were necessary, whether the government got value for the money, or whether the trips are simply a means of providing mandarins with a holiday (in the cold months particularly) at public expense.

So did the taxpayers get value for the $3,719 Douglas-Fullerton spent on the trip to Britain and the pair to Yugoslavia?

"Impossible to say," he concedes, then goes on to claim he learned "a lot of things" about his cities and their problems. He saw a lot, did a lot of listening, and "learned from other people's experiences."

And he contends it better equipped him to do the National Capital Commission job he since has left to accept what could turn out to be an even more important one from the PM.

Not figuring out the "cost-benefit" of junketing seems beyond question.

And "despite the intangible benefits," as he calls them, the former commissioner says he openly confesses the suspicion that "too many mandarins" are riding on the taxpayers' backs to "exotic places" in search of winter.

So he counsels, apparently forgetting he is still a mandarin and remembering only that he is a taxpayer and commentator, Bill Knight should keep the questions coming to keep the public service joy-riders off the jets.

B.C. Man Advocates Socialism

Editor,
The Intelligencer,
The Wall Street Journal of May 16, 1973, had this to say on inflation: "The cause of inflation — the only cause .. is the creation of excess money by the government. Historically, it was done by kings clipping coins or by running the printing presses. Nowadays it is done by governments running budget deficits and then creating the paper and credit dollars through the banking system to make up the deficits. Result: Money expands faster than the supply of goods and services."

The source of the problem is the degenerate capitalist system, with its increasingly huge demands for government expenditures on arms, and for the "welfare" support of multitudes of workers and members of their families, etc. The solution is real Socialism, advocated by the Socialist Labor Party, where the means of production will be socially owned and democratically administered by the workers themselves, with all workers receiving the equivalent of the abundance they produce.

Changing Values in Latin America

Experiment in Family Planning in Colombia

By YVONNE TARBUSH
in UNESCO Features

There are 3,120 children in Colombia today who have a chance of growing up to be enlightened adults in the full sense of the word - free of prejudices and taboos, able to bring up the number of children they desire and aware of their role in shaping their own lives and those of generations to come as they take an active part in their country's development.

Not many, you might say, out of the 10 million children under the age of 15 who form half the present population of Colombia. But it is a beginning, and if the experiment now being carried out by the Ministry of Education through the Universidad del Valle's C.I.P.E. (University Centre for Population Studies), with the technical assistance of Bogotá, and the financial aid of UNFPA (United Nations Fund for Population Activities) is successful, thousands of other children will get the same start in life in coming years.

Before too long this new form of schooling which combines sex education and study of population and environmental problems with the usual subjects — natural sciences, maths, biology, geography, history, Spanish, religion and civics may be extended to the Colombian educational system as a whole.

The goal of the experiment is to develop in the children, from primary school onwards, an awareness of how the behavior of the individual has social and environmental consequences in relation to population growth. Called the Population Education Program, it is being carried out at Cali, capital of Valle del Cauca Department, some 100 kilometres (60 miles) from the Pacific Ocean.

At present the project covers 24 primary and secondary schools, chosen as a cross-section of the information Bill Knight was seeking ... is whether such trips as mine were necessary, whether the government got value for the money, or whether the trips are simply a means of providing mandarins with a holiday (in the cold months particularly) at public expense.

So did the taxpayers get value for the $3,719 Douglas-Fullerton spent on the trip to Britain and the pair to Yugoslavia?

Conservation Program in Paris Gravel Pit

Wayne Roper in
The Brantford Expositor

Once there were ugly mud stains in the pit now there is waterfowl.

At one time, the craggy boulder-strewn boundaries reached right to the road's edge; now, there are sloped embankments where trees are growing.

This is the Paris pit operation of Consolidated Sand and Gravel Co. The white-painted fences and 16 acres of farm that once surround the pits have replaced most of the old eyesores, but the reclamation efforts in this respect are more than window dressing.

Consolidated is a recognized leader in Ontario in rehabilitation of abandoned pits. Its achievements were recognized by its peers when the Aggregate Producers' Association of Ontario presented Roy Maidens, the Paris superintendent, with the provincial award of its kind, "in recognition of outstanding improvements in operations". That was in 1970.

Since that time, the firm has looked back, and has continued to provide a model rehabilitation program for other Ontario pits to follow.

In this, the second and final photo feature of this series on the two sides of the gravel pit controversy in Paris, The Expositor attempts to show some of the work Consolidated has accomplished in rehabilitation.

As in last week's picture-story on the negative side of the operation, some of the programs cannot be depicted because of their physical nature. One of these programs is a recently-rehabilitated 40-acre parcel of abandoned pit, on the north side of Key Lane Road, which was converted to farm land this summer.

At Consolidated, the environmental program has a motto: Seeing is Believing. The firm is devoted to making it a reality.

Since it first broke into the environmental - rehabilitation field, the company has planted 12,000 trees in the Paris area and expects a "catch" rate of more than 50 per cent. This means Paris should have nearly 40,000 new trees growing within the next few years. Some are already more than six feet tall.

The firm has created a tree farm — property department, devoted solely to reclamation work here. This department has developed a two - acre nursery farm in the company's west pit, to explore the development of trees for the firm's Ontario pits.

In the agrarian field, the company is experimenting with converting abandoned pits to profitable farmland. It has 30 acre experimental plot on the floor of the east pit, where for the past two years, crops of wheat and hay have been sown with fair or better results.

The company's selling ponds, developed to purify water after it is used to wash the gravel, now provides refuge and safety to free-flying flocks of geese, ducks and other waterfowl.

The firm is also devoted to establishing clear lakes, such as its former Waterford operation where 230 acres of land was turned over to a conservation authority. The authority developed the site into a huge conservation area, complete with swimming areas, landscaping, and trees. There are two such lakes beginning to develop in the Paris area. Some day, they too may provide recreation for residents of the area.

Consolidated Sand and Gravel has established a tough art to follow," and any new operation, such as the 615-acre operation proposed by Dufferin Materials and Construction Ltd. of Toronto for north of Paris, would have to match or better Consolida ed's efforts.

The people of Paris won't settle for less.

Soviets and The Oil Crisis

Editor
The Intelligencer

The letter "Russia Influences Arabs" deserves comment.

Blaming the Russians for the oil crisis the writer suggests it was them that put the Arabs up to their current policy of political and economic blackmail.

He is probably correct in this assumption - - - but isn't this the same tactic employed by the western world in the past? The only difference is we called it by another name "free enterprise". Now our monopoly has been challenged we bear cries of "dirty pool".

Your correspondent makes the point that the Russians have plenty of oil - - so have we. Yet he labels their system as being "stupid". How can this be? It's us that has the crisis, not them.

However, Mr. McKimmie has a solution - - - cut off the supply of grain to Russia and China. In the old days Winston Churchill would have sent a gunboat. This may have worked then but today's game has a different set of players who are as good at interpreting the rules as we are.

If your correspondent's suggestion is taken seriously I wonder how our fellow Canadians in the prairies would feel. After all Prime Minister Trudeau made the diplomatic round of the year when his visit concluded with favorable trade agreements, beneficial to the farmers of the west. In fact, it was thought so appropriate Pres. Nixon and Robert Stanfield lost no time in following suit.

I think today the average citizen is not likely to be taken in by the suggestion the crisis is the fault of the Communists.

The page two evidence indicates we are now about to pay the price for subscribing so long to a system geared to growth and profit without weighing the consequences or relevance of our actions. Unfortunately the price we will have to pay for our indifference is likely to be heavy indeed.

Card Had No Stamp, Address

OTTAWA (CP) — An Ikea mailed to a Cobourg, Ont., man was seized by the post office and turned over to the RCMP because it bore neither a stamp nor a conventional address, Solicitor-General Warren Allmand said Tuesday.

He told reporters he does not believe the post office has the right to withdraw mail under normal circumstances.

"But this was not usual. There was no stamp and no address."

Allan Lawrence (PC—Northumberland-Durham) said in the Commons Monday that a computer card sent to Wally Keeler of Dobourg was seized last summer and not returned until last Thursday.

He told reporters that Mr. Keeler and a friend in Sudbury, Ont., sent the computer cards through the mail as postcards. The computer worked, the written version of the punched holes, was on the back of the cards.

The correspondence involved poetry and one poem dealt with security leaks, Mr. Lawrence said. Pseudonyms were used by the two men, both computer experts, but they eventually were traced by the RCMP.

Mr. Allmand said Tuesday he believes the men were traced through their social insurance numbers which appeared on the cards.

It took a lengthy investigation by police to determine that the correspondence was harmless, he said.

"If everyone put cards like this in the mail it would be a terrible nuisance," he added.

Frostbitten

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — A 20-year-old Niagara Falls, Ont., man is in hospital here suffering from severe frostbite to his hands and feet.

Police said David Vincent was brought to the hospital Tuesday by an unidentified man after spending the night in 20-below-zero temperatures when his car broke down on a highway west of here.

140 Refugees

TORONTO (CP) — About 140 refugees from Chile will be aboard a Canadian Armed Forces plane leaving Santiago for Toronto Friday night, Andrew Ross, Canadian ambassador to Chile, said Tuesday.

The plane is to arrive in Toronto late Saturday morning after a stop in Acapulco, Mexico.

Envoy Named

WASHINGTON (CP) — William J. Porter, veteran career foreign service officer, Tuesday became ambassador to Canada in a series of high-level diplomatic moves.

Rail Labor Group Critical of CNR

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Railway Labor Association criticized the Canadian National Railways Tuesday for its reaction to a recent rail safety report by the Canadian transport commission.

J. F. Walker, CRLA vice-chairman, said in a news release that CN seemed intent on brushing aside evidence of rail safety problems with "vague statistics" saying the railway's accident record in 1973 was 13 per cent better than in 1972.

CN said in Montreal Monday that conclusions in the rail safety report were based on out-dated figures and did not reflect current conditions.

The railway said the report pictures a worsening railway accident record unless immediate steps are taken. CN said many of the commission's proposals have already been carried out with a 13-per-cent improvement in the accident record in 1973.

The commission report released last week ordered daily track inspections and warned that railways would be told to reduce train speeds and loads unless track maintenance is immediately improved.

Mr. Walker said that evidence at the commission's long rail safety inquiry two years ago "pointed to laxity and in most cases outright disregard for commission rules and regulations by the railways."

The rail unions intended to continue pushing for closer regulation of the railways to ensure safety of the public and employees.

Half Post Office Loot Found in Barrie Garden

BARRIE, Ont. (CP) — Nearly half the $118,500 stolen from the post office at Toronto International Airport Nov. 29 was found buried in a garden here Tuesday.

Peel regional police, who unearthed the $55,000 buried in garbage bags, said they were leaving today for Kirkland Lake, Ont., in hopes of finding another $22,000.

Mother Losing Her Mind Can't Handle Sons 3, 6

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 25-year-old mother who is going out of my mind. I can't handle our two sons, six and three. Neither can my husband. He's gone nine now, and says he doesn't know how I stand those kids. We have both whipped them time and time again. It doesn't do one bit of good.

Last Saturday, I got up at 7:30 a.m. The boys had the dog in their bed, feeding him corn flakes. I gave them a hard whipping, but it didn't mean a thing. Three days later, they poured chocolate syrup and honey all over the floor and dresser. Another hard whipping. This morning their mattress was looking wet. They had poured several bottles of beer over it. Their daddy whipped them again.

Please, Ann, tell us what to do with these kids.—Frustrated And Helpless

Dear F. and H.: The first thing you can do is stop whipping them. By now, you ought to know it doesn't do any good. The next thing you can do is call the Community Mental Health Service and ask to be put in touch with someone who can counsel you and your husband on how to discipline your children. Youngsters who are out of control when they are six and three and six need special handling.

If you don't get into the driver's seat pretty darned soon, those boys will be utterly impossible to deal with later. Get going. You're two years late right now.

Dear Ann Landers: May I express my thanks for your even-handed approach to the question of gay vs. straight relationships? Although I take exception to some of your views, I believe you have provided an open and healthy forum for differing opinions.

I am a homosexual, 35, successful in business, college-educated and involved in community work. I've had the same lover for three years. Our relationship is better than most straight relationships. Generally speaking, gay couples don't get along well after a while. They argue a lot and then split. Is it any wonder? We are discriminated against by tax laws, badgered at work, kept out of top jobs, rejected by the church, and cast out by our families.

Don't you think that if homosexuals were treated decently, instead of being harassed and ridiculed, they would get along as well as married couples? Life is tough enough without the added strain imposed on us by society. How about a word from you, Ann?—L.R.

Dear L.R.: You mean another word, don't you? I've already pounded out thousands of words on this subject.

Yes, I'm sure the strain of living a covert existence can create enormous tension, and tension shortens tempers and ruins relationships. You ask that homosexuals be treated decently, that they not be harassed or ridiculed or discriminated against. Well, I have been pleading the same case for 18 years. Good luck to both of us.

Teen-ager Wants Trust

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: Does worrying about your teen-age daughters mean that you don't trust them? My daughter's girl friend, 17, can come and go as she pleases. This girl tells my daughter, "My parents trust me." I think her parents just don't give a hoot.

Sometimes she says I don't trust her. Then at times she wants me to be the one to say no—when she does not want to go along with what her friends have planned. She insists on having her whole youth allowance cheque. Sometimes I keep half of it to pay the bills and she has the gall to tell me what my responsibilities are.

When they ask their father for money he tells them to get a job. Then they come to me.

Worrying For Both Parents.

Dear Worrying: Not trusting is an age-old wail of teenagers. They want to be free to do everything they want, but they don't want to get into a jam.

You are the one they can blame. A father should realize his part in helping a girl grow up—and part of it is not letting her go haywire with dates and curfews and boy friends. Insist on a family conference to settle on some rules.

When she asks for money he is right to suggest she earn some. You should not be going without small comforts for her, anymore. (You help her to grow up when you give her some responsibility both for behavior and for financing.

* * *

Dear Doris: I have a 13-year-old nephew, who finds school difficult, though he works hard and tries.

One difficulty he has is that he knows answers to some questions on an exam but can't seem to write them down.

Puzzled, Aunt.

Dear Puzzled: It could be just plain tension that strikes him dumb with the exam in front of him. Lots of young people have examination fright.

You or his parents ought to discuss it with his teacher, and if it is more than nervousness they can help you identify his learning disability or writing block. If he is usually able to write things down, the teacher will know this and may help you find ways to keep him calm on examination day.

There's much to be said for credits based on class performance all through the year, and not as much on those nerve-testing days at the end of the term.

(Doris cannot begin to answer all your questions in the column. To make sure of your reply, remember to enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope, sending your letter in care of this newspaper.)

Japanese-style Beef Gets Alberta Approval

EDMONTON (CP) — Older cuts of beef with a high fat content have been found highly acceptable among consumers in a study made through city retail outlets.

Two nutritional specialists and an animal scientist from University of Alberta say the specialty beef, known as Kobe, ranked better than beef currently being retailed.

The study, divided into three groups, involved Kobe-style cuts as a separate display in stores with questionnaires for the purchaser.

The questionnaire asked for comment on tenderness, flavor, over-all acceptability and fatiness relative to the usual beef provided consumers. The purchaser was asked whether he would purchase the specialty beef again.

The meat used was surplus to Alberta beef raised for the Japanese market, which prefers older beef that is highly marbled—with a high degree of fat.

Sheila McFadgen and Michael Stiles of the school of household economics food and nutrition division and Roy Berg of the animal science department tabulated 370 replies.

Some of the kobe beef was sold for 70 cents a pound more than the price of regular beef but this "did not appear to affect its acceptability," they said.

Favorable characteristics included quality and tenderness and the amount of fat was termed "about right."

Feeder cows in Canada now generally are fed for a short period before being slaughtered for human consumption. Extended feeding has not been profitable for farmers and ranchers because of the decreasing efficiency of feed conversion and the lack of "necessary quickness for Canada Grade A or B classification."

"However, if a specialty market for finished cows were available, feeding for longer periods of time could become profitable," the researchers said.

They said the meat that was apparently most acceptable to the consumers came from animals of an average age of 5.3 and 5.8 years.

The results have "important implications" for the current federal beef grading system in Canada which does not include such carcasses in the premium eating grades, they said.

"The economics of producing this type of beef and the implications for the grading system warrant further investigation."

¼ cup maraschino cherries, cherries

Peel bananas and cut in chunks or slices. Combine with drained oranges and pineapple. Sprinkle with almonds and cherries.

Serve with Citrus Mayonnaise.

Cherry Dressing

¾ cup water
1 tablespoon cornstarch
one third cup frozen orange juice concentrate one third cup frozen pineapple juice concentrate ¼ cup red maraschino cherry syrup
Dash salt
1 teaspoon mint leaves

Gradually stir water into cornstarch in saucepan. Blend in undiluted concentrates, cherry syrup, salt and mint leaves. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly until mixture boils. Remove from heat; cool. Should be thoroughly chilled before serving. Recipe makes about 2 cups.

Cherry Fiesta Salad

Lemon juice
4 cups orange sections (about 4 large oranges)
4 medium bananas
1 jar (8 ounces) red maraschino cherries, drained
Watercress or mint sprigs

Garnish centres with ripe olives. Serve with Orange Cream Dressing. Makes 4 servings. For variation, substitute cottage cheese, coconut etc., for the cheese.

Orange Cream Dressing

2 eggs, beaten
¼ cup sugar
½ cup orange juice
2 tablespoons grated orange rind
Pinch salt
½ cup whipping cream
¼ cup toasted slivered almonds (optional)

Blend eggs with sugar, orange juice, orange rind and salt in double boiler or heavy saucepan. Cook, stirring occasionally until thickened. Cool. Whip cream and fold in. If desired, fold in toasted almonds on sprinkle on top as garnish. Makes about 1½ cups.

Gingerale Fruit Salad

1 can (14 oz.) sliced peaches
1 can (19 oz.) grapefruit sections
1 tbp drained fruit syrup (¼ cups peach syrup, plus ¼ cup grapefruit syrup)
2 cups gingerale
2 packages (3 ounces each) lemon gelatine

Drain peaches and grapefruit well. Reserve juices. Place fruit on paper towelling to drain well. Combine ⅓ cup syrup from peaches ⅓ cup syrup from grapefruit, and 1 cup gingerale; heat to boiling point and pour over gelatin. Stir until dissolved. Add remaining 1 cup gingerale. Chill until slightly thickened. Fold in peaches, grapefruit, strawberries and ginger. Pour into 2 quart mold. Chill until firm. Unmold on leaf lettuce. Makes 8 servings.

A&P and Meat Buying

A&P sells only top quality meats. We take care to handle our meat so that it reaches you at the peak of quality.

Meat purchased for A&P Stores is cut into large units called primal cuts. Each of the primal cuts— e.g. chuck or shoulder, rib, hip, etc.—is individually packed with dry ice in an insulated carton. This ensures that the meat is kept at the proper temperature for aging and kept under the most sanitary conditions. While still in these cartons, the meat is shipped to the local A&P Store where the butcher will cut the meat according to local preferences.

Everyone of our stores has a butcher who is there to help you and who keeps a large variety of cuts on display at all times. If the cut of meat you want is not on display or if you wish a special cut, be sure to ask the butcher.

To make the best of your meat dollar, know your meat. Using a good basic cook-book, familiarize yourself with the variety of cuts and how to prepare them.

Expensive cuts of meat — steaks, chops, etc., are usually in demand and are therefore more costly than the less expensive cuts — pot roasts, stew meat, etc. Remember that the less expensive cuts are just as nutritious and can be just as tasty if they are prepared correctly.

Opposition Molds Energy Policies

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons opposition, using the leverage of a minority Parliament, is leaving its imprint on changing government energy policies.

Dogged daily by stubborn opposition critics, the government has had to take opposition proposals into account before pressing ahead with many of its plans.

Prime Minister Trudeau, Finance Minister John Turner and Energy Minister Donald Macdonald all have yielded ground in the last month to avoid opposition blockages, or even defeat, in the Commons.

The New Democratic Party scored the greatest opposition victory early in December when Mr. Trudeau announced a series of major policy shifts to win NDP support in a crucial non-confidence test.

Since then, the Progressive Conservatives have demanded and won changes in two key energy bills—one authorizing the crude oil export tax and the other granting the government special powers to cope with oil shortages.

At the root of the concessions is the simple arithmetic of Commons standings. With only 109 seats, the Liberals are outnumbered by the combined opposition of 106 Conservatives, 31 New Democrats, 15 Social Credit members and two independents. There are two vacancies in the 264-seat House.

Nixon Admits Milk Raised to Win Votes

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (Reuter) — President Nixon has acknowledged he approved an increase in milk-price supports to dairymen in 1971 partly because if he had not done so it might have cost him farm-state votes in the 1972 presidential election.

Nixon also knew when he approved the increase that dairymen had pledged to raise funds for his 1972 re-election drive.

But Nixon maintained in a statement Tuesday that he acted properly, and that the increase in milk-price supports benefited the entire country.

Nixon said that he was influenced by "traditional political considerations," and the fact that the Democratic-controlled Congress would have raised milk-price supports in any event.

The white paper said Nixon "concluded that the final decision came down to the fact that the Congress was going to pass the higher-support legislation, and he could not veto it without alienating the farmers—an essential part of his political constituency."

The president released the statement as part of his so-called Operation Candor — an effort to clear up lingering controversies from the 1972 presidential election campaign.

In a separate statement, Nixon rejected as "totally without foundation" allegations that he agreed to an out-of-court settlement of a monopolies suit against the International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. (ITT) in exchange for a promise of a political contribution by ITT.

Mounties Embarrassed By TV Airport Tour

OTTAWA (CP) — Red-faced RCMP officials have ordered more diligent security at all Canadian airports following an unimpeded and unhindered tour of the Toronto airport airstrip by a couple of television reporters.

"It was rather embarrassing," an RCMP spokesman said Tuesday following the tour by Global Television reporters Sunday. He said orders to keep a closer watch were out to all airports "forthwith."

The reporters entered the airport strip through a cargo door and toured around, passing close to parked aircraft which could have been the object of a bomb attack.

The RCMP is responsible for security at all major airports in the country.

They are under the command of regular force RCMP officials.

Transport Minister Jean Marchand, who has jurisdiction over airport security, said Monday that doubled surveillance was ordered following reports that Arab terrorists may strike at European airports with anti-aircraft missiles.

He said there is no evidence the terrorists are in Canada but the fact that some may have ground-to-air missiles constitutes a threat.

Combine Is Charged

TORONTO (CP) — Eleven companies went on trial Tuesday charged with conspiring to prevent or lessen unduly competition in the production and sale of business forms between Jan. 1, 1967, and June 25, 1968.

Special Crown Prosecutor Rod Heather told court a conspiracy occurred when the 11 firms joined the Institute of Continuous Form Manufacturers.

He said the firms were required to file with the institute their current price lists and a description of selling methods, and the secretary of the institute was required to supply each member with documents filed by the others.

Mr. Heather said a special filing by a member did not prevent him from selling at other prices, but the secretary had the right to make special audits and was required to report any breach of the agreement.

Money Not Only Key To Election Victory

WINNIPEG (CP) — It has been said that money talks and no one is more aware of this than the candidate for public office. A healthy amount of cash in the party war chest is one prerequisite for success at the polls.

At the same time, anyone aspiring to public life soon learns that money is not the only key to victory, and a person does not have to be a millionaire to win.

The truth of these statements is borne out in the reports of campaign expenses filed by political parties and individual candidates after Manitoba's June 28 provincial election.

About $750,000 was spent by candidates and central party committees. While the reports do not include all the expenses of the 35-day campaign, they offer some insight into the impact of dollars on voting patterns.

With a few exceptions, the reports show a correlation between money and success. For example, 26 of the 57 successful candidates outspent their rivals, and another 25 were the second-largest spenders in their ridings.

The average outlay by candidates was $2,126, but two New Democratic Party candidates won seats on budgets of less than $2,000.

Party spokesmen agree that money is an important factor in success.

"There's no question that the more money you have available, the more chance you have to get elected," said Fred Petruic, provincial secretary of the Manitoba NDP.

Richard Good, president of the provincial Liberal Party, said: "Money well spent in advertising and organization may mean 10 per cent in terms of electoral results."

Generally, there is a rough correlation between the amount spent by the three major parties and their standing in the legislature.

The NDP, which won 31 seats, spent a total of $272,537.06 or an average of 45 cents a voter in 57 ridings. The Progressive Conservatives, those 21 seats make them the official Opposition, were the second-highest spenders with a total outlay of $244,540.69 or 44 cents a voter in 52 ridings. The Liberals, who contested only 50 ridings, spent $206,542.33 or 40 cents a voter and won five seats.

The Manitoba Election Act limits spending by candidates to 40 cents a voter, and central committees can spend up to eight cents a voter in ridings where they field candidates.

The problem is assessing the relationship between money and success in politics in complicated somewhat by the reporting requirements. The Election Act requires statements of expenses incurred only between the issuing of an election writ and the actual day of voting.

Spokesmen for all three parties agree that statements filed with the chief electoral officer do not reflect the amount of money spent. A film on Premier Ed Schreyer by the NDP and a Liberal-sponsored "stop, look and listen" campaign initiated well before the election are among expenses not reported in the statements.

Still, assuming the cost of an average campaign is several thousand dollars, the money needed to run for public office is beyond the resources of the average man and would presumably be a deterrent to running were it not for campaign contributions.

Nearly half, the candidates raised enough money to break even or emerge with surpluses. One Conservative had $3,491.16 left over.

On the other hand, veteran Liberal MLA Steve Patrick had a deficit of $3,604.47 in the Winnipeg riding of Assiniboia. Premier Schreyer, Consumer Affairs Minister Sam Uskiwand Speaker Peter Fox were among six other candidates with deficits of more than $2,000.

NDP and Conservative contingent associations normally cover deficits or collect surpluses. The Liberal party, though party workers usually pull together to help individuals pay election debts, candidates themselves are responsible for deficits.

Mr. Patrick said he finances the large part of his campaign from small donations because of the fear that large donations might have strings attached or prompt accusations that favors are expected. As a result, he has had to bear deficits in each of the four races he has won.

Total spending reported in individual and party statements was $745,002.96, with only three individual returns not filed. Adding the expenses of the chief electoral officer and his staff, the grand total rises to $1,389,142.85.

Party spokesmen consider the cost reasonable in terms of the province's population of about one million.

Party officials disagree on how the money should be raised. The NDP and the Liberals strongly favor public financing of campaign expenses, while Conservatives appear less receptive to this idea.

"I think it's a matter of public interest that everyone contribute," said Mr. Good. "If the taxpayers as individuals are not prepared to contribute to political parties, then they have to be compelled through the tax system."

However, Conservative candidate Lawrie Pollard said public financing may prove difficult to put into practice.

Despite some objections over the mechanics of the proposed system, it appears that the next Manitoba election will be conducted with some political contributions from the provincial treasury. Premier Schreyer has promised a bill to this effect.

Flame Resistant Care

The flame resistant quality of children's nightwear can be damaged by improper laundering, advises Consumers' Association of Canada. When washing flame resistant fabrics, use low phosphate detergent rather than soap or soap powder. To protect the fabric finish, avoid using hot water or bleach. If the garment has a care label, follow the manufacturer's instructions. CAC national headquarters is located at 100 Gloucester Street, Ottawa.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League Eastern Ontario Club

QUESTION: We are interested in taking up cross country skiing. Can you supply any information about the types and whereabouts trails are located in Ontario.

ANSWER: It's no wonder that cross country skiing is becoming one of the most popular winter sports - there is no other winter activity that can offer so much to almost anyone. Consider a beautiful winter scene - cool, crisp, clean air, the ability to slide over a winter wonderland at one's own speed, the atmosphere of discovery or the sudden urge to use a burst of speed which makes the heart pound and lungs gasp for air- all of this ending to a cozy warming hut with a feeling of exhilaration and satisfaction.

Cross country skiing opens a new winter for everyone. You set your own pace.If touring — cross country skiing can be an athletic event, or a leisurely slide through sunny winterscape.

The sport itself is over 4,000 years old and is of Scandinavian origin. It really hasn't changed much - other than the equipment quality and, of course, facilities. Today ski manufacturers produce equipment for all tastes and many ski areas are providing special facilities for enthusiasts. In comparison to alpine skiing, cross country is much less expensive; for example you can be outfitted with skis, boots, bindings and poles for as little as $70. Furthermore, trail use fees are much less than lift tickets. If this sport appeals to you, then here are some helpful hints for the beginner:

Questions and Answers Take 2 indent

1. Rent equipment and take a lesson on your first outing to be sure that your interest warrants purchasing equipment of your own.

2. Ski in an area which is familiar or an area that is marked with trail markers.

3. Don't over do it on your first outing. It's a good idea to begin exercising before the season so as to prepare your body for the exercise and "out-of-doors".

4. You'll find it best to ski on groomed or packed trails until you get the hang of the sport.

Should you decide to take the sport seriously, here are more suggestions:

1. Purchase your equipment at a recognized shop - you'll find them more knowledgeable and helpful.

2. Learn to use and take care of your equipment properly.

3. You'll have more fun if you ski on professionally designed and groomed trails.

A few hints on equipment:

Boots - should be warm, fit properly, be lightweight, be durable.

Skis - should be sturdy, have equal camber (curve to the ski), be of the proper size in length and width (different widths depending on your use preferences).

Bindings - should be strong, make sure boot fits, be mounted properly.

Poles - should be strong, should be of a proper length.

Clothing - dress for the occasion - be warm, wear clothes that "breathe", carry a knapsack if you think you may want to carry a snack or have a place to store any excess clothing.

There are a lot of areas catering to this sport. To the west there is Northumberland Forest north of Cobourg; Buckhorn, Bethany and Peterborough in the Kawarthas. North are Bracebridge, Huntsville and Bracebridge, Haliburton and there there is Camp Fortune in the Gatineau. Also there are Barrie and Collingwood, all easily reached by car.

THIRTEEN—The Flight That Failed — Henry Cooper, Jr.

On the night of April 13, 1970 one of Apollo 13's oxygen tanks burst, pulling the spacecraft and the three astronauts into a battle for survival. The success of previous missions had left N.A.S.A. unprepared for the technical dilemmas of this one. Mr. Cooper has given an almost minute-by-minute account of the decisions which followed the explosion, and the desperate fight for life as it took place.

WAVES FOR ME BY MOONLIGHT— Evelyn Le Chene.

This is the story of Major Robert Burdett, one of the bravest and most successful of the small group of British secret agents who were sent to France to organize the Resistance, and sabotage the German war effort. He became such a legendary figure that the Germans offered a reward of thirty thousand pounds for him, but although he lived with the Gestapo breathing down his neck, he was never betrayed. His portrayal of the shadowy world of intrigue, torture and death is authentic and a tribute to the bravery of British agents and French patriots.

SUPERSTARS: HOCKEY'S GREATEST PLAYERS— Andy O'Brien.

What makes a superstar? Besides talent and determination, he must also have something that brings the fans to their feet. Probably no two fans would agree on the selection, but here is Andy O'Brien's all-time superstar team. These are the nineteen stars this veteran sports writer believes are the most talented and exciting ever to play professional hockey.

MARCH OR BUST — ADVENTURES IN THE FOREIGN LEGION— A.R. Cooper.

This book relates the experiences of a British subject who joined the Foreign Legion at the age of fifteen, and won a Croix de Guerre before he was sixteen. He was in for fifteen years and experienced every aspect of life in the Legion. He narrates customs, vices, military tactics, also the beautiful countryside of the Sahara, the suicides, the humour and the heroism.

FIRST CROSSES! THE U.S. SUBMARINE ATTACK — Richard K. Smith.

Several million people will fly the Atlantic this year in from six to eight hours. The first flight, made in 1919, took a six-day crew nearly three weeks to complete. During the First World War the U.S. Navy had been developing an aircraft prize of ten thousand pounds for the first Atlantic crossing, the Navy entered three planes. Richard Smith describes the preparation, the planning, the men, the equipment and the communication and method of navigation, and how one NC-4 completed the twenty-day flight to Portugal.

THE ANDERSON PAPERS- Jack Anderson.

Jack Anderson won the Pulitzer prize for his investigative reporting. Now, in the Anderson Papers, he reveals how he broke the stories which have been headlined across the nation, and tells more about the detail. He writes of the "deception of the American people", by the Nixon Administration over the India-Pakistan war. He documents the I.T.T. involvement with the Republican Party. Other chapters deal with what Anderson learned from the files of the F.B.I. The book is a hard-hitting investigation of power in politics.

Surplus Cut

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal income rose $1.4 billion so far this fiscal year compared with the corresponding period last year, but government spending rose $2.1 billion and Canada's budget deficit climbed from $718 million to $39 million, Finance Minister John Turner reported Tuesday.

Present Route Through U.S.
Canadian Pipeline Would Take Longer

OTTAWA (CP) — An all-Canadian crude oil pipeline to Montreal would take two years longer to build than an extension from Sarnia, Ont., Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said Tuesday.

He told the Commons the construction timetable is the main factor the government must consider in deciding a route for the extension.

Sarnia extension could be built by the late-1975 deadline set by the government but an all-Canadian route, starting from Winnipeg, would take two years longer, he said in reply to a question from T. C. Douglas (NDP—Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands).

The existing interprovincial pipeline starts in Edmonton and cuts across the Prairies to the Canada-United States border south of Winnipeg. From there, it swings east through the northern States, re-entering Canada at Sarnia.

En route, the line passes within about 60 miles of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., a possible third starting point for the extension.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield pressed the government Tuesday for an explanation of what he termed delay in starting the extension, first announced in September.

Prime Minister Trudeau said the government has been held back by consultations with interested provinces but Mr. Macdonald planned to make a statement soon. The minister said later he hoped to make the statement within a couple of weeks.

Mr. Trudeau said Quebec and Ontario are the main provinces involved. Quebec favors one particular route, he said. He did not elaborate but said Ontario has not endorsed any one route.

Mr. Stanfield said the government appears to have chosen an extension that will deliver only 250,000 barrels of oil daily to Montreal. This was less than one quarter the amount needed in Quebec and the Atlantic provinces.

Mr. Douglas asked twice whether Interprovincial Pipe Line Ltd., the operator of the Edmonton-Sarnia line, is opposing both the Winnipeg and Sault Ste. Marie routes.

Mr. Macdonald declined to answer. D. G. Walden Inter-provincial president, said Monday the company favors the Sarnia route.

Mr. Macdonald told reporters later that Liberal caucus members favor an all-Canadian route and the company also might be persuaded.

"Under certain financial considerations, I suspect they'd build a pipeline almost anywhere."

Mr. Stanfield said he favors an all-Canadian route in theory but it should be built only if a substantially higher volume of crude can be delivered to Montreal than over the Sarnia route.

"We all like the idea of a Canadian route. It appeals to us as Canadians. . . . But I'd find it difficult to subject Quebec to two more years of uncertainty without a substantial increase in long-run supplies."

Indian Affairs Dept. Fires Youth Leader

OTTAWA (CP) — The Indian Affairs department Tuesday fired Danny Goodleaf, head of a controversial youth resources program, saying he had knowingly misused public funds.

Mr. Goodleaf, co-ordinator of the program designed to help Indian youth living on reserves, said in an interview he will go to the courts if necessary to fight the dismissal.

Mr. Goodleaf, from the Caughnawaga reserve near Montreal, said the firing is another attempt by Indian affairs officials who are trying to have the program cancelled.

However, R. M. Connelly, a department official responsible for the program, denied any attempt to cancel the program.

"I don't care who it is, whether an Indian or anyone else; if they misuse funds, they will be fired," he said.

Members of the youth resources program were hired from the reserves to assist young Indians. Former Indian affairs deputy minister John Ciaccia, who established the program, said the appearance of some of the young Indians and their attitude would be resented by some in the department.

Some friction between the young Indians and other employees did occur. One such incident came when the Indians issued a public statement criticizing the department for building a security wall around the entrance to the headquarters building in Ottawa. The wall later was torn down.

The wall was to prevent further sit-ins at the department and one of the leaders of the sit-in, Arthur Manuel, was involved in the charge against Mr. Goodleaf.

The department alleges, and Mr. Goodleaf agrees, that he gave airplane tickets to Mr. Manuel, president of the Native Youth Association.

Mr. Goodleaf said two of his field workers had planned a trip to Regina but at the last moment changed their minds.

"I had to decide whether to give their tickets to Mr. Manuel," said Mr. Goodleaf.

"If I can't help an elected person like Mr. Manuel, who can I help?" he said.

In addition to losing his job, Mr. Goodleaf has been ordered to repay $300, cost of the plane tickets.

Because he is a contract employee and not a regular civil servant, Mr. Goodleaf cannot appeal his dismissal to the public service appeals board.

But he said he is getting legal advice on how to protest his firing.

"It isn't the job," he declared.

"It is the insinuation that I am guilty of fraud and to show the department that it can't push Indians around."

Production Up

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada is producing more of its own coal and importing less, a Statistics Canada report showed Tuesday.

Total production climbed 8.5 per cent to 20.3 million tons the first 11 months of last year, while imports declined 14 per cent to 15.3 million tons, it said.

Figures for December are not yet available.

Rail Union Figures Dispute Deutsch View

OTTAWA (CP) — Union negotiators pulled their own actuarial figures out of a hat Tuesday, contending that a study commissioned by the federal government has overestimated pension plan costs to railway companies.

Both unions and companies presented their views on the study, conducted by Dr. John Deutsch, principal of Queen's University, at the conclusion of arbitration hearings before Mr. Justice Emmett Hall.

Mr. Justice Hall, a retired Supreme Court of Canada judge, was appointed to produce a working agreement between 85,500 rail workers and companies including Canadian National Railways and CP Rail. His decision will be released Jan. 16.

Mr. Deutsch, a former chairman of the Economic Council of Canada, has adopted the actuarial position of the railways in his report to Labor Minister John Munro, agreeing that improvements in a pension plan would cost the companies 4.3 per cent of their unfounded 1972 payroll in 1973 and 1974.

But Mr. Deutsch said in his study the costs of improvements to the plan, agreed upon earlier in negotiations, would be reduced by one per cent annually when proposed changes to the maximum pensionable earnings level of the Canada and Quebec Pension Plans were put into effect.

In their arguments Tuesday, representatives for the union presented figures showing the plan would cost between 2.4 and 3.11 per cent of payroll costs annually if the number of employees remained constant or decreased two per cent a year.

Mr. Deutsch had said in his report that he could not make any meaningful estimate of future employment levels but David Brown, a Toronto consultant for the unions, said he could not understand why the report did not test payroll costs with various future employment possibilities taken into account.

MPs Are Kept on Job By NDP Wiretap Stand

OTTAWA (CP) — New Democrat refusal to accept a Commons-Senate compromise on the controversial wiretap bill appears destined to sink hopes for an adjournment of Parliament Friday.

Liberals and Conservatives agreed Tuesday that a break Friday would be possible except for NDP opposition to any deal with the Senate after it amended the bill passed earlier by the Commons.

NDP members say they are not willing to compromise with what they consider unwarranted interference by the upper house.

An adjournment Friday, or whenever it comes, would be tantamount to prorogation of the session which began Jan. 4, 1973. However, adjournment provides the technical advantage of making it easier for the government to recall Parliament in an emergency.

The break, expected to last four to six weeks, would be followed by a routine prorogation and the immediate start of a new session with a speech from the throne outlining the government's new plans.

Stanley Knowles, NDP House leader, said his party is prepared to approve a motion on the wiretap bill immediately "if it is designed to send the bill back to the Senate in the way we sent it to Their Honors the first time."

Both the Liberals and Conservatives have expressed hope the compromise they reached before Christmas as a response to th Senate amendment will be dealt with quickly.

Their combined forces would outweigh the New Democrats in any Commons showdown on the matter, but the NDP might mount a filibuster which Tom Bell, Conservative House leader, says could last a week.

"However, the government here by next Friday (Jan. 18). They don't want us around for the conference."

The federal-provincial energy conference will be held here Jan. 22-23.

Ron Alky (PC—Toronto St. Paul's) said in an interview he is concerned the government might drop the bill.

However, a government definitely has to get us out of source said the minority Liberals still want to push ahead with the bill despite NDP objections and the possibility of a delay in getting Commons approval.

Once the bill is passed, the way will be cleared for an adjournment with the government dropping other proposed legislation including the Canadian National Railways financing bill and a Senate bill to increase the number of national parks.

The wiretap bill would outlaw private bugging and restrict police wiretapping. The Senate-Commons confrontation arose when the upper house removed a provision requiring notification of the subject of a tap by the provincial attorney-general within 90 days of the tap's removal.

Justice Minister Otto Lang and Conservative representatives worked out a compromise which provides for the judge authorizing a wiretap to determine when a bugging subject should be notified.

If the New Democrats mount a filibuster on the wiretap compromise, they might put the government in the potentially-embarrassing position of meeting provincial representatives of the energy conference with the Commons still sitting and requiring the presence of key ministers.

This would expose the government to opposition energy questions in the daily Commons question period at the same time as it was trying to negotiate delicate energy matters with the provinces.

After a day of low-key debate on the CNR financing bill Tuesday, energy returns to Commons limelight today with debate on the energy allocation bill.

The bill is assured passage by the end of the week with the NDP supporting the government during debate limited by a timetable agreed to prior to the Christmas break.

NDP Seems More Wary Of Senate's Influence

OTTAWA (CP) — The threat, real or imagined, of the Senate imposing its will on the Commons seems to be looming larger in the minds of the New Democratic Party.

The fire of anti-Senate debate has been rekindled by a proposed amendment to the government's emergency energy allocation bill. The amendment, conceived by the Progressive Conservatives and grudgingly accepted by Energy Minister Donald Macdonald, has served to direct NDP attention towards the potential power held by the appointed upper house.

The amendment would give the Commons and the Senate power to veto a government-declared energy emergency by refusing to approve the cabinet order bringing the bill into force.

The Senate alone could decide the energy situation does not warrant using the sweeping powers, including rationing, contained in the bill. However, observers say the 103-seat Senate, packed with 74 Liberals, is not likely to go against the government on such a crucial issue.

NDP Leader David Lewis told the Commons Tuesday the government should change the proposed amendment "so that the House of Commons may be given the final right of decision in this issue rather than the Senate." He noted that some senators are directors of oil companies or businesses related to the oil industry.

Three senators are known to have contacts with the oil industry: Senator Harry Hays (L—Alberta) is a director of Home Oil Co. Ltd., Senator J. J. Greene (L—Ontario), a former Liberal energy minister, is a director of Petrofina Canada Ltd., and Senator John J. Connolly works as a legal consultant for Gulf Oil.

Other senators have directorships on a wide variety of corporate boards, including banks and investment firms, steel companies and other manufacturing companies. Still others, in an NDP spokesman argued, rub elbows with oil company executives as they sit together on various boards of directors.

There are more than 225 corporate directorships concentrated in the Senate—the majority of them held by members of the Senate banking committee.

Government sources chuckled at the suggestion that the proposed amendment gives the Senate extraordinary powers.

Senator Connolly said in an interview that Mr. Lewis was "playing to the gallery a bit" and the implied threat of the Senate was vastly overplayed.

A government source said the kind of power the amendment gives the Senate is not unlike the power of veto the upper house holds over any piece of legislation it receives from the Commons.

The last time the Senate used its power of absolute veto was in 1961 when it threw out a government bill which would have fined Bank of Canada governor James Coyne and, in the same session, a bill amending the Customs Tariff Act.

The feeling among many observers is that the chances of the Senate cancelling a cabinet order declaring an energy crisis are about as great as those of it vetoing an entire bill approved by the Commons.

The most recent rumblings of anti-Senate feeling began in December when the upper house sent the government's controversial wiretap bill back to the Commons with a major amendment. The amendment would delete a clause requiring a provincial attorney-general to tell a tapped person about the bugging within 90 days of the bug being removed.

Form 6 Regions

GUELPH, Ont. (CP) — Environment Minister James Auld said Tuesday his ministry is being reorganized into six regions to improve communications with groups and organizations.

Speaking at a one-day conference on pesticides at University of Guelph, Mr. Auld said the decentralization is expected to be effective by April.

Snowmobilers Damaging City's Outdoor Rinks

Belleville's recreation department was successfully skating ahead with an ambitious outdoor rink program—in spite of getting interference from snowmobiles.

The trouble is particularly acute in the city's east end.

The department is receiving complaints that snowmobilers are sporting on rinks, "particularly" at Moira Secondary School and Harry J. Clarke public schools, says Clifford Belch, assistant city recreation director.

The rinks are among 21 already organized or planned for use across the city this winter.

"But snowmobiles are a big concern," said Mr. Belch. "They're causing us real problems. In some areas they're being run over rinks that have not properly frozen after flooding."

The rinks are strategically plotted on various open areas across the city.

In a traditional outdoor skating area — Belleville harbor — the program has become a community project. Two large rinks are cleared and flooded regularly on the harbor — one for family skating, the second for hockey.

The nearby Wharf St. Debating Club has opened its premises as a clubhouse for public use. Sea cadets from HCSCC Quinte are supervising.

The one exception is the third Monday of each month when the debating club needs the quarters for its own meeting.

Skating each night on the harbor is now from 7:10 p.m. Other times: Saturday, 9 a.m.-12 noon, 1 p.m.-5p.m., 7:30-10 p.m.; Sunday, 1:30-5:30 p.m., 6:30-10 p.m.

The other big outdoor skating area, Zwick's Park cove, also continues a popular sports rendezvous this winter.

The Glaze Goes On

City workers Brian Hannah and Jack Sills hose down harbor Tuesday, glazing frozen surface with extra sheen to ensure comfortable skating.

It's one of a series of outdoor rinks being spotted around Belleville again this year by recreation department.

Unemployment Drop Dramatic

Unemployment in the Belleville area at the end of December was down dramatically from one year ago.

While the number of people seeking work now is on the increase as winter advances, the total is down by nearly one-third from the same time in 1972.

Statistics from the Canada Manpower centre in Belleville show 1,197 registered for jobs at the end of the year. This compares with 1,802 last year — a decline of slightly more than 600.

Belleville Manpower centre is the job registration office for the city, Hastings County and Ameliasburgh township.

However, the traditional winter unemployment upswing is also present in the increase in a month has as yet been marginal.

In December, there were only 28 more applicants registered for jobs than in November when the total was 1,171.

The increase may also draw numbers from the cancellation this year of provincial government winter works programs in the County administration and social service officials warned that this could place more jobless on the welfare rolls.

The Manpower statistical breakdown shows 827 men and 370 women seeking work at the end of the year. This compared with 688 and 423 in November and 1,155 and 647 in December 1972.

Jail Term For Driver

Harold W. Palmer, 24, of Deseronto, was sent to jail for 15 days and had his driver's licence suspended for nine months yesterday after he was convicted in provincial court of driving while disqualified.

Palmer was stopped by police Nov. 24 as he drove away from a rave on the Tyendinaga Indian Reserve.

When charged, Palmer was already under a six-month Highway Traffic Act. He was expecting to get his driver's licence back in December.

Judge J. L. Hickmott imposed the jail term on Palmer after he noted that Palmer had a record which included a previous conviction for driving while under suspension and two convictions for impaired driving.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Ross were asleep at the time of the theft.

Mr. Ross, former reeve of Murray township, will travel to Deep River Thursday to retrieve the car. It was in this community that the abductor was forced to surrender by a Deep River policeman.

Wayne Lockhart, 22, of Oshawa, after being shot in the leg during the arrest, has been charged in connection with the kidnapping.

Stolen Car Was Used In Kidnap

TRENTON — It has been authoritatively reported stolen from the RR 1, Trenton residence of Gerald Ross was used in the final phase of the abduction of 12-year-old Robert Eakens of Ajax.

Robert was returned to his parents in Ajax Tuesday, telling how he was first offered a ride by a man in a truck two blocks away from his home. Forced at knife point to remain silent during the journey, he told how the man ditched the truck near Trenton, broke into a home, cut the telephone wires and stole the car.

The boy's story coincides with the vehicle theft report Ontario Provincial Police report of the Sunday car theft.

Licence Needed

An article on Page 2 of yesterday's Intelligencer incorrectly told readers that snowmobilers were allowed to drive on city streets without a driver's licence.

You must have a driver's licence to operate a motorized snow vehicle anywhere in Belleville.

Also, you can't operate a snowmobile on any highway within the jurisdiction of the city except between the hours of 8 a.m. and 11 p.m. Monday through Sunday. You can't drive a snowmobile on a sidewalk or boulevard and you must be insured if you are going to operate a snowmobile anywhere in the city.

Repeat Storm Due Tomorrow

A storm that blew in from the southwest dumped about five inches of snow on the Prince Edward county last night and caused a cancellation of several school buses in the area.

The storm, moving at 45 to 56 miles an hour, was centred over Lake Erie at 10 a.m. today and was expected to be over Watertown by noon and off the east coast by evening. The northern edge of the storm touched Peterborough. Tweed got a maximum of two inches and total snowfall in the Trenton-Belleville district is expected to be about 11/2 inches.

The duty forecaster at CFB Trenton predicted rapid clearing today, but warned of a repeat performance Thursday night and Friday morning. Temperatures will remain at zero to 15 degrees through to the weekend.

Ontario Provincial Police in Picton warned that road conditions in the county are poor, with blowing and heavy drifting. No buses ran in Athol and South Marysburgh townships this morning and some servicing Pinecrest School in Bloomfield were cancelled. No accidents due to the storm were reported.

Drug Researcher Beck Speaks

50 Seek Answers To Drug Problem

There are no easy answers. Psychiatrists, psychologists and various researchers are no closer to discovering the root causes of the much misunderstood "drug problem" than people who attended the first of four film and question-and-answer sessions at the Corby Public Library Tuesday.

Last night's presentation was the first of a four-part exploration of the drug culture No Easy Answers. The library program continues in the next two weeks during which time resource persons from the hospital, the ministry and the Belleville Police Department will be individually available.

Tomorrow and the following Tuesday and Thursday, a film, Intended to provoke discussion, will be shown.

Part of the 50-members audience last night expressed their concern with the lack of long-term, out-patient treatment centre in Belleville. The Master of Social Work degree holder indicated his organization dealt primarily with research as opposed to treatment.

Responding to a question from the audience, Mr. Beck said, "Our purpose is to determine what services are available in a community, and subsequently initiate a service if there is the need for one." Having been in Belleville only three months, he admitted he, as yet, did not have the full picture.

He felt the Research Foundation was not doing enough work in the field of prevention of drug use, but said part of the problem is that the exact nature of the drug problem is not understood.

As the film "I'm Dependent, You're Addicted' illustrated there is no stereotype of a drug user. He or she need not be a long-haired hippie teenager or young adult.

The use of one of the five categories of chemical drugs — narcotic, amphetamines (downers), hallucinogens (psychedelic), and marijuana derivatives — is wide-spread in the "multi-drug society" says the British Broadcasting Corporation film.

In England, one in 16 people are going to sleep with the help of barbiturates. The chemical drugs are not the only problem says yes, the film. Alcohol kills 30 times more people than does heroin, tobacco kills 1,000 times more people than heroin.

Separate School Board Executive Re-elected

The chairman and vice-chairman of the Hastings-Prince Edward separate school board were returned last night for a second year in office.

Lillian O'Connor was re-elected chairman and Paul Fleming vice-chairman at the inaugural meeting of the board.

Mrs. O'Connor was nominated by Rev. Louis Casarelli, who also nominated her for the position last year "despite considerable opposition in this time of women's liberation."

The unanimous elections to the two positions took about a half minute each.

Mrs. O'Connor confessed to a deep feeling of humility in accepting the post of chairman for the second time.

She re-affirmed her belief in Catholic education, which "aims at the spiritual development of each individual student and co-development in a strong Catholic attitudes toward the community in which the student lives.

"Although we are sharing facilities with the public schools in some cases, as directed by the ministry, it does not in any way compromise our Catholic system," she said.

Mrs. O'Connor noted several accomplishments of the board in the past year.

Family life education has been introduced into five schools this year and will be extended to others next September.

Parent volunteers in the schools are drawing families and teachers closer together in the interests of the child.

A committee comprising trustees, teachers and parents has been set up in each school to improve communication with parents.

Mrs. O'Connor informed trustees that the school board headquarters at 158 George St. bought for $45,000 in 1969 had increased in value by 400 per cent since then. Additions and renovations have established under winter works plans had made the building "one of the finest board offices in the province" at no cost to the ratepayers.

The separate school's new secretary-treasurer, Basil Mr. O'Connor, and they will be kept up-to-date.

Later, Mrs. O'Connor said she foresees no problems in 1974. She said she hoped salary negotiations could be settled amicably with teachers when their two-year contract, one of the few in the province, comes up for renewal in the spring.

Mrs. O'Connor said she would like to see another, two-year contract negotiated, although teachers' federations have given no hint as preferring the one-year contract.

"A lot of time is wasted in negotiations if you don't have a two-year contract," said Mrs. O'Connor.

"We are fortunate in our good relations with our teachers," she added. "I think our negotiations this spring will be agreeable, with a little bit of persuasion on both sides."

Burner Starts Fire

Belleville firefighters were called on to put out a house fire at 40 Tice Crescent last night.

Fire Chief Leo Cuhaned reports that his department received a fire call at 10.17 p.m. yesterday and rushed two fire trucks to the Hillcrest area home.

The fire, which was confined to the attic area of the home, is believed to have started when an oil burner set a well on fire.

Ray Gendron, the man who rented the home and was living there with his wife, told the firefighters that he had had some trouble with the oil burner earlier in the day when he found it was "burning too fast." He shut the burner off and woke later in the night to find the wall had caught fire.

Damage estimates were not available at press time, but Chief Cuhaned said the damage was not extensive. The fire was put out using one-and a half-inch hose.

Alderman Smith Acting Mayor

City Alderman Jean Smith will be Belleville's acting mayor for the next eight to 10 days.

The appointment made Monday at city council, will see Ald. Smith acting in the mayoral chief magistrate during the temporary absence of Mayor Robin Jeffrey who has entered hospital for minor surgery.

Tender Lower Than Estimate

Despite the escalation of prices, tenders for construction and installation jobs don't always come in higher than estimates.

This was shown Monday when city council approved tenders for installation of 800 feet of chain link fence which came in at about two-thirds of the $7,000 estimated cost.

The successful tender submitted by Frost Steel and Wire Co. Ltd. was the lowest of three bids received, the other two being for $5,186, and $12,800.

The fencing will be installed on walkways between Gilbert and Lemoine Streets and between Crestview and Herchimer Ave.

With the cost estimate given as $7,000, Alderman Jos Cox observed that this was one time the city came out ahead.

Case Dismissed, Bullet in Skull

A Sidney Township man, Steven John Stachura, who was charged with dangerous use of a firearm following a Sept. 22 shooting incident in which a 16-year-old was shot in the eye, had the charge against him dismissed by Judge J.L. Clendenning after a lengthy preliminary hearing in provincial court here yesterday.

Stachura was charged with the offence on Sept. 23, after 15-year-old Sandra Bergurson was shot in the right eye with what police believed was a .22 calibre bullet.

The young girl had been listening to the radio with her brother and sisters in the living room of their parents' Glen Ross cottage around 11:15 a.m. on Sept. 22, when a bullet, fired through a veranda window, struck the youngster in the eye and imbedded itself in the base of her skull.

At about the same time the little girl was shot, Stachura and his cousin, Norman Anandi, were taking target practice from the back of their cottage on the opposite side of the river from the Bergurson cottage.

Court was told yesterday, that the two men had been firing a shotgun and a .22 caliber rifle at a log floating in the river in the vicinity of the Bergurson cottage.

The Crown was unable to produce evidence that would positively identify the projectile that wounded the young girl, however, since it had imbedded itself in her skull and could not be removed by doctors.

The youngster did not lose the sight of her eye, but she was in hospital for more than two months as a result of the wounding.

Stachura's lawyer, Thomas J. Lailly, asked for and received the dismissal of the charge on the grounds that the evidence presented by the Crown was purely circumstantial and that a jury, reasonably instructed in the law, reviewed to the case, would be unable to find sufficient evidence to convict his client.

Alarm Box

Belleville firefighters responded to the following calls for assistance during the 24-hour period ending at 8 a.m. Wednesday.

Tuesday, Jan. 8, 4:33 p.m., chimney fire, 23 Harriet, no damage.

Jan. 8, 7:04 p.m. Marsh Road construction site, caravan cover on a pile of plywood caught fire from a gas heater, no damage estimate available.

Jan. 8, 10:17 p.m. house fire at 40 Tice Crescent, oil burner set fire to an attic wall, no damage estimate available.

Hockey Gear Stolen

Belleville police are investigating the theft of $140 worth of hockey equipment from the home of a Charles Street home Monday.

Sirdhura's lawyer, Thomas J. Lailly, asked for and received the dismissal of the charge on the grounds that the evidence presented by the Crown was purely circumstantial and that a jury, reasonably instructed in the law, reviewed to the case, would be unable to find sufficient evidence to convict his client.

The garage was unlocked at the time of the theft.

Chairmen Appointed

Loyalist College has announced the chairmen of its two standing committees for 1974.

Douglas Walmsley is chairman of the building and finance committee and Reg Loder is chairman of the management committee.

Because the building program is now completed at Loyalist, the building committee will be concerned with finance.

Two governors have been appointed to sit in on administration and advisory committees at the college. They will listen and report to the board, but will have no voting privileges. They are James Clemmens and Myrtle Fraser.

G. A. Wisbeer was chosen vice-chairman and Wilf Wilkinson of Trenton is chairman.

More Room

The Old Swift Canadian plant on Station Street has been vacant for about 15 years now but before long something new will appear at the site. Circle TV, based at the Quinte Mall, finds that its business has expanded to the point that its present warehouse on Cannifton Road is just too small. So, with that in mind, Circle TV owner Jerry Di Rocco had to go looking for more room. He found it at the old chicken processing plant next to Swist-Dale Heney Fried Chicken. Here, Jerry examines the inside of the plant which should add 20,000 square feet of warehousing and service area to Circle TV when they start operating there about the first of next month.

Kings Catch Foes Napping

By GERRY SUTTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Coach Al Arbour said his New York Islanders played like "sleep-walkers."

He wasn't far off.

An extended nap in the first period cost them three goals—all within a 118-second span—enabling Los Angeles Kings to win 3-1 in one of two National Hockey League games Tuesday night.

"You gotta get a full 60 minutes," said Arbour, whose club remained seventh in the East Division with 27 points. "The other clubs won't let you turn it on and off whenever you want."

"Don't blame goalie Gerry Desjardins; it was the guys in front of him."

Desjardins stopped 29 shots, 10 in the first period and 11 in the third, while goalie Rogie Vachon of the Kings made 23 saves.

In the other game at Vancouver, Lou Angotti's 11th goal of the season at 14:15 of the second period led St. Louis Blues to a 3-1 triumph over the Canucks.

The victory tightened the Blues' third-place position in the West Division, giving them 42 points, three ahead of Atlanta Flames and five behind Chicago Black Hawks. Los Angeles is sixth with 32 points, one back of Minnesota North Stars.

Kings 3 Islanders 1

"We got three goals from three shifts and you can't ask for more than that," said coach Bob Pulford of the Kings. "We played well the whole game and those two minutes were not luck."

Butch Goring started the assault at 11:32 of the opening period when he skated down the middle on a breakaway to score his ninth goal with the Kings's man short. Juha Widing increased the lead to 2-0 when his shot went in off a New York forward at 12:28.

Frank St. Marseille completed the Kings' scoring when he took a pass from defenceman Sheldon Kannegieser and fired a 15-foot shot past Desjardins.

The Islanders got one back when Lorne Henning beat Vachon on a power play at 8:33 of the second period.

"It was a mixup between myself and Barry Long on the goal they got against us," Vachon said. "We looked at each other and didn't do anything about getting the puck away from them."

Blues 3 Canucks 1

The Blues and Canucks were tied 1-1 after the first period, with Glen Sather scoring his 10th goal for St. Louis and Richard Lemieux getting his third for Vancouver.

Angotti, who had 15 goals for Chicago Black Hawks last season, beat goalie Gerry Smith from 16 feet after taking a pass from Gary Sabourin.

Pierre Plante scored the final goal in an empty net with 38 seconds remaining and Smith on the bench for an extra attacker.

The Canucks outshot the Blues 37-25, but were frustrated on several occasions by goalie John Davidson, who made 16 saves in the first period.

Coach Bill McCreary said his Canucks "did all the playing, but they did all the scoring.

"We've been getting a lot of chances, but we just can't put the puck in the net. Davidson was good, but we missed some chances too."

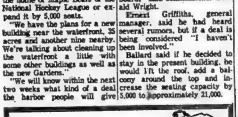
Since the line was put together 13 games ago, Unger has picked up nine goals and nine assists, Sather three goals and 14 assists, and Plante eight goals and 10 assists.

Gardens to Come Tumbling Down?

TORONTO (CP) — Harold Ballard, president of Maple Leaf Gardens, said Tuesday a decision would be made within two weeks whether to tear down the home of Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League or expand it by 5,000 seats.

"We have the plans for a new building near the waterfront, 35 acres and another nine nearby. We're talking about cleaning up the waterfront a little with some other buildings as well as the new Gardens."



"We will know within the next two weeks what kind of a deal the harbor people will give me," Ballard said.

Harbor Commission officials said there was no deal with Ballard for lakefront property.

"There is nothing before the board," said commissioner Donald Wright.

Ernest Griffiths, general manager, said he had heard several rumors, but if a deal is being considered "I haven't been involved."

Ballard said if he decided to stay in the present building, he would lift the roof, add a balcony around the top and increase the seating capacity by 5,000 to approximately 21,000.

Tip (A) in a new series on painting

When should you paint?
1. It is generally recommended that you should repaint interior walls and trim every 3 to 4 years.
2. Also, check from time to time for cracking, blistering or chipping. Keep in mind that these conditions are not always due to paint failure. They may indicate structural defects which should be remedied before repainting.
3. To ensure satisfactory service from your finish, clean surfaces well every 1 or 1½ years.
4. Always use Beaver brand finishes, and watch for more tips in the series on painting in the near future.

Firing Shots For New Loop

Doug Walsh
Sports Editor

—Unless the Fred Jones who is manager of the Belleville Rovers soccer club has a double in these parts, he's the same fellow who, some years ago, was the scourge of goalies guarding the net for teams matched against the Northern Electric squad.

It comes to mind that many of the soccer people so very active in the sport in this area now, never had the opportunity to see Jones play the game. They are hereby advised the guy could belt that ball.

As if his booming shot weren't enough to cause goalies problems, Jones had something else on his side. Unless memory is playing tricks, Fred's boomer was delivered with his left foot.

That means when Jones cut loose, the ball would go the goalie's left, more often than not. Don't you believe it.

If Jones had been a baseball pitcher, no doubt he'd have had a great screwball. That's the pitch a lefty breaks away from a right-hand batter.

Fred used the same technique on soccer goalies. And there aren't many players who master the art, with any degree of accuracy. It was just one of the little surprises he had in his bag of tricks.

Members of the fraternity of goalies could be pardoned if they shared one common prayer when Jones was in the goal area, and that was, "let him shoot to left or right but please, not at me."

Once, in the rain and mud during a league fixture on the pitch at Northern Electric, a goalie was foolhardy enough to stand his ground on a Jones blast from the penalty spot.

Unfortunately, the left-footer was a little off target that day and he drove the heavy, water-logged ball within reach of the goalie. The stop was made but it was one save that remained imprinted indelibly on the goalie's memory banks.....if not his hide.

All this was back in the days when the born in Canada players in the league outnumbered those who had emigrated from the Old Country and brought their soccer skills with them.

Now to the sport, the Canadians were long on try but many of them were very short on soccer experience. It was a frustrating time for men like Jones whose clever moves were more often than not wasted.

At any rate, Jones, and the others who occupied the same boat survived those somewhat hectic days. When they look back, these fellows must get a few chuckles. But then, sometimes it wasn't so funny.

Of course, things have changed. Soccer has caught on in public schools and at the secondary school level. Solid native-born players are being developed. They are able to make their presence felt when they graduate to the senior leagues.

Small wonder that the sport has progressed by leaps and bounds. Joined by players who learned their soccer in countries like Scotland, Italy, England Hungary, Holland, Germany, Czechoslovakia and others, the Canadians have taken their place in the sport.

The game has come a long way in the Quinte area over the past 30 years.

And Jones is still firing away. But now his efforts are on behalf of his Rovers and a proposed Eastern Ontario League (EOL).

Ontario Soccer Association representative Harry Pollard of Kingston is backing the proposal and under his guidance, the task of organizing the grouping has begun.

Meetings have been held with representatives from Oshawa, Ottawa, Kingston and Belleville teams. Peterborough soccer enthusiasts have also shown interest in the EOL.

Organizers hope to have eight teams ready for play in the 1974 season. That would mean more than one entry from the larger centres.

A constitution has been approved and it would appear the league will become a reality. Team representatives have scheduled their next meeting for Kingston, January 27.

In the meantime, Jones is interested in hearing from anyone in the area who is willing to participate in the project.

The EOL, we are reminded, is not a new idea by any means. It existed some years ago. So when the loop is set to operate, it will mark the return of what boosters describe as a "premier league".

If the league is blessed with half the drive Fred Jones had in his shot, it should be a winner from the start.

SLICES — Mary O'Neil of Belleville captured third place in the Molson's Ladies' International, one of the features of the annual Kawartha Cup competition for snowmobilers staged at Peterborough's Morrow Park on the weekend.

Cross Country Skiing is being promoted, according to word from the Batawa Ski Club.

Don Lloyd, spokesman for the club, reports that there will be a free ski outing this weekend. Gerry Jarcika will be supervising the cross country session beginning at 1.30 p.m., Saturday.

If enough persons are interested, cross country buffs hope to form an association. Apparently there is none in the area.

In case you missed it, Toronto Maple Leafs' rookie defenceman Ian Turnbull captured top honors and $1,000 in the second section of the Molson Cup competition for members of the Toronto club. Turnbull's point total, based on three-star selections, was 12.

Runnerup was another rookie blueliner, Borje Salming who had 10 points. His effort was good for $500.

Darryl Sittler was the first winner. The third section c... January 31.

Dukes Miss Chance

All eight teams saw action Monday night as the Belleville and District Dart League resumed its schedule following the Christmas break.

The ANAF Dukes had a chance to gain some ground on the first running Barflies, but that chance was shortlived as the leaders took a 7-4 decision, dropping the Dukes to fourth place.

The 418 Mosquitos, shorthanded for the fourth consecutive week, gave up three default points and five earned points as they bowed to the smoke-eaters, 8-3. The win gave the Smokies sole possession of second place, seven points off the pace set by the first place Barflies.

In other action, the fired up Yardmen took the first five singles and never looked back, thumpling the Elks 9-2, to move into third spot.

In a hard fought contest, the Foreigners, trailing 4-2 after the singles, rallied to nip a tough Gameshot team, 6-5.

Rollins Thumps Kingston

The Rollins' Construction peewee majors collected another win as OMHA Triple A play last night, defeating Kingston at the Memorial Arena 8-3.

Mark Crawford and Brad Miller both scord twice to lead the way, while Billy Rowe, Steve Murphy, Clarence Broekema, and Rick Cartwright each had one goal.

Kent Pierson, John Linesman and Steve Stewart each scored once for Kingston.

Red Wings' Luck The Wrong Kind

By THE CANADIN PRESS

Last-place Hamilton Red Wings were defeated Tuesday when a deflection off a Red Wing defenceman bounced into the Hamilton net, giving Sault Ste. Marie greyhounds a 3-1 win in an Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A game.

The goal was credited to Gary Farelli after a shot by Dennis Woods in the corner hit Farelli on the leg and bounced past Hamilton goalkeeper Greg Redquiest off defenceman Bob Mazza's leg.

Greyhounds' Jack Valiquette scored the only goal in the first period and Don Seidlbarr tied it for Hamilton in the second.

Hamilton outshot Sault Ste. Marie 46-26 and collected eight of the 19 penalties called.

In other action in the circuit Tuesday, Oshawa Generals defeated Kingston Canadians 4-2 and Toronto Marlboros downed London Knights 5-1.

GENERALS 4, CANADIANS 4

In Oshawa, the Generals ended a three-game losing streak for their 18th win as 42 games. Oshawa was aided by a four-goal outburst in the second period.

Bill Lochead and Dave Moffat led Oshawa with two goals each and Ken Morden and Joe Greenlees added the others.

Marlboros 3 Knights 1

In London, Toronto's Bruce Boudreau scored two second-period goals to give the Marlboros the win over London Knights before a crowd of 2,375.

Boudreau deflected a shot from the point at 3:16 of the second period to tie the score 1-1, then made it 2-1 at 14:57 with a slap shot.

In Thursday's action, Kitchener Rangers host the Peterborough Petes, St. Catharines Black Hawks go to Sudbury against the Wolves and Hamilton visits London.

Russians Outlast Hornets

TORONTO (CP) — The Soviet Union overcame an early two-goal deficit to defeat Cambridge Hornets 9-7 in an international exhibition hockey game Tuesday.

A crowd of 3,800 saw the Hornets of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series take a 1-0 lead at the 18-second mark on a goal by Ron Smith. Mike Zettal made it 2-0 55 seconds later.

However, Wings of the Soviet, who finished first in an recent international round-robin tournament with a 4-1 record, took a 4-3 lead into the second 20 minutes.

The Wings scored three consecutive goals in the second period to lead 7-3, but Cambridge came back with two goals 42 seconds apart late in the period.

Sergei Kapustin led the Russians with three goals with Victor Shalimov adding a pair. Sergei Kotov, Igor Lapin, Vladimir Repnyjov and Evgeni Khbarsh got the others.

Corby Adams, on loan from Barrie Flyers of the Senior A series, added two goals for Cambridge, which finished second in the six-team tournament.

Henry Monteith, on loan from Orillia Terriers, Pete Brennan and Bruce Reier each scored once fo Cambridge.

Gerry Cheevers and Cam Newton Shine
First Scoreless Tie Logged in WHA

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Houston Aeros can be frustrating on their home ice.

And goalie Gerry Cheevers can be a nuisance no matter where he's playing.

The Aeros increased their record to 13 wins and two ties in 17 games at home with a 6-2 triumph over Edmonton Oilers with the help of three power-play goals, in a World Hockey Association game Tuesday night.

Cheevers picked up his fourth shutout of the season—best in the WHA—as he blocked 30 shots, 13 in the second period and 14 in the third, in holding Chicago Cougars to a 0-0 draw.

It was the first scoreless tie in the WHA's brief history.

In other games, Toronto Toros nipped New England Whalers 3-2 and Los Angeles Sharks defeated Winnipeg Jets 6-1.

The second-place Toros now have 45 points, two less than the leading Whalers in the East Division. Cleveland is third with 42 points, two more than Quebec Nordiques and six ahead of the Cougars. New Jersey Knights are last with 36 points.

The Aeros increased their lead in the West Division to four points over the Oilers. Minnesota Fighting Saints are third with 41 points, followed by Winnipeg with 40, Vancouver Blazers 32 and Los Angeles 30.

Aeros 6 Oilers 2

Murray Hall's 18th and 17th goals of the season led the Aeros to their 31st victory in 38 games. Both goals came on power plays, at 12:44 and 13:30 of the first period, to give the Aeros a 2-1 lead.

Andre Hinse, his 12th on a power play, and Mark Howe, his 18th, scored earlier goals for the Aeros before 6,847 fans. Veteran Gordie Howe set up his son's goal and assisted on both of Hall's to give him 9 points this season, including 27 assists.

Frank Hughes completed the scoring with his 26th goal at 11:44 of a wild third period. Twelve players received penalties for their part in a brawl at 17:11 of the final period in which 63 minutes in penalties were handed out.

After the fight, five Edmonton players each was assessed a major and another, goalie Christ Worthy, got a minor. Six Houston players got a total of three minors, four majors and a 10-minute misconduct.

There were 101 minutes in penalties in the game, with 56 minutes going to Houston.

Crusaders 0 Cougars 0

The Crusaders had their best chance to score late in the third period when the puck shot by Gerry Pinder slipped over goalie Cam Newton's shoulder, dropped to the ice and trickled towards the goal. However, Chicago defenceman Darryl Maggs knocked the puck away before it crossed the line.

Attendance was 3,356 in Chicago.

Toros 3 Whalers 2

The Toros snapped a 1-1 tie in the third period when Steve King scored his eighth goal at the 22-second mark and Brit Selby followed with an insurance marker 27 seconds later.

Toronto fired 27 shots at goalie Bruce Landon, who made 18 saves in the first period as the Whalers took a 2-0 lead. Gilles Gratton, in goal for Toronto, made 28 saves.

"I had to play because I was the last injured of the injured," said Landon. "I didn't know until just before game time that I would be in the net."

New England's No. 1 netminder, Al Smith, didn't dress because of a leg injury.

Gratton said the Whalers only played a fair game.

"We dominated the first period, even though they scored twice. We were not anxious to score in the first period."

Bob Leduc put the other Toronto goal, while Mike Byers and Tom Williams scored for New England before 4,766 fans in Boston.

Los Angeles 4 Winnipeg 1

The Sharks spotted the Jets a 1-0 lead when Jean-Guy Gratton scored his eighth goal at 8:01 of the second period.

However, Ron Ward's 12th goal a few minutes later and Gary Veneruzzo's 19th at 19:39 gave the Sharks a 2-1 margin entering the final period.

Tom Bersteins and Jean-Paul Leblanc scored in the third period to give the Sharks their 15th win before 4,117 home town fans.

Bobrov Has His Way, Team Goes on to Win

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Boris Mikhailov scored two goals in the second period after the Russian National Hockey team had threatened to leave the ice, leading his team to an 8-3 victory Tuesday night over New Haven of the American Hockey League.

The game nearly ended prematurely at 4:22 of the second period when Russian Coach Vesevold Bobrov disputed a call by referee Terry Pierce and threatened to keep his team off the ice if the call wasn't waived. Bobrov had called the Soviet goals for pinning the puck against the boards with his stick.

Bobrov claimed "under international rules, which we have been playing with for 20 years or so, the goalkeeper is allowed to pin the puck that way."

After a 20-minute delay, AHL President Jack Butterfield waived the penalty, saying, "I had no choice. They threatened to pick up and go home."

Russia led 2-1 at the end of the first period, on goals by Vladimir Shadrin and Valery Kharlamov. Dave Reid scored for the New Haven goal.

In the second period, New Haven's Rod Norrish tied the score. Russia then scored three goals in 6% minutes with the first two by Mikhailov and the other by Alexander Maltsev. New Haven player-coach Bill Dineen scored 15 seconds before the end of the second period, which ended 5-3 in favor of the Russians.

The Soviets got three more goals in the final period with Kahrlamov, Aleksandr Gusev and Maltsev connected. Jerry Holland and Scott McPhail scored for New Haven.

Lupenette Produces For Cornwall Royals

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Juniors got off to a good start in their Quebec Major Junior A Hockey League game Tuesday night in Trois-Rivieres, almost too good.

The Juniors skated to a 5-0 lead in the first period and then let up against the homesick Draveurs, who scored four consecutive goals. But Marc Tremblay provided Montreal with an insurance goal at 18:01 of the third period to give them a 5-4 win over the Draveurs in one of three games.

In other action, Cornwall Royals outlasted Quebec Remparts 8-6 and Sherbrooke Beavers clipped Shawinigan Dynamos 7-5.

Gary MacGregor's second goal of the game with four minutes left in the third period snapped a 5-5 tie and Cornwall went on to its win over Quebec. Danny Lupinette with two, Bob Murray, Mike Conway, Bob Geoffrion and John Nazar were the other Cornwall goal scorers.

Fernand Leblanc with two, Jere Gillis, Robert Desormeaux, Michel Brisebois, Denis Martel and Richard Dubreuil scored for Sherbrooke in its win over the Dynamos.

Carl Gagnon, Yves Bernier, Jean Bernier, Gaby Jourdain and Marcel Lalonde were Shawinigan's marksmen.

Grant's Outburst Riles Rozelle

HOUSTON (AP) — The Super Bowl football battle still is four days away, but the National Football League already has a nice little scuffle in full swing—and the main combatants don't even wear uniforms.

On one side is Bud Grant, coach of Minnesota Vikings, the National Conference's entry in the main bout Sunday.

On the other side stands Pete Rozelle, league commissioner and defender of the American Conference Champion crown.

Rozelle and the rest of the NFL hierarchy say Delmar is more than adequate for the Vikings' needs. Grant doesn't.

Monday, Grant called the facilities "shabby" and unworthy of a "junior high school team."

Rozelle didn't take it kindly to that. At least, that's what Grant presumed on Tuesday when he surprised a news conference with the fact that he'd been reprimanded for his comments and advised that more of the same might result in a fine.

"The commissioner took dim view of my observations," Grant said.

I'd like to suggest that further comments should be tempered?

"I took it as a threat," Grant replied.

League bylaws prohibit a coach or player from criticizing another team or the league.

Jim Kensil, Rozelle's chief aide, said Grant's comments conflicted with the NFL constitution.

"We were disappointed to hear about it publicly, not from the organization," said Kensil. "The first thing we consider is the field, the second the training room and the third the dressing room."

Grant was satisfied with the field, but called the rest of the accommodations poor, noting there were no lockers and only one coaches' table. And its locatin didn't help matters.

"We have to bus 20 minutes to and from the field while the Dolphins using the Houston Oilers' facilities can hold a squad meeting in their hotel and walk across the street to practice. It gives Miami an advantage."

Don Shula, who is taking his Dolphins into their third straight Super Bowl, said "I think this has given the Vikings a competitive edge.

"They're angry. We're in trouble unless we can get the league to do something to get us out of, too."

Meanwhile, the teams continued practising.

For the Dolphins, this meant loosening up and "getting our thoughts back on the game," Shula said.

"We got ready for our first Super Bowl too quick," he said, referring to Miami's loss to Dallas, "last year (when the Dolphins beat Washington) we changed and finalized in the last week. We're following that same schedule."

Shula said that, as of now, every member of the Dolphins will be available Sunday except for reserve running back and kick-return specialist Charlie Davis, who separated a shoulder in the AFC championship game against Oakland.

It Was Wise Choice

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rochester Americans appar-ently made a wisedraft choice last year when they selected Murray Kuntz from Cincinnati Swords.

Kuntz scored a pair of goals Tuesday to pace the Amerks to a 3-1 victory against his former team-mates. Don Brennan scored the only goal for the Swords, Calder Cup defending champions.

Boston Braves had something in common with the Swords as they, too, suffered their fourth consecutive defeat—3-1 at the hands of Baltimore Clippers.

The victory for Rochester lifted the Americans into third place in the North Division of the league, two points ahead of Nova Scotia Voyageurs.

MEMO FROM HELEN GAGEN

STAPLES GROW OLD, TOO

Every housewife knows the perishability of meats, fish, poultry, fresh fruits and vegetables. But it's important to realize that items in staple use have their freshness too, if kept over long or under wrong conditions.

Notable among staples that need careful storage and reasonably quick replacement are whole-grain cereals, whole-grain flours and nuts. These are susceptible to a kind of spoilage that can spread to flour, pulse and kernel mixes, other cereals, even dried fruits and boiled sweets.

For safe storage, and to prevent passage of insects from one item to another, keep grains, flours, nuts, dried fruits and cereals in tightly closed containers. Glass jars are ideal for this purpose. Plastic or metal canisters are also good. Even the paper packages from the store replace in cans or packs for which you have fit available space in jars or canisters.

Under good conditions, whole-wheat flour keeps about six months, rolled oats about a few weeks or months. For practical purposes, you can count on canned cereal products such as corn starch to keep indefinitely, provided they are stored in a cool, dry place.

Charles Finley Open to Bids For Oakland A's

CHICAGO (AP) — The Tribune says Charles Finley has put Oakland Athletics up for sale.

The newspaper says the price for the American League baseball team is $15 million.

Finley told the Tribune in an interview that he finally has acquiesced to the urgings of his doctors.

"My doctor has told me to get out of all sports for physical reasons," Finley said.

He said he is open to bids from "responsible parties" to purchase the club, which he moved to Oakland from Kansas City in 1968. The team has given him two World Series championships in a row.

Finley told the Tribune he also plans to sell his hockey team, California Golden Seals of the National Hockey League, and his basketball team, Memphis Tams of the American Basketball Association. He declined to put a price on either team.

He said the NHL is "making arrangements" to purchase his Seals.

Finley said he has no particular persons in mind who might buy the Athletics, but that the Marjorie Everett-Vern Underwood syndicate which is currently seeking to buy San Diego Padres, is interested.

Despite Finley's success with the Oakland team, it has caused him some headaches. The latest was the tiff with his manager, Dick Williams, who wanted to move to New York Yankees even though his contract with Finley still had two years to run.

Williams was denied release from his contract, and the Tribune said he apparently has decided to sit out the next two season.

CFL Rule Changes Up for Ratification

SAN FRANCISCO (CP) — The field goal, much maligned in some quarters, will retain its status quo, the rules committee of the Canadian Football League decided Tuesday.

There was considerable discussion about lowering the value of the field goal to two points and to giving the opponent the ball at the line of scrimmage when a field goal is unsuccessful, but both proposals were rejected.

A motion to adopt a two-point conversion of a touchdown also was defeated at the meeting.

Rule changes adopted by the committee, which now will go before the league executive committee for ratification at its meeting next month, included:

—On change of possession—all instances—line-in begins with the snap of the ball. Previously, the referee called time-in with a signal.

—The illegal use of a designated import will call for a 15-yard penalty against the offending team and the CFL commissioner may take further disciplinary action against the team.

—When a safety touch is scored, the team giving up the two points must kick from its 35-yard line. This rule previously applied only in the last three minutes of each half.

—No yards—previously, an offender often escaped a penalty because the referee used discretion on players attempting to get out of the way and on others who did not take part in the play. Now, all players within the five-yard area will be penalized.

—Separate penalties were set up for face-masking—five yards if the referee feels the offence was unintentional and 15 yards if ruled as unnecessary roughness.

—Teams now will be able to place as many men as they want on the line of scrimmage—as long as the receivers wear appropriate numbers and line up outside the interior linemen.

—Under the objectionable conduct clause, a player throwing the ball at an opponent will receive a 10-yard penalty.

—On bump-and-run plays the linebackers and defensive halfbacks no longer will be permitted to take runs at receivers going downfield. They will be able to bump the receiver only if he comes at a defensive player.

A Turn of Events That Wasn't Expected

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

New York Knicks came to Chicago Tuesday night prepared for anything but an easy 126-80 victory over the Bulls in a National Basketball Association game.

The Bulls had beaten New York 85-69 and 115-97 in two previous meetings.

In other NBA games, Buffalo Braves beat Atlanta Hawks 100-96, Capital Bullets topped Los Angeles Lakers 94-92, Golden State Warriors defeated Houston Rockets 106-92, and Portland Trail Blazers topped Kansas City-Omaha Kings 129-110.

In the only American Basketball Association game, New York Nets beat Virginia Squires 109-101.

"We ran more tonight, and we did not force our shots," said Knicks' forward Dave DeBusschere, who led all scorers with 31 points.

About the Bulls' low scoring, DeBusschere said: "Our defence was geared to shut off all their inside stuff. We had three forwards, Chet Walker and Bob Love, pretty well under control."

Walker scored 16 points, Love 18.

Braves 100 Hawks 96

Bullets 94 Lakers 92

Phil Chenier scored 31 points in just more than two minutes to spark a final-period rally by Capital. He scored 27 points to lead Capital, while Gail Goodrich had 27 for Los Angeles.

Warriors 106 Rockets 92

The Warriors outscored Houston 9-2 in the final four minutes to seal their victory. Forwards Rick Barry and Cazzie Russell scored 22 and 20 points, respectively, to pace the Warriors. Calvin Murphy of Houston led all scorers with 33.

Trail Blazers 129 Kings 110

Geoff Petrie and Sidney Wicks scored nine points in the third period when the Blazers took a 101-82 lead. Petrie and Wicks finished with 27 points each. John Block led the Kings with 18 points.

Nets 109 Squires 101

The Nets pulled into a tie with Carolina for first place in the ABA East by beating the Squires, clinching the game with a 10-point first five minutes of the final quarter. Rick Barry scored 28 points for New York.

CARPENTIER NOW 80

PARIS (AP) — Georges Carpentier, boxing's Orchid Man of about 50 years ago, celebrated his 80th birthday Tuesday night with some shadow boxing and a champagne toast on a television program in his honor. Carpentier started fighting at the age of 14 as a flyweight and moved up through every class, right on to the heavyweight division where he fought Jack Dempsey in a world title fight in 1921 being stopped in four rounds at Jersey City, N.J.

Nicholson Will Present Mystery

Nine members of the Nicholson Catholic College Drama Club are rehearsing this season's production behind the closed and curtained doors of St. Michael's Academy auditorium.

The play, Emily Williams' "A Murder Has Been Arranged," advertised locally as "The Theatre", is in the final weeks of rehearsals and no one wants the who-done-it to be known.

The three-act mystery which opens Thursday, Jan. 24 and continues Jan. 25-26 at 8 p.m., can be raised for the audience if too much of its plot is revealed, says director Sister Mary Fleurelle.

Williams' play first performed in London, England, is the latest in a long list of fine plays that have enjoyed long runs in the best theatres of England and America, says the director.

The $1.50 tickets may be obtained at Ed Thomas' Tobacco Shop, O'Connor's Jewel Box, the Door in the Wall, and at the door the nights of the performance.

BANCROFT, Ont. (CP) — Advertising verse weather conditions have been hampering completion of Global Television's transmitting tower in this Channel 2 area and might delay the start of programming by more than two weeks.

While some Global officials had predicted programming would start in the area by next Sunday, workers say Tuesday they have been hampered so much by bad weather they might not be able to complete the project until the last week in January.

Temperatures at the tower site, about 40 miles east of here, ranged from 10 to 20 degrees below zero Tuesday. Workers said there have been occasions when they had to abandon the job for two or three days because of the weather.

Channel 3 serves an area from Pembroke through the Ottawa Valley to Brockville, Kingston, Picton, Belleville, Peterborough and Haliburton.

Global, Canada's third English-language TV network, launched its service to a large section of southern Ontario last Sunday.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Johnny (Tarzan) Weissmuller, who swam and swung his way to fame, plans to donate all his swimming memorabilia to retarded children, in the United States.

Confined to hospital here with a broken hip and a serious cardiac condition, Weissmuller's wife Beverly reported low spirits he got a letter from the children of a school for the retarded in Maine.

Ed Gallagher, son-in-law of the man who played Tarzan in the movies, said the letter asking Weissmuller to please send another lock of hair and sketch of his hands "really gave him something to hold onto and he decided to go the kids one better."

Gallagher outlined a plan to send the trophies on a touring basis to retarded children's homes.

He said if that doesn't prove feasible, Weissmuller will give the collection to the Joseph P. Kennedy Junior Foundation for Retarded Children in Washington.

Weissmuller, now 69, retired from swimming at the age of 27 after setting 67 world records and winning five Olympic gold medals. He played Tarzan in 12 movies.

Doctors report he's improving, but they say they don't know when he'll be released from the hospital.

MOSCOW (AP) — Pianist Lev Oborin, for many years a professor at the Moscow Conservatory, has died at 68 after a severe illness, the newspaper Vechernaya Moskva reports Tuesday.

Oborin, who gave many concerts in the West, was the first to perform major works of Soviet composers such as Aram Khachaturyan and Sergei Prokofiev.

ROME (AP) — A Roman Catholic priest blessed the theme opera house with holy water Tuesday in a sign of atonement for mounting Jesus Christ Superstar.

Rev. Luigi Severini was joined in his prayers in front of the opera house by about 40 followers, who regarded the film as blasphemous.

SAN FRANCISCO (Reuter) — Entertainer Bing Crosby's doctor said Tuesday he is "very concerned" about the medical condition of the 69-year-old singer and actor, who was admitted to hospital New Year's Day with pleurisy.

Dr. Stanley Harding refused to make a diagnosis, however, saying the extent of tests would not be known for two days.

HOLLYWOOD (Reuter) — The horror film The Exorcist received seven nominations Tuesday for the Hollywood Foreign Press Association's Golden Globe awards with Jesus Christ Superstar getting six.

The Exorcist won nominations for best drama, actress Ellen Burstyn, supporting actress Linda Blair—who was also nominated for most promising newcomer—director William Friedkin, screen writer William Blatty and supporting actor Max von Sydow.

The awards ceremonies will be held here Jan. 26.

Jesus Christ Superstar received nominations for its three leads—Teddy Neely as Jesus Christ, Carl Anderson as Judas and Yvonne Elliman as Mary Magdalene.

Runners-up in the nominations were Cinderella Liberty with five, Paper Moon with four and A Touch of Class with four.

TORONTO (CP) — The Bells of Hell, Mordechai Richler's play about a Jewish businessman's life in Montreal, was reinstated by the CBC Tuesday and scheduled for the national television network at 9 p.m. EST Jan. 24.

The show, originally had been scheduled to be broadcast Jan. 31, but was cancelled by CBC entertainment chief Thom Benson.

Mr. Benson decided the play, which includes criticism of the Jewish business community might offend some Jewish viewers.

But E. S. Hallman, vice-president in charge of the English language section of the CBC, announced Tuesday that that decision has been reversed.

"While I agree that there will be sections of our viewing public which will be disturbed by the play, I believe it falls within the range of acceptable presentations in an anthology series of this kind."

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Thursday, Jan. 10

Aries (March 21-April 19) Your judgment will be a bit too optimistic early in the day. You'll later have an opportunity to right what you've done wrong.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Help you need with a problem won't come from one upon whom you're relying. It will be solved through an unusual channel.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) Your first thoughts will not be your best today. Think things through, then you will come up with the answers.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) Limit spending today to basic domestic needs. You're going to be tempted to splurge. If you do, you'll later see you didn't shop wisely.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) You're not your usual busy-dealing self today. You will gain little or from agreements you make at this time.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You'll be offered something you really don't need. You'll find yourself saddled with an obligation you'd have been better off without.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You may have to change your plans quickly regarding something you've been planning on socially. The other party won't be available.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Things will not start off today as you hoped. You'll feel the breaks are against you. Don't despair; something unexpected will right matters.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Before you reveal your ideas, set the other guy do the talking. Someone he'll say will trigger fresh thoughts and a better method.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Money is not the only coin of the realm. Today you would be wise to bargain or barter without laying out cold, hard cash.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your mate or partner's suggestions can prove helpful. At least extend the courtesy of hearing them out before cutting them off.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) You're very creative today. Don't be afraid to try your hand at a new hobby or using a fresh approach to mundane tasks.

To Your Good Health

Aspirin Can Prove Harmful to Some

By G. C. THOFTESON, MD.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Why, when a doctor tells you to take aspirin and go to bed, does he always say "a couple of aspirin?"—N.N.

Since I'm guilty too—if guilt it be—I'll give you the best answer I can.

Tell a patient to take one aspirin tablet, and he thinks you aren't taking his pains, troubles or worries with sufficient concern. Tell him to "take aspirin" and a few patients will take too much. So I say "a couple."

But to go into some further detail, read a letter that came the same time your question arrived:

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Are purines that have become green from too much light poisonet or is it only the sprouts. The taste is disgreeable but they are fren served to us.—J.S.J.

Yes, the green portion has an ingredient that can make you quite ill if you get too much. It should be cut off and thrown away. The remaining white portion of the potato is safe.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My father-in-law, an old-timer of 88, has been telling me for several years that a doctor in Texas replaced a man's stomach with a plastic stomach years ago and that he lived in good health for many years.

I don't believe this, for if it were so, thousands of such operations would be performed for ulcerated stomachs. I tell him this story is similar to the tall myth about the hoop snake taking its tail in its mouth and rolling toward its victim, but he insists it was done.

Do you know or have you heard of anything like this?—L.P.D.

No. Transplanted organs from one species to another simply will not work—it's difficult enough as things are to transplant even human organs.

But I doubt if you'll change your father-in-law's mind, as he evidently is "set" on this yarn. Just say, "uuh-huh" and let it go.

Note to Mrs. J.O.E.: Yes, a "CVA" is another name for a stroke—the initials mean "cerebral vascular accident," meaning a clot or hemorrhage affecting circulation in the brain. And yes, such a person does have cares and sympathy from the family, not ridicule.

Negative double gets tricky

By Oswald and James Jacoby

The fact that we are going to show negative doubles by the partner of the opening bidder in this column, does not mean that we recommend the bid strongly.

You can get on well without it. Unless you and your partner understand just what you are doing, it can get you in real trouble.

If you do want to experiment with it, start by using it only against one heart and one spade overcalls of a minor-suit opening.

It should show at least seven high-card points (possibly just six) and guarantee four cards in the other major.

Obviously, the partner of the man making this double is expected to bid the other major if he holds four cards there and must bear in mind that his hand shows no extra values.

The South hand is a rock-bottom minimum if you care to call it that, but he has no problem after the negative double. He bids two hearts. North raises to three and South passes.

Three hearts isn't the greatest contract ever, but it makes since all South has to lose are two spades and two diamonds. He will even make an overtrick if the defence doesn't cash their opening trick away.

East-West will make a spade if allowed to play it, or three diamonds if they can find that suk, but the negative double has taken them out of the action.

B.C. Wary Despite Prosperity

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia heads into 1974 with an air of wariness pervading her business community despite an economy flushed by a continuing world demand for her abundant resources.

The wariness arises in part from concern about the worldwide energy crisis. With her resource-based economy dependent on export markets, the province would be hard hit should the crisis start a major recession in the United States, Japan and other key markets.

An even greater factor is uncertainty over the future intentions of the New Democratic Party administration of Premier Dave Barrett which in less than 18 months in office already has moved a long way towards changing the social and economic face of B.C.

In 1973, the provincial government reached agreement with federal authorities for a joint $245-million rail and port expansion program in northern B.C. that the NDP estimates will create 25,000 jobs within 10 years. It also moved to control the sale of all oil and natural gas produced in the province, set up a Crown corporation that, starting next March, will take over from private companies all automobile insurance sold in the province and moved into the world of competitive business itself through the acquisition of pulp-mill and lumber operations in three areas and a chicken farm in the Fraser Valley.

Firm evidence of wariness abounds.

Although one B.C.-based company after another piled up record profits in 1973, they are showing little readiness to embark on major capital expenditures. This is particularly true for the forest industry, which accounts for about 50 cents out of every $1 generated in the province, despite a continuing strong market for newsprint and other forest products.

During a year in which the gross provincial product ran about 14 per cent higher in dollar value than the year before, trading volume on the Vancouver Stock Exchange fell off sharply. The exchange estimates that it will end 1973 with a volume of 563 million shares, worth about $400 million, compared with a 1972 total of 900,052,922 shares worth $784,102,576.

And at a time of record high metal prices, the number of mining claims staked in the first 10 months of 1973 skidded to 27,714, a drop of 56 per cent from the 62,961 staked in the comparable period a year earlier. Spokesmen for the mining industry say the low level of exploration is mainly attributable to apprehension over expected government mining tax legislation.

The total value of construction in the province this year is expected to reach about $2.5 billion, up from $2.3 billion the year before, but the increase is mainly related to price increases rather than real growth.

An added cause of wariness in company board rooms is that 1974 will be a heavy year for contract negotiations between employers and employees as current contracts run out in a variety of industries, including forestry and construction. The outlook is for tough bargaining sessions and at least scattered work stoppages.

While private investment may fall or, at best, remain level in 1974, government outlays will probably increase. The provincial government now is getting started on its regional development programs and is expected to announce shortly new agreements with the federal government to provide regional incentive aid for industry, commuter transportation and social improvements.

Horsemeat Store Closes

FRANKLIN, N.H. (AP) — The state's first and only horsemeat market has closed after 18 weeks following a flurry of initial business that "just petered out."

Say-On Meats opened on Sept. 28 and "sold more than 2,000 pounds of horsemeat in four days," said David Miller, former owner of the market.

Miller attributed part of the slackening of business to the market's out-of-the-way location in the state's smallest city, population 7,400.

"People are just not conditioned to eating horsemeat," he said. "With the price of beef and other meats dropping, they probably won't change for a while."

Worst Year Living Costs Rise

OTTAWA (CP) — Higher fuel costs were a major factor in pushing up living costs in December to round out 1973 inflation as the worst in 22 years, Statistics Canada reported today.

The only bright note in last month's six-tenths of one per cent rise in consumer prices was that grocery price rises halted after a sharp year-long climb.

But food costs were up 17 per cent for the year, causing the largest part of 1973's over-all living costs' rise of 8.1 per cent, the report showed.

In December, heating oil, gasoline and motor oil prices rose sharply in Eastern Canada because of steep price increases of imported crude oil. These contributed to increases of eight-tenths of one per cent each in housing and transportation costs.

The over-all price rises in December pushed the government's consumer price index to 158.4 on its 1961 base of 100. The index was 155.5 in November.

The figures mean it took $158.40 per last month to pay for typical family living costs including food, housing, transportation, clothing, health and personal care, recreation and education, tobacco and alcohol. That was 90 cents a week more than the month before, $13.10 more than a year earlier and $56.40 per week more than a dozen years ago.

Kuwait Mines Wells In Case U.S. Attacks

KUWAIT (AP) — "We have wired our oilfields with a mine belt that would demolish them all at a moment's notice if the United States attempts a military invasion," Foreign Minister Sabah el Ahmed of Kuwait was quoted as saying today.

The threat, made in an interview published by the Kuwait newspaper Al Rai Al Aam, was an answer to a statement by U.S. Defence Secretary James Schlesinger earlier this week.

Schlesinger said the Arab states risk increased U.S. public demand for military intervention if they carry their oil embargo too far, but added that he did not believe it would come to that.

"I would like to caution the United States against such an irresponsible action, the consequences of which would definitely not serve the interests of its inhitator," el Ahmed was quoted.

"Our oilfields will all be blown up at the first sign of aggression," he said.

Kuwait's pre-embargo production level was three million barrels a day, of which more than 90 per cent is handled by the Kuwait Oil Co. The company is jointly owned by British Petroleum and Gulf Oil.

On Tuesday, Saudi Arabia, told President Nixon that its oilfields would be blown up in case of U.S. military intervention. Algeria threatened similar moves last November.

Prices Outstrip Ability to Pay

Welfare Council Finds Housing Crisis Looming

TORONTO (CP) — Increased shelter allowances, rent controls and rollbacks, land-banking plans and alternative forms of housing are proposed in an Ontario Welfare Council assessment of Ontario's housing problems.

In a report to the provincial government, the council says housing in Ontario is showing symptoms of a crisis because rising prices are outstripping the ability of families to pay for shelter.

The report, the first over-all review of housing in the province, was presented to the government before Christmas and made public today.

It says the province is not out of line in supplying housing units because of a major shift to apartment construction, but house prices in urban areas have been driven beyond the reach of many incomes by land shortages and rising construction costs.

Governments "have been the prime mover in creating shortages," the report says.

"In this atmosphere, land profits can be astronomical and this opportunity, and the necessity to stabilize their own economic environment, have led many of the largest firms in the industry to acquire large tracts of land."

This has led to a paucity of land for housing, resulting in rapidly-escalating home prices, especially in urban areas.

Toronto, Ottawa and Hamilton are now reputed to have the most expensive house prices of any major city on this continent," the report says.

The increases have surpassed gains in incomes. Construction materials and wages have escalated as well as taxes. Residential mortgage rates in the last few years are over nine per cent compared with six per cent in the early 1960s.

Added to these changes is a massive expansion in the rental sector, particularly in the form of high-rise developments.

Even though rental levels have not increased at anywhere near the rate that house prices have, the evidence clearly shows that a large number of people are spending a great proportion of their income on shelter," the report says.

"The rapid expansion of the subsidized rental housing stock does not seem to have made anything like adequate inroads on this problem."

The report attacks the problem in the financing, social planning and production sectors, in about 70 recommendations.

Its prime recommendation in the finance field is that public investment and subsidies should be primarily directed at those with the greatest need. Subsidies for rental units should come before those for house ownership.

"There is still ever-present danger that large sums will end up helping middle-income families," the report says.

Housing programs should no longer be used as major national economic management tools, the report says. Funding commitments for housing should be extended from the current year-to-year basis to foster better planning.

Today's Chuckle

Toronto's Problem Is Worst

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's housing needs will be magnified in Toronto which will face "severe growth pressures in the last part of this century," the Ontario Welfare Council says in its assessment of the province's housing needs.

In its report made public today, the council says 785,000 dwellings or 75 per cent of all housing units needed in the province to 1981 will be required in the Toronto area.

The Niagara area which includes Hamilton and Burlington, also will experience rapid growth and the study forecasts that 10 per cent of the province's total housing needs will be required in that region.

The same forecast prevails for eastern Ontario which includes Ottawa, Kingston, Cornwall and Brockville.

Oil Imports Fall

WASHINGTON (AP) — Imports of crude oil to the United States last week were 1.8 million barrels a day lower than the level around the time the Arabs cut embargo began, for the week ending Jan. 4, the imports totalled 2.8 million barrels a day, said statistics issued Wednesday by the American Petroleum Institute, an oil-industry trade organization.

Pickering Plans Pared

Housing Minister Robert Welch told a news conference the government had reduced its land acquisition plans in the township northeast of Metro Toronto by almost one-third.

H. J. McFARLAND

Picton's Mayor Is Dead

TORONTO — Harvey J. McFarland, long-time mayor of Picton, construction tycoon and a dominant Quinte community personality, is dead.

He is believed to been stricken with a seizure in his hotel room here, where he had arrived Wednesday to attend a business meeting today.

The news of his sudden death, learned late this morning, stunned his adopted hometown, where he had been mayor for a record term of service, a years-long key figure in Prince Edward County expansion and a community benefactor.

Just three days ago he conducted town council's 1974 inaugural meeting. In what was his last speech he spoke optimistically of the year's potential for progress in the area, where he started the enterprise which launched his community and business career — the big H.J. McFarland Construction Co. Ltd.

A company spokesman said Mayor McFarland was scheduled to attend a meeting of Lake Ontario Cement Co. — the town's biggest industry of which he was a director — when he was stricken.

Funeral arrangements were not immediately known, pending notification of all member of the McFarland family.

More Will Rent

TORONTO (CP) — More and more Ontario residents will rent their homes rather than own them because of higher housing costs, the Ontario Welfare Council says in a report to the provincial government.

In Toronto, that trend has been established as the 1971 census disclosed that for the first time tenants outnumbered homeowners as 38.4 per cent of dwellings were owner occupied and 41.8 per cent were occupied by their owners.

Ottawa appears to be following this trend more closely than other centres, the study made public today, but the proportion of renters has increased across the province.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: A disturbance moving across southern Ontario today is expected to bring two to four inches of snow in areas south of Georgian Bay, with lesser amounts in regions farther north. A second disturbance will bring more snow Friday.

Housing Proposals

TORONTO (CP) — Following are highlights of the Ontario Welfare Council's study of housing in Ontario:

The provincial government should increase shelter allowance portion of its social assistance programs.

Municipalities should be given powers to make projects justify rent increases and where they cannot the increases should be partially or totally rolled back.

Massive land-assembly programs are needed to combat the high costs of land for housing units.

Subsidized rental housing has not kept up with the demand.

Public investment and subsidies should be directed primarily at the low-income groups.

A thorough review of the Landlord and Tenant Act is needed to provide more security for renters.

There is a need for stricter controls on the quality of housing.

Alternate forms of housing should be considered because of the high cost of single-family detached homes in large urban areas.

Planners should attempt to divert development from high-density areas.

Toronto, followed by eastern Ontario and the Niagara region, will be hardest-hit by housing demands for the rest of this century.

The trend to apartments and other forms of multiple-dwelling developments is unlikely to be reversed, around.

The Ontario Housing Corp. must improve its relationships with local councils, citizen and tenant groups.

Thunk!

Although the kicking styles of these young soccer players may be unorthodox, the intent is the same — score goals. In the top and bottom shots, eight-year-old Kevin Murdock shows us his different methods of shooting, while in the middle Dave Hurd, also eight, gives us his version. All the action is taking place at the indoor soccer training sessions held at Quinte Secondary School every Wednesday. For story, see Page 15.

CP Rail Buys Land for Dump

PORT HOPE, Ont. (CP) — One of two farmers owning land proposed as a dump for garbage from Toronto confirmed Wednesday that CP Rail has purchased the site outright.

Morley Harness, owner of part of 300 acres on which CP Rail held options to lease, said he sold his property, to be used as a landfill disposal site by Metropolitan Toronto, for an undisclosed sum.

CP Rail still requires the approval of the Environmental Hearing Board before it begins hauling garbage. The land must also be rezoned first by the Hope Township council, and the rezoning requires the approval of the Ontario Municipal Board.

A CP Rail spokesman said it will take about 18 months to prepare the site for garbage disposal after it is approved.

Eric DeMont, the CP Rail solicitor who concluded the land sale late Wednesday afternoon, said the acreage for the site is rocky land with ravines, good only for grazing cattle.

Condemnation of the sale came quickly from the leader of a local conservation group.

Mrs. A. K. Smallthorpe, chairman of Help Oust Pollution Escalation (HOPE) vowed to continue the committee's battle against the dump.

Kissinger Off to Mideast Again Tonight

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Secretary Henry Kissinger leaves tonight for another Middle East trip as the United States and Israel appear near an agreement on a military disengagement plan for the Suez canal area.

Kissinger is scheduled to return to Washington Sunday night. He will meet twice with President Anwar Sadat of Egypt and once with Premier Golda Meir of Israel.

Before leaving, the secretary scheduled a joint news conference with William Simon, the administration's chief energy policy-maker. The two were expected to go over aspects of the Arab oil boycott and President Nixon's plans for a February meeting with foreign ministers of eight major oil-consuming countries.

U.S. officials say Kissinger will carry to Egypt Israel's thinking on separating the troops of the two countries in the canal area.

No details of Israel's ideas were disclosed, but Jerusalem is known to have promoted the concept of pulling back its troops perhaps 20 miles from the canal if Cairo undertakes "mutual commitments."

These might involve a reduction in the number of Egyptian troops on the east bank of the waterway, a reopening of the canal to Israeli shipping and a demilitarized zone between the two forces and policed by international units.

Kissinger is to outline all of this to Sadat at their first meeting Friday in Aswan, a southern Egyptian city near the mammoth dam built by the Russians in the 1950s.

The secretary then will fly to Israel to report on Sadat's reaction. At that point, the Israeli government may be in a position to draw up a formal proposal on disengagement.

Even if not, Kissinger will return to Aswan to tell Sadat of the Israeli plan as it has developed to that point.

Big Meeting at Tweed Debates County Plan

TWEED — District residents packed the Hungerford township hall here Wednesday night to debate the proposed Hastings County official plan.

Interest was so high more than 70 people could find no room.

The meeting, with Reeve Graham Bell of Marmora-Lake township presiding, drew people from surrounding communities and rural townships.

The meeting saw one of the heaviest responses of public interest since planners began presenting the document at a series of meetings throughout the county.

Among objections voiced at the meeting were protests from farmers and landowners against several proposals in the plan.

The meeting, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce here, lasted three hours.

Demands Increase On Local Council

MARMORA— To meet expected increased demands on local governments an additional committee directly dealing with fire and sanitation, has been added to Marmora Lake township council.

Robert Drummond, Gordon Jones and Pat Bertrand were appointed to the new committee.

Former MP Now Judge

COBOURG — In a colorful ceremony before more than 150 members of the Northumberland-Durham legal community, Brigdan lawyer Ben Thompson a former Quinte district MP, was sworn in as that county's family court judge.

Judge Thompson began his practice of law in 1950, entering into partnership with his father, Clive Thompson. Mr. Thompson senior has practised in Brigdan for the past 42 years.

Judge Thompson served as Conservative MP for Northumberland during the administration of John Diefenbaker. He was first elected in 1957 in what then was a Liberal riding. He declined to seek re-election in 1962. Much of his old riding is now part of Prince Edward-Hastings represented by George Hees.

Following the lengthy ceremony the Northumberland Durham Law association held a reception for Judge Thompson in the Cobourg Legion hall.

The Thompson practice in Brigdan and Cobourg has been taken over by the Belleville firm of Ring and Twiss and Fenn. Its representative will be lawyer Keith Bell while the senior Mr. Thompson will continue in practice for a time.

Quinte Mohawk Council Holds Inaugural

TYENDINAGA — Chief William Brant is setting aside a specific day each week to meet with Bay of Quinte Mohawks on this reserve.

The newly-elected chief told the Mohawk council, inaugural meeting Wednesday night he will be available each Tuesday afternoon at the reserve band office to conduct business and, generally, to confer with individual Mohawks.

The inaugural meeting opened with prayers and a brief sermon from Rev. Cyril Betts (standing, left), reserve chaplain.

Motorists Tardy Renewing Plates

TRENTON — Trenton motorists may find themselves in the largest automobile licence plate renewal lineup if a "take care of it later" attitude persists.

A spokesman for the town's license outlet said about six per cent of the area's 9,300 motorists have renewed their plates.

This is considered quite slow for Trenton, although it compares favorably against the provincial rate of 3.8 per cent renewal to date.

Many licensing outlets have been specializing on the reason for slow sales but the common consensus is no one is too eager to pay anything from $23 to $40 for a plastic sticker instead of the conventional metal plate.

Rates have not changed since last year and deadlines for 1973 plates is midnight, Feb. 28.

Amalgamated Library, First Board Named

MARMORA — Howard Bleecker has been named chairman of the newly-formed public library board serving this village, nearby Deloro and Marmora-Lake township.

Mr. Bleecker, chairman of the former library board in this village for 11 years, did much organizing of its successor group.

Under the new setup Mrs. Helen Jones remains librarian in Marmora and Mrs. Muriel Regan librarian of the Deloro branch.

The new, amalgamated board came into being when the municipalities involved more provincial funds were available for the larger organization.

It also means township residents will be able to borrow books without paying a $2 membership fee to the libraries in the villages.

At Deloro meantime, work of cataloging and arranging books has been delayed for lack of shelving. The library had 3,500 books when the village community centre burned a year ago.

Libraries in Trenton, Belleville, Kingston, Whitby, Madoc and Orono have all contributed books. Donations also have been received from the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire here.

The new library board, elected for a year until next two-year municipal elections, also includes Marmora Reeve Jack Reynolds, Bernice Young, Deloro, Verna Hughes and Peggy Bertrand, Marmora-Lake.

The Lewis car crossed the roadway and struck a snow bank on the North side of the road before it came to rest on its roof.

Damage to the car was estimated at approximately $1,200.

Frankford Project

Senior Citizens Club Gets $2,800 Grant

FRANKFORD — Frankford Senior Citizens club has been given a $2,780 New Horizons federal grant.

The money will go toward outfitting a new clubroom for the group. With over 100 members, the club has outgrown its quarters in the Lions Club clubhouse, the one-time Canadian National Railway station.

The club is moving to the basement of the Masonic Lodge and will spend the money to equip the room with card tables and games. A craft program is also planned.

Mrs. Jack Finnegan, one of the members actively involved in applying for the grant, said the club executive is arranging for activities for those members who do not play cards. The club holds regular potluck dinners and weekly meetings. It is in its third year of operation.

Mrs. Finnegan said the village will be surveyed to find if there is a need for a meals-on-wheels program for senior citizens. If need is proved, some of the grant will be used to buy equipment for the project.

"In a small place, we don't have the facilities for recreation that they have in larger centres," said Mrs. Finnegan. "We have to make our own fun, and that's why we applied for the grant."

"My glasses? House of Spectacles, of course."

Political Refugees

Canada shortly will admit more than 150 Chileans fleeing the military regime in their country.

Remember that nominally at least these people have been followers of the former Marxist-leaning government of Salvador Allende, but security checks have been carried out and presumably these people will be entering Canada with their noses as politically clean as possible.

We have agreed after they become settled in this country is another matter. In any event Ottawa is demonstrating its goodwill in this matter, albeit under pressure from some very strange bedfellows, including the Communist party of Canada and assorted academics and clerics.

Of course the government, or rather the taxpayer, is paying the travelling expenses of these people who, incidentally, are coming in an armed forces jet from Trenton which conveniently is on a training mission to South America.

A poignant contrast to this interesting turn of events concerning the Chileans was a story in The Intelligencer the other day which told of the shooting death of a 27-year-old Vancouver man in Bogota, Colombia. It reportedly will cost the dead man's parents $1,000- to have his body shipped home.

Stroke of Fate

It is difficult to conceive of a more cruel stroke of fate than the accident that has Apollo Farbell Club weightlifter Gary Wall confined to a hospital bed — with his leg in a cast rather than in the final stages of preparation for the Commonwealth Games in Christchurch, N.Z.

Quite apart from missing the Games and a good chance of a gold medal, the prospect of that trip to New Zealand's sunny shores in itself is a treat for members of the Canadian team.

Wall is taking his misfortune philosophically and facing the future with courage. Already he is wondering if he will be able to get back into shape for competition in 1975.

With that kind of resolution, we would not be surprised if he does.

Winter Scene

Soon we may expect another winter carnival and a season that has afforded few difficulties or extremes of the kind experienced in the heavy shovelling and, by contrast, thaws, of the last few years.

Snowmobiles are still around, but possibly to a slighter lesser extent than before and causing, we should say, considerably less aggravation to the public at large than in the past. Tragically though, their use continues to result in death and injury as the season progresses and this is to be deplored.

Meanwhile, a scene which is reminiscent of an oldtime winter, is the slope at East Ewick's Island, a park of the future, where the city dump often stood, and which now makes a handy slide for the youngsters and for a few mums and dads too.

A Look Back

Perhaps it is not too far back to refer to the Santa Claus parade. A letter received from a reader which unfortunately got mislaid had praise for the planning of the event by Lee Jouard and his team.

The letter noted that the parade in itself was excellent, and added, "... but the whole was considerably enhanced by the two children who were the commentators. What a change to be able to view the parade through the eyes and thoughts of these children ... they were beautiful.

There was room for the parade's organizers too. All in all it is nice to look back to an event that always is a pleasant one in Belleville's calendar.

Asian Conflict

The horror of war, which is taken so much for granted these days is brought home by a single picture from Cambodia where fighting between Communist and government forces continues. It shows a father clutching his son, a boy of perhaps four or five, after the youngster had been wounded in a shelling attack on Phnom Penh. Who knows what the boy's ultimate fate will be whoever coined the phrase, "war is hell," said it all.

Little Affected by Energy Crisis

'74 Well Under Way Canada More Fortunate Than Most

By JOHN D. HARBRON,
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The New Year's Day annual proposals about the state of the world is more optimistically and realistically done where personal affairs are concerned. It is possible, I suppose, for you or me to really turn over some kind of a new leaf—as difficult as it may be.

But Jan. 1, especially of 1974, was a day like many others in the midst of continuing crises and developments in international affairs.

Northern Ireland went its unmerry and tragic pace with the New Year's Eve murder of a policeman, bringing to 932 the number killed in that brutal part of the world since the current crisis exploded in 1969.

Energy crisis deepened over the holiday with more advances in oil prices coming from Ecuador, Libya and Venezuela.

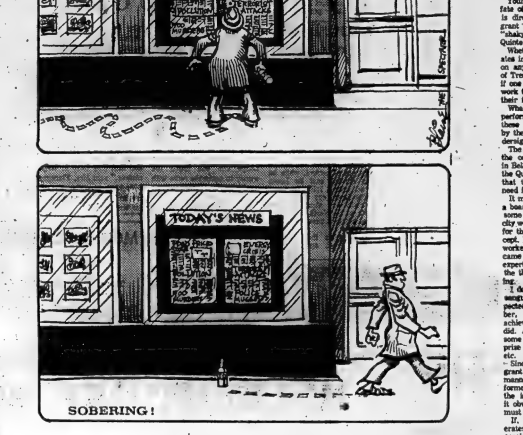
The Middle East crisis, concentrating at long last on the Arab-Israeli face-to-face discussions in Geneva, is in jeopardy—a result of the dwindling power of Premier Golda Meir after the New Year's Day Israeli general election.

In that area, we should be reminded that Israelis are the only people between Italy and India who still can vote freely and openly, as in Canada. That's not the case in Greece, Turkey, Spain, or any of the Arab countries (except Lebanon), nor in Iran. And that kind of non-election situation isn't going to change for the better.

Take Chile, where the last hot flames at South America's democracies was destroyed by a military coup last September, in Santiago, 1974 will be the year to make or break the new military leaders in trying to bring order out of the economic chaos of the Allende years.

The escalating events increasing internal disruption, like the attempted murder of Mr. Shafi, prominent British Jewish leader and chairman of Marks and Spencer, chain of stores, will take no notice of the goodwill wishes of New Year's, 1974.

What ghastly events await world societies is anyone's guess, with a year-end report that an urban guerrilla group is presently roaming Europe allegedly armed with Soviet Soviet rockets.



There are, as always, rays of hope in the gloom of a turbulent world. Though the guns still sound in Vietnam in spite of last January's truce, 1974 will be the first year in about 20 when U.S. troops have not been fighting somewhere overseas.

Our country is booming and blessed. Tuesday's read of a greater-than-usual number was that on the New Year's Day there that 44 murders in Toronto in 1973 was a record. It was still a long way indeed from Detroit's record last year of 750 homicides.

Canadians are by and large the envy of the western world having upon Americans on every side. In Ontario, where this column is written, there is no energy shortage. Any effort here to drive at the suggested slower speed rate on provincial super-highways is still courting rear-end collisions and tailgating.

Unless we face a domestic crisis of the kind which staggered the country in the 1970 FLQ crisis, Canadians will remain largely removed from their own bailiwick to the affairs of 1973 as they continue into 1974.

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp has told us we will have to pay more for many services in future peacekeeping assignments in traditional middle-power role we should not abandon.

Economic Catastrophe Threatens The British

By ROD CURRIE

LONDON (CP) — Most remarkable feature of the first grey week of 1974 in Britain is the incredible public apathy in the face of what government, opposition and unions all warn is impending economic catastrophe.

As Prime Minister Edward Heath, coal miners' president Joe Gormley and Opposition leader Harold Wilson do a sort of dance macabre centre stage, the country generally is treating the whole thing as a somewhat agonizing spectator sport.

"What can we do about it—dig coal?" is a typical reaction.

In one day alone since the three-day, energy-saving week came in New Year's Day, there were reports of a million workers registered for unemployment benefits.

But despite the immediate prospects of growing unemployment and shrinking pay packets—an estimated 6.5 million will soon be affected in varying degrees—millions of workers still were reluctant to end the festive holiday they had already stretched from Dec. 21 through New Year's.

Dozens of auto plants and others in the industrial north shut down for lack of staff and only 71 of 260 coal mines operated due to "high absenteeism" and other factors.

With trade services in chaos, mail services curtailed, television on a 10:30 p.m. blackout, gasoline shortages and shops resorting to candles to keep open, the people seemed numb to the threats of even worse things heralded by newspaper headlines.

Also strangely silent are such public personalities as Len Murray, general secretary of the Trades Union Congress; Governor Gorton Richardson of the Bank of England, which financial-circle wags refer to the bank as "the lords of the unknown governor," and Liberal Leader Jeremy Thorpe, publicly criticized by one of his colleagues for "apparent lack of vision" in the crisis.

In this vacuum, isolated voices and the right and left make dire predictions of a Communist plot or, alternatively, that British Leyland is ripe for a right-wing takeover.

One of Britain's leading economic writers says privately that the cutback goes on indefinitely as foreseen was unemployment, virtual disappearance of credit, repossession of unpaid-for consumer goods and a financial state of near-anarchy.

The dispute in which Heath has sternly refused to breach the anti-inflation policy to grant coal miners demands has received the spectre of class conflict in Britain.

While the miners and others are held back, the theory goes, the money-makers—property speculators, the expense - account executives in advertising, entertainment and the like grow fat.

While others dust off the old phrase about Britain becoming ungovernable." Alan Watkins, writing in the weekly New Statesman, finds plenty of blame for the politicians.

"The politicians have so far failed to convince the people not so much that there is a crisis as that there is a crisis in which individuals are directly involved."

Nevertheless, "the popular view seems to be that the politicians got us into this mess. . . And it now is rather up to them to get us out of it, if they can."

Backbone of the Legislature

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau

TORONTO — At this time of year it is fitting to mention some people who make very practical contributions to the legislature and yet go largely unrecognized.

Heading this list would be Mr. Speaker Alan Reuter.

I don't think there is any question that Mr. Reuter tops the historical list of Ontario speakers.

An unassuming man, yet tough enough to control the rowdiest house we have had in years. Even to the extent of for the first time in history adjourning it for a half hour one afternoon when it got too noisy.

Then there is Eric Winkler, chairman of the management board but also house leader for the government.

This last post is a time-consuming one and means that Mr. Winkler puts in more hours in the house than probably any other member.

He is the manager of the business of the house and, old pro that he is, has turned into a good one.

Then there are the approximately 80 members who are not members of the cabinet on the government side or on the opposition side are not in the front and centre category.

They get only occasional attention.

Perhaps a few paragraphs of a speech in the house gets reported.

Sometimes even a few rounds of applause.

But for the most part they are just "sitters," neither actors nor audience.

Yet they are the root of the quality of the legislature and its service to the people.

Day in and night out they sit in committees and conduct the other business which are the food of government and parliament—of the system.

Then they spend hours in their offices, and in their homes in their ridings, taking care of the local and personal affairs of you and I.

They should not be lost on the obscurity which is so much of their fate.

Quinte Help Fund And The Citizens' Bureau

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Permit me to correct the misleading impression left by the article entitled "Citizens, Beware Fate Unsure."

Your reporter infers that the fate of the bureau in Belleville is directly related to the LIP grant in Trenton and the "shaky" performance of the Quinte Help Fund.

Whether or not a bureau operates in this city has no bearing on any LIP grant in the town of Trenton beyond the hope that if one is established they would work together for the benefit of their fellow citizens.

What was meant by "shaky performance" is not clear as these words are those uttered by the reporter and not the undersigned.

The only factor that dictates the continuance of the bureau in Belleville is public support of the Quinte Help Fund, indicating that the public recognizes the need for such an organization.

It must be borne in mind that a board of directors, comprising some of the best brains in the city were unable to raise one cent for the continuance of the concept. Mr. Lentini and his fellow workers in the QHF generously came forward and offered their expertise and help to get the ball on the thing on a permanent footing.

I doubt, if even in their most sanguine expectations, they expected, in the month of December, starting from scratch to achieve much more than they did. As it was they produced some ... $1,300 after paying out prize money and printing costs etc.

Since the expiration of the LIP grant the bureau has been managed on a voluntary basis by former members of the staff but the increasing workload makes it obvious that eventually there must be full time operation.

If, and when the lottery generates enough money for the consideration of a paid staff, that will be the time to judge the merit of the idea. Until then it is pure conjecture.

WILLIAM C. HOCKLEY.

* * *

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I wish to take issue with your recent article, 'Citizens' Bureau Fate Unsure.' Your reporter stated that the Quinte Help Fund Inc., in its support of the Citizens' Bureau, gives a "shaky performance". The implications of this statement in the article are that the Quinte Help Fund, despite advertising, has not been able to raise sufficient funds to keep the bureau going.

Let me advise you that the Quinte Help Fund a) did not spend any money in fundraising for the December draw, and that b) the proceeds of the draw were completely sufficient to cover expenses and to further the aims of the Quinte Help Fund, which are to help people in need. The Quinte Help Fund does not exercise to put money into the bank to ignor interest. The proceeds of the Quinte Help Fund will be totally applied to the benefit of the community.

In conclusion, as President of the Quinte Help Fund, let me say that I am looking with optimism into the future of the Quinte Help Fund and the services it will be able to perform.

The League of Nations held its first meeting in Geneva 54 years ago today—in 1920—after its creation by the Treaty of Versailles. The treaty was not ratified by the United States and was passively occupied by the defeated powers of the First World War. Several of its major achievements, such as the International Labor Organization, still flourish, but the league failed in its main task of preventing another major European war.

1946—The first General Assembly of the United Nations was held in London.

1913—Toronto-born actress Mary Pickford and actor Douglas Fairbanks were divorced.

1870—William Cody, better known as Buffalo Bill, died.

1840—The penny post began in Britain.

Turner Sees Increase In World Economic Competition

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs
Analyst
Thomson News Service

The energy crisis continues to grow and spread, like lily pad on a pond.

Its gravity, at last, has been recognized at the upper levels of the federal government and politically, by the finance ministers.

Unlike his cabinet colleagues, Jean Marchand, who sees the real problem in tax sharing, John Turner is speaking of a major shift in trade patterns of world trade and international payments.

"... new and insatiest economic competitiveness among nations will be the result," he told Parliament.

The plague of this new struggle for position, one of the Canadian fears, is that it will preserve the spirit of constructive co-operation in policy-making that has characterized the post-war years.

In the twenty-century ago, the great French poet Paul Valery noted that politicians often fail to notice some of the most important trends until it is almost too late. Turner has really seen the developments trend to take place internally.

Valery was thinking of electricity, but his observation applies just as aptly to the development of today's energy crisis.

The politicians have so far failed to convince the people not so much that there is a crisis as that there is a crisis in which individuals are directly involved."

Nevertheless, "the popular view seems to be that the politicians got us into this mess. . . And it now is rather up to them to get us out of it, if they can."

Farmers Can't Meet Milk Needs

TORONTO (CP) — The chairman of the Ontario Milk Marketing Board said Wednesday a reduction in milk production across the province has resulted in farmers not being able to meet demand.

George H. McLaughlin told the annual meeting of the province's milk producers that milk production has declined due to skyrocketing feed prices, increased labor costs, poor weather and uncertainty over continued federal government subsidies.

"We have less milk than we have a market for at current prices," he said.

Mr. McLaughlin said farmers must be guaranteed an adequate return on their investment and for their labor before any attempt to increase production is made.

"The acquisition of food in the future will require the provision of highly competitive returns to agricultural resources, returns that will be both adequate and reliable."

Gas Rationing Plans Spread

LONDON (AP) — Sweden is said this week it is "very unlikely rationing will be imposed this month" but added, "I am not prepared to comment further than January."

West Germany—Driving was banned on four Sundays in December, and there were plans to start a new system of partial weekend driving bans. But this week the government announced that improved prospects for oil supplies mean an indefinite postponement of Sunday bans.

FRANCE — The only conservation measure is a speed limit, and the government insists no more will be needed.

Austria—One carless day a week will start next week, and there have been rumors rationing may come next month.

Switzerland—The Swiss government said Wednesday it is preparing a rationing system but emphasized this is a precautionary measure and there are no plans to put it into operation in the foreseeable future.

Italy—There has been press speculation that gas rationing may be on the way, but there has been no official indication so far.

Denmark—Alone of Scandinavian countries, Denmark has no plans for rationing.

Belgium—No plans for rationing, since that could lead to a black market benefiting richer drivers, an economic ministry spokesman said.

London: And Some Calls This the Most Civilized City!

LONDON (AP) — "And here calls this the most civilized city in the world," mused George the barman at Waterloo Station.

He was looking out at a mob of commuters shouting at the gates of the 5:42 to Guildford, already an hour late.

They stampeded across the terminal like a nightmare backfield in motion at a football game, then reversed their field when the train, caller rasped out an alternate choice: "The train now standing on platform 15 is the 1703 to Exeter . . . four coaches only."

Two helmeted bobbies cut off the surging crowd by dangling the police thrall. A reflected basher-type came to a bell under his helmet and lettered a rare obscenity at a passing trainman, reflecting the growing hostility of the passengers against the muddled go-slow of the Locomotive Engineers' Union.

Wednesday, only 45 of the 278 commuter trains scheduled by Southern Region, which serves the stockbroker belt, ran because of the wage dispute.

But all over London, people were coping as much as they were complaining, daring as ever to go to the theatre in spite of the threat of hooties by Irish terrorists, shopping by gaslight at the great post-Christmas sales and rubbing out in the street to see what they had bought.

But as the dark days continued amid the bomb scares and the rising prices, there were signs that the traditional stiff British upper lip was curling into a snarl of frustration.

The bowler and umbrella set on the station platforms was breaking ranks in the long-suffering queue and resorting to violence at times. Fearing a punch or worse, trainmen were seen skulking to their locomotives in civilian garb.

"We cornered a couple of drivers last night," bragged a burly warehouseman from Dulwich, "and filled them in proper"—which is British for soliting a few upper lips. "I didn't get the trains moving, but it made us feel a lot better."

Now the trainmen were threatening to shut down Waterloo completely if their pay is stopped as passenger violence continues.

As poet Percy Bysshe Shelley, a commuter from Eton, observed long ago in lines that might have been written

Star-Gazing

SANTIAGO (Reuter) — A Chilean woman clairvoyant, Yolande Bolleau Halabi, who claims to have foretold the death of former president Lyndon Johnson and the re-election of President Nixon, has predicted that Secretary of State Henry Kissinger will marry a very attractive and well-known woman, and that a great scandal will rock the British Royal Family.

Oregonians Buying Gas By Numbers

SALEM, Ore. (AP) — Oregon officials have come up with a sort of gasoline-by-number plan in an effort to ensure all residents a fair chance to get fuel, officials say.

The plans, which take effect Monday on a voluntary basis, involve license plates and the calendar.

If limits motorists with even-number license plates to gasoline purchases on even-numbered days. Motorists with odd-numbered plates get to buy on odd-numbered days.

Saturdays are an exception. To avoid disrupting the recreation industry, the plan provides that anyone can buy gas on Saturday.

Sundays also are an exception because most of the stations have been closed anyway as a conservation move.

There are other special rules involving emergency vehicles, salesmen, out-of-state drivers and people with licence plates that have letters instead of numbers.

State Governor Tom McCall said the plan is working well. "there will be a mandatory program if this doesn't work."

Pipeline To Reopen

OTTAWA (CP) — A long-closed segment of the Trans-Northern Pipeline will finally be reopened and pumping heating oil here from Toronto later next week, The Journal said Wednesday.

Deliveries will quickly reach a level of about 300,000 barrels a month, Hilmar Hall of Ottawa's needs and reducing any threat of fuel oil shortages in this area this winter.

Part of the pipeline has been closed since the federal government adopted a two-market oil policy in 1961, making Eastern Canada, including the Ottawa Valley, dependent on foreign crude-oil imports and reserving all territory west of the Valley for domestic oil.

The Journal quoted Trans-Northern's operations manager, W. G. Burks, as saying an abandoned 54-mile segment of the pipeline between Kingston and Maitland, Ont., has been repaired, tested and is ready for operation. Trans-Northern headquarters are in Toronto.

No Air Bags

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors says it does not plan to have air bags as standard equipment on its 1976 and 1977 model cars.

The air bags, a controversial safety device, originally were scheduled for inclusion in 1974 models in the United States.

House vs. Home

LONDON (CP) — Labor MP Russo Short is advocating more civilized working hours for the Commons, saying the present schedule was probably a major factor in the recent rash of divorces involving parliamentarians. "It ought to be possible to organize a reasonable working day," she said, noting that many members are away from home until late most days and then have weekend speaking engagements.

Micheners' Farewells Are Said in Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — Gov.-Gen. Roland Michener said good-by in Ottawa and public life Wednesday as he and Mrs. Michener took their final ride in his role and Commons Speaker the Governor-General's private and full state to Toronto and retire- ment.

Although Mr. Michener's offi- cial retirement doesn't begin until Jan. 14, he plans to end his term in Toronto, where he has bought a house.

Prime Minister and Mrs. Trudeau were on hand to see the Micheners off in a quiet, but formal ceremony.

Mr. Michener, 73, inspected a guard of honor from the Prin- cess Louise 8th Canadian Hus- sars of Petawawa, Ont. Opposition Leader and Mrs. Robert Stanfield, New Demo- cratic Leader David Lewis and Mrs. Lorlei Lamoureux wished the Micheners good luck and good-bye.

Mr. Justice Bora Laskin, newly-appointed chief justice of the Supreme Court of Canada, also was there.

Just before the Governor-Gen- eral and Mrs. Michener boarded their car, Mr. Mich- ener paused for a quick peck at Margaret Trudeau's cheek and told her he will "be watching with interest the antics of these two lads of yours."

Second Invasion Of Cuba Was Planned

NEW YORK (AP) — Free- lance journalist Tad Szulc says the United States during Presi- dent Lyndon Johnson's admini- tration planned a second in- vasion of Cuba combined with an attempt to assassinate Pre- mier Fidel Castro.

The plan had to be cancelled, Szulc said in an article to be published in the Jan. 27 Esquire magazine, when rebellion unex- pectedly erupted in the Domin- ican Republic in April, 1965, and Johnson sent troops to that country.

Szulc, a former diplomatic correspondent for the New York Times, said the operation was planned by the Central In- telligence Agency (CIA), "pre- sumably acting with President Lyndon Johnson's authority (un- less it was another do-it-your- self undertaking)." He wrote:

"The new invasion was to be on a smaller scale than the Bay of Pigs. The scenario was to bring ashore some 750 armed Cubans at the crucial moment when Castro would be dead and inevitable chaos had developed . . .

"The existence of the assassi- nation plot, hatched by the CIA in Paris and Madrid, was dis- closed by the Cuban govern- ment in March, 1966, after the designated gunman—a bearded Cuban physician and former Cuban revolutionary Army ma- jor named Rolando Cubela— was arrested in Havana follow- ing investigations by Castro's counter-intelligence agents, who had become suspicions of him."

Sidney Bates Gets The Message Across

By ISABEL HUGGAN

Imagine yourself in a country where you can't speak the language and no one understands you.

Imagine the pressure you would feel if you were expected to function as "one of them", with responsibilities to carry out.

Imagine how you would long for someone to interpret and translate for you, to help you lead an ordinary life.

Then you'll know how happy deaf people of Belleville are to have Rev. Sidney Bates in their midst. For he is interpreter, translator and friend to both the deaf and the non-deaf.

Chaplain for Quinte conference of the United Church Rev. Bates' job is to minister to the deaf regardless of denomination. In the area he serves - - from Ajax to Brockville, the urban areas where deaf people congregate - he is in close contact with the Catholic mission which serves the same people.

Denominational differences just aren't an issue in this type of work, says Rev. Bates. The important thing is the sharing of worship and fellowship.

Breaking the barriers of sound and silence has been Rev. Bates' chosen field since early in his career as a minister.

A jeweller in Sarnia until ten years ago, Rev. Bates went back to school at the ages of 38 so that he could be ordained.

"I suddenly realized that the talents and abilities I have are suited to the ministry. I stopped thinking 'they' should do something and started thinking 'I' should go somewhere to help other people."

After finishing his theology studies at Queen's University, Rev. Bates was sent to pastorates in Milford and Norwood where he served as an "ordinary" minister. But all during this time he knew there was a special way in which he wanted to serve.

Since a church service in the early '60s where he witnessed deaf people receiving the sermon through a translator, he knew that he wanted to reach these people in particular. Instead of studying ancient Hebrew, he studied the living languages of the deaf, and learned to speak with sign language and finger spelling.

Rev. Bates' opportunity to serve the deaf came in Peterborough. He helped establish a church where both hearing and deaf worship together with oral and manual communication.

That was three years ago, and the church there continues to grow.

In November, Rev. Bates and his wife Freda moved to Belleville, which is not only the geographical centre of his charge, but also the home of at least 50 deaf people outside the Ontario School for the Deaf.

There is one church where Rev. Bates preaches here. Instead, he travels to various churches on request, where he interprets services for the deaf of the congregation. He also gives sermons in both languages at once, using hands and voice to get his message across.

Highly skilled at manual speech himself, Rev. Bates is an advocator of finger spelling.

"It's so easy to learn," he says. "And if hearing people could just take the time to do so, they could communicate so easily with the deaf."

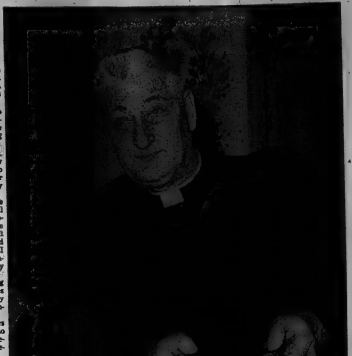
Interesting the public in talking to the deaf is one of Rev. Bates chief concerns.

"The differences between the hearing and deaf are not so great," he says. "It isn't all during this time he knew hearing that is important, it's listening."

He is available to listen, to visit and to assist the deaf people of Belleville during the week when he isn't travelling to other centres.

Besides counselling, Rev. Bates is prepared to help any deaf person in court or in job situations where clear communication is absolutely necessary.

"In the last two or three years I've noticed that my oral English has changed as a result of translating for the deaf," Rev. Bates says. "It has become more explicit and clear, and I can say what I need to say much more simply. We really do use many more words than we need."



He is now expert-at reducing one of his six page sermons down to two pages for delivery to deaf congregations, retaining only the essential ideas.

Pepole whom Rev. Bates makes a definite effort to reach are those who have become deaf during their lifetime.

These persons who remember hearing, encounter more frustration and are often more sensitive about their handicap than those who have been deaf since birth.

"It is important to note that in this industrialized and noise-polluted society of ours, that the number of deafened people is increasing," he says.

Because of the Ontario School for the Deaf in Belleville, citizens here are more aware of the presence of deaf people in the community. But after awareness comes responsibility. Rev. Bates believes. The responsibility of communication.

New Chaplain for the Deaf

Sidney Bates, United Church chaplain for the deaf in the Quinte area, is available at his home at 72 Highland Ave. for counselling and conversation during the week. On Sundays he preaches in oral and manual languages in local churches by invitation.

People and Events

Plans are being made for the twelfth annual meeting of the Belleville Presbyterial United Church Women. The meeting will convene at Holloway Street United Church, Belleville on Thursday, January 24 at 9 a.m.

The guest speaker, John A. Black Q.C., B.A. of Kingston, will present the theme. Mr. Black is a native of Kingston and was educated in the Kingston Schools and Queens University. He is a graduate of Osgoode Hall Law School.

Mr. Black is active in his local church, Kingston Presbytery, Bay of Quinte Conference, and the General Council of the United Church of Canada. He is Past Chairman of Kingston Presbytery and Past President of Bay of Quinte Conference. At the current time he is a representative to Kingston Presbytery, a member of Executive and Sub-Executive of Bay of Quinte Conference, a member of Executive and Sub-Executive of General Council and a member of the Board of Management, Queens Theological College, Kingston.

West Huntingdon community members gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lindsay Sills, Stirling, for a farewell party before their departure to Mount Pleasant.

Barton Haggerty presided over a program which opened with community singing led by Rev. Roy Taylor, accompanied by Mrs. Taylor at the piano. Mrs. Olive Cooke, Mrs. Diane Haggerty and Mrs. Mabel Irvine read and musical selections were presented by Gail Heather and Debbie Larue and their father Larry Larue, as did Kim Martin and her father Gary.

Elaine Wallace read an address on behalf of the assembled and presented a purse and other gifts.

Deaf Children Aided by IODE

TORONTO (CP) — Special-ized equipment to help Eskimo children whose hearing is impaired, is being paid for by the IODE.

The project was suggested by Mrs. Roland Michener, wife of the Governor-General, after a discussion with Commissioner Stuart M. Hodgson of the Northwest Territories.

The IODE raised $2,500 during the fall for the purchase of 10 desk model trainer sets. They are used to help young children who cannot use hearing aids over prolonged periods.

The children can tolerate the head sets, and it helps them not only with the hearing problem, but with the problem of keeping up with their school work.

The federal government does not supply basic hearing aids, but not this specialized equipment.

Ann Landers

She Complains Whether He Does or Doesn't

Dear Ann Landers: My wife and I have been married for 35 years. We slept together in a standard-size bed until five years ago. I moved to the spare room after being badgered with the following complaints:

"Turn your head. You are breathing in my face."

"Move on your side. Your snoring is keeping me awake."

"Your feet are cold. Get them away."

"Take over to your side of the bed. I'm about to fall off."

"Give me some covers. Last night I darn near froze to death and woke up with a sore throat."

"Stop moving. You've awak-ened me twice already."

I must say I have enjoyed sleeping in a bed myself these last five years. Yesterday my wife asked me to return to the old arrangement. What should I say?—New York Reader

Dear New York: Tell her it's a great place to visit but you don't want to live there. Then move it.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a 33-year-old girl who just about needs whimper I read those letters from women who are trying to lose weight. I'm five feet five, have weighed 180 pounds for the last four years, and would give anything if I could put on 18 pounds.

I've gone to three different doctors and they all say I'm in good health and not to worry. One doctor said I'd probably put on weight after I had a few babies. Another said it would surely happen after the menopause .But I don't want to wait that long. I want to look like a woman now.

Please check with some authorities and come up with some words of encouragement for this.—Big, Tess and Hank of Hair

Dear Friend: Sorry, but Dr. Jean Mayer, a Harvard nutritionist and top authority in the field, says most thin people inherit their frames and it's hopeless to try to fatten them up. They simply lack the "storage cells" for fat. These people often try to stuff themselves and succeed in getting sick in the process but it doesn't do any good.

My advice to you, and to others who are fighting the same battle, is to concentrate on good posture; stay away from clinging fabrics and tight-fitting clothes, and don't hesitate to use a little padding here and there—especially there.

Dear Ann Landers: Throughout my long adult life I have collected a lot of Oriental art. Occasionally I will buy a modern piece that appears old just because I like its form, color or texture.

My problem is this: What do I say when someone greatly admires one of my non-genuine pieces? Do I keep quiet, or do I say: "They are selling these by the dozen downtown."

I want to be honest, but I don't want to insult people by implying they are so stupid that they don't know the real thing from the phony.—West Coast Art Addict

Dear West: I see no reason to tell people more than they want to know. When someone admires your collection, simply say, "Thank you." If the direct question is asked—"Is this piece authentic?"—you should, of course, tell the truth.

Real Love, Real Love: My medical consultant has repeatedly assured me that the only time for concern about marrying within the family is when there is some genetic tendency in a type of disease which can be passed down from one generation to another.

There are heaps of Canadian children born of first-cousin parents and doing fine.

The important thing is for you to know that what you feel now is the Real Thing. Since you are free to be around with her when your families are together you might just be mistaking friendship for something more important.

Dear Doris: (1) Does the mother of the bride kiss the groom as well as her daughter after the ceremony?

(2) If so, when is the right time to do so? At the receiving line or when?

Wondering.

Dear Wondering: (1) Sweet. (2) Whenever she kisses her daughter. This is likely to be when she first meets the shining couple as they emerge from the church. Don't stand on ceremony: give him a smacker!

(Don't just ramble along. Do something about what's troubling you. A letter to Doris, in care of the newspaper, can put you on the way to more Successful Living.)
